Officer Wounded Probing Brawl On Indian Reserve

Quick Thinking Angler Saves Life by Wild Drive

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A wild drive at speeds up to 100 miles an hour and the blood from 150 emergency donors saved the life of an RCMP constable shot Sunday on a nearby Indian reserve.

Constable John D. S. Clark, 29, was investigating a brawl on the Colony Farm Indian reserve when near Coquitlam when he became the target for a .22 calibre rifle.

Const. Clark, father of four children, was felled and would have bled to death from a half-inch wound in his heart but for the quick thinking of an Indian fisherman visiting the reserve.

John Robertson, 27, of Prince Rupert, heard the shot and found the Mountie struggling for call for assistance over the cruiser radio.

Robertson, commended by RCMP officials for his "coolness and courage," fired the constable's revolver into the floor of the car to scare the gunman away.

EXPERIENCED DRIVER

Robertson had driven a car only twice before and did not have a driver's licence. He raced the cruiser at high speeds over the car radio, Robertson said, he knew how to work it because I've used ones like it on fishboats. I drove as fast as I could. I didn't think much except that the officer was dying.

Police cars met him on the route and led him to hospital. Doctors gave Const. Clark repeated transfusions of rare-type O negative blood while they sewed up his heart and lung wound.

Police picked up a man on the reserve in connection with the shooting. A charge was expected to be laid today.

Still Expect Reds Will Not Disturb Berlin

GENEVA (AP)—The Western foreign ministers still expect the Russians to agree not to disturb the status of West Berlin despite Soviet Premier Khrushchev's declaration that he won't bargain for a settlement.

The Western delegates at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference assume Khrushchev still is zealous for a summit conference. U.S. State Secretary Christian A. Herter made it clear to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko that unless the Red threat to West Berlin is lifted, President Eisenhower would not attend a summit meeting.

Khrushchev in a speech in Atlantic Shipyard said the Western proposal to the conference for Berlin said "reunification first" "does not contain a single element for negotiations."

The Russians are standing on their original proposal to end the occupation of Berlin, make West Berlin a demilitarized free city and conclude separate peace treaties now with West and East Germany.

EXPECT ASSURANCE

The Western ministers nevertheless think that in order to get agreement to hold a summit conference, Gromyko will give them firm assurance the Soviet Union will not take any action to change the status of Berlin or increase pressure on the Western powers to get out of the Communist-surrounded city.

The Western delegates expect to get this in the next 10 days or two weeks, after which the foreign ministers' conference is expected to end, the conference also may agree tentatively on some principles as a basis for summit negotiations toward a longer-range Berlin agreement.

Agency Claims Big Victory for Tibetan Rebels

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A Nationalist Chinese news agency claims Tibetan rebels killed about 2,000 Chinese Communist troops May 19 in a battle southeast of Lhasa, Tibet's capital.

There was no confirmation coming the report carried Sunday by Tatao, which claims underground circles in the China mainland.

In bloody fighting lasting two hours, Tatao said, 900 of the Communist troops were killed. The rest fled, Tatao said, the survivors escaped not mention of casualties among rebel forces.

TOYKO (AP) — Peiping radio said Saturday 300 Tibetan rebels taken prisoner during the uprising in Lhasa last March have been released by the Chinese Communist army in Tibet. Peiping said all had been "re-oriented" in prison camps.

UNION AUDITOR SAYS MINE-MILL FUNDS WASTED

Claims Local Treated As "Milk Cow"

SUDBURY (CP) — Former official of International Union of Mine, Mill and Sheller Workers (Ind.) Local 598 spent union funds on luxuries without membership authorization, a u d i t o r Alistair Bennett said Monday.

Mr. Stewart said the union officials under president Mike Solski "developed an extraordinary arrogance" and that it was a tightly-knit group which had a close bond with the national office.

The former CCF member of Parliament brought in to audit union records, said the local was treated as a "milk cow" by the union's national office.

Mr. Stewart described "every cent it could lay its hands on" during the strike against the International Nickle Company, the national office was "dunning" it for money, he said.

$1,500,000 TO HQ

Mr. Stewart told the union commission of inquiry that the local had paid more than $1,500,000 to the national office during the last few years.

The "old guard" ousted by Mr. Solski in 1956 and his supporters in the March election "did not spend the union's money," he said.

During the loco strike last fall, said Mr. Stewart, a letter was received from the national office requesting $50,000 to help with the construction of a Mine-Mill hall at Elliot Lake.

Earlier the local had agreed to loan $21,000, the estimated cost of the Elliot Lake project, Stewart William Longridge asked Local 598 to increase the loan to $35,000.

The request was agreed but the money was not paid all at once. By the time the strike started $20,000 had been advanced.

STRIKE IGNORED

"In the middle of the strike, another letter came from the national office," said Mr. Stewart. "There was no mention of the strike and no mention of the difficulty of isolation the Sudbury members of Local 598.

"Instead, there was a request for more money." The auditor

Liberal Chief Says PC Cabinet Weakest One in Many Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An attack on Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative cabinet was loosed Sunday night by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer.

He told a table-thumping crowd of more than 100 Liberals at a $1,50-a-plate buffet dinner in Hamilton:

"I am not one for personal vilification but the Tory cabinet is the weakest the province has had in many years.

"A year ago they criticized us for the way we were governing and we have one and they are without one. The Liberals are a party that is not afraid to take hold and make changes. Progressive Conservatism is the Conservatives are satisfied with things the way they are."

Mr. Wintermeyer said a Liberal government would pursue a vigorous policy of northern development under a special department of government. Roads would be built, natural resources industry established and freight rates reduced.

"Now is the time to do something about Northern Ontario, not 10 years hence."

The Liberal leader also appeared at the opening session of the annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Ontario as he started a day of party hobnobbing through northeastern Ontario in his campaign for the June 11 provincial election.

Premier Frost, scheduled to fly to North Bay today, was at his home in Lindsay and it was left to Lands and Forests Minister Spooner to give an answer to the Liberal Leader.

Mr. Spooner, seeking re-election in Dufferin-Simcoe, spoke at a campaign meeting in Holtyre, 45 miles east of Timmins. He was scornful of Mr. Wintermeyer's claim the Conservative cabinet is old and tired. Eight of the cabinet ministers are under 50, he said.

The Liberal Ontario minister also took a swing at CCF Leader Donald MacDonald. He noted that MacDonald had claimed after the 1955 election that a deal was made by two Liberal candidate in Cochrane South to enable Mr. Spooner to beat Bill Temagami in the riding.

"I wonder how many deals he is making in the 17 ridings in which there is no CCF candidate in this election," Mr. Spooner said.

Mr. MacDonald spent the weekend in his home riding and Sunday after spending Saturday visiting shopping centres in York South, led by a 20-car caravan.

Mr. Wintermeyer whisked through five central Toronto ridings Saturday, stumped by 1960 cut six or eight more by 1965 — do not qualify under the definition of a "small producer" by Dr. Wilson said.

Some time between 1968 and 1980, Dr. Wilson predicted, a moderate, but increasing, proportion of the electrical energy plants in the U.S. may well be built without subsidy to civilian atomic fuels.

However, no existing plants of reasonable size would be shut down or converted to atomic fuel.

"The large-volume oil products in the U.S. are gasoline and heating oils and these seem well protected against nuclear competition," said Dr. Wilson. "Atomic automobiles, trucks, and tractors seem entirely out of the question because of cost and safety.

When English Girls Visit Continent Their Conduct Shocks Latin Lovers

LONDON (AP) — "Tradition and chaperones don't mean much abroad in a mortal danger from smooth Latin lovers and the continent is a fate worse than death.

"Not so, says the Empire News.

It's the English girls who are the problem — and the Continentals who get shocked.

"Shrieking virgins who would not say boo to a goose at home are turning overnight into flirtatious, immodest and often vulgarly dressed good-time girls abroad," says the Empire News editorial. Empire News says. "They are asking for trouble. And many are getting it."

The paper ordered its correspondents in holiday spots to investigate the vacation behavior of the English females and these were the results:

Italy: Scandalous behavior of English girls on the beaches and in the Italians.

French Riviera: British women are getting their country a bad name. In Nice, the mayor has demanded a ban on outrageous swim wear. British girls usually are considered the worst offenders.

Paris: No use blaming the French for leading English girls astray. They ask for it. There are no girls in the world so easy to pick up as the English.

Toronto Firebug Ignites 6 Homes In Midtown Area

All But One of Blazes Noticed by Passers-By

TORONTO (CP) — A firebug early today set fire to six homes in the midtown Bathurst and College streets area, forcing dozens of people into rain-soaked streets and doing about $10,000 damage.

District Fire Chief W. E. Sercombe said the same method was used in each case. Oily rags, old lumber and rubbish were piled against frame beds at the rear of

All but one of the fires were noticed by passing citizens or the occupants and checked before they became serious. The exception was at a store and apartment owned and occupied by I. Solway where damage was estimated at $6,000. Firemen helped evacuate the Solway family.

Most of the buildings set afire were near streetcar stops, leading police to believe the firebug made public transportation to get from one to another.

Two Aircraft Seized, Probe Illegal Fishing

SIOUX LOOKOUT (CP)—Two aircraft have been seized and "five or six persons" are expected to be charged following an investigation into illegal fishing here being taken out of season.

Robert Trotter, conservation officer for the lands and forests department, said Sunday night a Norseman aircraft owned by Superior Airways of Sioux Lookout was seized on Okapoka Lake in the Kenora area by Ontario conservation officers Clifford Lawson and Douglas Sayers.

TON AND HALF OF FISH

Mr. Trotter said a total of 3,000 pounds of fish—3,000 pounds of pickerel (walleyes) — was also seized.

"We expect to charge five or six persons in magistrate's court Friday, Tuesday," he added. Fines would include taking and transporting of fish out of season.

Would Ostracize Bantu Members Of Authorities

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — African natives today have urged the "ostracism completely, both socially and economically," any African who accepts a position with the new Bantu authorities created by the government.

The call was made by R. M. Sobukwe, president of the Pan Africanist Congress, an extremist branch of the African National Congress.

The Bantu authorities are being set up in Sobukwe's native area for administration, the native reserves in South Africa.

"We must not talk to an African who supports the Bantu authorities," Sobukwe said. "Mr. Sobukwe said, "our children must not play with him. We must have nothing to do with him. We must have any shop where he buys nor will we attend any function if he is present."

Brief Experience Of More Liberty In Paraguay Over

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Paraguay's brief experience in more liberty under dictator Alfredo Stroessner is over, at least for the present.

An attempt by the government to raise bus fares in Asuncion by less than two cents provided the spark that eventually caused Stroessner's iron hand to come down again.

Stroessner dissolved Paraguay's Congress and reimposed the state of siege — martial law. That had been lifted only a month ago. Informed sources said 15 or 16 congressmen have been arrested, including some from Stroessner's own Colorado party. The administration said only three legislators were being held.

LAST DICTATOR

Stroessner lifted the state of siege only a month ago. It had been in force for 15 years except for brief periods. There was talk that the constitutional lawyer-dictator.

Paraguay is not only back under a state of siege. It has no Congress and nearly half its legislators are looking over. Student leaders whose clash with police touched off the trouble say 50 of their number are behind bars.

The latest developments indicate that Stroessner not only has decided Paraguay is not ready for democracy but that he has also decided to crack down on his opponents. He kept his strong rule through army support.

Deny Rumors Lloyd to Lose Present Post

GENEVA (AP)—British delegates to the Big Four foreign ministers' conference today denied a report that Lloyd would be removed from the foreign secretary post to some other cabinet position.

Officials said there is "not the slightest chance" that Lloyd will be moved before Britain's general election due sometime before the end of May.

The London Times report said Lloyd is busy with preparations for a summit meeting among American, French, German and Soviet delegates not only on Berlin but on a broad basis about the nature of the policies to be followed thereafter.

In London responsible sources described the London report as completely unfounded.

The Times reported that Prime Minister Macmillan had taken Lloyd aside to inform him that he will be moved from his post.

Recovery Crews Reach Body of Second Killed

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Recovery crews late Sunday reached the body of the second of two miners killed in a rock burst Thursday morning in the Wright-Hargreaves gold mine.

Mine manager Ed Peter Gray and Gilles Huard, 19, had been killed instantly by the rock burst.

Of three men working at the 12,000-foot level when the accident occurred, only Frank Uramowski, 25, was rescued. He is suffering from head injuries, shock and severe head lacerations, shortly after the accident.

William Bawden, chief engineer of the provincial mines department at Kirkland Lake, met Buckle underground Sunday. He praised the work of the recovery crews and of the mine management and said they were taking every precaution.

There was no indication when the bodies, buried in crushed rock, would be brought up.

Mr. Bawden said the recovery crews had "a very precarious job."

"I am thoroughly in accord with the methods and procedures followed by the mine management in the recovery work," he said. "It's a painfully slow job but I'm sure there is no way you would realize they are doing everything they can."

Traffic Again Congested in Welland Canal

PORT COLBORNE, (CP)—The number of ships waiting to proceed down through the Welland Canal has again reached the congested stage. There are approximately 30 ships now anchored beyond Port Colborne breakwater, waiting for their turn to enter the canal.

Upbound traffic through the canal has picked up with a number of downbound vessels able to navigate the canal has been lessened. Since the St. Lawrence on Sunday, the canal handled 18 upbound vessels and 20 downbound ships.

Some of the ships are taking 15 to 20 hours to pass through the canal, compared to a normal passing time of eight hour hours. This is over and above the time they are assigned to the dock to wait their turn downbound.

Shipping authorities now are examining all ocean freighters at Chaudreau in the hope of finding the proper equipment before allowing three vessels to enter the seaway. Officials say those not carry proper line winches, cables and pulleys through which cables run to the snubbing posts on the canal walls.

Each ship will proceeded up the waterway before the regulation equipment is installed before being allowed on their return trip what the future requirements will be.

The sports car racing season opens this coming weekend for local enthusiasts of the Scuderia Hysteria, the racing team of the Lacrosse Kid and Lead Foot Lizzie. Seven cars will be entered in the Six-hour Relay race, a national event sponsored by the Grand Valley Car Club of the Kitchener-Galt-Brantford area.

The event, the only one of its kind held in the province, is probably North America, is organized for team entries of two to four drivers. Each team is handicapped according to the known performance of the cars and drivers on the team. The object is then for each team to complete as many laps as possible utilizing as easy and drivers to the best of their ability. After the conclusion of the event the team with the greatest number of laps, including the "free" laps awarded under the handicapping system, is the winner. There is also 'six hour' award for the team covering the highest number of laps regardless of handicap.

The local sports car buffs have two teams entered which are named, as is usual in these events, the general humor of the group. Windsor Confession Solves $4,000 Payroll Theft in 1914 At Canada Cement Plant

The calm confession of a 72-year-old man who over the weekend lived in a Windsor police station, has apparently solved a $4,000 payroll disappearance which took place at the Canada Cement Company plant at Point Anne 45 years ago, back in September, 1914.

So far, however, the story still has his freedom with Windsor police allowing him to go when Belleville district police indicated they were not interested.

Hastings County Crown Attorney John A. Pringle said he would be willing to talk with the man if he presented himself at his Belleville office.

Although no reference could be found to the payroll disappearance in plant records at Point Anne, several of the office staff residents vaguely remembered the theft.

One man remembered it was on a Friday in September and a search of Belleville and the Ontario Intelligencer office newspaper files revealed nothing.

The files of the Daily Intelligencer of September 14th, 1914, carried the following account of the payroll disappearance, under the sub-heading "Company Employee Takes Large Sum."

"A man named Brooks who has been employed at Deseronto, made off with a considerable sum of money belonging to the Canada Cement Company, is at present missing, as is also the money.

INTENDED FOR PAY

"The money, we are informed, was intended for the pay of employees and Brooks had obtained it in this city. The men here were not, however, deprived of their wages owing to Brooks' action.

"While in the city no action has been taken against Brooks it is understood that the company is making every effort to locate him.

Details as remembered by oldtimers at Point Anne residents are that the payroll money was picked up by a Belleville bank on a Friday with plant employees being told that they would not be paid until Monday.

When Monday came both Brooks and the payroll had disappeared.

Mr. A. O. Drysdale, plant superintendent at Point Anne, said that office records at the plant made no reference to the payroll disappearance but that full records were kept at Montreal headquarters. He intimated it might take some time to locate them.

He said at that time employees at the cement plant were paid in cash.

Thurlow township Constable Jim Logue said he had learned of the theft from Mr. Drysdale and that Brooks disappeared with the 1914 payroll just before the formation of the Maryland Liability and Casualty Company.

Chief Windsor and Belleville district police declined to divulge the name of the man who confessed to the 1914 Point Anne payroll theft.

Mr. Drysdale said the man gave no indication of the size of the financial strains of his life before the theft.

He lived in the United States.

City Ratepayers Petition Queen's Park for Inquiry; Already Asked Says Mayor

Reports reaching the city today indicate that a full enquiry into the finances of the city of Belleville have been requested by petitioners mailed to Queen's Park.

The petitions were circulated among local taxpayers following the report of the city auditors and the Belleville Municipal Arena and the McFarland's Hockey Club and an accumulated deficit to the end of 1958, amounting to $102,609.

The petition report said that "the deficit of the arena and the hockey club is being financed by bank overdraft and advances from the general fund, both of which should appear illegal."

City manager Drury Denyes, who also acted as city treasurer and manager of the World champion McFarland's Hockey Club, was suspended by council shortly after Mayor Gerald R. Hyde on May 11 announced the city's financial troubles. At that time Mayor Hyde announced that the city's mis-spending might approximate $75,000.

Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender has said he would not hesitate to order a full enquiry into the city's financing of its hockey team if evidence of an audit is asked for.

The petition received by Queen's Park today states that unless the "rank and file" taxpayers requested an inquiry the whole issue might be shelved.

Mayor Gerald R. Hyde today said he had heard that a taxpayer's petition regarding an inquiry was being circulated in the city, but said this was not required to have the enquiry ordered.

The first thing city council did was to ask for the en-

Former Premier of Ontario Heard at Warkworth Rally

TRENTON — The Honorable Harry M. Nixon, MPP, one of the most outstanding men in the Ontario political field for over 40 years, was the guest speaker at a Liberal party rally held in the Warkworth town hall on Friday night.

A capacity crowd was in attendance to demonstrate support for the Liberal nominee for Northumberland County, Colin Crews. Also present at the rally was Mr. Charles Petch, former government entomologist. Mr. Petch, at the age of 72 is now engaged in farming at Hemingford, Quebec.

Chairman for the evening was John Funnell of Cobourg.

Present on the platform were: Mr. Nixon, Colin Crews, Chas. Petch, Mrs. Colin Crews, Bernard Lonigan and Harry Bailey. Mr. Nixon was introduced by Harry Bailey, who reminded the audience that Mr. Nixon had been a former Liberal Premier of Ontario. He was first elected to the Legislature in 1919, and has been the provincial representative in the riding of Brant for 40 years. He has successfully contested 11 elections, and he reminds his Conservative critics that he has "beaten more Tories than any man in Canada."

In his opening remarks Mr. Nixon stated that there was every evidence that many Conservatives in this Northumberland riding would vote the Liberal ticket in the 11th election. The speaker gave a brief resume of the agricultural problems of his background. He said that he was farming on the property that had been purchased in 1339. In 1913 Mr. Nixon obtained his degree in agricultural Scientific Agriculture. His main interest, he affirmed, was in agriculture and the well-being of agriculture, and he was seriously concerned with the present outlook for this important industry under the jurisdiction of the Conservative government.

PROMISES UNFILLED CLAIM

Promised relief to the tobacco growers by Premier Minister Diefenbaker and Premier Frost has gained the representatives 90 percent of the votes in the Brantford area. Contrary to this promise, on the latest budget brought down by the government, the sin tax and excise tax on tobacco had been increased, causing great hardships of efects to the industry. Recently growers have been forced to burn over one hundred million pounds of tobacco which had remained unsold. Support prices have been reduced or discontinued on various other products of agriculture.

In the provincial field, less and less of the budget allows ances is being devoted to agriculture. John Wintermeyer has promised that a more adequate share of the budget will be provided for direct assistance to the farmers if he is elected as premier. The Liberals also promise to subsidize the cost of hydro for rural users. In some instances they are paying double the charge incurred by urban users. Also on the proposed Liberal reform agenda is the removal of all tax on gasoline used for farm machinery. Mr. Nixon pointed out that the debt picture of the province was in a very serious condition and urged the voters of Northumberland to elect Colin Crews, who was pledged to devote his time and talents to provide a better deal for the farmer, and to do his part, as a party representative, to alleviate the overall financial burden borne by the taxpayer.

Mr. Charles Petch, the main speaker, paid a tribute to his many friends in this area, was introduced by Colin Crews. Mr. Petch spoke on the assistance given to the farmers by the government of Quebec. The speaker stated that in the near future, Quebec would be the biggest apple growing province in Canada. The growers are encouraged by the provincial government by grants, loans, free advice and government analysis of crop problems. Through the Farm Loan policy a farmer may obtain a loan up to $3,000, payable in 39 years at 4% interest. The cost of improvements, drainage, and livestock breeding are all partially paid by the government.

Fifty thousand acres of muckland, similar to the Holland Marsh development are being reclaimed through the use of drainage, provided by the government. New methods for improving the maple syrup industry are being studied and this information passed on to the farmers.

Mr. Petch displayed several of his hydro bills and land tax bills, to prove his audience that the farmer in Quebec has a true "better deal". Privately-owned companies supply hydro in the Quebec users, thus keeping the consumption cost down through competition.

APPEALS FOR VOTES

Colin Crews, contesting the riding of Northumberland against the Hon. Wm. Goodfellow, appealed to the audience for their votes in the forthcoming election. He promised immediate relief to the farmers in his riding should he be elected. His platform would be designed of the homes of each voter in his constituency. He came to know the farm cash problems facing the farmers of this area. He stated that the net income for this year promised to be one of the lowest in the last ten years. Should the Liberal Party be elected steps would be taken to secure new markets for farm products within and without the country.

Credit facilities would be expanded for farmers with loans limited to 10% of the total value of lands and buildings, and loans up to $5,000 on machinery. These loans would be made regardless of age.

POINTS IN PLATFORM

Other points in the platform in the field of processing and storage warehouse facilities would be carried out, as the Liberal platform could be marketed on a year-round basis.

Other points in the proposed Liberal platform, benefiting the farmer were: Encouragement for the production of secondary and non-farm industries. Free fuel for farm vehicles, reduction of rural hydro rates, equalization of assessment for farm land taken over for highways, hydro and municipalities.

The speaker charged that the Ontario Government had not made good its promise made in 1943 to pay 50 percent of the cost of secondary and high-school education. By 1958 the province was paying only 40 percent and leaving the rest to the municipalities.

Touching briefly on the annexation of Petcquile Point for a government park, Mr. Crews deplored the large expenditure for so-called "improvements" to this park. He stated, that the money could have been better employed. The Liberalt, if elected, will endeavor to force the federal government to take a more realistic attitude in the responsibilities towards the province of Ontario.

ENERGY - - SOME FIGURES

Speaking at Bronte Tuesday, Premier Leslie Frost said that Ontario's foresight in encouraging projects to move western oil and natural gas to the province had averted the "awesome nightmare" of an energy shortage in Canada's industrial centres.

In the heat of an election campaign, Premier Frost may have exaggerated slightly the threat of a shortage of power here, but nobody can exaggerate man's dependence on energy other than his own. His own output of energy is about equal to the power consumed by a bedside reading lamp. Since there is almost no hour of the day when modern man is not utilizing more energy than he does when he lies abed reading, and since nobody has yet devised a way for man to work at his peak proficiency while reading in bed, it follows that there is almost no common activity we could undertake in which we are dependent on our energy.

The expanding world population worries some scientists, but if there were 2,000,000,000 people capable of working steadily at the full manpower rate of one-twelfth of a horsepower their total yearly output would be only 300,000,000,000 units of electrical energy, or the equal of the energy in about 43,000,000 tons of coal.

Although the majority of the world's people are peasant farmers, relying largely on their own efforts and the efforts of their animals, by utilizing such sources of energy as coal, oil, water power, natural gas, wood, peat and vegetable wastes they boost their energy output a hundred times, to the equivalent of 4,160,000,000 tons of coal a year. Of this total, 43 per cent of the energy actually comes from coal, and 31 per cent from petroleum. Only 2 per cent of the world's present energy production is from water power.

Of the energy produced, man wastes nearly two-thirds. Industries take three-fifths of the remainder, and domestic consumers use one-third of it. Of the energy used, four-fifths is consumed for heating and only one-fifth for power.

The world's average yearly consumption of energy is the equivalent of just over 1½ tons of coal per person, or approximately 70 times the energy a person could produce by his own efforts. But there is a wide variance. In the U.S. the yearly average consumption is the equivalent of over eight tons, or in other words about 400 times the energy a man could produce with his own muscles. But on the two continents of Asia and Africa the energy consumption is under half a ton, or only some 20 times man-muscle power.

It is not difficult to understand why the masses of Asia and Africa are so poor. They can do only one-twentieth of the amount of work performed by a man in the U.S. But Mr. Golding cautions us against jumping too quickly to a conclusion that making more energy available would be a sure cure for poverty. "In the more prosperous countries," he says, "the figure for electrical units consumed is roughly double the income in dollars. But in the poorer countries it would seem that the people cannot afford to buy electricity. If your standard of living is reasonably high you can buy two units of electrical energy for every dollar you can earn but with an income barely sufficient for subsistence, electricity must take second place to the prime necessities of food and clothing."

NEED MINIMUM LIMIT, TOO

Most Ontario motorists, we think, will approve of the Provincial Government's action in increasing the speed limit on certain double-lane highways to 60 miles an hour.

The change is not likely to make much difference to the speed at which traffic travels on these roads. In practice, most vehicles have moved at or near the new limit - - and some at considerably higher speeds.

Most interesting phase of the announcement was an observation by Deputy Transport Minister Collins, in explaining why new signs designating maximum speeds, instead of speed limits as heretofore, are being installed on all highways affected by new regulations.

"We've changed the wording to maximum from limit because we feel that 'limit' offered a target that motorists felt they had to reach," said Mr. Collins.

If Mr. Collins is right the psychology of the average motorist is rather curious.

We agree, though, that the word "maximum' is preferable to the word "limit" - - but for a different reason. "Maximum" suggests "minimum" and it seems to us there is just as great a need for a minimum speed limit - - there's that word again - - as for a maximum limit on double-lane highways of the type to which the new 60-mile maximum applies.

JUNE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Roses and sunshine,
Blue skies above us,
Birds with their music
And loved ones to love us;
Brides sweetly blushing
To Mendelssohn's tune,
Earth at her prettiest—
Ah, this is June.

Soft breezes blowing,
And cloudy bowers,
Winds heavy laden
With scent of the flowers;

Out of doors, mothers
To babies now croon
Lullabies, beautiful
Ah, this is June.

Eyes brighter shining
Than ever before,
Love's story sweetest,
As seems, at its core.
Stars twinkling clearer,
And softer the moon,
Life at its happiest—
Ah, this is June.

Must Be Made Insurance

Montreal Gazette

The Unemployment Insurance Act is one of Canada's essential socia. security measures. The Act needs seriously to be strengthened and improved. But if it is to fulfil its function, it must be made and kept an "insurance" act. At the present time, it is in some danger of becoming a sort of political pot, from which many may hope to extract some kind of benefit without any actual direct relation to unemployment.

The House of Commons has sent to its Industrial Relations Committee Bill number C-45 (An Act to Amend the Unemployment Insurance Act). The committee should look at some of the proposed amendments very carefully.

Abuses in the operation of the present Unemployment Insurance Act have been many. Some of them are well pointed out in a brief presented by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Among the worst of these abuses is the fact that many persons are drawing benefits from the labor market without being really unemployed. This may happen, for example, when a worker retires, or when a married woman, having worked for a time, returns to her home.

The drain made upon the fund by such abuses is entirely unknown. Some indication of how great this drain may be is in the figures made public by the Chief Commissioner for the three calendar years 1951, 1952 and 1953. These figures showed that the average number of benefit days paid to married women was more than three times as great as those paid to single women.

This is all the more remarkable when it is considered that during these years only half as many married women as single women insured as single women. The average duration of benefit for married women was nearly 30 per cent more than for single women, and this despite the fact that the disqualifying regulations for married women workers were then in effect.

Another consideration is whether some types of work done chiefly at certain times of the year should come under the Unemployment Insurance Act. This is notably the case with fishermen. Fishermen are not so much unemployed, in the normal understanding of the term; their occupation is such that they can work only at certain periods. Their yearly income is not earned by these periods alone. Bringing them under the Unemployment Insurance Act involves a yearly cost of about $10 million.

If it is considered that the yearly earnings of fishermen are insufficient they should receive consideration in other possible assistance. They should be considered as persons whose earnings are, for the present, insufficient; they should not be considered as unemployed persons.

Some of the proposed changes in the Act are very sound. The ceiling would be raised from those earning $4,800 to those earning $5,460. This is logical in view of the rising level of earnings.

Also reasonable is the proposal that the present rate of earnings a person may have while drawing unemployment insurance should be increased. This is desirable, as an encouragement to those who are trying to intercept.

But it is more questionable whether the rates, the length of time of the coverage, should be increased, until the present situation in the fund are corrected. Higher rates and longer coverage will likely encourage abuses.

It should be noted that the proposal in the bill to increase rates from 30 to 50 per cent is well over the proposed increase of 20 per cent recommended by the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee less than a year ago.

Moreover, the maximum of 52 weeks proposed in the bill is a longer period of coverage than in any other country in the world. The maximum in the United States, for instance, is the 30-week period provided by Pennsylvania.

Warnings against too long a period of coverage were made by Lord Beveridge, the author of the Beveridge Plan for cradle-to-the-grave care. He believes that anyone who has received benefits for more than half a year is no longer a case for ordinary unemployment insurance. He is more likely someone who has become unemployable, or is in need of some constructive effort, such as retraining for a new type of work, or re-location to different work, perhaps in a different area.

Further still, there is no evidence that the proposed extension of the period of coverage has the support either of the Unemployment Insurance Commission or the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee.

The Industrial Relations Committee of the House of Commons has a responsible task in this bill. It should examine it with much care. The main purpose of any amendments now is to make the Unemployment Insurance Act an effective measure, not a source of miscellaneous benefits which might more suitably be provided by other measures for which ought not to be provided at all.

The main purpose of the act —and its only hope of solvency — is to provide for those who need and deserve help only when they are unemployed, and are truly seeking to be employed again as soon as possible. Neither the present act, nor the proposed amendments, make this purpose clear.

Says Fat Men Are Unhappy

Stratford Expositor

Critics who, through 350 years, have been trying to pick holes in the works of Shakespeare, have now been joined by a psychiatrist who challenges his diagnosis of Falstaff as a jolly fat man. Everyone will remember how Shakespeare made Julius Caesar warn Antony to beware of men "that are fat . . . such as sleep o' nights".

Now comes a Yale professor saying it's all nonsense because fat men are never happy and they don't sleep well at night. Falstaff was not jolly, not because they are a bundle of tensions and get relief from them by eating.

This, it seems, is another illustration of the danger of too-hasty scientific conclusions. Psychiatrists don't meet all the fat men, only a few of them. They are interested, until the contrary is proved, that the rest a far greater number, are happy and free from misery, and the only tension they have is that they wish their jaws didn't make enough allowance. And when the tension gets too great, they go to the psychiatrist.

Long before Shakespeare created Falstaff, and put those famous words in the mouth of Caesar, it was a widely accepted belief that fat men and women are jolly. Ben Jonson, Turks, for instance. And it is a matter of common observation to this day that a widely accepted one is truth if ever, a mountain of misery. Not a few make a point of fatness, which shows that they are philosophers too, because there is little else to be proud of. I except diet, which is a short cut to misery.

The fat men who make the couches of the psychiatrists creak are a small minority who lack the fortitude to be themselves and want to be just as commonplace as the vast mass of people are. They could be men of distinction, but they weakly want to be men of no distinction, just human ships that pass in the night, bean poles in the garden of life.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

USE IT IN FAITH

Jesus declared that all authority had been committed unto Him.

Think of what this means. We are told in the Bible that our lives can become one with the life of Christ. Our life and His may merge, if we are willing to pay the price of having it that way. And when our life merges with His, then the authority and power which were out in His hands comes into our hearts and within the circle of our lives. As He is all powerful, we are all powerful.

Now this does not mean that we are necessarily elevated to a position of pride. Neither does it mean that we are able to dominate others and have our willful way. It just means that the same type of power which is the life of Christ comes into our lives and gives them a new and higher significance.

But be practical, I hear you say. What does this mean in practical living? It means that in the revelation of God, in the life of love, in the power of spiritual things, and believing in such an extent that the sluices of heaven are opened and the power which is of Christ and from Him begins to flow into our lives.

Human life can be very low and degraded. It can also be very noble and exalted. The power which is Christ may be ours. It is reserved for those who are our disposal for use under the providence of God.

This power was given to him. He gives it to us. It is ours to use.

Welcome newcomers to the nursing profession, members of the 1939 graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital, were entertained by the Hospital Alumnae at a delightful dinner at the Hotel Quinte, where flowers were addressed by Dr. Lily B. Mathieson. The guests were welcomed by Miss Nina DiSola, first vice-president of the Alumnae; Miss Doris Williams, second vice-president, and Miss Edith Wright, convener of the program.

Whatever the faults of the youth of the Bay of Quinte schools and other institutions of learning of the city and its environs may be, there is found in not one of them, according to Chief William Wells, who yesterday conducted emergency drills in these institutions.

Quake Buried City of Gold

Sudbury Star

Nearly three centuries ago (1692) a great part of the "City of Gold" was swallowed up in an earthquake that dumped the buildings and inhabitants into the sea. Port Royal, Jamaica, was the biggest centre of wealth in the West Indies. It was the headquarters of Captain Morgan and his pirate bands.

The romantic stories of sunken treasure still hold an appeal for those willing to venture their capital in the treasure hunt. It will always be thus.

Taking away the romanticism what would treasure hunters expect to find after nearly 300 years? What is the action of salt water on gold, silver and precious stones after centuries long submersion? Is the lost treasure buried under several feet of mud, silt and seaweed?

The story is told that a small part of the submerged city was visible beneath the water on clear, calm days. Perhaps the imagination plays tricks in the light and shadow. Maybe it is nothing more than mirages such as sometimes seen in the world's great deserts.

In this age of modern salvage and diving equipment someone, financed by some group of organization interested in such things, may undertake a giant expedition to the sunken city for all time. On the other hand Jamaica might not take kindly to a proposal that could destroy some of the magnetism of the tourist attraction.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE HEART FIBRILLATES

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a relative who has been in critical condition from a condition termed 'auricula fibiliation'. He is out of the hospital and getting along quite well, factorily.

"For those of us who try to help him, and to rather 'supervise' his activities, it is a problem to know or judge how much or how little or what type of activities are suitable"for him. — B. M."

It's reassuring to see people like you — paying more attention to the specific kind of heart disease instead of speaking of "heart trouble" as though it were just one disease.

Auricular fibrillation means that the auricles — the upper chambers of the heart—are quivering or trembling, but not really beating. The various fibres of muscle aren't contracting in unison, but in all sorts of rhythms of their own.

If you're old enough to remember the old-fashioned kitchen pump, you know what happened if the pump handle stopped back and forth very rapidly, yet you couldn't get water in any other way. You didn't pump any water. Yet you used up as much energy as you would have used in taking long, slow, steady strokes which would have provided plenty of water.

So it is with a heart when it fibrillates. It quivers but it does not get much accomplished. So, of course, fibrillation should be noticed, if possible, by the even steady, effective heartbeat record.

It can be a dangerous situation but one which usually can be controlled by proper medical attention and sometimes by other methods. When fibrillation occurs in the course of a heart operation, a mild, regular electrical impulse sometimes is applied directly to the organ, for example.

ANSWER IS DIFFICULT

Now to get to the question of "how much activity"? It is entirely impossible to give a definite answer. Part of the question depends on what causes the fibrillation. If the patient has the heart recovered from rheumatic fever, the fibrillation implies that something has gone wrong, else the beat would be regular and irregular.

How much reserve strength remains in the heart, "functional reserve", or "potential", would be better terms for this, but you understand the idea.

These questions can only be answered with any degree of certainty by a physician who has studied the patient and the particular case history.

Activity may be restricted to bed rest except for bathroom privileges. Or the patient may be confined to a single floor, with climbing or descending stairs forbidden. Or driving a car may be forbidden.

Or yet again, I can cite you cases in which the patient has been allowed to go back to work full time.

In general, the limit of activity will be that amount at which the patient becomes tired, feels short of breath, and is conscious of his heart laboring.

"Dear Dr. Molner: When parents are the same blood type and both fibrillate, is there any likelihood that a child can be born with a cleft plate? — B. M."

The two things have no connection. The great majority of people have ith positive blood. The type is not important in this regard. With the most normal blood types in the world, some parents will have children with cleft palates. We don't know why. But surgeons do know how to correct the defect later.

Noi; to J. M. S.: This rather extreme under-development of the child, plus his excess weight, makes me think the answer is definitely yes, he should be taken to a doctor. If you have not told to take him to an endocrinologist, don't be surprised.

Plastic Bag Child-Killer

Kingston Whig-Standard

Old wells and abandoned icehouses have long been recognized as potential dangers where the lives of young children are concerned. There is an almost macabre touch to their inclusion of the latter as real and potential killers of our young. The danger here hold is in a manner of speaking, the legacy of progress. And now a new object with the same curious characteristic has been added to the list. It is the apparently innocent and useful plastic bag. Its air-tight properties make it an excellent container for spoilable or moist food products and it is turned up more and more often in the average home kitchen. It is the ideal receptacle for storing things with the bag's transparency, a definite advantage whereby it is not difficult to understand many ways in which a child can pull the bag over its head. The trouble is once one object with the same characteristic has been identified as the apparently innocent and useful plastic bag. Its air-tight properties make it an excellent container for spoilable or moist food products and it is turned up more and more often in the average home kitchen. It is the ideal receptacle for storing things with the bag's transparency, a definite advantage whereby it is not difficult to understand many ways in which a child can pull the bag over its head. The trouble is once one object with the same characteristic has been identified fingers find it difficult to get off. Suffocation is the tragic result.

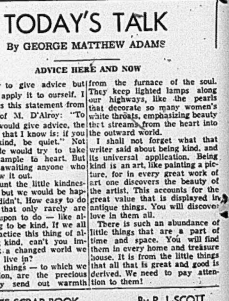
According to the National Safety Council in the United States, 100 children will die there in this manner during the year. The danger of course make an excellent container for the housewife to keep other products in once the original food has been consumed. But to protect our children however, mothers would be wise to forego this small advantage and see that, once emptied, the bag is thrown away.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ADVICE HERE AND NOW

It is easy to give advice but difficult to apply it to ourself. I came across this statement from the Diary of M. D'Arcy: "To those who ask advice, and act on best advice that I know is: if you can't be kind, be quiet." Not a bad way people would try to take such as example to heart. But there is a change and we would follow it out.



We dismiss the little kindnesses of life, but we would be happier if we didn't. How easy to do the things that are rarely asked or we called upon to do — like always trying to be kind. If we did tried to practice this thing of always being kind, can't you imagine what a change and world we would then live in?

Then there is the little word — to which we pay attention, are the precious ones. They send out warmth from the furnace of the soul. They keep lighted lamps along our pathway. They are pearls that decorate so many women's write threads, emphasizing beauty and character that is built into the outward world.

I shall not forget what that writer said about being kind, and its universal application. Being kind in every home and treasure house. It is from the little things of life that is found the good to be derived. We need to pay attention to them!

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the TV news the other evening I saw Mr. Khrushchev arriving at Geneva was being interviewed on the day's proceedings.

As Sir Winston Churchill once said," remarked this gentleman, "Jor, jor' is better than jaw, jaw, waw."

Now, I beg to differ. Sir Winston said nothing of the kind. What he said, quite clearly, was: "Jaw, jaw, jaw is better than waw, waw, waw."

And that makes sense, because we have long ago caught onto Sir Winston's manner of speaking.

Mr. Khrushchev, on the other hand, is using kinds of English, it comes out!

"Jaw, jaw, jaw is b. an way."

But you see, it loses almost as much punch in Canadian as it does in that particular brand of English the gentleman employs when calls it "jor, jor, jor."

For real euphony, we might combine the two, and make it: "Jor, jor, jor is better than wor, war, war."

But that is absurd too.

So what we had all better do is just leave it entirely to Sir Winston; and if we can't explain his unorthodox way of saying it, let us carry it as a tender echo in our memories, and never try to repeat it at all.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

6TH BELLEVILLE GROUP

A colorful "Going Up" ceremony was held when seven Cubs became Scouts. This is always a very serious time for Cubs, they leave the pack in which they have been quite comfortable, and the tender treatment of the "Old Wolf"—Akela Norm Howard and Akela Jim McAllister—and is suddenly a member of a Scout Patrol.

Any badges they have earned don't count and they have to start all over again. From an infant to a young man in one evening. Quite a change, but Scoutmaster John Babiak understands boys and when he welcomes the new Scouts he does his best to make the transformation a happy occasion, a promotion from the Junior league to the Seniors.

Cubs Douglas O'Hara, David MacMullen, Allan Colden, Geo. Johnston, Joseph Rowse, Brian Spencer and Robert Mindenhall were guided through the ten steps of the Scout Law by ASM Howard Anderson, assisted by DCM Mac McClelland and witnessed by parents and 85 Cubs, Scouts and Leaders. The ceremony was of particular interest to DCM McClelland who invested these Cubs when he was Cubmaster of the 6th.

13 BADGE CLUB

Cub Perry Ellis of "B" Pack was very conspicuous, proudly wearing his 13th badge for the first time. ACM Rosemary Hunter, not to be outdone by one of her Cubs, was just as proudly wearing the first of two rings necessary for the Matrimony Badge. Chairman Lew Andrews and all members of the 6th heartily congratulate Rosemary, and Perry.

13th HOLY ROSARY

Cubmaster Harold Lyon reports the investiture of Clayton Bowers into the pack. Cubs Paul Barrett and Cecil Hailey were awarded their 1st Stars.

18th PAREDALE

The Ladies' Auxiliary held their last meeting until the fall, there were 15 members present.

Chris Leggat briefly outlined the history of Scouting and emphasized the importance of Ladies' Auxiliaries in the movement. He congratulated the chairman, Mrs. Ethel Miller on the businesslike manner in which the meeting was conducted. Secretary Mrs. May Spicer had her minutes complete and up-to-date and treasurer Mrs. Eileen Spring gave her report showing a healthy balance. The 18th Sea Scouts and Cubs are fortunate indeed to have this group of active and interested ladies working for them.

Wedding

HAYES — LAUGHLIN

Lovely white chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the chancel rail in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, for a recent double-ring wedding ceremony, when Silka Leone Laughlin, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Laughlin, was united in marriage to George Wade Hayes, of Williamsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hayes, by the Reverend Ross Hall, Belleville, in the church.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Art Hughes.

The bride, lovely in white net and satin, was given in marriage by her father. The gown, fashioned with a long sleeved, bell-length jacket, had white lace a high, scalloped neckline in front and back, and buttoned to the waistline, was of white lace, while the floor-length skirt was of satin over satin. She wore a Juliet cap of nylon tulle trimmed with sequins, and shoulder-length veil of lace-edged tulle illusion, and carried a bouquet of white crested with red roses and rosebud centres on satin streamers. White satin slippers completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Ray Stevenson, of Kingston, as matron of honor, sister of the bride, was attired in a street-length gown of blue nylon chiffon with shirred bodice, bowl neckline, and full skirt over net featuring a taffeta back panel, which was worn with mum headband, white shoes and gloves, and carried a Colonial bouquet of white and "mums with pink streamers.

Miss Marion Hayes, of Belleville, also a sister, was gowned in pink nylon chiffon in similines to that of the matron of honor, with white accessories and Colonial bouquet composed of pink carnations and white "mums with streamers.

Mr. Roy Babcock, of Kingston, brother-in-law of the bride, was groomsman, and Mr. Robert Laughlin, of Belleville, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

The wedding dinner was held in the dining room with the W.A. of Holloway Street United Church ladies in charge. The reception was held later at the bride's home which was prettily decorated with white "mums and pink snapdragons.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier all-white wedding cake topped by a tiny cluster of pink and white "mums and lily-of-the-valley and misted about the base with "mums and scattered "mums. Tall, white candles in silver candelabra, and the bridal bouquet graced the bridal table.

Due to illness the bridegroom's parents were unable to attend.

For the wedding trip to Watertown and other points in the United States, the bride travelled in a navy blue tailored suit with black and white accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will reside at—59 St. Charles St., Belleville.

Guests were present from Napanee, Brockville, Ottawa, Picton, Toronto and Kingston.

The bride was honored, previous to her marriage, by a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Thompson, Farley Ave., with Misses Hilda Thompson, Nadine Young and Brenda Robitaille as co-hostesses.

Parker presented the recording secretary's report, and Mrs. Franklin, corresponding secretary, reported a letter of sympathy written, while Mrs. C. L. Presentation of New Gown Marks Ordination Anniversary

At the 11.00 o'clock morning worship yesterday at Bridge Street United Church, the Reverend Harry M. Davis, minister of the church, was honored by the congregation on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the Christian Ministry.

Mr. Clayton Burr, secretary of the official board, was in charge of the celebration ceremony, assisted by Mr. Edgar Sprague, chairman of the board, and committee of stewards: Mr. Don Williams, clerk of the board of session; Mrs. William Dallas, president of the Afternoon Women's Association, and Mrs. John McArthur, president of the Evening Auxiliary. Members of the W.M.S., each giving some part of a biographical sketch of Mr. Davis' life, contributed to the presentation, ordination and his training.

Following this, the clerk of session, removed the minister's gown and presented him with a beautiful new gown.

Mrs. Davis was present for the occasion centred around the subject, "A Time for Humble Gratitude," recalling his call to the Christian ministry and the things in his life that gave him the assurance to continue in the great work; a religious home and church training, the love and support of a devoted life partner, loyal church people, and the grace, love and power of God.

A large congregation greeted and congratulated Mr. Davis at the close of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis are holding an "At Home", on June 3rd in honor of his 25th ordination anniversary.

Women Babes in Financial Woods? False Says Bank

CHICAGO (AP) — A banker says it's not true that women are babes in the financial woods who would be devoured by themselves if it weren't for their smart hubbies.

Richard A. Ahlson, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, cites four statements about women and money. He called them myths and replied to each thus:

1. Women are the spendthrifts of the family. Alshion: "The wife is rated a better financial risk than her husband. One of the largest personal loan companies has said that a woman as a cosigner is their best security."

2. Women don't shop carefully and economically. Alshion: "Professional spies who watch modern husbands shopping in supermarkets report that up to 70 per cent of their purchases are of the 'impulse' variety—items their budget-conscious wives hadn't placed on the shopping list."

3. Women lean on their husbands for financial management. Alshion: "Women are the chief purchasing agents for their families," they make most of the buying decisions and control from 65 to 85 per cent of all personal consumption expenditures."

4. Women don't know how to invest their money. Alshion: "They own 52 per cent of all stocks in public corporations, control 40 per cent of all estates and half of all savings accounts and government bonds. But they rely on men for their investment decisions, which men in business should be a commendable characteristic."

Mr. Alshion gave his views in an address to 300 women at a Fashions in Finance forum sponsored by his bank.

Albert College Graduation Banquet Happy Occasion

By GLADYS WARD

There was the warm and happy atmosphere of a family gathered to do honor to some of its members at the graduation banquet in Ackerman Hall at Albert College on Saturday evening. This occasion is a traditional part of the graduation exercises.

The graduates themselves were seated at a U-shaped table with the school colors carried out in the gold of chrysanthemums, maple leaves and silver streamer spelling out "Congratulations" in black majorettes. On the other tables floating bouquets of mauve lilacs centred with a yellow "mum were flanked by tall candles. The arrangements for the dinner were directed by Dean J. MacKay.

President of the graduating class Nancy Smith proposed the toast to the Queen and called on Principal E. F. MacKenzie to ask the blessing.

After a full course dinner presented by the ladies of the Albert Hugh Brown, toasts were proposed and responded to.

For the faculty Miss Moreland spoke of the school term as the end of one phase in a stage to go forward. The grads would remember the happy friendships, the closely - knit circle, the opportunity of meeting people with varying backgrounds, and the volitional character of a Christian college. They would all look forward to returning at reunions, and review pleasant experiences.

PROVE FRIENDSHIPS

In reply Dr. H. A. Swanson quoted Stephen Leacock that so often our college life is not what we learn but what we remember. The enthusiasm and personal radiance of the men and women on the staff. "Those are men here," said the speaker, "who have proved their friendship now many years. It has meant so much to so many. It is not the diploma so much as the friendship, count, it is the assets you gain as you have been privileged to have many opportunities for creative leadership. You can be the salt that will preserve. You are the lights for the community, for municipal, provincial and national leadership. Your success makes teaching a great adventure."

Mrs. Ray Stevenson spoke briefly congratulating the graduating class, and expressing appreciation for the work done in arranging the banquet.

The principal referred to a talk he had heard on Africa which dealt with old voices and new voices. There were areas in the world where the opportunities to learn to read and write was counted a rich privilege, and the speaker wondered if we who live in a land of leaves, take too much for granted. He hoped that the old voices of fear, illiteracy and disease could be caused to disappear, and the new voices of courage, dedication, and friendship made to appear in the world.

Tokens cards which will be replaced by graduation pins at the impressive ceremonies by Dr. and Mrs. MacKenzie.

Mr. W. E. Kellett addressed the class by noting that it was the custom to wrap one's remarks around the idea that they were the most fortunate generation and were going out into a brave new world. This was not so. "You are going into a world frightened of itself. The basic principles have been modified but are still true. Many think a diploma is the end of education. Regardless of what you do, you are in a continuous and never ending process of education. All things are tempered by life itself. We are all climbing; a continuous upward trend. Each branch of learning will be challenged and meet the challenge. The goal is a far off one to be reached, and your experiences will linger and be sweet."

Paul Keen, on behalf of the graduation class spoke of their realization that they had gained a knowledge of books and of God. Albert College would always be a part of them. They were a part of it. He expressed appreciation for the wealth of knowledge gained and the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of Christian living.

A presentation of a silver tea service and tray was made to Mrs. Ray Stevenson, a member of the faculty, who is to be married in the summer.

Chairman of the Board of Governors, Judge J. C. Anderson in his remarks alluded to that people of other countries considered as Canadians because of our time, money and opportunities. "You know whether you have lived up to the expectations of your parents, and of what you had hoped to accomplish. If you have I congratulate you, and if you have not it is probably a good time to begin. From now on you are no longer completely dependent on your parents. If you are able to discipline yourselves and accept responsibility that time to do so. We need to take a long look at ourselves and decide to discipline ourselves, for self-discipline is the only kind worthwhile." The faculty and staff have deserved your success. If you deserve success you can command success. I hope this school will have a lasting influence on your future.

V.O.N. Holds Monthly Meet

At the regular monthly V.O.N. Board meeting held recently in the V.M.C.A., it was learned that Miss Bessie Seaman, the regional director, would visit and supervise the local branch from June 9-12th.

Mrs. Peg Grant announced that the "Spring Tea" was most successful.

Mrs. Donald Scott attended the annual meeting which was held in the V.O.N. Nurses Hostel in Montreal April 28th and May 1st. Mr. E. Bulger and Miss Dorothy Connor also attended. There are 40 nurses available for post-graduate training; there are 120 branches and 107 are corporated.

This year there will be the Quinnimial Appeal — an appeal for funds for the operation of head office for five years. Mr. E. P. Taylor is in charge of fund-raising. There are 645 nurses in the V.O.N. an increase of 18 over last year.

The National Publicity office has available two new 1 minute TV films and also radio spots. These might be useful for Unit-ed Appeal. Each branch is responsible for its own publicity. Over 40 per cent of the V.O.N. visits in Canada are to welfare patients. It was pointed out that it was an advantage to nurses to have the V.O.N. headquarters in the hospital. It made easier the nurses can be in closer contact with the patient, the head nurse in the V.O.N. should visit any new doctor in the community and become acquainted with their service.

HOME CARE PLAN

Miss Christine Livingston, the director-in-chief of the V.O.N., gave an outstanding report. She said that 1959 was the 100th anniversary of district nursing. The pilot home care plan, in which V.O.N. is taking part, is in operation in Toronto. Home care expands hospital service. It is the cost of hospital care. The care of mothers and babies 5 per cent of the case visits.

Mrs. Bulger further reported that there should be a handbook for each member containing the history, aims and what they are doing. Legitimate ways of raising funds are garden tours; visits to new housing estates; a tea room on a volunteer basis.

IODE Near 60th Birthday Wants Young Members

REGINA (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, with 31,126 members in 984 chapters, is aiming at an increased membership for its 60th anniversary next year, delegates to the annual meeting were told today.

Mrs. G. D. Leggett of Toronto, national organizing secretary, said the order realizes many older members no longer can carry on their duties.

"As we approach our diamond jubilee year we are conscious of the need for new and younger members," she said.

Mrs. J. Neil Gordon of Toronto said in her treasurer's report that with this year's 25-cent-a-member increase in fees, the order's estimated income will exceed expenses by more than $500.

AID FOR SPRINGHILL

Mrs. H. Sowerby of Toronto, national secretary, reported a $1,000 donation to the Springhill, N.S., mine disaster fund.

She said seven resolutions and letters have been sent to the federal government. One resolution asked the government to declare date "God Save the Queen" as Canada's national anthem and to include "O Canada" as a "national song" for use when desirable. Another urges that Canada claim the Red Ensign as the official Canadian flag.

The order urged the government to register all persons, recording citizenship, religion and age. It offered to help in such a registration.

The IODE also offered to help in programs or celebrations for Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

PUBLICITY REPORT

The IODE's work has been well publicized by all media of communication, said Mrs. John Millar, convenor, publicity committee. There were 12,276 press releases, 2,280 photographs, 1,847 radio broadcasts and 218 television interviews last year.

The order's aid - to - education programs and three donations of pictures of the Queen and Prince Philip to the Shakespearean Festival Foundation last July were among IODE items in the news.

Chapter members across Canada studied subjects ranging from the St. Lawrence Seaway to the development of the West Indies federation, said Mrs. Harry J. Brook of Scarborough, Ont., provincial education convenor.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mabel J. — Kate isn't liked because she is critical and intolerant.

Kate L. — I'm no hypocrite.

Mabel J. — My friend Kate and I are in our early 20's. Kate is extremely pretty and I am only average, but I am much more popular than Kate.

I have tried to match her up with various boys, but it never seems to take. They take her out once or twice and that's that. She is getting really worried.

I feel that Kate's problem is that she is too honest. If she doesn't like a boy she let's him know it at once. I would keep him around a while — just in case. If Kate does like someone she also let's him know it. To my mind this just isn't good strategy. I always try to keep 'em guessing.

Kate L. — Honesty has always been a fault with me. I don't know how to be a hypocrite like a lot of people I know. A lot of girls do things I wouldn't stoop to in order to hold men.

Of course, Mabel is different. She isn't a hypocrite, but she's very good natured. When someone says or does things she does not like, she always makes excuses for them. She says maybe there was some reason behind it.

I don't go for this idea of "strategy." I figure if someone either likes you or he doesn't. I want to be liked for myself, not just because I have some new technique to get around them. I feel honesty is really the best policy.

Far more likely, it is Mabel's open-heartedness and easy acceptance of others that men like. Kate is not liked because she is critical and intolerant.

People who take special pride in their honesty too often the ones who are most inclined to be dishonest with themselves. Most of us tend to be intolerant of the faults in others that we suspect in ourselves. When we do not feel prone to a certain kind of weakness, we tend to be highhearted about making allowances for others.

Mabel may tell herself she is keeping a particular boy "around — just in case," but it is very doubtful that she would retain her popularity if she were so conniving. Men and women sense this kind of insincerity and draw away from it. Mabel's "just in case" is really to see whether the individual is in truth as bad as all that. As Kate points out, she tries to see if "there was some reason" for the offensive remark or action.

Kate, on the other hand, does not want to know the reason why she doesn't want to forgive it. She is intent upon condemning it because she feels in terms of threatened by that very fault. She should list some of these faults she finds in others and try to make an honest exploration of her own heart and mind to see how they relate to her.

So we think the girls have it mixed up. It is quite likely that it is genuine honesty that accounts for Mabel's popularity and an underlying dishonesty that is hurting Kate's relations with the opposite sex.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beekman

COSTUME-GUIDE FOR GROOM'S MOTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son's wedding is to be in mid-September at noon, a rather large wedding. Following the noon ceremony, there will be a dinner. The reception will take place in the evening. I've never been to a large wedding, and I would like your advice about my costume.

Do you think it would look all right for me to wear a deep green satin dress and, if the day is cool, wear a pink stole, pink hat and gloves, black shoes? My hair is medium-brown, starting to turn gray. — Groom's mother

You need, and should have, the advice and guidance of the bride's mother, for it is she who makes the decision about the costumes of "the mother." (1) She decides first if the dresses are to be short (street-length) or medium-length, or full-length . . . both mothers must wear the same length dresses. (2) It is most important that the colors of the two dresses should harmonize. (3) Although of course the two mothers do not dress alike, the general style of their dresses must harmonize . . . and this style depends on the degree of formality (or informality) of the wedding. In other words, be grateful to have the right guidance . . . don't decide "on your own . . . which so easily could be not right.

Very soon now the bride and her mother will have decided about the color-scheme of the wedding, the costumes of the attendants, and the general ideas of the costumes of "the mothers," and I am sure the bride or her mother will get in touch with you, explain the plans, and give you or send you a swatch of the bridal gown's dress fabric. If you live nearby, this can be done in person; if not, by mail. I suggest you talk with your son about this. As a preliminary, he might consult with his bride-to-be.

DRESSES OF "THE MOTHERS"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am aware of the fact that the dresses of the bride's mother and of the bridegroom's mother should harmonize in color, but I am wondering if their dresses should be similar in style and fabric. Should they be alike or should their hats be similar in style? For example, in the color that particularly interests me: a slim dress of lace or similar material and a small hat are more becoming to one mother; and a fuller and more flowing style of dress of chiffon or similar fabric with a larger hat is more becoming to the other mother. What is your opinion about this? — E.

It is, of course, correct that the colors of the dresses of "the mothers" should harmonize . . . and a fuller and more flowing dress of chiffon or similar fabric with a larger hat is more becoming to the other mother. What is your opinion about this? — E.

It is, of course, correct that the colors of the dresses of "the mothers" should harmonize . . . important as they go up the aisle before the Processional, and extremely important as the mothers stand next to or near to each other in the receiving-line. Also the dresses must be the same length. The dresses should be of the same general style . . . not the same design, but of the type that is both appropriate and becoming, the type depending on the kind of wedding — formal, semi-formal, informal, the hour of the wedding, and other plans.

If the type of dress is appropriate for this kind of wedding, and the type is becoming to her, this is the right choice. The fabrics need not be the same: if they are in good fashion and appropriate for the occasion, they will be right. The hats worn by the mothers are extremely important and they too should be chosen for appropriateness and becomingness, and enough to match the dress or to complement it. In general, I advise a small hat. So, for the two mothers: one mother may wear a slim-style lace dress and a small hat, and the other mother, a dress of a fuller style but certainly not too full of chiffon or lace and chiffon or soft silk taffeta, very becoming to many types, and a very popular choice today.

INVITATIONS IN NAMES OF BRIDE'S TWO SISTERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married next September, a quite large, semi-formal, church wedding. My mother and father died six years ago, and since their death I have been living with my oldest sister, who is unmarried. I also have another sister, who is married and lives near us. Both these sisters have been wonderful to me. My father's brother and his wife and my mother's sister and her husband are combining to give me a wedding present of a check to cover most of the expenses of my wedding, which will not be overly fancy because we are having our small reception in the Social Rooms of our church.

These good and generous aunts and uncles are urging me to give honor to my two sisters by having the invitations issued in their names. I've never seen this done, but I'd love to do it. Would it be correct? If so, what would be the proper form (particularly the wording of the names)? Thank you for your advice. — Rita W.

What wonderful, generous and thoughtful relatives you have.

. . . I guess you must be pretty fine, too, to receive such devotion and loving care. Yes, although unusual, your invitations may properly be issued in the names of your two sisters, the elder sister first, of course. Like this:

Leather and Linen

By ALICE ALDEN

The combination of polka dot linen and crisp leather is a partnership of distinction. Samuel Roberts combines the two for this fine town and country suit depicted here. The loosely draped leather jacket is brightly set off by a wide Peter Pan linen collar which matches the slimming polka dot linen skirt. Three-quarter length sleeves and a flare silk lining also enhance the jacket body. As a topper-offer, a matching linen hat!

Dutch Consul Prizes Pieces Old Furniture

Hand-carved cables from Hong Kong, rugs from Iran, paintings from Bali and silver from Java are prized possessions of the new Dutch consul to Alberta and Saskatchewan, and his wife.

"Mostly small pieces," smiles Mrs. F.T.K. Pol. "You can't move large antiques around the world."

A sadder part of the story of 20 years of civil service work through Indonesia and Malaya however is the furniture that is missing. It was lost during the Second World War while the couple were interned in a Japanese prison camp.

Mr. Pol was taken to one internment camp, his wife and children to another. They met this years later.

BARE EXISTENCE

"It was the worst thing in my whole life," Mrs. Pol says as she was working in the sweet-potato fields, but as a prisoner I was forbidden to eat the potatoes. They were for the Japanese. We lived on a bowl of rice a day, and whatever we could steal from the fields."

There were 1,600 women at this camp, she said, and 950 of them worked every day. Those not staying behind to teach the children.

The camp was in Indonesia, and the Pols were living upcountry, away from the population centres, when Pearl Harbor was attacked. When the order came for persons to gather to be taken to the prison camps, the couple first thought about hiding. But they would have been dependent on the natives for food as they explained, and they were not sure how long the natives would be safe.

They remained in Indonesia after the war, and when the country gained its independence from the Netherlands in 1949 Mr. Pol became the Dutch consul at Palembiang in Sumatra.

Mrs. Pol, a keen gardener, recalled that she once planted her flowers in oil drums cut in half and painted red. By the next time they were living in a rutted house in Borneo, where the garden flooded twice a month as tides swelled a nearby river.

Pigs Can Be Beautiful

by Mary Moore

The Agricultural Stabilization Board of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, now holds about seventy million pounds of pork in cold storage.

This is a surplus.

Steps have to be taken and the ASB are taking them firmly.

Food editors of magazines, newspapers, radio and TV have been requested to inform their readers, listeners and viewers of the situation. If each Canadian family served pork once more per month than they are at present the surplus would be eaten up.

Where do you and I fit into this picture?

The Government invited us food editors to a luncheon. First I am going to try to picture for you the buffet table containing the only pork products and prepared by Chef Emil Cheneau of Gordon Pearn's Paris and his assistant Jack Keck (Zurich) at the Chef Emil Cheneau.

There were 3 hot dishes: pork pies, barbecued spareribs, hot Chinese pork, pickled pork

The two - day training school in rug making was well attended, with Quinte and Chapman branches each completing 10 rugs. Others were on display. This year, the course will be—"Save the dollars and make sense." Fifteen Years Ago Mightiest Invasion Armada in History Poised for Strike on Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen years ago, the mightiest invasion armada in history was poised to strike across the English Channel for an assault on Hitler's vaunted Atlantic wall.

Military experts say it could probably never happen again.

With the advent of nuclear weapons, a single hydrogen bomb could obliterate an entire invasion fleet or destroy all life on a beachhead.

But if you were there on D-Day in Normandy — June 6, 1944 — you'll never forget the scene:

The incredibly vast panorama of more than 4,000 invasion ships . . . the big battleships slamming salvos of steel at German coastal fortifications . . . the weird spectacle of tanks swimming in the surf like monster beetles . . . and Allied troops by the tens of thousands wading ashore in the teeth of enemy fire.

SEALED-OFF CAMP

As an Associated Press war correspondent, I spent the last night before the invasion in a sealed - off camp near Portsmouth, England. In a letter home, I wrote: "I have the somewhat dubious distinction of being selected as the first 'sea-borne' correspondent ashore in the whole invasion setup."

I was ticketed to land with British commandos at 8-hour plus 45 minutes.

The group in my tent included a young Scots artillery officer, a priest and a French paratroop captain who was going to drop into Normandy about six hours before H-hour to help direct our naval bombardment.

Night had fallen. In the darkness the men talked softly. Cigaret stubs glowed like fireflies. Very high and very fast, a German reconnaissance plane sped across the blacked-out camp and droned inland.

UNKNOWN TO GERMANS

We listened tautly, wondering if the Germans had spotted the vast tented encampments gleaming in the moonlight.

"They still don't know," the Scot said quietly.

About 5 o'clock the next afternoon we swung aboard army lorries and rolled slowly away to the Portsmouth docks.

Greybeards, women and children lined the route, waving and smiling a little uncertainly. They knew this was the moment at last, four long years after the bloody retreat from Dunkerque, and they knew that many of the men in the trucks would never return.

Along with 100 green - bereted commandos, my English contacting officer, Capt. Sir Charles Head, and I boarded a low-lying LCIS (Landing Craft, Infantry, Small) which looked like a dwarf among the big troopships in the jam-packed harbor.

ROUGH CROSSING

About dusk we got under way. It was a rough passage. All hands peered intently through the rising mist for a sight of enemy-held France.

Suddenly, in the classic phrase, all hell broke loose. As the landing craft moved shoreward, our naval barrage lifted and German shore batteries came viciously to life.

The water was thickly pocked with shell geysers. On all sides, small landing craft were spewing flames and black smoke. Others, heavily laden with steel-shelled troops, chugged steadily shoreward. The din of gunfire was appalling.

Suddenly there was a rush of hard boots across the deck. The blunt nose of the LCIS bumped sand, and the pack of commandos scampered down the catwalk into the sea.

Belatedly, handicapped by a broken wrist encased in a steel-ribbed leather gauntlet, I hoisted my 62 - pound rucksack on my shoulders, grabbed my waterproofed portable typewriter, and ran across the open deck.

FALLS INTO SEA

I had barely started down the cat - walk a wobbly plank-like affair about eight inches wide, with a single wire handrail for support when the LCIS started to pull out. I was catapulted head first into the sea.

When I came up, sputtering but with typewriter still clutched in hand, I had to wade about 75 yards to reach shore. Limp bodies, face down, bobbed idly in the waves.

A few yards away a British Tommy called cheerfully, "C'mon, Yank, we'll make it" Then he gave a little sigh, and sank into the water.

It was the longest 75 yards I ever traveled. My water-soaked rucksack weighed a ton. Each step took an agony of exertion. I fell and knew I couldn't get up. Capt. Birkin saw me, waded out and half-dragged me ashore.

The beach was pandemonium. The Germans plastered us with 88s, machine - gun bullets and mortars. Some British troops crouched behind a low sand ridge. Officers, waving pistols and swearing a blue streak, whipped them inland.

HIT BY SHELL

According to legend, you never hear the shell that hits you. Nor did I. Lying there, I felt the blast but heard no sound.

The man lying across my shoulders was dead. Two others were killed. One man, badly wounded, kept rubbing his hand across an ugly black hole in the side of his forehead and then staring at the wet blood on his fingers. Over and over, he moaned softly: "Mother, mother, I can't stand it. . . ."

The firing drifted off. I stood up, shook my trench coat soaked with blood.

About 2:30 p.m., having finally dispatched my story by naval courier, I went several miles inland to catch up with the front. With me went one-armed Doon Campbell of Reuters, a smiling young Scot who was to become my jeepmate all through France, Belgium and Holland into Germany.

It was quiet when we found the British 3rd Division headquarters, staked out in an apple orchard about 400 yards from the Germans.

"Better dig," a man said.

And presently there was the odd spectacle of two one-handed men — Doon with his artificial arm, myself with a broken wrist feverishly trying to dig foxholes in the flinty soil of Normandy.

During the night, counter - attacking German tanks punched a salient to the sea, temporarily cutting us off from the main Allied invasion armies.

Bone - tired, I couldn't have cared less. With steel helmet for pillow and blood-smeared trench coat for blanket, I slumped into a muddy foxhole. I never heard a sound until dazzling sunshine awoke me next morning.

Stars of the Festival Present Concert to Capacity Audience

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING — St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was filled to capacity Tuesday evening for the Stars of the Festival concert which lasted almost three hours.

The church platform was resplendent with pedestals and baskets of mauve lilac interspersed with tulips of various colors. The trophies, shields and religious pictures were on display and these were presented during the evening.

Rev. A. Peckman presided, and most of the gold awards were presented by Mrs. Walter Elliott.

The program opened with a chorus entitled, "Song of Thanksgiving," by the pupils of Wellman's Public School, S.S. No. 8, Rawdon, with their music teacher, Mrs. Lorne Watson, as accompanist.

The silver trophy, donated nine years ago by The Ontario Intelligencer Ltd., Belleville, was presented by the newspaper's Rawdon-Stirling correspondent, Mrs. Percy MacMullen. The presentation was made to the school teacher, Mrs. Robert Hulin.

THREE-TIME WINNER

In Mrs. Hulin's reply she noted this was the third time the school had won this trophy.

The younger children were given first place on the program, as follows: Philip Spencer, Trenton, sang "Can A Little Child Like Me," with Mr. A. R. Kendall, Trenton, as his accompanist. Janice Clancy of Wellmans Rawdon, sang "God Sees the Little Sparrow Fall," with her mother, Mrs. Gerald Clancy, as accompanist. Season Workers May Have Fund Of Their Own

OTTAWA (CP) — A survey has begun to assess possibilities of fitting seasonal workers into an unemployment insurance scheme of their own.

The survey, it is understood, has been ordered by Labor Minister Starr and is being conducted by the three-man Unemployment Insurance Commission.

About 4,000,000 Canadians now are covered by the existing system, including 250,000 loggers, lumbermen and fishermen who are affected by seasonal influences.

Adequate coverage for that class of worker, it is expected, would require either a higher rate of contribution to the fund that finances the benefits or else a government subsidy.

Another aspect of the inquiry is how to fit agriculture workers into any scheme. Few now are included although pressure from owners of Parliament among others has been exerted for such inclusion.

Meanwhile, Mr. Starr is known to have objected to suggestions before the Commons industrial relations committee that a full-scale study of the present Unemployment Insurance Act precede proposed amendments to that act.

The amendments sponsored by the CCF would increase contributions by the employer and employee, add about $0,000 to contributions in labor-income brackets and extend the spending period over the present 32-week limit to a full year.

The Liberal and CCF parties have opposed the amendments on grounds that the government itself should put more into the depleted unemployment insurance fund rather than asking workers and employers to do so.

BERSIMIS, Que. (CP) — Premier Duplessis Saturday criticized the education opinions of a Toronto newspaper, a Montreal newspaper man, and Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University.

Mr. Duplessis said their opinions are "a type of concert of praise for atheistic education."

Quebec province's educational system is based on religion and without religion no education is possible, Mr. Duplessis said.

He spoke at the dedication ceremonies for a new $2,000,000 bridge spanning the Bersimis River, near this power-dam site in the north-central part of Quebec City.

Dr. James, after a recent tour of Russia, told newspaper men the Russian education system is in many ways superior to the West's.

Mr. Duplessis said Dr. James "has made himself a propagandist for Communist theory."

"SAW NOTHING"

Dr. James did not perceive that he saw anything, Mr. Duplessis said. He was surrounded by spies who had showed him only what they wished him to see.

Mr. Duplessis criticized the Toronto Star for articles published in February. He said one was urged non-denominational religious teaching, later - religious bickering.

A few days later The Star had another article, an interview with a Toronto rabbi, who expressed the same views on this subject.

Mr. Duplessis also made reference to views on education expressed by Jean Gagnon, managing editor of the daily Montreal La Presse, in an interview published in the Star by Le Devoir.

"This is a clarion call I am sounding," Mr. Duplessis said. "The clarion call one sounds on the eve of great decisive battles."

Al Hautrive, in the St. Lawrence River gulf, Mr. Duplessis said, there can be seen the tendencies facing education in Quebec—the tendency away from religion in education and the tendency of the federal government to usurp the province's education rights.

RAPS CHEVRIER

Turning to Lionel Comeau, he criticized Hon. Lionel Chevrier, former head of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, who has written a book on the seaway.

The premier noted Mr. Duplessis said, would have wasted millions of dollars if he had started work on a proposed hydro project at Lachine, west of Montreal, on a project in part of the seaway plan and Mr. Chevrier said it would be.

Mr. Duplessis chastised with the seaway.

"Today, Mr. Chevrier fails to tell the readers of his book is that the seaway cost almost double the cost of the hydro originally estimated," he said.

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP)—A royal commission enquiry into education in Quebec province was called for Sunday by the Quebec Provincial Council of Young Baptists Societies.

The 200-odd member society suggested that the Quebec government levy a tax on all corporations operating in the province's natural resources. The money would be used for schools and universities.

26 of 37 Killed Claimed by Traffic Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 37 persons died accidentally in Canada during the weekend. Traffic, mishaps claimed more than two-thirds of the total.

A Canadian Press survey began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended midnight Sunday showed 26 persons were killed by traffic.

Six others deaths occurred in water accidents.

Quebec led the provinces with 12 deaths. Quebec and Ontario each had eight traffic deaths and two drownings. The shooting and asphyxiation occurred in Quebec.

Manitoba's total reached six—four in traffic and two drownings.

LOST CONTROL OF CAR

The Ontario dead:

Stefan Novak, 27, killed Sunday when his car went out of control and plunged down an embankment four miles south of Elliot Lake.

Erie John Lloyd, 8, drowned Sunday while fishing on the rocky shore of Arnold Lake, three miles south of Iron Bridge.

Arpad Csiszar, 39, killed Sunday night in Hamilton when hit by a car which police said did not stop.

Gavin Miller, 18, of Kenora, killed Saturday night when the car in which he was riding with three other people struck a rock cut near Royal Lake.

STUDENT DROWNED

Larry Haddock, 19-year-old London university student, drowned Friday night in the Thames River. The body was recovered Sunday.

Noah Lacarcau, 24, his wife Olivine, 19, and their two-year-old son Ben Denis, killed Saturday near Sudbury when their car drove into the path of a truck loaded with asphalt.

Jack McFarlane, 35, died Saturday when he lost control of his truck near Belleville and it hit a house.

Stephen Filip, 23, of Windsor, killed near River Canard Friday night when his car hit a ditch.

Highway Toll Sets Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Deaths on U.S. highways hit a record toll for a two-day Memorial weekend and far exceeded the pre-holiday estimate of 360. The count early today was 364 traffic deaths, 39 drownings and 47 from miscellaneous causes.

ELECT SENATORS

ALGIERS (AP) — About 6,000 specialized Moslem Deputies and 32 members of the French Senate from Algeria, the new group represents a mixture of moderate Algerians and French financial interests and the first time that there are more Algerian senators—2 out of the 32—than French in the group.

Singapore Left-Wing Chief States Conditions for Rule

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Lee Kuan Yew, head of the left-wing People's Action party which won 43 of 51 seats in Saturday's general election, today laid down his conditions for forming a government.

Lee said he told Governor Sir William Goode he will form a government only after eight P.A.P. leaders are detained or released.

Speaking to a press conference after his meeting with the governor, Lee said it was a "matter of honor" to stand by the leaders jailed after riots in 1956.

"I think the governor saw the point. But he could not make an immediate answer," he said.

"Jest a Second"

"What are you men cutting those cards for?"

If Lee, 36-year-old Cambridge-educated Chinese lawyer, agrees to join the government, it is expected that Singapore's new constitution, under which it will control only defence and foreign affairs, will be promulgated Tuesday in the colony.

The colony then becomes a self-governing Commonwealth.

WON'T SERVE REDS

The party issued a statement Sunday saying it did not "propose to be, or even appear to be, a political satellite of the Communist party."

But the party added it intends dropping a purge of left-wingers begun by the outgoing People's Alliance party of Chief Minister Lim Yew Hock.

The statement derided the P.A.P. landslide to a wave of anti-colonialism and southeast Asian nationalism.

The new government will face two difficult issues—the position of foreign-owned businesses and the fate of the huge British army, navy and air force bases which dot the island.

Lee's party, champion of Singapore's poor Chinese majority, campaigned on a platform of removing the island's slums, near-45,000 persons. The party is Socialist, but it had guaranteed to safeguard the interests of foreign firms.

Peace Message Fails to Inspire Radical Douks

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP)—A 58-year-old Sons of Freedom Doukhobor with a message of unity and peace appears to have lost his bid to take over leadership of the radical sect from a committee of women.

Peter Lebedoff, who predicted last week he would assume the leadership at the meeting he called in a child at this Freedomville capital, was outshouted Sunday by 18 male members of the sect in the crowd of 200 joined Lebedoff and his 40 supporters.

The women shouted, "Liar, rat, skunk" at Lebedoff after he advocated that Doukhobors live on communal land and refuse to accept old age and other government pensions and benefits. She was clubbed and was led from the meeting.

TRYING TO TAME SECT

Lebedoff in effect was attempting to tame the radical sect that has been blamed for arson and bombing in the interior over the years. He called for a return to the true faith of the Doukhobors.

In an impassioned speech, Lebedoff said:

A committee of women took over control of the sect April 13 after a meeting voted out the 32-year fraternal council.

REFUSES TO DISROBE

One woman told Lebedoff to "put on the clothes. When he refused, she screamed: "You're working for the devil."

Lebedoff said he would give the women a week to repent.

He said later he has no plans for the future. He said he fears reprisals and that his life is in danger.

Find Evidence Quinte Indians Were Cannibals

TORONTO — Evidence of cannibalism among the Iroquois Indians has been found in archeological excavations near Belleville.

Bones recovered at Bloomfield, on the site of a former fortified village indicated human flesh was being consumed about the early fourteenth century.

The Indians also were gamblers. Gaming discs made from tat, round pebbles were also found.

The discoveries were made by a team from the University of Toronto's Department of Anthropology, the National Museum of Canada and the Ontario Archeological Society.

An assessment of its work will be released to an OAS meeting Saturday.

The evidence of cannibalism is the first of its type in the Quinte area, although it previously has been found near Orillia and Prescott.

Other excavations at Pithers Point, Normandy D-Day men. They don't talk about it. But if you draw them out they can recall those hours before and after dawn as the most awesome and unforgettable of their lives.

There was the anxiety about the delay in leaving England because of the bad weather. Now we know that even Gen. Eisenhower had his doubts about success of this gigantic operation. David Orchard, 28, of Toronto, a communique that Eisenhower wrote June 5, to be issued in event of failure.

ROUGH CROSSING

That night the invasion force sailed from a dozen ports in the south of England. It was a night black and the sea was rough—a striking contrast to the last night Canadians had crossed the channel in attack, going to Dieppe in 1942, when the sea was silky smooth.

The one comfort I found on that voyage to Normandy was the ghostly hulk of the Canadian destroyer HMCS Gatineau looming up in our stern as she mothered the Canadian landing craft.

At 6 a.m. we saw the French coast. White beaches. Sand dunes behind. Church steeples and lush fields. It would have been an invitation to tourists. The quiet was unnerving. Not a sound from the German defence. Not a sound from our warships. Yet four thousand vessels were jockeying into position in the mist.

With painful slowness the flotilla of craft eased toward shore. Then the bombardment. Flame from the sea. None of those present will ever forget the ear-splitting cannonade that rocked the lines of ships.

BATTLE FOR BEACHES

The small landing craft carrying the assault infantry (most of them long since carried) raced for the beaches.

The German defenders had been temporarily stunned but some of the bombardment from the sea had been singularly ineffective on the Canadian sector. The enemy was fully alert when the 7th Brigade hit the beaches of Courseulles. The Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles, the Canadian Scottish and the 1st Hussar Tanks had an agonizing battle on the beach, through the concrete casemates and trenches.

At Berniéres to the east, the Queen's Own Rifles, the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment and the Chaudières, with the Fort Garry Horse, met determined fierce opposition.

RECALLS ALLIED INVASION — Ross Munro, who covered the D-Day landing of Canadian troops in Normandy in 1944 for The Canadian Press, recalls the event "as still a day to talk about." He is shown here (left) as a correspondent covering what he was this year as he attended the CP annual dinner in Toronto as publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune. (CP Photo).

Russ Munro, Writer, Looks Back Over 15 Yrs. to Recount Many Incidents of D-Day

Fifteen years ago on June 6, 1944, the Allies opened their invasion front on Normandy. The Canadian Press correspondent on that D-Day landing was Ross Munro, veteran of earlier amphibious operations at Dieppe, Sicily, Ortona and Sicily. In this story Munro—now publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune — looks back over a decade and a half to that historic day.

Written for The Canadian Press
By ROSS MUNRO

You meet some of them by accident on almost every trip around the country. Canadians who landed in Normandy on D-Day wearing the light blue patch of the 3rd Division, the 2nd Armored Brigade or the 1st Parachute Battalion.

A jut-jawed fellow on a plane, with bulging briefcase, bomburg and an ulcer. He was a provost sergeant at Bény - sur - Mer. A farmer worrying about a broken cattle fence. He led a convoy at Carpiquet. A taxidriver at the station. An elevator operator with one arm. He lost it at Buron with the tanks.

Or a magazine editor slowing behind his service desk. We shared sidelong slit trenches in an apple orchard behind Bernières - sur - Mer. Then through Caen air raids that seemed more intense than London's.

They all are getting paunchy or bald, or both. They worry about their tees-ups kids. None could pack a Bren gun again. They fit into the Canadian civilian pattern. Yet 15 years ago this week—on the 6th of June these men and 16,000 other Canadian civilian soldiers landed on D-Day in Normandy with the British—American corps to achieve a feat of arms that can never be repeated.

Through the bewildering maze of nuclear and space developments, it seems a sterile age since that day, rather than 15 years. Sometimes when I think of what has happened since, I dream I must have covered the English longbowmen at Crecy, not the Canadians in Normandy.

There is a quiet fraternity among Normandy D-Day men. They don't talk about it. But if you draw them out they can recall those hours before and after dawn as the most awesome and unforgettable of their lives.

There was the anxiety about the delay in leaving England because of the bad weather. Now we know that even Gen. Eisenhower had his doubts about success of this gigantic operation. David Orchard, 28, of Toronto, a communique that Eisenhower wrote June 5, to be issued in event of failure.

At 6 a.m. we saw the French coast. White beaches. Sand dunes behind. Church steeples and lush fields. It would have been an invitation to tourists. The quiet was unnerving. Not a sound from the German defence. Not a sound from our warships. Yet four thousand vessels were jockeying into position in the mist.

With painful slowness the flotilla of craft eased toward shore. Then the bombardment. Flame from the sea. None of those present will ever forget the ear-splitting cannonade that rocked the lines of ships.

BATTLE FOR BEACHES

The small landing craft carrying the assault infantry (most of them long since carried) raced for the beaches.

The German defenders had been temporarily stunned but some of the bombardment from the sea had been singularly ineffective on the Canadian sector. The enemy was fully alert when the 7th Brigade hit the beaches of Courseulles. The Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles, the Canadian Scottish and the 1st Hussar Tanks had an agonizing battle on the beach, through the concrete casemates and trenches.

At Berniéres to the east, the Queen's Own Rifles, the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment and the Chaudières, with the Fort Garry Horse, met determined fierce opposition.

Cuban Agrarian Law May Be Changed Again

HAVANA (AP) — Two weeks have passed since Premier Fidel Castro overwhelmingly signed his agrarian reform law to break up large landholdings. It has not yet been made law by publication in the official Gazette.

What is holding it up?

There are hints here that the law may be undergoing some changes.

One such hint is seen in a recent remark by Labor Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne, attacked by Castro, that the law does not contemplate the breaking up of large sugar lands, at least this year.

It is recalled here, however, that Castro in remarks on a television program declared "not one coroma" of the law would be changed and that the revolution "would not slip one step backward" in agrarian reform.

The law as signed creates a limit of 999 acres for farmland owned by an individual or company, and 3,333 acres for ranchland.

The law, however, permits an increase to be set in the lands of ranchers and sugar and rice growers were exceed minimums.

A part of the law appears to limit stock holdings near the plantation companies to Cubans. Heavy American investments are in sugar.

Despite delay in publication of the law in The Gazette, the government proceeded last week with the distribution of 100 titles to western Cuba to landless farmers.

The law is generally conceded to have the solid support of the majority of Cubans.

But it has drawn sharp criticism from cattle circles, and relatively mild criticism from sugar mill operations, among whom are leaders of Castro's chief dollar-producing industry.

The government's tax program announced Saturday generally was not considered drastic. It eliminates many duplicating taxes, and introduces a heavy licence fee of $1,000 on a $3,000 car and $2,000 on a $4,000 car. Among other imports, but it exempts all newspapers, magazines, tv sets and radios. Color television stations from profits taxes. It also raises the tax on liquor and the annual income at which individuals will begin paying income taxes.

Asian Church Leaders Say Red China, Korea Practising Tortures to Kill Christianity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Asian church leaders have reported to a congressional group that the governments of Red China and North Korea are practising torture and atrocities in an effort to wipe out Christianity.

The five, all of whom fled the Communists, painted an often gruesome picture of torture, imprisonment, water torture and wholesale killing by the communists in testimony before the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities which was made public Sunday.

SHOWCASE CHURCHES

Rev. Peter Chu Chang, general secretary of the Hong Kong International Christian Leadership, said the only Christian churches in Red China are run by the government to indoctrinate the people or serve as showcases.

Rev. Thin-Tai Ilu said Christians, compelled to attend self - confession classes. If this fails, he said, the Communists take other means.

"They stop the noses of the people and pour water into their mouths. Every time the person breathes, he swallows water. After he swallows enough to make his stomach swells up, and then they stand on it."

Rev. Samuel W. S. Cheng testified that since 1949 the Communist government of China has confiscated more than $20,000,000 in property, murdered 140,000 mainland Christians have been killed, 5,000,000 Chinese have fled as refugees to Hong Kong. Formosa and other areas, and more than 20,000,000 Chinese have been killed or persecuted.

TELLS OF KILLINGS

Cheng related how 180 relatives of an anti-Communist member of the Chinese house of representatives on Formosa were killed. Cheng said a sister-in-law was dismembered by horses tied to her neck, arms and legs.

Rev. Shih - Ping wang, East Asia director of the United evangelism and social service international, said families are broken up and children placed in government-run nurseries under the communist system.

"All the elderly people 60 years of age and above who cannot work are put in the old people's 'happy home'," he testified. "After they are placed in the homes they are given shots. They are told these shots are for their health. But after the shots are taken, they die within two weeks. After they die, the bodies are placed in vats. When the bodies decay and organs are lost, the maggots are used to feed chickens. The remainder of the body is used for fertilizer."

Kyung Rai Kim, Christian leader in South Korea and director of the religious section of the Kook Do Daily News in Seoul, reported instances of torture involving a woman evangelist Kim Keum Soon, who had her breast tied between two horses which "were sent running in different directions."

"Through terrible persecutions as this, the Communists have made the people afraid to be Christians and to go to church."

Soviet Premier Predicts Triumph For Communism

LONDON (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has again coupled a threat of total destruction for the West in the event of war with a prediction of capitalism's inevitable defeat.

In a speech in the Albanian town of Vlore, Khrushchev said Sunday night that any attack on the Soviet bloc would be "tantamount to suicide," and he said that the West's "rockets and bombs were hastening the time when mankind will be able to bury capitalism deeply."

"No matter how much aging capitalism is trying to prolong its existence, it is doomed because it will be replaced by the new victorious system—communism, Khrushchev declared.

He also promised again that Russian industry will eventually outstrip America's industry.

POLICY STATEMENT

Earlier, announcement was made of a joint Soviet-Albanian communique on world policy, signed by Khrushchev and Albania's Communist leader Enver Hoxha.

The communique failed to state the reason for the premier's visit to the Adriatic country, but repeated Communist calls for an end to colonialism, Red China's seating in the United Nations, reduction of foreign troops in Germany, and signing of a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Nations and Communist Warsaw pact countries.

It also urged the establishment of a central European zone free of nuclear and rocket weapons and said there were improved prospects for an end to world tension.

The communique contained an expression of willingness to aid developing nations with Yugoslavia "on the basis of mutual respect, equality and noninterferences in each other's internal affairs."

Interns Ask $200 Monthly To Stabilize Salary Scale

TORONTO (CP)—Probing the cause of an apparent decrease in the quality and quantity of applicants for medical internships, a committee of the Canadian Medical Association has recommended the general council meeting with a possible solution.

At the same time the council heard an appeal from medical students to co-operate in their efforts to get higher pay. Dr. Jules Harris of Montreal, president of the 5,000-member Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns also asked the CMCA for a two-seat representation on the CMC council.

Dr. Harris asked that the CMA give approval to a minimum $200-a-month salary for interns, stabilizing a fluctuating salary scale which ranges from $40 to more than $200 a month across Canada.

The final day of the conference was told that between 30 and 40 per cent of graduates in the Canadian quilter variety, have been added to the ranks of the unemployed.

Dr. K. J. R. Wrightman, chairman of the CMA's economics committee, said the department of national health and welfare's food and drugs division will issue a revised list of prescription drugs. The changes are minor.

The list will contain drugs which the CMA feels detrimental to public health.

He said his committee now is trying to ban from sale an isoniazid tablet used in treating tuberculosis because it is sold in a form that children find attractive.

Dr. R. G. Jones of Halifax, spokesman for the medical education committee, said that although reports from Canadian medical school deans are to the country, the medical profession feels the calibre of medical students is considerably lower than in former years.

Possible reasons for this include length of courses, lowered prestige of the doctor in the public eye, increasing government control in the medical field and economic factors.

Dr. Jones suggested scholarships, loans, special tax exemptions for medical students and new publicity about the profession as possible inducements to those entering medicine.

Reports heard by the council included one from a committee presented by the shortage of medical personnel willing to devote their full time to rehabilitation work and the necessity of presenting to the public a television programs shifting from the educational field to the realm of "cheap dramatics."

The council passed a resolution that the operative technique should only be incidental to the investigation. Medical TV programs where an operation was being conducted.

Deer Kill High on U.S. Highways

It was a foggy morning in late July. At about 6 a. m., two men set out in an automobile for a day of bass fishing. Less than 10 miles from town their car struck a doe deer, killing the deer and crumpling a fender. They pulled the fender free of the front tire and resumed their journey. Not five miles later they struck another deer, this one a large buck. The deer was killed but the car wound up on its side in the ditch. That ended the fishing trip and pu- one of the men in the hospital.

Every year the deer kill on our highways runs into astonishing figures. Statistics always are tiresome things, but to give you some idea of what happens, last year Wisconsin hung up a new record with 3,172 deer killed by cars on highways. Missouri, only recently a "deer state" and with comparatively few animals, reports a highway kill of 268 deer.

In all of the deer states the deer crossings are marked with warning signs beside the highways. For some reason, most drivers don't pay very much attention to these signs. Deer are creatures of habit and they travel the same trails, day after day. Make it a habit to slow down for deer crossings.

And here's something else to remember. During solunar periods, deer are active and moving about. This means that the deer crossings are being used at these times. Incidentally, the two deer that were killed in the fog by the two fishermen were struck during a major solunar period. Best keep this in mind, also, when you are driving through deer country.

"STAR-GAZING" DISEASE

Some time ago you who read this column may recall that mention was made of a strange malady that has showed up during the past few years in the cottontail rabbits. In the final stages, the head of the animal is drawn back and toward the rear so that it appears to be star-gazing. The malady also affects game birds such as ring-neck pheasants and quail.

These creatures are all on a salt-free diet during the times of the year that snow covers the ground. Thus, they develop a strong craving for salt. The highway maintenance crews sprinkle salt on the highways to facilitate snow removal and rabbits and birds find this salt, eating more than is good for them. Often death can result from such indigestion.

Mr. Daniel G. Trainer of the Wisconsin Conservation Department and Mr. Lars Karstad of the University of Wisconsin located the cause of this ailment, including the same symptoms under laboratory conditions.

INTERESTING REVERSAL

All of us have heard the old saw about the man biting the dog and thus qualifying as news. A somewhat similar happening has come about recently in Texas. In the Lone Star State some of the ranchers are advocating, of all things, a "Coyote Appreciation Day."

Time was, and not too long ago, that a coyote would be shot on sight by any Texas rancher. Not so today. These men have learned that the coyote is the natural enemy of the jack rabbit and the cotton rat, keeping these animals under control and thus reducing damage to vegetation. Now a coyote can wander at will over Texas ranches, secure (even though he doesn't know it) in the new-found knowledge that he is nature's control over vegetarian pests and has thus been elevated to the status of "the rancher's best friend."

MIRACLE FLIES

It happens every year or so — somebody comes up with another miracle fly or lure that will catch fish under any and all circumstances and conditions. Of course, all fishermen constantly are searching for just such a lure. With trout fishermen it is a fly, nymph or streamer. With bass fishermen it usually is a plug of some sort. With the musky fishermen it is a monster plug or a new kind of spoon. The miracle lures come and go, being in high favor for a short time, only to give way to the next miracle lure to come along.

Back in 1938 I wrote a story for the magazine, Hunting and Fishing, featuring the Mickey Finn streamer fly. This lure appeared on the sawdusts of New York at the time the New York Sportsman's Show was in progress. Every trout fisherman who came to the Sportsman's Show simply had to have a Mickey Finn.

This fly, as you probably know, is made of red and yellow bucktail and silver tinsel. Each night, after the show had closed, the cleaning crew disposed of huge piles of red and yellow bucktail and silver tinsel, trimmings swept from beneath the benches of all the fly tyers in the show.

For the next year or so just about every angler's kit in the country contained a Mickey Finn. Red and yellow plugs, bass streamers, wobblers, spoons, and bass bugs, all in red and yellow, took up most of the display space on the tackle counters. As I say, everybody had to have a Mickey Finn of one kind or another.

Among the bass fishermen, temporary vogue in artificial baits is quite common. Think back to the days when the Flatfish, the Lazy Ike and the Jitterbug put in their appearance. One of the company salesmen told me that Lazy Ike topped the million mark in Indiana alone the first year of its distribution.

The trout fishermen have their vogues as well. Such things as the Breadcrust, the Crazy Coachman, the Bivisible Coachman, and so on have their days in the limelight, only to give way to subsequent miracle flies such as the Knighthawk. This year it is the Heath Moth. This one is an old British fly pattern, properly called the Heather Moth. Currently through my section of Pennsylvania every trout fisherman wants a Heath Moth.

Having seen miracle lures come and go for lo, these many years, the natural conclusion is that there just ain't no such animal as a universal panacea that will cure all of our angling ills. It must be conceded, however, that it always is fun to join in the search for Utopia.

Loaded With Loot

Rodger Ward Roars to Record In Indianapolis Speed Epic

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Rodger Ward, loaded down with loot from the richest auto race ever run, will go right on competing in the world's most dangerous sport.

Ward, 38, gunned to a record-breaking triumph in the 43rd 500-mile speedway race Saturday.

To beat out runner - up Jim Rathmann of Miami by 25 seconds, Ward had to push to a 135.857 miles-an - hour average. This broke the 1957 record of 135.601 m.p.h. set by Sam Hanks of Pacific Palisades, Calif.

$42,748 FOR WARD

Ward and his car owner, Leader Cards, Inc., of Milwaukee, won $166,850. The driver's take under the customary contract would be 40 per cent, $42,740.

That means Ward will be risking his neck largely for the U.S. treasury the rest of this season—but his pretty brunette wife, Jo, says he probably would race for nothing.

"I'm going to make the rest of the USAC championship races and possibly some sports car events if I can get a good car," Ward said.

His next race will be the 100-lap at Milwaukee next Sunday.

Up took Ward nine attempts before he won the big pot. Only a dedicated race driver would have continued after his experience in the 1952 Memorial Day classic. His front axle broke, triggering the four - car crash that killed two-time-winner Bill Vukovich. He entered the race again the next year and finished eighth—his best until Saturday.

PIT CREW TOPS

It turned out to be a four-race Saturday and Ward got a big assist from his smooth pit crew and six jacks which were installed in the left side of Ward's car. He made three stops for fuel and tires in a total of one minute and 12 seconds.

Ward let Rathmann, Thomson and Pat Flaherty of Chicago, the 1955 winner, do most of the fighting for the lead in the first half of the race while he conserved his tires to save a pit stop.

There were six mishaps, injuring two drivers and a crew member, but no fatalities, Two drivers had been killed in practice runs earlier in the month, bringing the speedway toll to 50 deaths in 50 years.

Ray Crawford, Pasadena, Calif., and Mike Magill, Haddonfield, N.J., were injured Saturday in wrecks and a mechanic suffered burns when the car of Dick Rathmann, San Gabriel, Calif., caught fire in the pits. Ten suffered slight burns but denied medical aid.

Dick is a brother of Jim, who now has finished second three times in the 500-miler.

DICKSON WINS

VANCOUVER (CP) Gordon Dickson, 26, Hamilton Olympic Club's stylish flyweight, ran a 26-mile, 385-yard marathon Saturday through Vancouver's Stanley Park. His time of two hours, 25 minutes, 39.4 seconds, almost assured him a berth when Canada's Pan-American games team is picked in August.

Trenton Bows To Cobourg By 6-4 Score

Trenton Garretts stretched their losing streak to four games in as many starts in Cobourg Saturday night as they went down to a 6-4 defeat at the hands of the red-hot Cobourg Merchants.

Cobourg completed a perfect weekend in the Belleville and District softball league on Sunday by downing Point Anne 2-0.

Jim "Sleepy" Dawe pitched the victory for the Merchants over Trenton, scattering seven hits after getting off to a bad start. He struck out 13 batters while walking nary a man.

Ben Wannamaker toed the rubber for Trenton and allowed nine hits over the distance. He whiffed two and gave up four walks.

Trenton jumped into a 3-0 lead in the opening frame as Cobourg committed three errors. Ray Austin singled and Doug Alexander banged a two-bagger.

But from this point on the Merchants were in command. They posted a pair in the second on a walk, a hit batter and base hits by Clarke Hamden and O'Brien.

Cobourg went ahead 4-3 in the fourth as eight men batted and Trenton had to forget two throws were left on base. Three walks, an error and Dick Turpin's single did the damage.

Turpin smashed a leadoff home run in the sixth and he was his single again in the eighth which led to Cobourg's sixth tally. Base hits by Roger Drake and Howard Cole gave the Merchants a chance in the eighth.

Dick Turpin was the big gun for the winners with a home run, two singles, three runs batted in and three scored. Leo O'Brien and Clarke Harnden each connected for two safeties while "Sleepy" Dawe and Chub Mercer had a hit each.

Roger Drake with a double and single and Howard Cole with two singles topped the Trenton batters. Doug Alexander doubled while Guy Austin and LeRoy Wannamaker had the other base hits.

Trenton's home game with Point Anne this week has been changed from Tuesday to Thursday.

Youngest Yank Winner of British Amateur

SANDWICH, England (AP)—Deane Beman, youngest American to win the British amateur golf title, gave a reputation in Britain as a cool chamber who played the course and paid no attention to the gallery spectators.

The 21-year-old University of Maryland student from Silver Spring, Md., defeated Bill Hyndman, 43-year-old Abington, Pa., insurance man, 4 and 3 in the final Saturday. Both took off for the United States later to play qualifying rounds today in the U.S. open.

Beman's sportswriters described Beman as "highlipped," "ruthless" and even as a "demon golfer."

The Aly Khan Could Sweep Five Classics

EPSOM, England (AP)—If Sir Gerquin III or Princilion gallops home first Wednesday in the Epsom Derby, the Aly Khan will become the first man in modern racing to own three British three-year-old classic winners in one season.

Among the 21 expected starters in the Derby are Queen Elizabeth's Arvak is owned by Mrs. Josephine Bay Paul of New York, and the Queen's colt Daniel Canoid is the property of Mrs.P.A.B. Widener of Philadelphia. Both are long shots. The last American horse to win the English Derby was the ste Belgrade II. Clarion Never Say Die in 1954.

The Aly Khan already has won the season's first two classics—the 2,000 Guineas for colts with Tambourine II and the One Thousand Guineas for fillies with Petite Etoile. Classics still to come in addition to the Derby and the 1½-mile Oaks for fillies at Epsom Saturday and the St. Leger in the fall at Doncaster.

The Aly Khan is taking a double-barrelled shot at the Oaks with Petite Etoile and La Concorde. He has Gilles Dubois ride pin III and Princilion entered in the St. Leger. He could make an incredible sweep of all five classics, possibly with five different jockeys.

Ar Irish sweepstakes, involving $1,400,000 dollars, depend on whether the runners finish at Epsom.

Sword Dancer Wins First Important Race

NEW YORK (CP) — Sword Dancer became the first three-year-old to capture the $115,900 Metropolitan handicap in nine years Saturday as he outdistanced 10 other horses to win by 3½ lengths.

It was the first big race won by Sword Dancer this spring. Owned by Brookmeade Stable, he was second in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Florida Derby.

The last three-year-old to win the Metropolitan at Belmont was Greek Ship in 1950.

Sword Dancer, with Willie Shoemaker up, had a time of 1:35 1-5 for the mile. Second was Jimmer and third Talent Show. The winner paid $7, $4.10 and $3.30.

HAS POOR DAY

Claiborne Farm's Nadir, the 2-1 favorite with Eddie Arcaro up, was last all the way and pulled up lame. Arcaro immediately took off by helicopter with Nadir's owner, A.B. Hancock, for Garden State Park in Camden, N.J., to ride Dunce for the same stable in the $50,000 Jersey Stakes. Favorite Dunce finished fifth.

W. Arnold Hanger's Waltz raced to an 11-length victory in the 18th and final running of the Jersey Stakes.

Scotland was second, a nose ahead of Sir Gaylord in third.

Waltz returned $21.80, $12 and $7.40 and was timed in 1:49 3-5 for the 1⅛ miles.

Harness Racing

HULL, Que. (CP) — Dusty Brook C, a seven-year-old horse owned by H. Perrin of Montreal, won the featured pile pace Saturday night at Connaught Park.

Driven by Allan Pacey, Dusty Brook C defeated Dominion Boy by a narrow margin. The odds-on favorite, Rocky Hal Can, owned and driven by Frank Pembroke, took a commanding lead but broke badly at the half-mile mark and finished last.

Dusty Brook C paid $16.40 to win. Corporation Lavid (14), driven by Bill Fyke, was third.

MONTREAL (CP)—Tim's Ace Sunday, the Gowen Scott two-year-old trotting ace, a mile C $1,000 trot, Saturday at Richelieu Raceway. Driven by Jack Gordon, Tim's Ace had a time of 2:09.

King's Lee's Sandcluff, driven by Paul Herbert, was third.

Sunday, the Gowen Scott trotter Artaway Meeker, driven by Vic Lutman, placed third in a $500 mile D trot.

Jockey Slowly Winning Race With Death

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)— Jockey Ralph Neves, riding on the comeback trail the last 21 years, inched slowly ahead Sunday in his third match race with death.

The 41-year-old rider was on the critical list following brain surgery Saturday. Neves suffered a skull fracture and two broken vertebrae when his mount, Rihn, fell in the third race Saturday at Hollywood Park.

Rihn got up and galloped away but Neves had to be carried from the track. He regained consciousness, then a second spell of mild delirium forced a break in his skull. A blood clot on his brain was removed during a 2½-hour operation.

Neves has won out over death twice before. Near the start of his racing career, on the Tanforan track in Bay area, he was aboard Fannikins when the horse stumbled and lay in the middle of the pack. Neves went down at the hail mile and was pronounced dead by the track physician.

As a matter of routine, the physician jabbed adrenalin into the rider's heart and a few minutes later Neves was back on his feet.

Neves—who rode his 2,000th winning race in 1957, is the only rider in American turf history to reach that mark—has survived many spectacular spills and broken an uncounted number of bones. Third most serious was a fall at Golden Gate six years ago. That cost him

Will Stage First Female Boxing Match

McADAM, N. B. (CP)— What is believed to be the first female boxing match in Canada is scheduled for McAdam tonight as part of a card featuring the Brunswick lightweight champion Bob Speight of Saint John and Kid Walsh of McAdam.

The female combatants are Mrs. June Lounder, a 41-year - old McAdam grandmother and housewife, and Myrna McConvey, 20-year-old St. Stephen, N.B., stenographer. The bout is scheduled for five rounds.

McAdam promoter Jake MacDonald has been informed by Ring magazine there is no record of such a match in Canada and only two in the United States. Pugilistic female boxing is banned in some parts of the country.

MAZATLAN, Mex. (AP)Dr. L. Vincent Gorilla of Pasadena, Calif., claims a record for sailfish caught on a 30-pound test line with spinning tackle. He hauled in a sailfish off this west coast sport resort Saturday weighing 140½ pounds. The record already recognized for this type of line and tackle was a 136-pound fish caught here last December.

Yanks Not Dead; Win Three In Row, Out Of Cellar

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Baseball men are, thrilled over the prospects of close races in both major leagues, and the golf pros are busy banking the coin of the realm with one tournament after another. Summer sports are reaching their peak — and all's well with that phase of athletics.

But what of senior hockey?

Hockey men all over Ontario realize that the senior "A" brand is in something of a turmoil and where it will end nobody seems to know, although some are hazarding guesses.

Bill Butcher, Windsor arena owner and shareholder of the Bulldogs, like other senior hockey men is worried.

"Any number of things could happen," he said newsmen at a Waterloo meeting the other day. "Woodstock and Strathroy want to move out of senior "B" to "A." That would likely force St. Thomas with them. Galt is interested. Some of the weaker "B" clubs may not be able to move up."

"The Eastern division is shaky," Butcher said. "Belleville, Cornwall and Ottawa Rifles are undecided. There is a chance Whitby might join us. There's a chance Hull-Ottawa will hook up with the north. Some kind of interlocking schedule seems probable."

"The northern clubs are not acting so independent now," he added. "They say they will pay us what's owing for hospital tax if we show them our certified exemption."

Asked how he thought it could go, Butcher said, "Well, at the moment we're trying to see if these "B" clubs really want to move up and interlock with us. If that doesn't work out, we can look toward the Eastern group. And then there's still the north. Who knows, in the end we could be lined up with the north just as we have been."

"We might have to curtail our budget operation in one case . . . increase it in another. You cannot build a club overnight so it's very important to know the direction as quickly as possible."

The Eastern senior "A" league is holding a meeting in Whitby tomorrow night. It is said the pool question is one of the most important items on the agenda. But other clubs will be asking questions as to Belleville's prospects for a club next winter. This department cannot answer the question. It is too busy writing and dispensing with several pool-room and sidewalk rumors.

One thing is sure. The city won't sponsor a club. However we have it on very reliable authority that the Rooster Club will stand 100 per cent behind another sponsor. The club has a fair bank account at present and our informant said he was sure it would throw its financial and organizational assistance behind anyone who would assist with money help.

It could be the survival of the Eastern League depends on what this city does—and what has happened in the past. Certain things could emerge from the official probe of the McFarland situation that will involve other clubs as far as taxes are concerned. Practically all of the sister clubs lost money last season and an added tax could cause their demise as far as next season is concerned.

As Kingston sports editor Don Soutter wrote recently: "But while the question of whether Belleville will have a team or not next season is a big one, one that concerns the rest of the teams in the Eastern League is how developments will affect Whitby, Kingston, Cornwall and Hull."

"A possibility," Soutter says, "is that if Belleville isn't able to qualify under the Hospital Tax Act for exemption from the amusement tax then the other teams in the league may have to pay the tax for their home games in which the Macs were visitors."

"With Kingston and Cornwall already staggering under estimated $10,000 deficits for the past season, any further forced expenditures could be serious."

So there we have it. What price glory?

Keeps Right Muzzled

American Observers Puzzled By Swede's Training Theory

By MURRAY ROSE

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP)—Ingemar Johansson's theory of training for a fight has United States observers puzzled.

Sweden's undefeated European champion is going after the biggest prize in boxing when he takes on world heavyweight king Floyd Patterson at Yankee Stadium June 25.

Experts who have watched Patterson in his spectacular rise from the amateurs to the title believe there are two ways to beat him. A challenger has to be strong enough to press him all the way or powerful enough to knock him out.

SELDOM USES POWER

Despite this, the 26-year - old challenger rarely lets go with the right in practice. When he does, he seldom puts any body behind the blow. Often he sets up a sparring partner, cocks his right, then holds back.

Why?

"I don't like to hurt a sparring partner," Ingemar said in an interview Sunday. "What good does it do me to drop one on the floor. Then he is no good to me."

Someone suggested that the fight was just 24 days away and that maybe Johansson should test his range and power.

"I know I can hit hard with my right," he said.

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yankee-baiters arise! The battle has not been won. The enemy is not dead. He has escaped from the American League cellar.

The Washington chapter is to blame. They forgot to lock the basement door over the long weekend. Casey Stengel's men swept three in a row and charged into sixth place, blinking in daylight after 11 days in the dungeon.

The Yankees clobbered Washington twice Saturday, scoring 22 runs, and won Sunday's single game 5-0 on Bill Skowron's three-run homer in the ninth and Bob Turley's two-hit pitching.

The Yanks still are four games under .500 but Cleveland, still in first place, is only six games away and the Yanks have 114 games to play.

TIGERS TOP INDIANS

Charlie Maxwell did the Indians in Sunday with a three-run homer on Jim Perry's first pitch in the ninth for Detroit's 7-4 victory. Jerry Davie came through with his first complete game in the majors, a four-hitter after a wobbly start.

Cleveland held its one-game lead over Chicago because the White Sox also lost early and late by Kansas City. The Athletics knocked out Early Wynn while scoring five runs in the second and added four more in the sixth on Preston Ward's grand slam homer for a 9-1 decision.

Baltimore dropped Boston into last place, five percentage points behind Washington, when Hal (Skinny) Brown beat the Red Sox 2-1—striking out after two shaky innings—to pitch a four-hitter. He foiled Ted Williams' bid for his 2,500th big league hit. Williams went hitless in three official trips.

SPLIT DOUBLEHEADERS

Detroit downed Chicago 4-3 in the first game of a Saturday doubleheader but the White Sox rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to win the second game 4-3.

A ninth-inning rally also gained the Indians a split with Kansas City. Cleveland won the first 5-2 and Kansas City the nightcap 3-1. In other Saturday games Boston took two from Baltimore, 5-4 and 8-3, while New York was crushing Washington 11-2 and 11-0.

Camilo Pascual did his very best Sunday to keep the Yanks in last place, matching Turley's two-hit shutout for the first eight innings. There were two out in the ninth when Mickey Mantle, who had a big day Saturday doubled to right centre. After Yogi Berra was walked intentionally, Skowron lined Pascual's second pitch into the left centre bleachers for his eighth home run.

Maxwell's homer in Detroit broke a 4-4 tie. Davie had opened the ninth with a single off Mike Garcia, and was sacrificed to second. Perry walked Harvey Kuenn intentionally before Maxwell hit his ninth homer.

Willie Tasby's single with the bases loaded and Dick Williams's double scored three in two runs for the Athletics in the big second inning. Ward's grand slammer came off Barry Latman who replaced Wynn in the second. Ned Garver, who hasn't lost to Chicago since July 4, 1957, won his fourth with a four-hitter.

Baltimore left 15 on base in beating Boston. Al Pilarcik's double followed by Willie Tasby's single broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth. Ike Delock was the loser.

Two Officials Are Injured In Car Race

GODERICH (CP)—Sports cars driven by Canadians, one the Canadian-built Sadler Mark III and a little Lotus Mark 17, won events in the Green Acres Trophy races near here Saturday.

The powerful Sadler-Corvette designed, built and driven by Bill Sadler of St. Catharines, nearly three times as powerful as the Lotus of Harry Entwistle of Hamilton, took two first places during the day and seemed certain to win another in a one-hour, all-class contest. Then a broken universal joint, blamed on a tangle with a course marshal, forced the post entry Sadler car out of giving Entwistle a clear field for a double win—and all the laurels.

During the sixth race, two course marshals on a hairpin bend were struck by a Triumph TR-3, driven by Yvonne M Mazedene, of Toronto.

Cpl. Jerry Casey, of Clinton RCAF station, suffered a broken leg and was in good condition. Lee Day, 25, of Sarnia, suffered injuries to a leg, knee and hand. His condition was fair.

Dundee Bows To Throstles

VANCOUVER (CP) — West Bromwich Albion of the English League First Division Saturday night humbled Dundee United of the Scottish League First Division 7-1 before 17,607 fans at Empire Stadium here.

Albion led 1-0 at the half. After Dundee tied the match at five minutes of the second, West Brom capitalized on sloppy United clearing to turn the game into a rout.

It has been a year and two days since Ron Kline won a ball game. The Pittsburgh relief ace picked up his seventh victory of 1959 Sunday while the Pirates were closing in on the National League leaders with a double victory over Cincinnati.

Face lost to Milwaukee, May 30, 1958. He won five last year and seven this year for a 12-0 record. During that period he has appeared in 61 ball games, to wonder manager Danny Murtaugh insists he has the best bullpen man in baseball.

It was Face's three innings of shutout pitching that helped the Pirates pull out a wild 14-11 second game with Cincinnati after Pittsburgh had won the opener 5-2. The Pirates also won Saturday, 3-1.

DISCARDS GET REVENGE

The Pirates thrust last winter's discards, Bob Skinner and Ted Kluszewski, into the starting lineup as Smoky Burgess and Don Hoak traded to Pittsburgh by Cincinnati, each hit three home runs. Bob Skinner contributed a pair, including a game - winning blast in the frantic second game.

While last year's discards teamed to open up after their sorry start, with the second-place San Francisco Giants and fourth-place Los Angeles Dodgers also closed in on Milwaukee. The Giants turned back Chicago 6-3 and the Dodgers slipped St. Louis 5-3 while the Braves were splitting even with the last-place Phils.

The Phils won the first game of the double-header 6-0. They dropped the 2-1 decision to the Braves Saturday.

In other Saturday games, San Francisco beat Chicago Cubs 5-2 and the Dodgers downed St. Louis 7-6 in their sixth game at Los Angeles, with ninth-inning homers by Ron Fairly and Gil Hodges.

In contrast to the homer-packed games at Cincinnati, where pitching predominated in California Sunday, Johnny Antonelli struck out 11 although he needed relief help from Stu Miller when the Cubs started to kick their heels in the ninth. Two Dodger pitchers, Sandy Koufax and Danny McDevitt, whipped 14 Cardinals and St. Louis pitchers turned in nine strikeouts. The home-club total of 23 set a National League record.

Roberts beat Lew Burdette in the first game at Milwaukee where 28,580 saw the two active National League pitchers with the most victories—Roberts and Burdette. Spahn got the help he needed when Wes Covington hit a two-run homer off Ray Semproch in the ninth. Then Phil Ilun off Spahn was a pinch homer off Gene Freese, his fifth pinch home run of the year. That put him one short of the record of ten set by Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn in 1932.

DODGING THE POLICE AND TAXIES

Used cars that have been seen service as police cars or taxies are poor buys. Although they may receive regular servicing, they pile up a terrific number of miles in a year.

From long experience taxi driving owners are able to judge very closely when to trade in their cars . . . just before the big repair bills begin to set in.

If you suspect a car of being an ex-taxi check for patches on the roof where the customary taxi sign would have been attached. Excessively worn floor and toe boards (in a late model car) is another sign of commercial useage.

Wings Whip Toronto 7-3; Royals Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Bob Keegan is knocking at the door of success again — and at an age when most of his counterparts have used it as an exit.

The righthander with Rochester Red Wings, who didn't make the major leagues until he was 31, once more is a top hurler at 39, leading his team to a first-place tie with Buffalo Bisons in the International League race.

Keegan won his sixth straight game Sunday, beating Toronto Maple Leafs 7-3. He is 7-1 for the season.

Montreal Royals beat the Bisons 10-6 as Curt Roberts' grand-slam home run provided the winning margin. Columbus also defeated Richmond Virginians 4-3 in 10 innings and Miami edged Havana Sugar Kings 7-6 in 11 innings.

SATURDAY SCORES

On Saturday the Bisons beat the Royals twice — 12-2 and 11-5. Havana defeated the Marlins 6-4 and 5-4, Richmond and Columbus split a doubleheader, by 8-0 scores. Toronto dropped two to Rochester, 11-4 and 5-4.

Keegan this year became the property of the community - owned Rochester ball club, where he is a native, and is becoming the town's favorite son. His earned-run average is just over three a game.

Charley Jones' three — run homer in the fifth innings capped a rally that gave Keegan the win over Ed Blake, winless in five decisions. Reliefer George Susce served the home run ball. George Wilson hit a two - run (2-1) was the loser.

Jim McDaniel's 10th - inning single with the bases loaded got Columbus its victory and left the Jets only a half-game out of first place. George O'Donnell fifth inning after the Bisons had taken a 5-4 lead. Clyde Parris and Sandy Amoros also hit homer in the fifth innings capped a rally that gave Keegan the win over Ed Blake, winless in five decisions. Reliefer George Susce served the home run ball. FLASH: May 30—Indianapolis—Rodger Ward roared to victory today in the world famous 500-mile Indianapolis auto racing classic, at an average speed of 135.857 miles per hr. Like every victor for 36 years, he rode on Firestone tires.

Your safety is at stake on the Indianapolis Speedway

1 Indianapolis drivers choose Firestone over all other brands —and pay full price for each. They know that only Firestone can build tires strong enough and safe enough to stand up to the tremendous punishment of this grueling race.

2 Firestone Engineers study the effect on tires of speed, heat, torsion and distortion. The 500 mile course puts tires through a lifetime of normal driving. Invaluable information is gathered that could be gained in no other way.

3 Firestone Scientists use the information gained at Indianapolis to develop stronger, safer tires for your car. Safety-tensioned gum dipping and Firestone Rubber-X are two of many major advances that came from Indianapolis.

4 You are safer on Firestone Tires—and save money, too. Only Firestone has learned how to build tires that can survive the Indianapolis Race. From this knowledge come tires that last longer on the highway—and are far safer too.

Belleville Juniors Defeat Latta Behind Larry Soden's One-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Juniors, displaying near-perfect pitching by Larry Soden and power to burn at the plate, walloped Latta 14-0 Saturday night at CNRA Park in South Hastings Baseball League fixture.

Soden came through with a terrific one-hitter before the game was halted because of darkness after eight innings. Meanwhile his mates pounded a trio of Latta mounds men for 12 assorted safeties.

It was strickly no contest from the start as Belleville scored seven runs in the first frame. Meanwhile Soden retired the first 12 batters he faced before Gary Gow slashed a single through the centre to open the fifth frame.

Soden struck out 11 and issued only one base-on-balls, this too coming in the fifth frame. Three Latta runners reached base later, two on errors and another hit by a pitch. All died on base, with none getting past second base.

Starter Howard Meeks, who pitched to the first five batters without retiring a man, was the loser. Relief Hall lasted only the first until Gary Gow took over in the seventh. Hall nipped five on third strikes. They received poor support with Latta picking up seven errors.

Noakes' youngsters showed plenty at the plate with Jimmy Lloyd and Moe Hunter leading the way. Lloyd had a double and two singles in five trips while Hunter hit a tremendous home run and added a brace of singles. Soden helped his own cause with two singles while Larry Mavety, Bill Moxon and Duffy Follwell had one hit apiece.

Twelve men batted in the top of the first, with five hits, two errors and two walks accounting for seven runs. Lloyd had a double and single in this frame with Moe Hunter clouting a Soden singling. An error put Moxon on in the second and Moe Hunter slammed a towering home run over the left field fence to make it 9-0.

Two runs in the fifth came on as many errors, one walk and Soden's base hit off the fence. Three in the seventh chased Hall with two errors and base knocks by Mavety and Lloyd plating the final runs.

A good crowd was on hand to contest as the Juniors registered their second victory in as many starts. Their next game is in Latta on Wednesday.

Records Broken At School Track and Field

By MARK NICHOLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAKE COUCHICHING (CP)—Ten meet records and three unofficial Canadian interscholastic records were set at the annual all - Ontario track and field championships here Saturday.

Bruce Kidd of Toronto's Malvern Collegiate ran the two-mile open event in 9:25.0 to better the meet record of 9:44.8 and, unofficially, the Canadian interscholastic record.

Toronto District Interscholastic Athletic Association brought together about 350 high school athletes representing the athletic associations and 102 schools at the Ontario Athletic Leadership Camp near Orillia.

Nineteen-year-old Frank Weather of Paris set an unofficial Canadian interscholastic record in the senior mile when he ran it in 4:23.2 minutes. The Canadian interscholastic record is 4:24.6.

In the senior javelin throw, John Metras of Medway Collegiate, Arnprior, heaved the spear 188 ft. 4.5 inches to break the meet record by more than seven feet.

Bill Ray, of Ritchview Collegiate, Toronto, ran the senior 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds to set a meet record and tie the Canadian interscholastic record.

In the open discus event, George Puce of Toronto had a record heave of 148 feet, nine inches. P. Brady of Smiths Falls was second.

Bill Crothers of Agincourt set a meet record in the 440-yards senior run. His time of 50.4 seconds bettered the standing mark by three seconds.

Unbeaten Cobourg Takes Top Spot With 2-0 Victory Over Point Anne

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Cobourg Merchants pulled into first place in the Belleville and District Softball League Sunday afternoon by shutting out Point Anne Cementmen 2-0 on the latter's diamond.

The win, combined with a 6-4 victory over Trenton Saturday night gives the Merchants a perfect 3 and 0 record, half a game ahead of the Bobcats who have lost one.

Rolly Campbell hurled a strong five-hitter for the winners while his mates got him single runs in the second and seventh frames. He bore down with men on base, striking out five and walking a pair.

Scotty McSporran gave Campbell a one-run working margin in the top of the second. Pat Marcelle had landed on first two men in the inning and had two strikes on McSporran when he connected a solid home run to right field.

The Cementmen had a good opportunity to whe the game in the fourth when Doug Hull opened with a single. Chuck Kingston followed with another. Hull was cut down trying for third base on the play. Campbell got the next two men to pull out unharmed.

Cobourg added their insurance tally in the seventh as Bryan Hartnett drove in when he came on a field. Dick Turpin dropped a bunt single in front of the plate and another safety. O'Brien grounded out, advancing the runners, and Ron McGahan's ground ball scored the first man. John Batchelor came up with a good play on the ball and forced first base to prevent another run from scoring.

Veteran Pat Maracle absorbed his second setback in as many starts while Campbell got the nod for Point Anne. He allowed seven hits, nipped five via strikeouts and walked two. Dumbo Hull, He, ake Campbell, was best with men on base as he left ten stranded. Point Anne left six and had two men cut down on the paths.

Bryan Hart was the lone Cobourg batter with two hits, singling and popping a double into short right. McSporran's homer was the big blow. Campbell, Chub McIvor, Rex McGahan and Dick Turpin had a single apiece.

It was announced that a game scheduled for Tuesday night between the Cementmen and Trenton in Trenton has been changed to Thursday.

Dennis Ray, 14 Hurls 2-Hitter In Foxboro Win

Dennis Ray, 14-year old southpaw, hurled a two-hit shut-out in his first start in organized baseball Saturday night in pitching Foxboro to an 8-0 South Hastings baseball league win over Shannonville.

The young moundsman stopped Shannonville cold with his fine pitching slants. He struck out 12 and issued only three walks over the seven-inning contest.

Foxboro exploded for five runs in the third to wrap up the victory. They added a singleton in the fifth and another pair in the sixth to provide Ray with plenty of working room. He didn't need it.

Billy Hill started for Shannonville but was driven to the showers during Foxboro's third-frame rally. Gerald Hill completed the pitching chores. They were tagged for 12 safeties between them.

Pat Maracle paced the Foxboro club with the stick, banging three hits, while Glen Reynolds had a two including a home run. Chuck Rowtotham also had two hits with the others going to Jack Stewart, Ron Belanger, John Robinson, Moe Chumbley and Howard Skelly.

Gerald Hill was the only Shannonville batter able to handle Ray's slants as he collected both hits given up by his mound opponent.

A good crowd took in the fixture played at Foxboro.

Swede Takes Dutch Grand Prix Race

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (AP) — Joachim Bonnier of Sweden won the Dutch Grand Prix Sunday for his first major car racing victory.

After a fast start, the Swede captured the lead in his BRM in the first lap. The next 10 laps he trailed behind Jack Brabham of Australia.

He recaptured the lead but lost it briefly, first to Brabham, then to Stirling Moss of Britain. Moss later abandoned the race because of mechanical trouble.

Bonnier's time was 125:26.8, or an average speed of 150.406 kilometres per hour (98 m.p.h.) for the total distance of 314.475 kilometres (195.41 miles).

Brabham finished second and Masten Gregory of Kansas City was third, both in Cooper Climaxes.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Grey Monarch owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor of Toronto won the $10,000 Eclipse handicap at Toronto's Old Woodbine park Saturday and set a Canadian record for the mile.

Jockey Manny Sorensen was aboard Grey Monarch and the horse covered the distance in 1:36.2, eloping a fifth of a second off the previous mile record set by Mr Boy Bobby at Vancouver's Lansdowne Park July 28, 1953.

Grey Monarch defeated War Eagle by a head in a thrilling stretch duel. Washington finished a bit easily lengths behind.

"You told me at all costs not to hit into a double play. I figured the safest thing to do was to strike out!"

Gonzales Wins Tennis Crown

LA JOLLA, Calif. (CP)— Pancho Gonzales clinched his fifth consecutive world professional tennis championship Saturday and for good measure whipped arch-rival Lew Hoad 6-3, 15-13 Sunday in the final match of their 1959 tour.

Gonzales won the title on the basis of money winnings—his 6-2, 6-0 win Saturday over Mal Anderson boosted his total to $28,550 compared with $27,950 for Hoad who defeated Ashley Cooper 6-4, 7-5.

Gonzales' final total winnings are $29,150 and Hoad's $28,250.

Grey Monarch returned $4.00, $2.80 and $2.20.

A crowd of just more than 20,000 was present, meeting at Old Woodbine spring meeting at Ol Woodbine. The horses move to Toronto's new Woodbine where a 36-day meeting opens today.

Italians Win Mille Miglia Motor Race

BRESCIA, Italy (Reuters)— The Italian team of Mario Carlo Abbate and Gianni Balzarini won the much-curtailed 1959 Mille Miglia motor race Sunday in a three-litre Ferrari.

Ferraris also took second and third places in the famed event, which was changed from a road race to a rally-type event last year after 13 persons were killed during the 1957 race.

LEAFLETS BLAST CASTRO

HAVANA (AP)—A light plane flew over Havana Saturday during a storm and dropped leaflets attacking Fidel Castro's government. The leaflets said: "10,000 people have been killed, 40,000 are in jail and 20,000 more are in hiding" since ex-dictator Fulgencio Batista fled the country.

TEAMS MAY JOIN

VICTORIA (CP) The Times says a possibility exists that New Westminster Royals and Victoria Cougars may join forces for the 1959-60 Western Hockey League season. Both clubs suffered fairly heavy financial losses last season. The newspaper says the idea can't be expected to amount to more than behind-the-scenes talk until the next league meeting scheduled June 22.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Imperative you stay steadfastly on your job or attend to those pressing matters. Don't rush off to some amusement or other. Thus you will avoid one with a glib tongue who could cause you to make a bad investment.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Opportunity is yours now to impress the right people with your talents, and then later to make an impression on loved one. Also, help a person who is your junior and is very deserving. Avoid executive who wants you to work.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Steer clear of both friends and family ties today and try to avoid any arguments that tend to ensue. Await a better day to do your charitable deeds. Go about your own earnest and immediate affairs and prosper. P.M. relax.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Try to get out to shop, visit, make contacts, etc., rather than stick to usual chores. Or attend to any correspondence, creative writing that appeals to you. A change will do much to restore your latent capabilities.

If your child is born today ... The fine child born today will easily feel that it is imperative to have money in order to attain what is most desired. While it is well to early learn this important fact, you must inculcate the higher values of spirituality and morality which are beyond price. Then a sensible blending of the two will bring untold happiness and affluence which will permit of much philanthropy, too.

The Quinte Reports

News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

Last Tuesday's parade featured a drill competition with the RCAF Cadets at the Quinte Secondary School. The "Quinte" guard made two more drill mistakes than the RCAF boys and, although the Sea Cadets were under arms and had a longer program of movements to go through, it is the mistakes which ad up. Congratulations to the 668 Squadron on retaining the Tri-Service trophy for another year.

SUMMER PROGRAM

The "Quinte" is now into its summer program. Formal parades on Tuesdays and Thursday evenings have been suspended until next September. There will still be target practice on Tuesday evenings starting at 7:00 o'clock and on Saturday afternoons at 1:30 p.m. with the exception of this month, Saturday. The Sea Cadet barracks will be open on Sundays from 2:00 o'clock on for sailing and boating for all cadets.

There will also be a number of special parades and events throughout the summer. The Marksmen of the "Quinte" will start on their Dominion Marksmen competition next week, and an opportunity will be given to those cadets who have not yet earned their Marksman rating to do so.

BAND PLANNED

Lads who have musical ability and a yen for Sea Cadet activities are invited to join the "Quinte" as plans are now underway to form a band for the unit. Instruments are supplied through the courtesy of the Navy League. Anyone who wishes to join may obtain further information by attending the Sunday activities at the barracks or the Tuesday rifle practice sessions at the armories.

Results of the Leading Seaman examinations which were conducted by Lt. M. Davidson, RCN, assistant area officer near the beginning of last month have come through from Area Headquarters in Toronto. Able Cadet Stuart Godden was successful in having "passed proficiently."

INTER-CORPS MEETING

On June 6th a meeting has been scheduled to Lt. J. G. Donovan, commanding officer of the "Quinte" to organize inter-corps summer activities. Invitations to attend have been sent out to the officers of the Sea Cadets Corps in Picton, Trenton, Port Hope, Peterborough and Oshawa. It is hoped that a schedule for rounds-robin church parades, rifle competitions, drill competitions, and excursions or cruises may be organized to include all of these corps.

FAMED REGIMENT

Senior regiment of the British Army is the Grenadier Guards formed as a bodyguard for Charles II in 1685.

"For the same reasons, atomic furnaces in homes are not likely to become popular.

"Atomic airplanes for military use are a possibility, but largely because their unlimited range may offset very high cost. With commercial airplanes, cost is much more important.

"Atomic locomotives are a possibility, but hardly a probability. Can you imagine anyone at all being willing to risk the wreck of an atomic locomotive with his family?"

OIL MARKETS SAFE

It appears, Dr. Wilson continued, that there will be tremendous and growing demand for liquid fuels for a long time to come.

Dr. Wilson described the Canadian situation as much like that of the United States.

Underdeveloped countries would do well for the last to employ nuclear power to good advantage.

Power he said, is partly because nuclear power, to come close to being competitive, needs to be installed in large units with high load factors and without having to incur the extra costs and losses of long-distance transmission.

Dr. Wilson said it is likely that in England and possibly one or two countries on the Continent atomic power plants will be in operation within some five years earlier than in the United States—but they would not have any appreciable effect on the European oil industry.

Jet Crashes Inside Calgary City Limits

CALGARY (CP) — The RCAF today began an inquiry into the crash Sunday of a T-33 jet aircraft inside Calgary's city limits. Two airmen were killed.

Killed were Maj. G. A. Patterson, 41, of the United States Air force, an exchange officer serving with the RCAF and Fit Lt. J. Hendry, 26. Maj. Patterson came from Dorchester, N.B., and his wife and three daughters live in St. James, Man. FO Hendry came from Pembroke, Ont., and his wife and two sons also live in St. James.

UNION AUDITOR

quoted Mr. Longridge as saying: "I suggest you forward the $11,000 as soon as possible."

Mr. Stewart told the membership that "it was obvious to all but the most blind that every cent Local 598 could lay its hands on was needed for strike funds.

"While the national office was dunning the local union for money to make good national office commitments, the local union was issuing an appeal for help."

EXTRAVAGANCES LISTED

As an example of the "extravagant luxuries" on which the union officers spent money, Mr. Stewart said that:

In November, 1956, pen and pencil sets and wallets costing $122 were given away;

In February 1957, luggage valued at $93.54 was charged to "greetings";

In 1955 the union hired an artist for $2,000 to paint murals over the bar in the union hall's beverage room; and additional paintings were bought from the artist for $550.

More than $850 was paid out to have coppery trays for the beverage room beaten by hand.

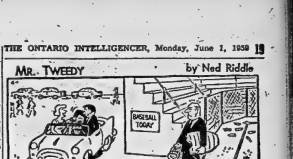
And $3,000 was taken out of union funds to put up ball for persons in the United States, whom Mr. Stewart did not identify. The membership authorized none of this."

MONEY FOR "PEACE"

Mr. Stewart said hundreds of dollars were spent in various peace campaigns, which included "peace congresses", "peace meetings", "peace picnics" and "peace pamphlets."

The local took a loss of $2,100 when it backed the labor film, Salt of the Earth to Sudbury and Timmins, and the financial report in connection with the film's showing was unavailable when they tried to get it.

Mr. Stewart said that because records are lacking it is impossible to fully determine the loss of union assets, but that linens, blankets, dishes and kitchen equipment are missing.



His report capped the membership itself for failing to show more interest in the local's activities, and criticized the extremely small turnouts at important meetings.

"RULE BY INDIFFERENCE"

"It would be wrong to say there was rule by terror," said Mr. Stewart. "There was rule by indifference, but the end result was the same.

By not keeping their officers under control, there developed an extraordinary arrogance."

The 3,000 members who heard his report voted to accept his recommendations, including the abolition of expense accounts, with an increase in salaries to compensate; a new system of bookkeeping; and an audit every four months.

Reporter Fully Recovered And Back at Work, Watched Heart Operation on Himself

The patient was fully conscious and alert during the difficult, life-or-death heart operation. Here, probably for the first time in medical history, is a trained reporter's intensely personal story of how it feels to be thrown into this kind of surgery. The writer, 43-year-old John O. R. Wallace of The Associated Press in New York, now is recovered and back at work.

By JOHN O. R. WALLACE

NEW YORK (AP)—The first thing I saw as the stretcher moved slowly through swinging doors into the operating room for my heart operation was the blinding glare of an overhead lamp. It was suspended above a long and narrow white metal table.

Gentle hands moved me from the stretcher to the table, and I lifted my head and looked around the operating room. It resembled a kilog-lighted stddio without scenery or props. Surgeons were eight figures, standing elbow and elbow in a semi-circle.

White masks partially covered their faces. Three wore green gowns, green caps, and the white masks. The five others were all in white.

No one spoke. They stood there as in a military formation, apparently awaiting a signal before moving. As I watched, they moved apart and took positions around the operating table.

WHITE-DRAPED TABLES

The separating figures disclosed white-draped tables in the background. The tables glistened with silver instruments set in precise patterns.

One of the green-garbed figures moved toward me. He was the chief surgeon who had visited my room the night before.

"As I told you last night, we can use either a general or a local anaesthetic. A local anaesthetic is a better risk."

The night before, as I lay quietly in bed in my room at Parkchester General Hospital the surgeon, Dr., Aaron N. Gorelik, came to see me.

Ten days before I had suffered a coronary attack and had faced a hard decision—allow living as a semi-invalid or gambling with survival in a delicate heart operation to regain normal health. Wanting desperately to be well, I had chosen the gamble—win all or lose all.

EXPLAINED PROCEDURE

The surgeon took the time to explain the procedure in detail; also the heart condition that made the operation necessary.

Examinations by heart specialists, he said, had shown a serious deficiency in the blood supply reaching the heart. The heart was enlarged as a result of strain.

The surgeon proposed to correct the blood supply deficiency in three ways. The operation, he said, would involve these major steps:

1. The cutting of the great, internal mammary artery over the heart.

2. Removal of a section of the fifth rib carefully.

3. An opening in the heart-covering sack to permit an injection of pure magnesium silicate.

INCREASE BLOOD FLOW

Severing the artery would increase the pressure within the arteries below which feed directly into the heart muscle. This would cause the blood vessels to expand, increasing the blood flow.

Removing the rib cartilage would permit the heart muscle to be joined to the great muscle of the chest. The latter muscle is rich in blood supply, and would feed extra blood to the heart.

The magnesium silicate, injected in minute grains, would increase the blood flow in still another way. Placed inside the heart-covering, in the space between the covering and the heart muscle, the metallic grains would set in motion a gentle and everlasting abrasive action.

Tiny ruptures would be caused in the heart muscle, also in the covering. Thus new blood vessels would be created, again increasing the flow to the heart.

FORMIDABLE TEAM

Performing the operation would be a formidable medical team headed by Dr. Gorelik, noted as a specialist in heart surgery.

The seven other team members would be the assisting surgeon, a "stand-by" surgeon, there to take over in any emergency involving either the chief surgeon or the assisting surgeon—an anaesthetist and four nurses.

Now, final preparations for the operation were being made. The surgeon standing back of me at the head of the table whispered:

"Just try to relax."

She sponged perspiration from my forehead. A needle was placed in the vein of my right arm for blood plasma, if needed. Small tables were placed in position on either side of the operating table to support my arms. Except for my chest, I was draped in fresh, cool sheets. The surgeon moved forward.

ICY COLD

"This is going to feel cold," he said. He scrubbed the chest area with a large cotton swab, dipped in brightly colored antiseptic. The solution felt icy cold. I watched, and I saw that my chest was a garish orange.

I heard a movement back of me. The anaesthetist said some visiting European doctors and surgeons would watch my heart operation.

Dr. Gorelik leaned close and over me. There was a strange sensation—a dull, scratchy feeling as he used a jagged piece of coarse sandpaper had been pulled across my chest.

"Sponges," the surgeon said. He and his assistant bent forward. Their hands were nearly interlocked and they worked with astonishing speed.

The first incision had been made. The actual operation had started.

FEELS PRESSURE

"Feel anything?" the anaesthetist asked.

"Only pressure," I said.

"I'm injecting the novocaine," I heard a doctor against the wall ask.

"I'm making incisions through the skin and the chest muscle," the surgeon said. He and his assistant were working rapidly. They whispered something, but I didn't understand it.

"I am injecting the intercostal space and the cartilage," the surgeon said, again the covering of the lung from the cartilage.

PAIN IN CHEST

A heavy weight crushed my chest. There was no actual pain, but the pressure was unbearable. It felt like a giant iron hand closing around my ribs and chest. I tried to breathe deeply, and fought to keep from blacking out.

"Pain?" they cried, and my pulse felt weighted. I was permitted to relax. An instant, then Dr. Gorelik spoke to me:

"This is where you will feel the pain. Shall we put you to sleep?"

"No," I whispered. Anxiety gripped me. From the surgeon's detailed explanation the previous night, I knew now that the next step would be painful. An incision would be made in the left breast. The magnesium silicate would be forced into the space between the covering of the heart and muscle.

"It will be about the same thing as having another heart attack," the surgeon said.

Now the jolt came.

PAINFUL AND SHARP

It was painful and sharp, and the pressure seemed unbearable—much worse than before.

I tried to say something, but I couldn't talk. Gasping for breath, I looked at the overhead lamp.

It swayed and spun wildly. Also, the table was tilting, and I

Shapely Blonde Stops Teaching To Be Stripper

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A shapely blonde junior high school teacher who quit teaching because a school official criticized her dress has turned up as a featured stripper in a burlesque night club.

Her real name is Patricia Ann Carruthers and she says she graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1956.

But at the El Rancho Club in Los Angeles, she unveils nightly under the name of Tallie White. She says she made the name change in order not to embarrass the suburban school where she taught until last October.

She said she chucked teaching when one official kept criticizing her about the way she dressed.

"Everything I' did was wrong", she said. "Either my dresses were too tight or too revealing. I couldn't even wear long earrings without criticism."

Does she prefer burlesque to teaching school?

"It beats getting up at 6 a.m. and no one criticizes my dress. And there are no papers to correct."

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—The witch doctor, his head decorated with ostrich plumes, and knuckle bones at his feet, squats before the gnarled trunk of the old thorn tree.

Slowly the tension rises.

Then a live sheep is quickly brought to the witch doctor. Grasping a razor - sharp lipe knife, he rips open the chest of the sheep with one lightning swoop, deftly cuts out the heart, dips it in a bowl and puts it to the patient's mouth.

"Lick it," he commands in forcefully that the "insane one" instantly obeys.

SEEN BY MINISTER

Such and many other similar scenes have, for the last five years, been watched by Rev. J. L. Reynolds, a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church from Rustenburg, about 65 miles from Johannesburg.

Mr. Reynolds is studying the subject for what must be one of the most unusual doctoral theses in South Africa. After five years of research on witchcraft, he hopes to obtain a doctorate in anthropology.

But what makes his research unusual is that he has actually studied under 13 witch doctors in Bechuanland, spending many hours in the bush learning their secrets — even to the art of "throwing the bones," at which he now is adept.

In forcing the "insane one" to lick the heart of the freshly slaughtered sheep, the witch doctor believes that the contact of the tongue and the still-throbbing heart makes the heart of his patient realize that it is "licking" too fast.

MUST BE CAREFUL

"The witch doctor who applies this cure for insanity has to be careful not to let the heart of the sheep stop," said Mr. Reynolds. "If it does, so does the heart of the patient."

The care with which nucleus scientists handle uranium is applied by the witch doctors to the preparation of their medicines, says Mr. Reynolds, because they believe that if they do not handle their raw material carefully it can kill them.

Even with fully qualified doctors available in the urban areas, some natives believe that the ceremonial killing of sheep or goats is necessary to make a barren woman fertile. Other occasions for the slaughtering are births, deaths and to honor dead heroes and parents.

Two Planeloads Of Nicaraguans Invade Homeland

Exiles Revolt Against Somoza's Dictatorship

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)— President Luis Somoza Monday night promised annihilation in two days of two planeloads of exiles who invaded Nicaragua from neighboring Costa Rica.

Government communiques put the invasion force at about 75, and Somoza called them "trash, curs" and "mercenaries."

Rebel leader Pedro Lacayo Farfan declared in San Jose, Costa Rica, that a revolution had broken out against the Somoza dictatorship with fighting at several points.

A Nicaraguan rebel radio broadcast heard in Costa Rica claimed the rebel fighting force totalled 421 persons and included professors, Cuban, European and Latin American universities. There was no confirmation in Managua, however, that the initial force had been swelled by additional invasions or local recruits.

The first airborne landing came at Puerto Somoza on the shores of Lake Nicaragua. A national guard communique said the force of about 50 was sent "fleeing in disorder" into the mountains. Another invasion by land-based rebel force planes attacked again Monday, strafing "little damage and slowing them down."

Somoza said the second wave—about 25 men flying in a plane stolen from the Costa Rican airlines—was "practically finished" soon after it landed near Matagalpa, 60 miles northeast of the capital.

The president said the larger force in the mountains would be wiped out by Wednesday.

The national guard, Nicaragua's 3,000-man army headed by Luis Somoza's brother, Anastasio Jr., reported that air force planes attacked the second plane before it could be unloaded and it exploded.

EXPECT APPEAL

Reliable sources predicted that the 37-year-old president would appeal to the Organization of American States to intervene as they did in Panama when a band of Cubans invaded that country in April.

Unrest against Somoza in Nicaragua reached a boiling point November 1956 when Nicaraguan martial law to counter a threatened general strike.

The Somoza brothers inherited a dynasty set up by their father, Anastasio Sr., who acted in any way to delay the bribery case. "I know no more about it than Mr. MacDonald until I read it in the paper," Mr. Roberts said in an interview.

Space Monkey Dies in Removal Of Instrument

WASHINGTON (AP) — Able, one of the two monkeys which rode a missile 300 miles into space, died Monday night while undergoing an operation for removal of a recording instrument. The army said death did not result from any effects of the flight itself.

The seven-pound rhesus monkey, a passenger in the nose cone of a Jupiter rocket on a 1,500-mile space run Tuesday, died at the army medical research laboratory, Fort Knox, Ky.

It was decided that the electrode should be removed.

The army said "there was no indication that the animal would not be able to withstand such a minor operation."

HEART QUICKENS

During administration of an anesthetic, it was noticed that the monkey suddenly developed a irregular and convulsive heart action. Attempts were made at artificial respiration, but the monkey died.

11:45 p.m. EDT.

"The cause of death was rapid and convulsive movement of the heart, following the administration of the light surgical anesthesia, and was unrelated to its recent flight," the army said.

Able's body is being sent to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology here for study.

Kingston Bribery Trial Delay Stirs Criticism

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald and Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer demanded today the provincial government make clear that a delay in a Kingston bribery trial is not because of the June 11 provincial election.

The trial of Arthur Mason, charged with attempting to bribe former mayor Frank Boyce with $10,000 to obtain the natural gas franchise for Kingston, Monday was put over to the next county court criminal sittings in July.

Mr. MacDonald said he could not see about the double delay dates and he did not show up.

"If this case was manipulated to keep natural gas off the front pages until after the election, that is in keeping with the government handling of the natural gas scandal," Mr. MacDonald said in an interview.

DENIES AN ACTION

Attorney - General Kelso Roberts said he was not acted in any way to delay the bribery case.

"I know no more about it than Mr. MacDonald until I read it in the paper," Mr. Roberts said in an interview.

TRADE MINISTER ASKED TO RESIGN BY OPPOSITION

House Work Week Will Be Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — The continuing Commons debate on the government's proposed national energy board was marked Monday by a suggestion that Trade Minister Gordon resign, and spirited opposition claims that the cabinet wants veto power over board decisions.

Mr. Churchill declined the resignation suggestion by Paul Martin (L—Essex East) and argued on the vote that sent the cabinet must answer to Parliament for all its actions.

The House turned today to the Commons work week by six hours by adding two hours a day to the sittings from Monday to Thursday and Friday. The move is intended to hasten the end of the session, which began Jan. 15.

When this has been taken care of, Parliament will turn to the energy board bill.

SHARP DEBATE

H. J. Robichaud (L—Gloucester) generated a flurry of sharp debate Monday in offering an amendment to the energy board bill that would require prior approval by the cabinet before any export licences.

The motion was eventually defeated, as were other opposition proposals for changes, but during the debate Mr. Martin said Mr. Churchill's stand was opposed to the position taken by former C. D. Howe minister last week.

QUOTES PM

Opposition Leader Pearson quoted those words of the prime minister in debate last year: "Any opposition proposals for changes, but during the debate Mr. Martin said Mr. Churchill's stand was opposed to the position taken by former C. D. Howe minister last week.

At another point, Mr. Pearson said he and Mr. Churchill are still is that he make an honest statement to the Commons."

Mr. Churchill said there is no difference of opinion on the matter between himself and the prime minister. Mr. Martin was merely blowing away the exuberance of his own verbosity.

Berlin 2-Way Peephole Through Curtain, Busy Funnel for Spies

GENEVA (AP) — The Big Four are talking about a truce for the Berlin spy war. Observers doubt one would work, or that either side wants to leash its own operatives.

Divided Berlin ranks as the world's biggest East - West centre of military intelligence operations. It is a two-way peephole through the Iron Curtain and a busy funnel for spies.

Based in East Germany are some 22 Soviet divisions and a big tactical air force. This is the main Soviet striking force confronting the Atlantic Pact defence land force that would invade Western Europe if war came.

It is not unlikely that the Soviet espionage network in West Berlin would flash the first warning of Communist concentration in preparation for aggression.

There are dozens of Western intelligence organizations functioning in West Berlin. Among them are men and women that either side wants to leash its own operatives.

Wintermeyer Would Debate With Frost and MacDonald

By PETER SYPNOWICH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer says he is ready.

All that's needed is a word from Premier Frost and a quick plane trip by CCF Leader Donald MacDonald to produce a free-for-all debate before Ontario's June 11 election.

Mr. Wintermeyer indicated Monday night he is willing to accept the CCF leader's challenge for a three-way debate in Sudbury Wednesday. On that day both the government and Liberal leader are scheduled to appear there and Mr. MacDonald has said he'd be glad to cancel a Welland appearance to be on hand.

Mr. Wintermeyer told 200 persons at Kirkland Lake he is ready to go onto a public platform "with Premier Frost or anyone else" to debate the 15-point Liberal platform.

In Toronto, where he appeared on a free-time CBC telecast with his wife Simone, Mr. Macdonald said he was not available to Premier Frost.

"If I can't get the two of them together on the same platform I'd be delighted."

Meanwhile Premier Frost was cleared in North Bay, telling the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities that Ontario municipalities will be the principal beneficiaries of any new fiscal arrangements the province might make with Ottawa.

The premier forecast Ontario is heading for a new boom which will send personal income and production to new levels.

"The next few months will see the end of recession conditions," he said. "The outlook is bright and we should keep our sights high."

Mr. Wintermeyer at Kirkland Lake said the Progressive Conservative government is running on its record instead of announcing its plans for the future.

He accused it of taking credit for the St. Lawrence Seaway and the provincial hospital plan, both of which he said were the work of the Liberal government.

He also said the government is attempting to take credit for things done by the people of Ontario. "It is not the government's record, don't run on someone else's," the Liberal leader declared.

Modern Cars Provide Huge Headache for Oil Refiners

NEW YORK (CP)—The modern car automobile has created headaches for oil refiners for the last several years, promises to become even heavier.

A paper presented to the current World Petroleum Congress by J. P. Walter and Jr. J. Sterbenz of Universal Oil Products, Des Plains, Ill., says that while the problems may therefore seemed complex they eventually will be overcome, the paper stated, are "sensitivity, tendency to throw deposits in the crankcase and valve guides, trumbler and valve guide clearance by fuel property control, tendency to form "smoggy" combustion products, and tendency to knock."

The smog problem was discussed earlier in the week at the Petroleum Prevention Through Engineering Design and Operation, a report by three members of the General Petroleum Corporation, Los Angeles.

It said:

"Responsible scientists state that motor vehicle exhausts now are by far the greatest contributors of significant pollutants in the Los Angeles basin and that relief can be attained only by marked reduction in the smog-forming potential of these emissions."

Dr. Ernest Teller, sometimes known as "the father of the H-bomb," outlined Monday a vast new field for peaceful uses of atomic explosives.

The possibilities include:

Removal of over-burden to a depth of 260 feet or more from coal deposits, thus making mining in many instances, simplifying mining operations and perhaps making possible open pit mining where underground mining now exists.

Lower cost production of many chemicals.

Would Remove Interest Tops On Loans, NHA Mortgages

OTTAWA (CP) — Removal of the six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans and National Housing Act mortgages is suggested by a Toronto economics professor in a study group prepared for the now-defunct Gordon royal commission.

Professor William C. Hood, 37, also called for a reduction in the cost of credit to consumers when they buy on the installment plan and for more flexible tariff supervision.

The proposals are contained in a 700-page book Financing Economic Activity in Canada, published today. It is the last of 33 separate studies prepared for the Gordon commission on Canada's economic prospects.

WOULD LIFT CEILINGS

Removal of the interest ceilings on bank loans and NHA mortgages was among several steps proposed by the University of Toronto professor in the interests of improving the operations of the capital market. He also suggested:

1. Greater freedom for trust companies and insurance companies in selecting investments.

2. Freedom to banks to lend on conventional mortgages outside the National Housing Act.

3. Encouragement to the development of a secondary market for investments in mortgages.

4. Reduction in the costs of floating new securities issues —costs which operate as a barrier to public borrowings by smaller companies and municipalities.

IGNORANT OF COST

Dealing with consumer borrowing, Prof. Hood said "ignorance of the costs of funds is very widespread." Lenders did not help to make clearly the costs of the funds.

There should be action, by Parliament if necessary, "to ensure that the rates of interest are computed in a way that they may easily, without using slide rules, be compared by the layman at one source with the rate charged by others."

His book deals with difficulties caused by increasing concentration of personal savings—in banks, pension funds, life insurance companies and other institutions.

Banking governing trust and insurance companies there was "a distinct bias against investment in common stocks."

TOO PROTECTIVE?

"There is no denying the need to afford protection. The question is whether the legislation is not sometimes overly protective. We concluded that-in some respects it is."

The limit on bank loan charges were eliminated on May 1. Previously, banks might be encouraged to make the rate more responsive to the demand for credit. They might also bring more flexibility to the interest rates paid by banks and other institutions on deposits.

The thesis of Prof. Hood's book is that some of the "deficiencies" in the capital market "could be removed" in pursuit of the objective of allowing economic decisions to be made in the market place."

SOCCER PLAYERS KILLED

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A passenger train collided with a truck filled with soccer players Monday on the treacherous Lake Los Andes. Ten persons were killed and 30 were injured.

PROVINCES WILL TRY TO ASSIST MUNICIPALITIES

Premier Frost Heard At North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP) — Canada's municipal leaders were told Monday night by Ontario's Premier Frost that the sympathies with their financial predicament.

But he indicated the provinces are at present doing the utmost within their financial capabilities to alleviate the fiscal burdens on cities, towns and villages.

His comments to the convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities followed a clash earlier on the question of metropolitan government.

While Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto and Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg spoke against its long-term use, Mayors A. T. Alsbury of Vancouver and R. W. Dawson of Mount Royal, a member of the Montreal metropolitan setup, were generally in favor of it.

SUCCESS AT PRESENT

Mayor Phillips said the Metro system as introduced in Toronto in 1953 could be termed a success eventually. He said the system is a "resounding success" at present but Toronto is only a step towards total amalgamation with the Toronto area's 13 municipalities.

Mayor Juba, whose city is one of the fastest growing municipalities in Canada, said metropolitan government has made no bones about his opposition. "I doubt that Winnipeg will ever experience it."

Mayor Alsbury told the convention's 500 delegates "in my opinion some form of metropolitan government is a must" for Canada's municipalities.

Mayor Dawson said the recently-introduced Metro system is working out well in Montreal and disagreed with Premier Philpott that continuance of Metro government is dangerous. He said it could continue indefinitely.

FIRST STEP ONLY

Premier Phillips, like Mayor Juba, maintained that in the long run total amalgamation is the best step. Metropolitan government should be kept in step with growth of the larger municipalities.

Premier Frost told a convention banquet that "experience has shown that there must be an integrated metropolitan arrangement between federal, provincial and municipal levels of government."

He said the July 6 federal-provincial conference "provides the opportunity of a pooling of ideas which may help solve problems which are good for Canada where national unity is involved and where equity is important and increasingly possible."

To Work With Lloyd 'For Very Long Time'

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said today he hopes to work together with Colegate Secretary Selwyn Lloyd "for very long time to come."

Macmillan was replying to questions in the House of Commons about reports that Lloyd might be switched to another cabinet post.

Propane Tanker Truck Explodes On Penn. Road

Heads, Legs and Bodies Scattered Everywhere

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN, Pa. (AP)—A propane gas truck exploded on a Pennsylvania highway today, killing at least 11 persons. Some of the victims were as far as 1,000 yards from the blast.

Officers said a tractor-trailer rammed the rear of the gas truck, setting it afire. Half an hour after the crash, while firemen fought the flames, the truck exploded.

Motorists who climbed out of their cars to see what was holding up the early-morning traffic were scattered at distances up from 100 to 300 feet up the highway. Some of them and a number of the firefighters were killed. At least 15 others were injured.

Vincent Nejy, chief photographer for the Pottsville Republican, telephoned his paper from the scene. He said it was impossible to count the number of dead and injured.

"Heads, legs and bodies are scattered everywhere. I saw six bodies lying in one field along the highway."

Police trooper Earl Klinger, sitting in his car, said a truck, tires and debris crashed through his windshield. He avoided injury by burying himself behind the car.

"About 8:15 a.m. (EDT) we got a report of a tanker on fire at Schuylkill Haven at a place known as Red Church on Route 125.

"We sent a trooper who set himself up about 500 feet ahead to divert traffic from the scene. Two fire companies arrived to fight the flames.

"A number of people left their cars to see what the blaze was. They gathered around our trooper handling the traffic. At 8:45 a.m. the tanker let loose. There was a terrific explosion.

"The flames shot up the road like a ball of fire, killing eight or nine around the trooper. He was saved by ducking behind the police car.

"As far as we know there was no collision. We don't know what he an attempt to overtake other tankers catch fire for some unexplainable reason.

There were no identifications of the victims available immediately.

Warned Against Holding Contests

TORONTO (CP) — Chief election officer Lewis Duff today warned the Ontario Liberal Association it might be violating the Election Act by giving away ping pamphlets offering contest prizes.

Two contests had come to light —one for children involving a jingle and another asking for the best slogan.

Mr. Duff said in a statement he planned to consult Attorney-General Roberts about the mosquito lotion.

Use of Berlin As Spy Centre Stalls Parley

GENEVA (CP)—The Big Four march to the summit was reported stalled today in an East-West argument over the use of divided Berlin as an espionage and propaganda battlefield in the cold war.

The argument flared in secret talks between the Western and Soviet foreign ministers here Monday. It may continue at the formidable session of the Big Four conference scheduled today. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko requested the full-scale conference session today with the ministers of letting Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz of East Germany speak on the Berlin situation.

WEST COMPLAIN, TOO

Gromyko said a spy has denounced West Berlin as a hotbed of intrigue, and the U.S. counterattacked in Monday's secret session, with charges of Communist subversion, espionage and propaganda based in East Berlin. It also rejected Gromyko's demand to the United State, ensnarle its powerful RIAS, the Radio in the American Sector which beams German-language programs to the Communist East.

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville planned to continue their talks tailoring to what's ever like Bolz took.

BOTH SECTORS

The Western ministers are determined that any agreement to end the current subversion, espionage and propaganda activities in Berlin must apply to the Communists as well as to the Western sector of the city.

A Soviet spokesman said Monday's private talks had been "useful" and then added mysteriously: "We'll know why in the next few days."

But the Russian hint of progress contrasted with reports from Western sources that the Soviets and the West still were deadlocked although the atmosphere was "good."

University of Saskatchewan Team Works on Machine Which Thinks

SASKATOON (CP)—The University of Saskatchewan has launched a program to develop a machine that can learn and think.

When developed, in perhaps 10 years, the machine may be used in air traffic control; scientific weather forecasting, production scheduling, inventory control and complex time-tabling. But there is no likelihood of its replacing the human brain completely.

"Faced with problems in human relations or politics — anything to do with human beings— the machine would break down completely," says Prof. Arthur Porter, in charge of the project.

The program is receiving federal grants and will get $50,000 next year. By that time, the research team, still being organized, will number about 20 persons.

Prof. Porter, dean of engineering, announced the program in an interview Monday, after delivering a paper on "Evolution of Intelligent Automata to the physics section of the Royal Society. The society is meeting here as part of the Conference of Learned Societies.

Although the United States has been in the field of intelligent automata for a couple of years, Prof. Porter said he is hopeful his team may beat them to the development of a thinking machine.

Renovation of Parking Lot Building Cost $11,400 More Than Estimated Council Told

Renovation of the Pinnacle St. municipal parking lot building now in use as headquarters for the department of health and recreation commission cost nearly $13,000 more than was originally estimated.

Last night city council in committee was informed by City Planning Engineer Charles Mott that the completed cost of renovation was $25,000, or $11,400 more than the original estimated cost of $13,600.

The over-run in costs above the estimated figure came in for criticism by several members of council who expressed surprise that the renovations were costing this amount.

Alderman Frank Grandame stated that he had been assured only a few weeks ago that the cost was within the estimate.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde declared, however, that the extra expenditure was due to more than a complete surprise to council in the construction cost for installation of several items was considerably more than the estimate. Also, several items had been the heating plant which had cost about double the estimate.

Mr. Mott said he had submitted cost figure nearly a year ago and had been told to go ahead with the work as planned.

Then the city manager asked if council could audit it. "I had no inkling that the cost was going above $16,600," one alderman said.

WELL WORTH IT, CLAIM

"Then just how are you going to control city finances?" asked Alderman Frank Grandame.

"The only way is to get a monthly or quarterly audit," returned Mayor Hyde. "Has anybody been in the new building?"

"I have," replied Alderman Dr. Jack Faulkner. "It looks like $28,000 to me and it is worth every penny."

Commenting on his observation of city financing, Alderman Jack Ireland said he had experience in council had been an education for him.

"I see that if you want anything done just go ahead and do it. If anyone asks for a renovation of this building would cost us $28,000, we never would have got it," he said.

MEETING ADJOURNED

For the second in succession the committee meeting meeting was adjourned before the agenda was completed and committee will meet again tonight to complete their business.

A delegation from the city public school board waited on council to explain their request regarding a clear deed for complete 61½-acre parcel of land in the east annexed area to be used as a site for another public school.

Schools administrator said actually five and a half acres had been purchased, the rest going for attributing an additional acre which was to be turned over to the city as the five pic cent parcel which by-law requires must turn over to the city for park purposes.

Mr. Mills said the additional acre was required for that use of the lands for recreational purposes but a clear deed for the additional area was required from the city before school apartment grants on school site purchase.

NATO Food Bank Will Be Helped By Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to contribute $10,000,000 worth of flour to a NATO food bank.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced the plan in the Commons Monday after Finance Minister Fleming tabled supplementary spending estimates totalling $54,140,979 that included the flour item.

The supplementaries will increase recent budgetary spending of $2,340,000,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1960 to an estimated $2,394,500,000. That compares with spending in the year ended last March 31 of $2,-160,370,020, the actual figure.

If revenue and expenditure as estimated in the April 9 budget are realized the government's deficit in the 1959-60 fiscal year will total about $447,140,000. Fleming budgeted for a deficit of $700,000,000.

In addition to the budgetary outlays, the government expects to put out $37,000,000 from the old age security fund. Notice already has been given of loans and investments totalling another $122,887,199 and the supplementaries added $46,338,855.

In addition to the $10,000,000 worth of flour for the food bank, the prime minister said the government has made $1,000,000 worth available free 30,000,000 pounds of dried skim milk for distribution to underdeveloped countries. To cover this, an item of $2,500,000 is included in the supplementary estimates.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that at a NATO meeting in Paris in December, 1957, he proposed establishment of a NATO food bank for use particularly in the event of an emergency in the alliance.

Since that time, discussions had been going on with various countries to establish what contributions might be made.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson told other NATO members would have to participate in a food bank if it were to be successful.

He said he could not think of a better way to dispose of our agricultural surpluses than to give them to countries in need.

Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, said Canada should put more emphasis on personnel assistance and less on military equipment, much of which would be out of date before being obsolete anyway.

Discussing the food bank, he hoped other nations would follow suit.

The non-budgetary items in Monday's supplementary estimates included $2,000,000 for advances and investments totalling $60,388,855.

The loans include a $22,000,000 advance to the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the government housing agency; $22,500,000 for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and $2,000,000 for the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation to improve its radio facilities; and $4,000,000 for the Veterans Land Act.

Judge Agrees With Argument For Defence

KINGSTON (CP)—Judge Maxwell W. Bruneau Tuesday agreed with defence objections that section 20 of a prison regulation for RCMP by Kingston penitentiary guard Henry Sievers, 39, after he was charged with possession of narcotics are inadmissible and ruled that they be struck out.

Defence counsel L. H. Tepper told the sections of the statement had no bearing on the charge and would only prejudice the jury.

The jury was excused and the conference on the judge, defence and Crown discussed whether the statement was admissible. After the discussion the trial was adjourned until today, when the jury was expected to hear the two revised statement.

Earlier, J. C. Arnold of the RCMP told the court Sievers was arrested at the penitentiary April 18. An envelope containing white-powder capsules was found in his shirt pocket, he said.

The Swedish firm Stora Kopperborg plans to build the mill, through Nova Scotia pulp limited. The provincial government has set June 30 as a deadline for the company to decide whether to go ahead with the project.

Belgian Prince Alters Wedding Arrangements

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Arrangements for the marriage of King Baudouin's brother were altered today in a bid to avert a religious-political storm that has blown up here over the matter.

Prince Albert, 25, and heir to the throne, now will marry his lovely Italian princess here in Belgium instead of at the Vatican.

It was announced that Albert and Princess Paola Ruffo di Calabria will be married at both civil and religious ceremonies here, in accordance with normal Belgian law. Afterwards they will travel to Rome for a separate blessing by Pope John July 1.

The question of where and how the couple would be married was the central cause of a royal crisis which has rumbled around the throne during the absence of 28-year-old King Baudouin in the United States. He returned Monday after a three-week tour.

REMOVES ISSUE

Today's announcement removes the main issue — demands that the couple marry in accordance with Belgian law. The original intention was that they would be married in a religious ceremony in Rome.

Strict government statement broadcast over Brussels radio said the Pope thought it preferable that civil and religious marriage ceremonies should be held in Belgium as he wished to avoid all the Belgians united round the throne on this occasion.

The communique added: "The king and the two families are glad that the civil marriage will take place in this country."

Marlene Streit, Judy Darling, Win for Canada

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland (CP) Canada defeated South Africa 2-0 today in International competition among the Commonwealth women's golf tournament. Australia beat New Zealand by the same margin.

The Canadian win, by the team of Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Judy Darling of Montreal followed a morning of gloom when Mary Gay of Calgary, five times runner-up in the Canadian Women's Open title, dropped out of competition with a virus infection diagnosed as influenza.

Miss Gay was not available to play in the afternoon or against New Zealand, Mrs. J. H. McCracken, team captain, said.

Miss Streit-Darling combination beat Rita Easton, five times holder of the South African title, and team-mate Jackie Mercer 4 and 1. The other Canadian team of Sue Milligan of Calgary and Roma Newcombe of Toronto swamped Mary Clemence and Jean Tindall 4 and 3.

Mrs. Streit, who won the British title in 1953, played a major role in Canada's win, with some fine putting.

The Canadian pair won 2 up at the fifth, slumped to 2 down at the 10th, but squared the score at the 12th. They edged ahead at the 16th and went on to win at the 17th.

Hospital Board Tells Council 4-Storey Nurses' School Can Be Built Without Extra Cost

A change in construction plans on the part of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors which would provide a four storey nurses' training school on the residence instead of the originally planned one-storey structure which had been approved by city council cause in for questioning by that body at their regular council committee meeting Monday evening.

The change in plans for the new structure which has already been commenced was explained by Hospital Administrator Kenneth Box who noted that the larger building was expected to be completed at no additional cost to the city.

Estimated cost of the original one storey structure was $177,000 and equipment would total $210,000. Of this amount the city would have been asked to provide $82,000, the balance to come from $50,000 which the hospital has on hand grants amounting to $68,000 and $10,000 from the county of Hastings.

However, the Ontario Hospital Commission made provision for not an auditorium and when additional grants were available the hospital board had decided to provide residence accommodation for nurses.

Cost of the four-storey structure would be an estimated $1,000 with a total of $281,000 including furnishings and equipment.

ONLY $19,650 SHORT

With the enlarged building however a total of $186,000 in grants would be received instead of $68,000 under the original scheme. This with the $50,000 cash on hand; the city's $82,000; $10,000 from the county and $31,350 in special grants on hospital beds which can be applied to the nurses' residence, leaves an amount of only $19,650 short of the total estimated cost.

Mr. Box told council that the board felt the $19,650 could be saved by the hospital doing its own contracting.

Both Mr. Box and Mr. Frank Domenico were confident that the four-storey building could be completed without touching the city for any more money.

"In fact," stated Mr. Domenico, "if we have any kind of a break on this building, we may even be able to hand the city back some money."

Mr. Domenico said that he and members of the hospital board had not felt it necessary to come to council and advise them of the change in plans when the enlarged building was not costing the city any more money.

Several council members, however, were skeptical of the board's ability to save $200,000 by doing its own contracting with Alderman Ralph Graham asking what would happen if costs ran higher than expected.

"Then I guess we would have to stop the building before we got the roof on," replied Mr. Box, "but I don't think council will be asked for any more money."

He said that costs were based on architects estimates which to the past had proven very accurate.

WOULD PROVIDE RESIDENCE

Mr. Box noted that another alternative from the original plan considered by the board was construction of a two-storey structure to provide an auditorium and training school accommodation. This scheme with the additional grant available, would have actually cost the hospital more than the original plan. However consideration would have had to be given to the very near future to provision of additional nurses' accommodation.

He said that if the new building was not proceeded with the hospital would have to cut down on its plans for next year's building class for which there were now 60 applications.

Alderman Dr. James Forrester asked if any thought had been given by the board to approaching county council for a grant to assist in construction of the large building. He said it had been his understanding that the county's donation of $10,000 had been based on provision of only a 4-storey nurses training school and at the time county council had been told that consideration would be sought when the nurses' residence was constructed.

Mayor Gerald Hyde said it anybody was being blamed, he would take responsibility or not informing council of the board's change in construction plans.

He noted that the board had received the unexpected grant and had applied it where it was felt it would do the most good.

"It was felt this was the way to get a needed nurses' residence without costing the city any more money."

Again questioned by Alderman Forrester regarding the board's willingness to "go on bended knee" and solicit further county council, Mr. Domenico replied that the larger building not costing any more money he did not see the need to approach county council.

"The time will soon come for another addition to the hospital," he said. "We have a waiting list of from 200 to 300 and we will have to look at the matter of time until we have to build a 10-storey addition."

"I think you are missing the point," returned Alderman Forrester. "The county benefits equally with the city from the hospital and I think we should be approached for a further contribution to the nurses' residence."

"Yes, I see your point there," returned Mr. Domenico stating that the board would be glad at any time to support city council on a further approach to county council.

Kay Homan Tells Of Trip to United Kingdom

Kay Homan, women's physical education director at the YMCA, gave an interesting and detailed talk of her trip to the United Kingdom as a representative of the Canada to Junior Farmers' Association last year to local Rotarians yesterday noon at the meeting, one of four representatives who left the trip to observe farming conditions and methods in Scotland, Ireland, and England, gave a very interesting address supported by many attractive color slides taken during her ten week tour. Close attention was paid by the Rotarians present as many beautiful scenes were shown, complemented by Miss Homan's observations and comments.

Di Diamantides, Rotarian and secretary of the local YMCA, introduced the speaker and Newt Thompson, president, gave the thanks of those present.

A large number of out-of-town Rotarians were guests at the meeting. The person coming the farthest distance, to attend was Fred Forbes of Edmonton, Alberta, who was awarded with a pennant by President Jack Vanover, following Art Francis' introduction of the guests. Now Rotarian Arnold Campbell was informally introduced to the club.

It was announced that Bill Hurst, vice-president elect, would be the club representative at the International Convention in New York City. Grace was given by Fred Wilson.

Would Expect To Find Some Recoil Marks

TORONTO (CP) — A former RCMP officer says he would have expected to find recoil marks in the boat in which a suburban Rexdale physician, Dr. Gerald Palmer, said he accidentally received a shotgun blast in the leg last Oct. 4.

James A. Carmichman, former RCMP superintendent in charge of crime detection, laboratories until he retired, was testifying Monday at an action suit in which Dr. Palmer is suing two insurance companies for $350,000 under accident policies he had with them.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills Opens Traffic Training School

TRENTON — The Trenton Police Traffic Training School was officially opened last night by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in the Court Room above the police station, where the many machines and other items used in the classes had been set up.

In opening the school Magistrate Wills said the Trenton Rotarians are to be thanked for their contribution in sponsoring the school. He said the others who also helped in getting the school ready for operation are also entitled to the thanks of the community.

"I have prepared a speech," said Magistrate Wills "which is to be read at the opening of all new classes and I will read it to you now."

His speech was as follows:

"I have been asked to make a very short address in the nature of an official opening of each class attending the Trenton Police Traffic Training School. And in view of the fact that practically all cases involving casualties of fatal or personal injury have affected the operation of vehicles on streets, roads and highways either at the time or other but dealt with by me, I think it is appropriate that you should know that I am familiar with the nature of the instruction you will receive and, speaking generally, I believe that it is both in accord with the law and helpful to you in its appreciating and carrying out your duties and responsibilities under the law. While on hears and reads almost daily, of needless loss of life and personal injurics from traffic accidents, I feel that every effort should be made to find, and make sure that by his knowledge and observance of the rules of safe driving, he does not contribute to an accident.

TRIES FOR RULES

Schools of this nature have been in operation for quite a number of years in the many larger centres in the United States, and more recently have been brought into operation in cities in Canada and particularly Ontario. They are known by various names, but perhaps the one most generally recognized is that of Traffic Court Clinics. I think that this name arises from the fact that, in many cases, they were organized by police forces to instruct drivers who had committed flagrant breaches of highway laws and to impress upon them, from the standpoint of public safety, should be given instruction in their rights and duties in the operation of motor vehicles. I may say that I intend to follow this policy and will on occasions grant leave to the others for offenders to take the course of instruction here provided. The number of Traffic Court Clinics in Ontario is increasing and it is confined to large centres of population and I might add that the Attorney General of Canada and his department have been active and very helpful in their establishment.

TRENTON FIGURES

Dealing more with local conditions, it should interest you to know that in 1958 there were 481 traffic accidents in the Town of Trenton, in which 58 persons were injured. Fortunately there have been no fatalities since early in 1957 but I suggest that this is perhaps more by good fortune than by reason of any other fact, or, as I think it should be realized that the driver of a vehicle involved in an accident has, in many cases, very little control over the actual movement and action of the vehicle once an impact has occurred. There were 776 violations of the Highway Traffic Act dealt with in the Court in Trenton during 1958, were only breaches of the speed and while perhaps many of these limit, excessive speed under the circumstances existing is well known to be a frequent cause of causing accidents. In 1958, twenty-six persons were convicted of driving while intoxicated and twenty of driving while impaired. The penalties for these offences are severe and include loss of driver's licence, which in itself should be cause for a good deterrent person to think before he operates a motor vehicle after consuming alcohol, or enters one to be driven by a person who has consumed too much. Likewise there are many accidents in which alcohol certainly is a factor, even though no charge involving the affecting of a driver's faculties is preferred. In these offences, we have and include loss of driver's licence, which in itself should be cause for a good deterrent person to think before he operates a motor vehicle after consuming alcohol, or enters one to be driven by a person who has consumed too much. Likewise there are many accidents in which alcohol certainly is a factor, even though no charge involving the affecting of a driver's faculties is preferred. In these offences,

COMMENDS THESE PRESENT

I know that most of you who are here for instruction realize that in so doing because of your desire either to improve your knowledge of safe driving methods, or, even in the case of some of you who feel that you are careful drivers, to make sure that you have fully appreciated what may be learned from the collected experience that guides the course of instruction here. In this respect, may I commend you for your interest in public safety and your obvious desire to protect your full share to it.

In closing, I think the appreciation of the community should be expressed to all persons and organizations, I think the contributed interest, time and money to the organization and operation of this school, and particularly the Rotary Club of Trenton which is also to be commended so much of the excellent equipment for tests and demonstrations.

Dr. Fu Manchu's Creator Dead

LONDON (AP)—Sax Rohmer, believed about 70, creator of the mystery story villain Dr. Fu Manchu, died Monday night.

Rohmer became known mainly through serialization of the Fu Manchu stories and the fame of the lady Oriental sleuth Karamaneh throughout the world in later years by movie films and radio.

Rohmer's real name was Arthur Sarsfield Ward. He was born in England about 1886. He died for many years and called New York City his home.

Rohmer learned the writing trade as a young newspaper man in Fleet Street before the First World War.

The first Fu Manchu book set him on the road to success and in the 1930s he was much in demand as a film writer adapting his own works into movie scripts.

He twice killed Dr. Fu Manchu but revived him in later stories in response to popular demand—an experience shared with Arthur Conan Doyle, who once ended the life of Sherlock Holmes but later brought better of it.

Rohmer said in 1953 he had sold the film, TV and radio rights of the Dr. Fu Manchu series for more than $4,000,000.

SNUFFING THE SOCIAL LIGHTS?

We see by the Associated Press that the Castro government has proposed a tax against all names, adjectives, pictures, and titles of nobility published on the society pages of newspapers. Each name and adjective is taxed one peso (equivalent to $1.00), a picture is taxed 10 pesos per square inch, and titles of nobility cost 100 pesos each. This should increase the high cost of living it up to the point where society page reports in Cuba should read something like:

"A dinner and dance was held at a spot in this locality which is noted for events of society. A quantity of persons were gathered and filled the scene of the occasion to capacity. The celebration was in honor of the graduation, whose members are dedicated to the sports of hunting and golfing, which holds such an affair annually. Host and hostess for the occasion were a figure who is important in the politics of this country, and is addicted to a beard, and his wife. The host was garbed in the uniform of a branch of the military. The hostess was dressed in a gown of the color of the lilies, festooned with objects of metal which sparkled under the lights of colors which were varied. The orchestra was imported for the occasion from a country to the north of this island. The leader of the orchestra is noted for his hobby of racing speedboats."

What a way of saying: "The Havana Golf and Country Club held its annual Celebrity Ball, hosted by President and Mrs. Castro. The president was dressed as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and his wife was dressed in a white, sequin-studded gown which sparkled under the many-colored ballroom lights. The orchestra, from the United States, was Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians."

But one has saved, by the proposed tax rate, $321. And if one refrains from inserting a two-column picture of the President and his wife, there is an additional saving of about $100.

Well the move should cure Cubans of attending the society page test to see their name in the paper. It also should provide husbands with an excellent out in the event they are reminded that they have forgotten the little woman's birthday or their anniversary or some such thing. He can now cover up his error with the statement, "but dearest light of my life (these romantic Latins) I was planning on having the big surprise . . . your picture on the social page!" Then all is forgiven (we hope.)

Mr. Castro seems to have the answers, from shooting social blights to snuffing social lights.

RHEE'S DANGEROUS STAND

One would have to be very dense to fail to understand why President Syngman Rhee of South Korea does not relish the prospect of large numbers of Korean refugees in Japan being repatriated to North Korea.

Altogether aside from the question of face, there is the practical aspect of the influence such repatriated Koreans may have on others.

Understanding of Rhee's feelings, however, does not automatically imply approval of his methods and when he threatens to use every means "including force" to prevent such repatriation he would seem to be going too far. Surely the mere fact that he has to use such a threat involves a loss of face at least as great as would be involved if these Koreans were repatriated to the Communist paradise.

The plain, and uncomfortable, facts are that these Koreans in Japan are mainly destitute, that what they desire more than anything else is a chance to earn a living, that South Korea apparently has not been able to offer them such an opportunity, that North Korea, by virtue of its industrialization, has been able to promise them jobs and that, faced with this situation, those who would be repatriated have freely chosen to go to North Korea.

Stopping them from doing so by the use of force is hardly likely to win friends for Rhee. That, though, is not the worst of the situation. If the repatriation ships are halted, it could easily lead to a resumption of hostilities in Korea. And Rhee's action is certain to exasperate Japan, which is eager to be rid of the Koreans.

TOMORROW

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Tomorrow, splendid day of days,
When I shall cheer all double plays
And call the umpire "robber"

Tomorrow, O, let skies be blue
And sorrow be forgotten,
For I would cheer as thousands do
And call the umpire "rotten!";

Tomorrow, then farewell to care,
Let grief be put to rout;
For I am anxious to be there
To holler "Hit 'em out!"

Leave throngs for kings in foreign land
And pulpits for the preachers,
Let rich men occupy the stands,
But leave to me the bleachers.

Plight of Animals in Asia

The Times of London

The saddest sight in South-East Asia is the plight of domestic animals. Millions of human beings in Asia themselves only scrape by, but animals, perhaps, are lucky to be alive; but sometimes they would be better dead.

A ginger and white cat came into our garden in Singapore last week. It had a small, undernourished body that looked as if it had been kept under a weight to stunt its growth. A small rope— not string —was tied tight round its neck, with one roughly chewed end standing straight in the air, showing where the animal had gnawed through the SPANS HARBOR — This new bridge across the harbor at Auckland, New Zealand, was a century in the making. Now it has set off a celebration in the island's capital and largest city to mark its opening. The bridge, eliminating a road and ferry journey of many miles around the harbor, is expected to give further impetus to the city's growth. Auckland's new structure is parallel to the Angus L. Macdonald bridge linking Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S. (CP Photo).

Carnivals Mark Opening Of New Auckland Bridge

By J.C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The north begins on the far side of the bridge.

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — To celebrate a great event in its history, Auckland is engaged in a round of rejoicing, a high carnival to mark the completion of its great harbor bridge.

For the first time, the two halves of New Zealand's largest city, with a population of 400,000, were joined when the bridge was officially opened on May 30.

Until now, contact between the city proper and the residential suburbs of the north shore has been by a network of vehicular and passenger ferries, or by a journey of many miles round the head of the harbor.

AID GROWTH

Auckland believes that the four-lane highway now built across the harbor bridge will give new impetus to the city's growth. The citizens are confident that their city is destined to become a great metropolis of the South Pacific.

To show their unbounded faith in what the bridge will do for the future, they held revels on both sides of the harbor.

Celebrations included a five-miles - long procession, balls, mardi gras, dancing in the streets, fireworks displays, a searchlight tattoo, an air pageant, a mass parachute jump, parades of ships in the harbor. Even the ferries, now outdated, gave a farewell salute to their successor.

Auckland is built on a series of extinct volcanic cones, and to mark the occasion spectacular simulated eruptions burst from the peaks surrounding the city.

TWO KILLED

The actual opening ceremony was performed by Governor-General Lord Cobham on May 30 in the presence of national and city leaders.

The bridge will open up large areas of land in close proximity to the city which has been slow in development because of inconvenient access. It will also greatly improve communications with the far north of New Zealand, since the main highway to the city proper and the residential suburbs of the north shore has been by a network of vehicular and passenger ferries, or by a journey of many miles round the head of the harbor.

The structure is a tribute to English engineering skill. It was built by a group of British firms.

The only serious difficulty encountered was when one of the massive concrete piers silted during sinking and required emergency corrective measures. It was one of the cheapest big bridges in human life—only two fatalities occurred during its construction.

Macmillan Plans Probe of False Report on Lloyd

By DENNIS NEELD

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan today was reported planning a personal investigation to track down the source of a British newspaper report that he will move Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd to another cabinet post after the next general election, expected this fall.

The angry prime minister fired off a cable to Lloyd at the Geneva Big Four conference assuring him there was no foundation for the report in The Times.

(Reuters news agency said it was learned that Lloyd replied to Macmillan's cable, saying he quite understood the situation and was not disturbed by it.)

Macmillan acted swiftly to counter any idea the report might have raised that Britain's spokesman at the Geneva talks lacked the government's full confidence. The Time report suggested a new man and a new policy might be needed at the foreign office after the summit conference expected in the summer.

GIVE ASSURANCE

The government also is understood to have assured the Western allies that the 54-year-old Lloyd will be speaking for Britain for some considerable time to come.

Along with their anger, government officials were puzzled. For it was believed The Times—the very antithesis of sensational journalism — would not have carried such a story unless it got the information from an apparently reliable source.

An editorial of The Times and the paper couldn't reveal its source would still felt the report was true.

The Times reported Macmillan's cable to the foreign secretary and reported its story had caused the "most intense interest" at the Geneva conference.

The Daily Mail reported from Geneva that "Selwyn Lloyd has been stabbed in the back." The Daily Mail's Geneva correspondent cabled that "Lloyd's position has been badly shaken."

"STUPID ARTICLE"

A Conservative member of Parliament, Albert E. Cooper, today sent a telegram to The Times saying "Your stupid and irresponsible article concerning Mr. Selwyn Lloyd is deserving of the severest censure. It can only do great disservice to the cause of world peace."

Lloyd has been fair game for political commentators almost since the time he took office three years ago and there have been periodic rumors that he was on the way out.

Observers Predict Turbulent Times Ahead for Singapore

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The victory of the People's Action Party in Singapore's general election emphasizes the question of union between Singapore and Malaya — a question with racial and potential overtones.

Singapore voters have given a landslide victory to Lee Kuan Yew and his leftist P. A. P., and observers are predicting turbulent times ahead for the small island colony embarking on home rule.

Lee, brilliant young British-educated lawyer, campaigned on a platform of anti - colonialism and social welfare, potent political weapons in Southeast Asia where nationalistic fervor is high.

But he also recognized perils in the future for Singapore on its own. While accepting help from the Communists, he campaigned for union between Singapore and anti-Communist Malaya.

Lee, 36, has insisted that his party is not the "handmaiden" of the Communists but their weight is obvious. It's inevitable that the colossus Red China tends to exert heavy influences on tiny Singapore. In 1956, the colony's population was estimated at 1,300,000, of whom 967,200 were Chinese.

While communism is not a matter of race, it has been noted that elements of the Singapore Chinese seem more impressed with Red China's gains than those in, for instance, Hong Kong, closer to home.

British officials in London and Singapore have looked with favor upon the island's wish to join the Federation of Malaya, especially since Malaya has welcomed British capital and armed forces.

But Kuala Lumpur has managed to restrain its enthusiasm. Malaya, which attained independence within the Commonwealth in 1957, is worried about upsetting its delicate population balance and also has no wish to add to its own troubles from Communist.

THE FIGURES

Malaya has a population of 6,278,800, including 3,126,700 Malays and 2,333,000 Chinese.

Against this is the fact that Singapore is a geographical appendage of Malaya. The island, only 26 miles long and 13 miles wide, is separated from the peninsula only by the mile - wide Straits of Johore. They're linked by a causeway.

Economically, the connections have been just as close, with Singapore the traditional port and commercial capital for the rich rubber plantations and tin mines of the peninsula. It has been as an economic capital—and strategic military base — that Singapore has found its importance through the years, not as a separate entity.

It's difficult to see how Lee's present policies — such as his pledge to remove British bases —will help his hopes for union with Malaya.

The British naval base, employing 40,000, is one of the most important factors in Singapore's economy, bringing in $100,000,000 a year from London.

Women Rank High in Traits For Executives

WINNIPEG (CP) — Women rank at least as high as men in traits needed for executives, an American psychologist said here.

Dr. J.L. Rosenstein of Miami, Fla., told a seminar on human relations that the traits include emotional maturity, intelligence, loyalty, decisiveness, co-operativeness and critical analysis.

"The fair sex is far superior at recognizing and interpreting little nuances of human expression," he said. Women were not more subject to emotional upsets than men, although they might have a good cry while men were stoical and ended up with ulcers.

Attacking the myths about women being too emotional and unlogical for executive positions, Rosenstein asked: "Are you really sure you can't be as logical because of an ancient prejudice?

"Isn't it better than just as monotonous work, be said, if they would have them do it? Why not? We'd be stupid not to."

STOLIKER — BRISCOE

White and mauve chrysanthemums and yellow snapdragons formed the nuptial setting in Holloway Street United Church, on Saturday, May 16, at 2:00 p.m. for the marriage of Brenda Joan Briscoe, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Briscoe, of North Bay, Ontario, to Norman Stoliker of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Stoliker. The Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, officiated. Mr. Clifford Tyrrell, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied Mr. Alfred Hughes, soloist, who sang, "Because", and "The Lord's Prayer."

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length story-book, bridal gown of embroidered organdy, fashioned with pinpoint type bodice featuring an appliqued rounded neckline with tiny sleeve bibs and bouffant skirt in bell-shape accented with flowered embroidery. She wore lily-pointed gauntlets and a tiara headdress of imported lace entwined with sprigs of tiny baby's seed pearls, finger-tip circular veil of silk tulle illusion, and carried a cascade bouquet of salmon - colored Pinocchio roses mingled with white gladioli flowerets and training ivy.

Mrs. Beverley Topping, of Trenton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in white embossed organdy over mauve taffeta, designed on princess lines emphasized with mauve bows down the centre back to hemline. She wore a mauve headdress of hand-rolled petals caught with a tiny veil, dotted with tiny velvet ribbons and sequins. They, white gauntlets with matching velvet bows completed her ensemble.

The bridesmaids, Misses Patricia Campbell, of Lanark, cousin of the bride, Joyce Cox, of Belleville, and Mavine Wilson, of Oshawa, were gowned identically in style to that of the matron of honor, with matching mauve headdresses and veils. They carried nosegays of mauve and white roses with matching mauve streamers.

Mr. Harvey Stoliker, of the R.C.A.F., Nova Scotia, brother of the bridegroom, was best man; while Messrs. Bob Duvall and Allan Stoliker, brother of the bridegroom, Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's Baby sister, Lynn Briscoe, traditional nuptial setting with a three-tier, all-white wedding cake, flanked by tall, white candles, in silver candelabra, and vases of red tulips.

The bride's mother wore a mint-green shantung sheath gown with mother-of-pearl beige accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother, wearing a navy-blue two-piece ensemble in silk with powder-blue accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, assisted in the receiving line.

For travelling to Watertown, Syracuse, Rochester, Niagara Falls and North Bay, the bride chose, a turquoise blue sheath with matching jacket, bone-colored hat, purse, shoes and gloves and corsage of deep pink Pinocchio orchids.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Stoliker will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at the home of Mrs. James Wadsworth, Belleville, to a miscellaneous shower, and another at the home of Mrs. Gordon Oliver, Belleville. A dinner party was held in her honor by the girls of the Ontario Hydro staff, at the Tweedsmuir Hotel, in Tweed.

Guests were present from North Bay; Ottawa; Pembroke; Lanark; Truro, Nova Scotia; Deseronto; Madoc; Cornwall; Finch; Chesterville; Trenton; Oshawa; Toronto and Port Hope.

Immigrants Say Canadians Show Lack of Patriotism

REGINA (CP) — A lack of patriotism on the part of some native Canadians makes it difficult to promote patriotism in newcomers, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was told today.

Mrs. R.J. Jennings of Toronto, national immigration and citizenship convener, told the order's annual meeting many immigrants are "struck by this apparent absence of Canadian patriotism."

As an example of "essentially non-patriotic surroundings," she cited "a forest flag flown over a service station or a roadside restaurant to attract foreign tourists."

Mrs. Jennings said the order helps New Canadians with the aim of promoting patriotism. Integration was the clue to the immigrant's successful absorption into Canada and the order's work was directed toward this end and facilitating integration.

Last year 124,851 immigrants—one per cent of the number in 1957 —came to Canada, with British and French arrivals making up only 20 per cent of that total, the convener said.

The order spent $11,875 on its immigration-citizenship work in 1958-59, of which $2,284 went to Canadian Scene, a charitable organization providing Canadian news to the non-Communist ethnic press in Canada.

IODE Education-Aid Total Is $296,457 for 1958-59

REGINA (CP) — With an increasing emphasis on education and a call for still more support, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire pushed its education-aid total to $296,457 for 1958-59.

Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto, national education secretary, today told the order's annual meeting that the sum represents a $14,734 increase over the previous year.

But there still were isolated rural schools which needed to be "adopted" by chapters. And with increased university tuition fees, the actual value of awards had decreased.

"Chapters should review their scholarships and bursaries with a view to increasing the amounts," Mrs. McGibbon said. She also urged that the number of bursaries and scholarships be increased.

ATTITUDE A FACTOR

In her appeal for chapters to continue and increase support of education in all its phases, Mrs. McGibbon said "the problem . . . is one of attitude—of convincing more people of the value of education."

Her report showed that chapters spent $58,351 on providing schools with libraries, prizes, pictures, sports equipment and magazine subscriptions.

Chapter contributions to municipal provincial and national funds, bursaries, loans and scholarships totalled $100,114 of this $100,114 went to 1,168 students, 361 of them children of ex-servicemen.

Added to this were funds totalling $52,900 for student residences, such as music festivals, local libraries and other community projects.

OTHER CONTRIBUTIONS

On a national level, the order contributed $43,839 for 262 new scholarships and made a $500 contribution to the campaign for the World University Service seminar in Yugoslavia last summer.

Along with 2,177 adopted and assisted Canadian schools, the order has adopted seven second-story schools in the Leeward Islands and four in Jamaica.

Mrs. McGibbon said if the pilot project is successful, the scheme may be extended to other areas in The West Indies, British Guiana and British Honduras.

Aid to education also was listed in the national commonwealth relations report by convener Mrs. M. Scott of Peterborough, Ont.

AID FOR INDIA

This committee collected $11,-595 from chapters and spent $1,-262 for scholarships at medical colleges in Vellore and Ludhiana, India, translated and printed nursing text books for a nursing school at Indore, India, and financially supported an Indian Medical student doing post-graduate work in Canada.

A "tremendous upsurge" in the order's interest was reported by Mrs. E. S. Gallagher of Toronto, national film convener.

Films were used for chapter-education projects and were borrowed by other groups. One Quebec chapter donated a film library to a school.

In connection with television films, Mrs. Gallagher urged members to protest to local stations about films they do not approve of and to praise those they like.

SPECIAL TOUCH

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP . . . FOR JUNE WEDDINGS

When you are going down the receiving-line at the wedding reception, remember that never, never, never should you congratulate the bride or offer her your "congratulations." "Congratulate" or "Congratulations" are words to be used only to the bridegroom. To the bride you offer your "best wishes."

DON'T HESITATE TO GIVE YOUR NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion in our family, will you please answer this question: When you are going down the receiving-line at a wedding reception and you have been introduced by the bride's mother (or by the bride's father) to the groom's mother or someone else next in line, and then perhaps the introduction came also too fast to have your name recalled (I hope you will be able to understand what I'm trying to say), shouldn't you give your name again? I think you should, that this makes sense, makes things easier for those receiving. But some members of our family disagree, insist this isn't at all necessary. What do you think? The X - - - Family.

I agree with you. I very much admire the socially-accustomed person who quickly "comes to the fore" (a person who obviously needs or at least would welcome the repetition of his or her name. That obviates any awkward wait, any groping for a name. But equally, in the situation you mention: quickly you repeat your name, and the introduction and/or greeting proceeds quickly and smoothly. (Or, even more usual, in an introduction, when the person making the introduction has forgotten the name of the person being introduced.)

I never can understand how or why anyone hesitates to repeat his or her name when it is obviously would be helpful. It's proper . . . it's helpful . . . it makes good sense.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is being married the last of July, and the weather here will undoubtedly be very warm. One of our problems is mitts. The bride's gown has lace sleeves ending in a point on the hand, and this seems to exclude mitts. Should the matron of honor and the bridesmaids wear mitts? Also the flower girl? — Bride's Mother.

I'm wondering why you are letting mitts be such a "problem" to you. Mitts, long or short or of any design, have, thanks be, gone completely out of style. And "good riddance" say I! For these fussy numbers are not at all in harmony with today's bridal fashions. For your daughter's mid-summer wedding, it is optional whether the bridal attendants wear gloves. If they do, they might appropriately wear white, very-short "shorties," now so fashionable and so popular. Elegant pert white gloves are very smart for the flower girl, too.

Euchre Club Enjoys Outing At Hay Bay

On the way they stopped in Napanee for an hour's shopping tour, arriving at the cottage at noon.

After partaking of a delicious salad plate luncheon, they played euchre. The highest score went to Mrs. W. Astles and Mrs. Jack McInelly. The low score went to Mrs. A. Thomson and Mrs. H. W. Rose.

Before leaving for home, they were served strawberries, ice cream and cake. Everyone gave Mrs. Astles a hearty "thankyou" for a lovely day.

Serve Delicious, Economical Canadian Pork

by Mary Moore

My trusted .cohorts and I have been roasting various cuts of pork like crazy so I could be sure to my course of yesterday.

ROAST STUFFED BOSTON BUTT:

A Boston butt cooking $1.67 (55c per pound) weighed 3 1-4 pounds. It had a thin layer of surface fat. It contained a small portion of the blade bone which I easily boned out. I deepened the pocket I had made from boning and filled it with stuffing. Three slices crustless bread chopped into dice, 1 tablespoon each butter, finely chopped chives, parsley and celery, 1-8 teaspoon rosemary leaves. All but bread were sauteed gently together 3 or 4 minutes. Bread was added and mixed and this stuffing pressed into pocket in meat. It was tied firmly. I sprinkled the top with a mixture of 1-4 teaspoon each dry mustard and cinnamon and 1-4 cup sugar patting it on evenly. I then roasted it at 300 deg. Fahr. 3 hours. I removed all of the stringy and served this with red cinnamon apples, succotash, spinach, and shredded beets with orange. The aroma of roasting fresh pork wafted out the windows to me where I was planting tuberous begonias — and I was thankful to be alive.

Dinner Menus

TUESDAY

ELEANOR'S GLAZED ROAST HAM:

Bruce bought ham at a bargain special of 55c per pound — a much more economical buy than my Boston but, because it was pre-cooked, and all of the shrink had been shrunken out of it before he paid his 55c per pound. Eleanor roasted it 3 1-2 hours at 325 deg. Fahr., taking it out of the oven to put on the glaze at the halfway mark: 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 2 tablespoons dry mustard, juice of 2 oranges. Eleanor scored the fat, pushed the glaze, stuck in whole cloves and maraschino cherries impaled on toothpicks and returned it to the oven for another hour to baste it every 20 minutes. Eleanor thinks it weighed about 7 pounds.

LILLIAN'S SPARERIBS:

(Note: These are even better on the second day, so you may want to make double this quantity). Marinade: 5-8 cup each vinegar, catsup, 2 teaspoons soy sauce, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1-4 green pepper finely chopped, Mix these ingredients and marinate (soak) 2 3-3 pounds spareribs (1 big rib cut into 1 1-2" pieces by butcher) in it overnight covered in refrigerator. Drain well but reserve liquid. Sear ribs in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. 15 minutes. Drain off all fat. To the Marinade (reserved liquid) add 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1 cup canned crushed or tidbit pineapple and juice. Stir in double boiler until thick. Add drained spareribs pieces and cook covered in double boiler 3-4 hour, turning once. Lillian and Wilkie said these spareribs are good as Chinese sweet and sour spareribs any day.

Club Activities

Patrick S. — She can't be trusted.

Margaret S. — I am 19 and my brother Pat is 21. We are the oldest of five children. Our father died five years ago and since that time my brother has acted as head of the family.

I admire and respect my brother a great deal because he has worked hard to keep us all going, but I do feel that he should remember that, after all, he is still only 21 and my brother and not an ancient wise man.

What I'm getting at is this. My brother objects to a young man I've been going with who is not serious enough for marriage yet, but this thing seems to get more important to me as time goes on. This boy, Ralph, happens to be a friend of Pat's, but Ralph says he's no good for me. If he thinks he can run my love life, I'm leaving home.

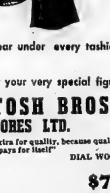
Patrick S. — One minute Margaret says she's not at all serious about Ralph and the next she talks of my interfering with her "love life." Well, which is it? It's just that I want to know.

I've known this Ralph for three years and I know a few things that in my mind make him the wrong kind of guy for my sister. Ralph is only 21, but I think he's been around a little too much. I don't like his attitude toward women. He may be all right in other ways. I like him as a friend — but he's not for Maggie.

I have spoken to my mother about all this and she agrees that Maggie shouldn't see Ralph. So what does that kid sister of mine do? She starts seeing Ralph secretly. What kid stuff! But as I told Mother, Maggie can't be trusted.

The Council: Margaret has a legitimate point when she objects to her brother's taking on all the rights and privileges of a father or "ancient wise man."

Mature though he may be, Pat lacks experience and the well-rounded judgment that goes with it.



In the matter of Ralph, for example, Pat makes a mistake when he judges the young man entirely from his knowledge of him as a buddy. If Pat were a little older and more mellow in his views, he would probably make allowances for the fact that not everything a young man tells his pals is to be taken as the lily pure truth. A youth may be one person to his buddies and a very different one to the girl he happens to like and respect.

It is probably natural for the widowed mother in this case to be taken in by Pat's cry of alarm, but we think she should at least give a hearing to Margaret's views and should try to learn more about the young man from first-hand contact.

We do believe, however, that Margaret has created most of her own difficulties by what her brother rightfully calls her "kid stuff." A girl of 19 should be able to discriminate between desirable and undesirable elements in her friendships. If Margaret is sure that her friendship with Ralph is on the right track, she should speak up for herself and not go sneaking off or threatening to leave home. If things are not as they should be, she ought to get off that track.

Margaret gives up her right to respect as an adult when she acts like a guilty little girl.

RARE BREEDS — These two dall lambs, a rare, pure white species of mountain sheep, were flown to Edmonton recently after being captured in rugged mountain country, 150 miles north of Whitehorse in the Yukon Territory. It took a 12-man wildlife expedition, led by zoologist Al Oeming, (right) of Edmonton, ten days to catch the animals. They were taken to Mr. Oeming's game farm, 19 miles east of Edmonton. CPS stewardess Heidi Schmidt admires the young lambs on arrival in Edmonton. (CP Photo).

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Victor Halsey and Tracy were Sunday visitors at Cedardale.

A large number from this district attended Airforce Day at Trenton Air Station on Saturday and all reported an enjoyable afternoon.

The Rev. Roy Rickard, B.A., and Mrs. Rickard, were Sunday visitors in Hamilton where Mr. Rickard assisted in the ordination service in Melrose United Church for a former church member.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones were callers of Mrs. Parks in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Roy Richard, B.A., will resume his services at White's Church on Sunday, June 7th, after a leave of absence. The Sacrament of infant baptism will be administered at White's Church on Sunday morning.

Mrs. William Hunter, Robert and Barry were visitors one day the past week of her mother, Mrs. Walter Jones.

Sunday service at White's Church was conducted by Mr. Fred Edmondson, student minister of Centenary, assisted by Mr. Elwin Hart, also of Centenary. Mr. Edmondson had a story for the children on Peter and Polly, who found their new church so different from their old store church. They finally decided that it was the friendly people within who made the church. He also spoke on "The Friendly Stranger" and gave many apt comparisons. Suitable hymns were sung with Mrs. W. Jeffery as pianist.

In the Sunday school service, which followed, the temperance superintendent, Mrs. George Bilham, was in charge of a short service with a suitable story. She also told of a true incident where boys who had been drinking were drowned.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham opened their home on Tuesday evening for the meeting of the Y.P.U. Mr. David Schleger, president, presided, and also was in charge of the devotional service. Lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

Hungarian-Born Fencer Waits for Time to Compete in Olympic Games for Canada

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Bakonyi is working for the present but his eye is on the future. To be more exact, it is on the 1962 British Empire Games.

The 26-year-old Hungarian immigrant is a fencer. He was among the top 10 epee men in his homeland before he left it during the 1956 uprising and already he has become the best in his adopted country.

In his future, Jan. 5, 1962 looms large. That is the day when his five-year residence qualification for Canadian citizenship will be complete.

Citizenship is the first qualification he must have in order to represent Canada in major international games.

EYES EMPIRE GAMES

With that and a continuance of his present desire and ability to fence, the 1962 Empire Games will afford him his first opportunity to realize his ambition to compete for Canada.

"After that will be the 1964 Olympic Games," he said in an interview here, "and after that maybe two or three more chances to represent Canada in Olympic fencing."

By the 1972 Olympics, Bakonyi will be approaching 40 years of age, but he said that in his field this is the age when many reach their prime. "Many of the best international fencers are past that age," he said.

Bakonyi became Canadian epee champion earlier this year, winning the title in Toronto where in 1958 he was runner-up.

"SLITELESS" ENTRANT

Last year in Philadelphia, where the world fencing association allowed him to compete as a "stateless" person, he reached the epee quarter-finals.

In Hungary he was a member of his country's pentathlon team, contesting horseback riding, swimming, shooting, cross-country and fencing. Five years ago he began concentrating on fencing, continuing swimming and cross-country running to keep himself in condition.

"In Hungary," he said, "you have maybe 35 first-class fencers, 35 second-class fencers and 35 or more third-class fencers. Here in B.C. we have no first-class fencers and about three or four good second-class fencers.

"I have to keep up running and swimming to keep in shape for a tournament."

LIMITED PROSPECTS

His immediate competitive prospects are limited because he does not qualify to represent Canada in this year's Pan-American Games nor in next year's Olympics, but he is hoping he may be able to compete in the Olympics as a representative of the Free Hungarian sports committee in Europe.

His "stateless" competition in headlines there because the official Hungarian team refused to participate in events Bakonyi has entered.

"They thought I should go back home so I could once again become a member of the Hungarian team," he said. But he has no thought of returning to Hungary now.

He has learned the English language well and has become established as a successful real-estate salesman here.

"I have my own house, too."

TRAINING FOR GAMES

Peter Bakonyi, 26-year-old Hungarian Immigrant living in Vancouver, hopes to represent Canada in the 1962 British Empire Games as a fencer. One of the top epee men in Hungary, he left his homeland during the 1956 uprising. He hopes to become a Canadian citizen — first step in his hopes to gain a spot on the Empire Games — in early 1962. Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The other day the American Medical Association said that pep pills can significantly improve athletic performances if taken in sufficient dosages. Maybe this is just what the doctor ordered for Canadian track and field athletes in international competition.

"Nothing doing," declared Ken Farmer of Montreal, Canadian Olympic Association president. "Amen," echoed Jim Worrall of Toronto, who has been connected with track and field as an athlete and official for nearly 30 years.

Worrall, a successful Toronto lawyer and a better-than-average hurdler in his heyday in the 1930s, laughingly remarked in an interview that "I probably needed something in the nature of pep pills" in the 1936 Olympic Games. He failed to qualify for the finals in the 110- and 400-metre hurdles at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany.

MADE GOOD SHOWING

Worrall was one of many Canadian track athletes of that era who made highly creditable showings against the world's best. He placed second in the 120-yard hurdles at the 1934 British Empire Games at London.

Since the Second World War, Canadians have shown practically nothing against the world in track. And, from observation at the 1948-52-56 Games, some of the Maple Leaf standard - bearers could have used the pep pills.

Worrall was emphatic in stating his case against the use of pep pills.

"I'm not in position to say whether the American Medical Association was right in its findings—this isn't my line of business—but I am certainly against the use of such things. It goes completely against the ideals of amateur sportsmanship, therefore against the Olympic and British Empire Games ideals."

"If somebody devises new techniques in hurdling or starting, that's fine with me, but nothing else, with those pep pills or drugs."

NOT TRUE TEST

"If Olympic and B.E. Games athletes are in top physical condition—which they should be—there's no need for pep pills. I don't think it is true test of abilities to put one hopped-up man against another fellow who is just as good but hasn't seen fit to use drugs.

"Of course, we hear rumors that these things are used, by other countries of course, but I haven't come in contact with such cases in my athletic career." After his competitive days were over, Worrall continued his interest in sports, particularly track, and was an official on Canada's Olympic teams in 1948, 1952 and 1956.

Worrall's parting shot was: "Let's leave the amateur athletes alone. Let them compete against each other in their own merits and abilities.

"I guess you could say the pep pills are in the same class as, say, as a hopped-up shoe for a high jumper or a pole vaulter using a pole with a spring in it."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"I," said the excited wrestling fan to this department last Friday night after Gene Kiniski had given Whipper Billy Watson his come-uppance in the first fall of their three-round scrapbin, "have a secret. For the petty remuneration of three bears, I will let you in on it."

He needed three of beerdom's frothiest like an octopus needs an extra tentacle, but it was worth investigating. He was too excited.

He settled for three for a quarter, then hurriedly whispered the information that the Great Bolo was none other than the Fury of the Foothills, Gene Kiniski.

"Just watch Kiniski," he murmured smokily. "Just watch the way he struts to the attack. Watch him when he gets his man down, and if he's not Bolo then I'm a grandson of Sitting Bull."

Personally we believe the winner of the Little Big Horn main bout has a white grandson who is not listed on the wigwam family tree.

For one thing while Kiniski was cudgelling his brains to think up sufficient skullduggery to keep his Indian crown intact, the Great Bolo was bowling over some opposition in a Buffalo wrestling ring.

And just in case the hooded whodunit is Yukon Eric, "who he isn't," we'll ask the big Alaskan when he makes his appearance against the Great Bolo here Friday night. Maybe they're twins in furs.

The first time this pair tangled in Memorial Arena, the Yuke almost had the hood unmasked when that worthy hopped out of the ring, picked up a rock as big as a medium size turnip, secreted it in his hand and dealt the Yuke a knockout blow when his back was turned.

There is a possibility Yuke might enter the ring Friday night garbed like Sir Lancelot or Ivanhoe, with steel helmet, plume and all the when-knighthood-was-in-flower accessories.

Popular Wally Sieber is back again, tangling this time with a newcomer, Howard Martin; Pat Flanagan makes his seasonal debut here against balding Karl Kulaski.

FOR WORLD TITLE

Joe Brown, who celebrated his 32rd birthday a month ago but remains the truest fighting champion in the sport, risks the world's lightweight crown for the seventh time in two years, four months, against challenging Paolo Rosi tomorrow night at Washington, D.C. Their scheduled 15-round meeting for the 135-pound title will be waged at Uline Arena.

Brown, old-school ring mechanic with know-how and punch, reaches an important milestone with this one. It is his 100th professional fight. The native of Baton Rouge, La., now boxing out of Houston, Texas, is in his 79th year of ring warring.

Rosi, himself, 31 years old and looking it, with a virtually non-existent halftime, really is a relative youngster in ring service. This is his 57th start and he didn't start fighting in the competitive sense of the word when he emigrated from Rieti, a small town near Rome, Italy. Less than a year ago he became an American citizen and makes his home in New York.

Old Bones Joe won the crown on August 24, 1956, via 15-rounder decision over Willie (Bud) Smith, the then defender. He stopped Smith in a return early the next year and made two more successful title starts that year. In 1958 he had his crown on the line twice, a KO of Ralph Dupas and a win in 15 over Kenny Lane.

Some observers are of the opinion that the fantastic veteran, beaten only once in his last 22 appearances over a nine-year stretch, has waltzed into his most formidable challenger in Rosi. No. 3 contender.

It isn't record so much as style. Paolo, a turned-around southpaw and a correspondingly strong left hooker, has some of the awkwardness of southpaw Kenny Lane, who troubled Brown more than any other. He also has definitely sharper punches than Lane.

Rosi prefers to level away from shoulder-to-shoulder range, which would put him in position to back up Brown constantly. Obviously an old master of the ring doesn't relish confinement against the ropes or corner.

Brown's trump, if he can keep Rosi off, is his expert left. Paolo is a chronic scar tissue case, a target for that sort of jabber. But the Italian insists his cuts have come from battering, rather than punching, and Joe's open style will help him.

Only the bell for this world championship will tell the story. Make no mistake, the bout in which Joe Brown again gambles all lacks nothing as prospective entertainment.

Hand Milwaukee 11-2 Defeat While Kansas City, Detroit Clobber Cleveland, Chicago

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lighting has just struck twice in the American League pennant chase with Kansas City and Detroit, both up from the depths, clobbering front-tumbling Cleveland and Chicago.

The As and Tigers combined to take eight of 10 games from the first place Indians and runner-up White Sox over the long Memorial holiday weekend.

Kansas City, after winning two of three at Cleveland, completed a two-game sweep at Chicago by beating the White Sox 3-1 Monday night. And the Tigers, who had snatched two of three from Chicago, bagged a two - game sweep over the Indians with a 3-1 victory in the only other game scheduled Monday.

ONE-GAME LEAD

The Indians now have lost three in a row and five of their last six, but still hold a one-game edge over the White Sox—who have lost two in a row and seven of their last nine for nothing more than a one-game lead over third-place Baltimore.

Kansas City, in seventh place not long ago and seven games behind just a week ago, now is fourth, with 20% games off the top. The Tigers, last and 9½ games behind only nine days ago, have lost two in a row.

Southpaw Bud Daley beat the White Sox with a seven-hitter for a 4-3 record. Joe Demaestri tripled home the tying run for the As and scored the winner on a wild pitch in a two-run fifth. Then he hit his first homer in the seventh inning for the final run.

FOYTACK STARS

Paul Foytack and Eddie Yost did the job for the Tigers. Foytack (4-2) limited the Tribe to a run with a five-hitter. He gave up a run in the second inning, then blanked the Tribe the rest of the way on three singles. He didn't walk a man.

Yost broke a 1-1 tie with his 10th homer in the fifth inning. The veteran third baseman also singled for two of the five Detroit hits off loser Bell (4-4).

The Tigers now have won 19 of 27 since Jimmy Dykes replaced Bill Norman as manager.

Four-game pitchers — Washington at Cleveland (N)—Pascual (5-5) or Grant (3-5).

Leafs, Royals Drop Tilts; Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was almost too good to be true for the Havana-Miami Kings Monday night. Buffalo's Joe Caffie supplied the dampener.

A Havana crowd of 12,491 turned out to watch the rejuvenated Sugar Kings in their first home game after a torrid road campaign that lifted them from last place to fourth, only a/ha game out of first in the International League.

But Caffie hit a solo home run in the top of the 10th inning to give Buffalo Bisons a 5-4 victory and undisputed possession of first place.

RED WINGS DROP BACK

Rochester Red Wings lost to Miami Marlins 7-6, on a drop to game behind Buffalo and into fifth place behind Columbus Jets.

The Jets defeated Montreal Royals, 7-3 while Richmond edged Toronto, 4-2.

Havana built up a 4-0 lead after seven innings only to have the Bisons tie it with four in the eighth.

A single by Bobby Morgan, consecutive triples by Lou Vassie and pinch-hitter Columbus Jets, routed Miguel Cuellar and Ramon Sanchez. Vassie was touched for three consecutive singles before Pete Carrillo put out the fire.

Borrego Alvarez' three - run homer off Bob Cowper in the seventh was Havana's big blow. Reliever Dick Farrell (2-1) was the winning pitcher. Cowper (3-3) lost.

Miami won a battle of home runs. Rochester took a 4-0 lead in the top of the second inning on a three-run eruption by Wally Shannon and a solo job by Billy Harrell.

After Bert Hamric's single scored one run in the bottom of the same inning, Miami's Steve Korcheck socked a three - run homer in the fifth. Rochester's solo swat off loser Joe McClain in the sixth and a two - run goodie by Harrell added another homer. Then John Anderson (5-3), third Miami pitcher, was the winner.

Bobby Deakin's eighth - inning single scored Jim Pisoni from second and Eli Grba protected it with nail-biting relief pitching. Deakin's single scored Jack Reed who had doubled but winner Bob Wiesler got into trouble in the ninth. He left with two runners on as Grba fanned shortstop Felix Gollat and Angel Scull. Don Johnson (3-5) lost, giving only seven hits. Jim Pisoni's two-run homer in the fourth.

Aaron, Kuenn Lose Ground In Batting Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Robinson of Cincinnati and Bill Skowron of New York Yankees did some powerful hitting while batting leaders Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Harvey Kuenn of Detroit went into a tailspin during the first week of May.

Robinson drove in 10 runs to take over the National League runs batted in with 47. Skowron has batted in 14 runs in his last six games to move within two of pace-setting Harmon Killebrew of Washington. Killebrew, who also leads the American League in homers, has 39 RBIs.

Robinson also cracked five homers and moved into a second-place tie with Aaron in the National League's home run competition. Each has 14. Eddie Mathews of the Braves leads with 16.

LOSES GROUND

Meanwhile, Aaron lost 42 points to .419 with only seven hits in 32 times at bat, Smoky Burgess of Pittsburgh remained second with a two-point gain to .370. While Mays of San Francisco moved into two places to third on an eight-point pickup to .339.

Kuenn, in fifth in the National League leader, dropped 46 points, and followed a .385 mark through Sunday's games, Nelson Fox of Chicago White Sox, the runner-up, fattened up 12 points to .364.

Killebrew slammed three more homers to raise his season's total of 18. He leads Rocky Colavito of Cleveland by five.

Steno Outpoints Grandma In Women's Boxing "Battle"

MEADAM, N.B. (CP) — A women's boxing bout, believed the first in Canada, ended without harm or hair-pulling Monday night. It seemed designed for laughs — which the capacity theatre crowd of 672 provided — rather than any serious attempt at fisticuffs.

But the five-rounder went the scheduled course and 20-year-old stenographer Myrna McConvey, from St. Stephen, N.B., took a decision. At 130 pounds, she was 20 lighter than Mrs. June Lounder, 57, a grandmother and railway station employee at nearby Vanceboro, Me.

Most of what could be called scarring was done by the winner, who has learned a few points from a boxing brother. Mrs. Lounder used her weight to some advantage. At one point both took after the referee.

Flailing, waltzing and glaring were the main order of the night.

The women wore shorts and blouses.

Before the fight, neither would predict the outcome but both professed themselves capable of going through with the scrap.

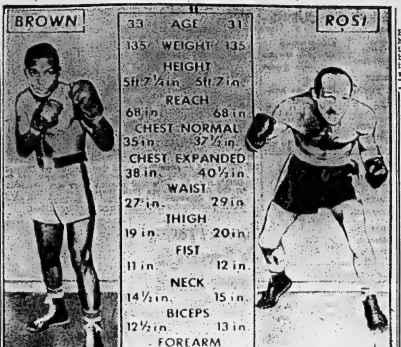
"I'm as hard as rock and as strong as a moose," said Mrs. Lounder.

"I've done lots of road work and a little sparring and I'm willing," said Miss McConvey.

Mrs. Lounder said the fight "was probably my idea." She said she suggested promoter Jake MacDonald would "get a better crowd if he had some women in the ring."

The opponents had never met before. Neither had fought in the ring before. But they got in some practising.

"I've done a little sparring with some of the young fellows," said Miss McConvey.



"I sparred a little with Jake MacDonald," said Mrs. Lounder.

Some statistics:

McConvey: 122 pounds; five feet, six inches.

Lounder: 142 pounds; five feet, 2½ inches.

Mrs. Lounder has an eight-month-old granddaughter.

Quinte Golfers Hold Successful Mixed Two-Ball Foursome Tourney

Perfect weather and course conditions greeted some 72 Bay of Quinte Country Club golfers Sunday in the second two-ball mixed foursome of the season.

Pro George Balazs teed off the first foursome sharp at two o'clock and got the rest of the field away on time. Many comments were heard on the excellence of the course.

T. A. Carruthers and Barbara Graham took top honors of the day with a low gross score of 45.

Ralph Graham and Dorothy Wilson led the field with a low net of 33. Tied for second low net were Morley Ward and Fay Ketcheson and Steve Bowerman and Helen McCorquodale with cards of 36. Third low net went to Alex Ingram and Doris Allen with a 38.

Murray Hunter, the "King of the Sarsgaboro" held temporary court at the post-tournament dinner, serving lobster, shrimp, turkey and other delectable viands.

The next mixed two-ball foursome on the club agenda is the annual "Sir. and Mrs." tournament scheduled for Sunday, June 28.

This is an invitational affair. Trenton, Picton and Napanee Golf and Country Clubs will be represented.

Ladies golf division president Joy Bowerman said arrangements are being made to make the event even better than the 1958 tournament, said to be one of the best in the history of the club.

Members are requested to turn their entries in by June 10 to facilitate the arranging of the draw.

Players Didn't Pull Punches Says Storey

MONTREAL (CP) — Red Storey, who refereed the New York Rangers - Boston Bruins games on their European exhibition tour, says the players didn't pull any punches.

Storey, who handled the 23 games played in 27 days, talked about the tour to Red Fisher of the Montreal Star.

"Five minutes before the end of the last game we had a whale of a fight between Jimmy Bartell and Bronco Horvath," Storey said.

"There were others. Fern Flaman and Eddie Shack had a tremendous scrap and so did Eric Nesterenko and Flaman. There were others, too, and the crowd loved them.

"Over there, I guess they figure our hockey is murder on ice. If we played a good, clean game the people would be dying in the stands. So once in a while the boys didn't pull any punches and we let them go."

Storey felt that high admission prices were largely to blame for small crowds but he also had the impression there was friction between tweed, rival hockey bodies in Europe.

Fisher wrote that "there are growing reports" that Storey again will be offered a contract for next season with the National Hockey League. Storey resigned in the spring during the playoffs, saying he had been publicly criticized by NHL president Clarence Campbell.

GOOD DOUBLE

TORONTO (CP) — A daily double of $1,186.80 marked the opening of the 36-day summer meeting at New Woodbine Monday. There were 26 losing tickets on the combination of Eastwood Rebel and Dr. Jack in the first two races. Eastwood Rebel, owned by B. S. Chris, of Kitchener, paid $28.50. Dr. Jack paid $60.80 in winning the second race.

Slammin' Sam Just Made U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Two weeks ago Sam Snead shot a 59, one of the finest rounds of competitive golf. But he had to scramble Monday in Washington to qualify for the United States Open.

A birdie on the 36th and final hole saved him. It gave Sam a 72-70—142 when one stroke more would have put him on the sidelines.

Sponsors of the tournament will list 13 at the Maryland Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., which has been overpiayed. His presence will mean thousands of dollars in added revenue.

SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY

Although he never has won the open Sam will be the sentimental favorite in the 72-hole championship showdown.

There were no shocking casualties in the sectional qualifying rounds designed to reduce the tournament field to 150 competitors, including 19 players exempt from qualifying. All the top tournament pros and leading amateurs made the grade.

Jack Burke Jr., former Masters champion, had to survive a marathon playoff at Cincinnati. Al Balding of Markham, Ont., came through a playoff at Buffalo. Dow Finsterwald won a playoff in Springfield, N.J.

ELLIS DOES WELL

Wes Ellis Jr., 27, winner of the 1958 Canadian Open, clipped 11 shots off par with rounds of 68-67—135 to lead 30 qualifiers at Cincinnati. Mike Souchak had 68-69—137.

Balding got the last of the nine qualifying positions at Buffalo after a playoff with Lorry Barlow and amateur Robert Shave Jr. Balding shot 73-74—147 for the 36 holes.

Bill Mawhinney of Burlington, who shot 73-75—148, was tied for third with two others in the list of alternates at Orchard Park. Jerry Magee of Toronto shot 75-76—146 at Cincinnati and failed to qualify.

"Shag" Moves To Cut Playing Time

MONTREAL (CP) — In a move to cut playing time, president Frank Shaughnessy of the International League has announced that pitchers will be limited to five warm-up pitches and mound conferences limited to one minute.

Both rulings are effective immediately.

"With the weather as mild as it has been this spring, there is no reason for pitchers to require more than five preliminary pitches," Shaughnessy said Monday.

"Lengthy mound conferences have always been a source of annoyance.

"When it comes to sending in a relief pitcher, the manager has pretty well made up his mind before he leaves the dugout. The only reasons to delay the announcement is to give his substitute more time to warm up . . .

"I am especially concerned about Sunday games in Toronto where all games start at 2 p.m. We have already had two suspended games there and I know Toronto fans want games completed as much as I do."

Minors Band To Battle Major Leagues

SEATTLE (AP)—A group of minor league baseball club executives have banded together in what they said was a fight for survival against major league inroads "which are destroying the sport."

Clyde Perkins of Portland, Ore., president of the newly organized Independent Baseball Clubs Association, said Monday: "We will go to the highest courts in the land to sustain our position if we can't deal with the majors man-to-man."

Perkins said 18 clubs from more than half-a - dozen minor leagues were represented at the organizational meeting "and we will have at least 50 member clubs before we are through."

"We are going to try and get the bonus rule thrown out entirely," he said. "With it in effect the major control all of the talented young players and the minors are forced out by the fantastic prices paid for untried rookies.

"And there must be some change in the present indiscriminate and unthinking practice of shooting major league telecasts into unrestricted into minor league territory."

Among the minor league circuits represented at the meeting were the Triple-A Pacific Coast League, American Association and International League, the Double-A Southern Association, Class-B Northwest League and Class-C Pioneer League.

Bowling Notes

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club got away to a flying start as far as tourney prizes are concerned, in perfect weather two rinks, Ken Ashley, Bruce Miller and Gordon Edkins as skip, Bill VanTassel, Bill Wright and Gordon Watkin as skip journeyed to Trenton for the trebles on Saturday and the Edwards' rink came home with the first prize. Bill Conn of Brighton won the two-game high score, with Webb Kingston and his Campbellford bowlers won the one-game high. The afternoon was not good as only twelve rinks were in play, two from the city, two from Campbellford, one from Brighton and the remainder from the host club. The greens were in fine condition and the bowling keen despite the fact the bowlers have had not too much practice.

Gordon Edwards in winning the tournament had probably one of the largest scores ever registered in a tourney. He won his first game 22-11, the second 19-9 and the third 28-7, which gave him a count of 84 plus 15. This is the first time that those shots for later on in the season, when points are hard to get, as usual the hospitality of the Trenton Club members was at a high calibre.

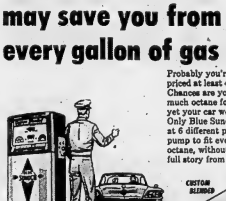
The women's section of the club held their Thursday afternoon bowling tourney with Mrs. M. Edgar, Mrs. G. Thompson with Mrs. Charles Mott as skip winning the afternoon's play. The rink of Mrs. A. Avery, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. L. Hermon with Mrs. D. Argue as skip was second and Mrs. H. Putnam, Mrs. M. Smith and Mrs. G. Gerow as skip was third. The bridge winners were a social hour over the tea cups

Hoyt Wilhelm Headed for Leagues Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Hoyt Wilhelm, veteran knuckleballer who got off the relief rolls to enrich Baltimore's starting pitching staff, can become the first pitcher in history to win earned run championships in both major leagues.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press disclosed Monday that Wilhelm leads the American League with a 1.13 E.R.A. He captured the National League title in 1952 with a 2.43 average while relieving for New York Giants. The 35-year - old righthander has hurled scoreless ball in his last 22 innings. His record is 7-0.

Gene Conley of Philadelphia heads the National League with a 1.943 average. He has given up 11 earned runs in 51 innings. Conley has one shutout and a 2-2 record.



Harvey Haddix of Pittsburgh reduced his E.R.A. to 2.15 and moved into second place as a result of his perfect-game for 12 innings Tuesday night. Milwaukee's Lew Burdette, Stu Miller of San Francisco is third with 2.35.

Bud Daley of Kansas City is runner - up to Wilhelm in the American League with 2.32. Bob Shaw of the White Sox, who has pitched a shutout against Boston, is third with 2.65.

REDS SIGN PITCHER

SHORT HILLS, N. J. (AP)—Herb Bucek, six-foot-seven right-handed pitcher who starred at the University of Virginia, has been signed by Cincinnati Reds, it was announced Monday. He will report in St. Louis June 12.

MIAMI SELLS INFIELDER

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Looking for a long-ball hitter, Sacramento Solons Monday purchased third baseman Eddie Kazak from Miami of the International League. Kazak, 28, formerly with San Diego, was sold to Miami by Seattle a week ago because he refused to play regularly, claiming injuries.

Special Clothing Saved Drivers In Crashes

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Three accident victims from Saturday's 500-mile auto race may be under a lighted treatment two to six weeks. It might have been worse without flameproofed clothes.

Dr. C. R. Bohner, medical director at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, credited the flameproofing treatment for saving drivers Ray Crawford and Mike Magill from critical injuries in their fiery crashes.

Crawford was reported in fair condition in Methodist Hospital Monday. Magill was reported in good condition.

Also reported in good condition was mechanic Joe Alexander, burned on the hands in a pit fire in the car of Dick Rathmann.

Meanwhile, Rodger Ward said Monday he won the race with only 20 per cent of normal use of his right shoulder. He said he lost 80 per cent of the use of the shoulder in a midget car race accident in California in 1948. He said he can't raise that hand above his head.

"It doesn't bother me," he added. "I've learned to live with it and I play golf and work out with weights to keep the muscles strong."

The dapper, 38-year-old champion who neither smokes nor drinks said he and his wife plan to build a new home in Indianapolis with some of the $42,740 he gets as his share of the winning car's $106,350, paid off Sunday night. He also received the automobile used as the pace car in the Memorial Day race.

Ward reported Robert C. Wilke, the car owner, has promised him a 50-per-cent share of the winnings on the national championship circuit this summer.

City Commercial Softball League

By PETER CARVER

The Sport Centre downed the Corbin Lock 6-1 behind the two-hit pitching of "Junior" Day in a tightly-contested Commercial Softball League tilt last night at the C.N.R.A. Park.

Both teams secured single runs in their half of the first inning, the Sport Centre scoring two in the fourth and one in the fifth to tuck away the victory.

It was a pitcher's duel all the way with Day blanking Corbin's after the first inning. He fanned eight and did not walk a man.

His opponent on the hill, Harry Powers issued four-hit ball, struck out none and passed two batters.

Frank Murray with a triple and Leo St. Denis with a double led the Sport Centre at the plate, while Bob Brooks and Bob Ireland lashed out singles.

Both Harold Redquest and Merau were best in the losing cause.

Mayors Ask Federal Help For Sport

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Mayor. and Municipalities has called on the federal government to set up a grid to finance Canadian participation in amateur world sporting events.

Two motions to this effect, one sponsored by Sudbury, the other by Toronto, were approved on a close vote at the federation's annual convention Monday.

Mayor Joseph Fabbro of Sudbury said "this is the past has been almost entirely responsibility of the municipalities while Canadian participation in these events provides wonderful advertising for all of Canada as well as for the municipalities."

Mayor Lloyd Hogarth of Brantford opposed the motion on the ground "we are not even sure this comes within federal jurisdiction."

Prize-Winning Novelist To Write Series on Pacific

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — James A. Michener has taken the western Pacific for his special province of fiction and fact.

Now the Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist is writing an adventure-drama television series called Adventures in Paradise which will reach the home audience via ABC-TV beginning next September.

The filmed hour-long series, for dramas, to be produced by Marlin Manolis and seen Mondays at 8:30 p.m., concern the adventures of a young American sailing his schooner in the South Seas and along the Asian coast.

"This is a true marriage of Manolis's television experience and my writing experience," Michener said the other day on a visit to New York.

"My concept is of a strong central character who creates the story theme against which is woven the diversity of life and cultures of the islands and Asia.

"Calm, thoughtful and modest, Michener says that the stories he writes for the series will be adapted by television craftsmen. "My result is to write stories," he said. "The chances of my outdoing an unnamed television craftsman are very remote. He had good luck with dramatic, but my work has been adapted by others."

Michener continues to travel widely in the Pacific. He just came back from Japan and will go into the South Seas gathering material for Adventures in Paradise and may return soon.

He continues to write primarily about the South Pacific and Asia. He says, however, that I have a great affection for the area. It has a natural way of life that appeals to me. It's no wonder that many people go there for a vacation and decide to stay."

Charges Swede Signed to Fight Machen

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Machen's manager has testified a contract was signed by Swedish promoter Edwin Ahlquist for a return bout between Machen and Ingemar Johansson the day before the two fought last Sept. 14.

The manager, Sid Flaherty of San Francisco, said Monday the contract was given by Ahlquist at Goteborg, Sweden, the site of the fight.

Johansson knocked out Machen of Redding, Calif., in the first round to become the leading challenger and later signed for a title bout with world champion Floyd Patterson June 25.

Machen and Flaherty are seeking to enjoin Johansson from fighting Patterson until he first gives Machen a return fight.

The case is being heard by federal Judge Irvin R. Kaufman.

Johansson contends that Ahlquist is his adviser, and not his manager, and had no authority to agree to a rematch. He contends further that Ahlquist signed the contract under duress.

Kid Howard Favored to Retain Title

HALIFAX (CP) — Richard (Kid) Howard of Halifax is a slight favorite to retain his championship when he meets Jackie Hoyden of Westville, N.S., tonight in a 12 - round Canadian lightweight title bout.

The champion holds 3-to-1 edge over his 26-year-old opponent in pre-contest betting.

The 20-year-old Howard has a 26-20-3 record, winning 16 by knockout. He has never been outpointed but, although he was stopped four times.

Hayden, boasts a 22-10-7 record, including nine knockouts. He was stopped only once, by Howard in their first title bout here in 1956.

Howard decisioned Hayden on Sept. 16, 1957 in his last defence of the title he won from Armand Savoie of Montreal here Sept. 28, 1954.

Screen Proving No Bargain for Homer Hitters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A year ago, the Coliseum's left field screen was the most controversial curiosity in the majors.

Today, it is sitting up about as much furor in baseball circles as the current newsletter of the Mozart Society.

Apparently the screen has achieved a measure of tolerant acceptance among the people who have to live with it.

At any rate, there has been a decline in the fear that National League hitters shopping for cheap home runs might find enough batsmen to make Baltimore Bob Ruth's record of 60 in one season.

There were 193 homers hit here in 1958, more than in any other park in the league. Most of them flew over the screen—some easily, some barely.

This year the broad wire barrier which runs along the outfield wall from the 25-foot left field foul line is doing slightly better.

In 1958, after 27 games, 17 home runs had been hit at the Coliseum, 23 by the Dodgers' opponents. This year, at the same point, the total is only 9 for Los Angeles and 25 by the opposition.

And the Coliseum is not the league's No. 1 home run park. Seventy-one have been hit at Cincinnati in only 23 games.

James Garner of Maverick Put Into Movie 'Cash McCall'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Garner has turned in his deck of cards to go dealing in great corporations.

With his work in the Maverick TV series finished for the season, Warner Brothers has put him into a movie, Cash McCall. It's Garner's, most suspicious film outing to date and will be his acid test of his draw at the box office.

That draw was tested somewhat with Up Periscope, submarine adventure. I asked Jim how it feared in the theatres.

"I'm the last one to be told," he remarked. "If the picture's a success, they don't like the actors to know for fear they'll get big ideas. But my spies tell me that it did excellent, business. That's pretty good considering it was up against some big ones."

Cash McCall is a big - time operator who takes over ailing corporations and sells them at a profit. Does he resemble Brett touching moments.

Maverick, Garner's counterpart on TV?

"No, McCall's great passion is money," he explained. "Maverick is out for fun."

Frank Sinatra clears up the legend that he never had a million-seller in his long and successful career as a record star: "I had three when I started out as a single performer. But that was in the days before they started the custom of giving gold records."

A role in the head is a happy wedding of the talents of Frank Sinatra and Frank Capra. After a long absence from the screen, Capra returns with his human touch—to give Sinatra more warmth than he has previous evidence on the screen. It's good to see Edward G. Robinson back, and Eddie Hodges of Music Man scores with his sincerity. The picture could have used a faster pace, but there are many

"But we've got to go with that party. I'll take anything you have that rolls."

Liberal Being Supported by Group of PCs

HAMILTON, (CP) — A group of Conservatives have endorsed they are actively supporting the Liberal candidate in Wentworth riding.

A spokesman announced Monday "citizens for Edwards" committee had been formed by Progressive Conservative workers and "non-party" citizens.

They say they are to fight for "good government and the best representation in Parliament, regardless of party."

Ray Edwards, a city alderman, is the Liberal candidate and Arthur Child, who has held the seat since 1951, the PC candidate for the provincial election June 11.

Grant W. Phinney, chairman of the committee, said 23,000 printed letters outlining the views of the citizens' committee were being sent out in the riding. He said the letter stresses that the committee is not comprised only of Liberals but also includes PCs.

"The Hamilton city council and the four township councils bordering Hamilton must all work together to solve problems, especially in the fields of education, land development, highways and health," the letter states. It continues:

"One man is best able to give leadership in the coordination and liaison of these problems with the provincial government. That man is the hon. Earl Rowe for Wentworth.

"Yet for more than eight years we have watched helplessly as issue after issue broke down because of this lack of leadership and cooperation."

Mr. Child said he wonders how many of the committee are card - holding Conservatives," and questioned why they had not run a candidate in the normal manner at the nomination meeting.

TIME OUT TO WRITE

TORONTO, (CP) — Professor Donald Creighton, prize-winning biographer of Sir John A. Macdonald, will resign as chairman of the University of Toronto history department July 1 to devote more time to writing. Professor Creighton will continue as a lecturer, university President Claude Bissell said.

Iron Mine Town Glad Death Toll Was Not Heavier

IRON RIVER, Mich. (AP) — Sorrow budgeted with more than relief in this northern Michigan mining community today in the wake of an underground disaster Monday that killed five men.

But thanks also were given that the tragedy was not worse.

Accounts of the peril deep within Inland Steel Company's Sherwood iron mine in nearby Mineral Hills indicated that but for warnings, including the telltale odor of gas, the death toll might have been far greater.

The mine was closed pending further investigation, although all gas was reported cleared.

The five who died were trapped by sulphurous gas and flames that shot out from the collapse of a timbled-up stope — excavation room.

Seven others were injured while in some crawling, in total darkness up a 225-foot incline 1,200 feet below the surface, escaped without injury.

Howard Groop, 30, whose father, Everett, escaped, died in hospital Monday night. Gas fumes had seared his lungs.

The other victims, all veterans of the iron ore mines, were Ingvar Verter, 46; August Nickal, 51, Elnar Johnson, 59, and Carl Anderson, 60.

All were residents of the cluster of mining towns in Michigan's upper peninsula where a accident of this magnitude had been known in years.

The mine management said the blast was caused by the collapse of a supporting pillar in the stope.

Walpole Island Woman and Son Stabbed by Man

SARNIA (CP) — Mrs. David Sonev, 40, and her son Owen, 17, were stabbed Monday near their Walpole Island home.

Police said the youth heard screams from outside his home and raced out to find his mother grappling with a heavy-set man.

He was stabbed in the arm as he fought with the man. Both he and his mother, who suffered wounds in the throat, were taken to hospital.

Mrs. Soney's condition was described as fair.

The stope had been mined several years and then walled off when inflamable a sulphurous slate was found.

GROWING ESKIMO PROBLEM — Economic forces are shifting the pattern of Eskimo residence in Northern Canada. Declining caribou herds have produced areas of acute depression in inland regions of the Arctic.

Some officials say a solution may be in relocation of the Eskimo population. The objective would be to cut their wanderings to provide better care, schooling and housing. Small permanent settlements across the North would allow the Eskimo to hunt, trap and in other ways take advantage of the country's resources.

This map shows distribution of Canada's 10,400 Eskimos—almost equivalent to the population of Smiths Falls, Ont., Noranda, Que., Flin Flon, Man., or Port Alberni, B.C.

With relocation, some may move farther north into the Arctic islands from which a cold wave drove them south several hundred years ago. Others have already begun to collect at camps and communities on the Hudson Bay coast and on Fribisher Island. (CP Newsmap.)

Eskimo Habitation May Have To Be Written off in Keewatin As Chronic Depression Area

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Most of the Interior of the District of Keewatin may have to be written off for Eskimo habitation as a chronic depression area.

The alternative for the remaining natives of the area north of Manitoba will be relocation elsewhere, a step that already has taken away more than 100 of the 600 caribou - dependent inland dwellers.

This is one aspect of the economic forces shifting the pattern of Eskimo residence in northern Canada, a pattern influenced by acute depression on one hand and the lure of "city life" on the other as offered by expanding permanent settlements.

Relocation—whether taken independently by the Eskimos or on a broader scale with agreement seems bound to play a greater role in the next few years.

MAY MOVE NORTH

Eskimos may move farther north into the Arctic islands—from which a cold wave drove them south several hundred years ago as indicated by scientific discoveries.

But wherever they move or are taken, the objective seems to be to cut their wanderings, thus providing better care, schooling and housing. This [illegible] has been taken in Greenland, where the native is far advanced on his Canadian cousin, and the same trend is evident in Alaska.

Canada now has about 10,400 Eskimos. There are roughly 3,300 in northern Quebec and Labrador, 2,300 in the Arctic islands, 1,600 in the District of Keewatin and 800 along the central coast of the Arctic mainland.

Some 1,400 others are in the Mackenzie River delta of the western Arctic. Churchill, Man., has about 100 Eskimo "imports."

Relocation programs are not new. In 1953, the most northerly Eskimo communities in the world were established at Grise Fiord, on the south coast of Ellesmere Island, and at Resolute Bay, about 300 miles southwest and 1,-700 miles north of Winnipeg.

MATTER OF NECESSITY

But such operations are only carried out as a harsh necessity. As Bishop Mare Lacroix, Roman Catholic vicar apostolic of Hudson Bay has written, "Eskimos are not pawns on a chessboard."

Granting that the Keewatin inland, barren now of its once-prolific caribou herds, should be written off in most part, he noted that Eskimos "belong to well-defined groups with strong family ties, dialects, particular customs."

The biggest relocation program to date was begun last year in the Keewatin.

The 600 islanders, dependent on the vanishing caribou for food and clothing, have been the subject of two voluntary migrations to a camp at Rankin Inlet on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

A number were taken in last summer after more than 25 starved or died directly due to be lack of caribou, and about 70 nore were flown to Rankin this ast winter.

More may follow if they wish o learn how to live on a sea economy, using sea fishing, seals and whales to augment their food resources. More survival camps along the Rankin pattern may be built.

BETTER THIS YEAR

Patrols this year have disclosed no starvation deaths so far, but the caribou decline continues with little sign of a revival beyond a more promising calf crop last year.

There now are about 60 Eskimos hunting and trapping at Grise Fiord and more than 70 at Resolute Bay. In 1953, five Eskimo families from Fort Chimo, Que., moved to Churchill as tinsmiths, carpenters and electricians.

In 1957, a number of Eskimos from Eskimo Point, on the west coast of Hudson Bay, were transferred about 125 miles north to Rankin Inlet to work in the nickel mine there. More than 100 now are employed there—a main portion of the 450 or so Eskimos in the north who subsist on wage employment.

There are about 85 to 100 employed at Frobisher Bay—one of the key transitional points in the eastern Arctic to which about 400 Eskimos have flocked, causing some concern.

There are about 18 wage-earners at Churchill, 75 in the Mackenzie delta and 165 scattered elsewhere as special RCMP constables, Hudson's Bay Company employees and so on.

MUST RELY ON WAGES

A report in January by L. H. Nicholson, then commissioner of the RCMP, estimated that 1,500 adult male Eskimos must support themselves by wage employment over the next few years and that only 450 now are so employed.

Fulfilment of the need for wage earnings would cause some displacement of existing population patterns, "it was suggested, and movements to better game areas should be supported and stepped up.

"The Eskimos who continue an old-fashioned nomadic existence must accept to a very great extent primitive health standards," the former commissioner said in his report.

He noted that the infant mortality rate among Eskimos is about 23 per cent for all children born alive and who live a year. This compared with the over-all Canadian figure of three per cent.

He added:

"I look to the day when small tidy permanent settlements may be dotted over the north, from which these people hunt, trap and practice in other ways the exploitation of the country's resources." At the same time, the commissioner foresaw more and more wage-earning openings for the Eskimo.

PC'S OF QUEBEC CHALLENGED ON TAX SHARING

Debate Is Resumed On Important Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Chevrier has challenged Progressive Conservatives from Quebec to stand up and be counted on the question of federal-provincial tax sharing.

The former transport minister, now MP for Montreal Laurier, issued the challenge Tuesday as the Commons resumed debate on the government's proposal to revise its tax - sharing arrangements with the provinces for another year.

The Quebec government has steadfastly refused to accept federal tax rental payments in lieu of personal income tax and imposes a personal income tax of its own. All other provinces have signed tax - sharing agreements with the federal government.

Mr. Chevrier, speaking in French, said Quebec Conservatives have criticized the tax-sharing scheme—devised by the former Liberal government—as an invasion of provincial rights. "Are not our Quebec supporter of the new Conservative government had agreed a contract proposal to replace it that had any hope of provincial acceptance.

AMEND CLAUSES

Meantime, the government's national energy board bill went through the detailed-study stage, its broad principles unchanged but a number of its clauses amended or revised. Certainly, the opposition fought to reduce cabinet power over the board. It had some success.

The bill now requires only third reading—usually a mere formality—a possible point for more debate—before it goes next on to the Senate for consideration.

As the energy board debate ground through its 10th day, the Liberals tried unsuccessfully to have a one-for-one limit—instead of 25 years—set on the licences the board may grant for export of electricity.

The CCF teamed up with the Progressive Conservatives to defeat this motion.

But the government was more amenable to a motion by CCF House Leader Hazen Argue which deleted a section of the bill empowering the government to make exemptions from board regulations on export or import of natural gas and electricity.

Mr. Churchill accepted this amendment, but brought in one of his own to give the cabinet section powers to the cabinet with respect to the importation of part and import of oil—should it eventually be brought under board jurisdiction.

LUTHERAN SYNOD

WATERLOO (CP)—More than 200 ministers and laymen from 141 Ontario and Quebec congregations are attending the annual meeting of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada. Included in reports to be presented are a proposal to raise $250,000 for a new seminary building and discussions about the affiliation of Waterloo College Institute with the University of Waterloo.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — This morning's weather map shows area and weather conditions over Southern Ontario and sunny and cooler weather over the northern part of the province. Between these different extremes Central Ontario, from Lake Superior to Georgian Bay, is experiencing patchy cloudy skies along with the very occasional shower.

Present indications point to little or no change in this pattern today and Thursday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Howard Green has been picked as Canada's next external affairs minister.

The announcement, expected shortly, could well touch off the first big cabinet shuffle since the Progressive Conservatives took office nearly two years ago.

The 64-year-old Vancouver lawyer, who since June 21, 1957, has been works minister and also acting prime minister in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's absence, would fill the external affairs vacancy caused by the death of Secretary Smith March 17.

Informants said the move may be accompanied by a shift in Trade Minister Gordon to the works portfolio and that Transport Minister Hees may become trade minister.

IS HOUSE LEADER

Mr. Green, a tall, angular grandfather with nearly a quarter-century of continuous Commons service, is also government House leader in the Commons—a delicate, important job of steering government business through the House without provoking opposition antagonism. He also is chairman of the Conservative MP's caucus.

He was the Conservative party's chief spokesman in the opposition after Mr. Diefenbaker was chosen party leader. And when Prime Minister Macmillan visited Ottawa the day after Mr. Smith's death, Mr. Green sat in on the foreign policy talks with the British leader.

Since Mr. Smith's death the prime ministership has taken acting control of the external affairs portfolio.

Mr. Green has been a Commons member since 1935, representing Vancouver South constituency until 1949 and then the Vancouver Quadra. Among other cabinet ministers, Veterans Affairs Minister A. J. Brooks has served in the Commons as long.

Eight Injured As Bridge Arch Gives Way

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Eight persons were in hospital Tuesday night after a highway overpass on Highway 401 near here collapsed, trapping them in tons of wet concrete and debris. None was reported in critical condition.

The men were working on the top of the bridge when one arch gave way. They were caught in the twisted wreckage as it fell 30 feet to the ground.

Reginald Ford, president of the firm building the interchange on Highway 401 near this Toronto area town, said the accident may have been caused by water mixed in the roadway section before the concrete was being poured.

Highways department and construction officials have begun an investigation to determine the cause of the collapse.

Sparrow Construction Limited of Alliston, the contractor, has built one or two similar structures for the highways department. In this case, the $60,000 structure was 75 per cent finished, the contractor who is required by law to carry insurance covering the accident.

ARCH COLLAPSES — One arch of an overpass under construction on Highway 401 west of Toronto collapsed yesterday, burying several workmen into a pile of broken concrete and debris. Nine persons were taken to hospital. It was reported the wood forms on the bridge collapsed and the men were thrown into wet cement. (CP Wirephoto).

Liberals Quit Committee on Job Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—The four Liberals on the Commons industrial relations committee today staged a temporary walkout as Progressive Conservatives demanded the members sit for an extra hour.

In the uproar that followed, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue said the Conservatives were making a "great mistake" in using their huge majority to "railroad" unemployment insurance amendments through the committee.

He said it was a "great mistake" for the Conservatives to "kid themselves" that an extra hour's study of the bill was so important.

Amid new attacks and protests by the Conservatives, chairman R. Hardy Small (PC—Toronto-Danforth) entertained a Conservative motion to begin evening sessions on the bill which would boost unemployment insurance costs for employers and employees.

The motion was voted through by the Conservatives, with the Liberals absent. Mr. Argue was the lone opposer.

The committee will begin evening sessions tonight, sitting from 7 p.m. to 8:30 EDT. The Conservatives wanted to sit longer but Mr. Argue argued they would interfere with members' "engagement" with the Governor-General, the annual ball at Government House at 9 p.m.

Paul Martin (PC—Essex East) led the Liberals out of the meeting 20 minutes after 4 p.m. sitting, saying they had to attend a party caucus. The walkout followed a motion by Ferguson Brown (PC — Vancouver-Kingsway) that the committee sit until 7 p.m. The motion was carried 6-5.

But there was no further work on the bill. Political canvassing continued for about 20 minutes and the meeting then adjourned.

The uproar continued throughout most of the morning session.

One member called another "a liar" and there were miscellaneous charges of stalling, politicking, sharp manoeuvring and steamroller tactics on the part of the Progressive Conservative majority.

Debate Old Dodge For Those Who Draw No Crowds - Frost

By PETER SYPNOWICH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"This suggestion is the oldest dodge in the political book for those who cannot draw crowds themselves."

That was how Premier Frost Tuesday night dismissed CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald's challenge in a three-way debate with Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer for the June 11 Ontario election.

Mr. MacDonald made the remarks in his most heated attack against the premier in Galt, where Mr. Frost opened his campaign with a CCF leader a week ago.

Mr. MacDonald said the gas-and-stock controversy is the election's main issue and declared the premier "has the arrogance of those who think they are born to rule."

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer was in Northern Ontario along with the premier but was preoccupied with something else—a report from party headquarters that only a campaign cash shortage.

Mr. Wintermeyer said he was actually "thrilled and pleased" about press publicity given the report. Liberal headquarters has had to cancel advertisements because of low campaign contributions.

"We don't have to be ashamed of being poor," he said, and promptly questioned Progressive Conservative financing and union support of the CCF.

"It's easy to make levies on contractors with government contracts, or when you have a specific group or economic segment supporting you," said the Liberal leader.

Premier Frost, celebrating his 35th wedding anniversary, predicted a bright economic future for Northern Ontario in speeches at Elmiton, Englehart and Kirkland Lake.

With the progress in transportation facilities, and particularly with the arrival of natural gas—the finest industrial fuel in the world—great industrial expansion is obviously headed this way," he told 200 persons in the Timmins Legion Hall.

Mr. Frost rejected the debate challenge in a statement given to reporters at Timmins shortly before midnight.

"This would not be a debate, it would simply be a political encounter which would add nothing to this campaign or the public life of this province," he said.

"The place for a debate was the legislature where I cannot be."

English-Owned Colt, Partbia Wins Epsom Derby in Upset

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

EPSOM, England (CP)—English-owned Parthia, a 13-to-1 shot, today beat off a strong French challenge to win the 180th and richest Epsom Derby, feature event of England's racing season.

Parthia, until today regarded as a "large" three - year - old turned on the speed in the last furlong to beat Fidalgo. The latter beat out Shantung, 11-to-4 favorite as the three dinged it as great French challengers, for second place. John Oxley was on Parthia in photo finish with St. Crespin III.

Parthia, by Persian Gulf out of Pasquita, was bred by Lord Humphrey de Trafford and was trained by Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochefort. It was the trainer's first derby winner in more than a quarter in century of trying.

It also was the first winning ride for jockey Harry Carr, known as the Queen's jockey because he rides most of the Queen Boyd-Rochefort stable for Queen Elizabeth.

The victory was worth £36,070 to owner Sir Humphrey. Second prize was £7,668 and third £2,134.

FRENCH FAVORED

The French-trained horses entered by Marcel Boussac also had been strongly favored to take the Derby crown back to France.

But Parthia, unimpressive in winning its last three races by narrow margins, showed brilliant up-and-downhill course with its hairpin turn to the liking, and won by 1½ lengths from Fidalgo. The latter's time was 2:36, compared with the Derby record set by Mahmoud of 2:33.8.

Much more than the actual prize money was at stake, as the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes was based on the outcome of the race.

The Queen and Prince Philip were among the estimated 250,000 spectators who whiched the race on a sunny day.

Women Scrimped To Get $140,000 For Their Sister

BOSTON (AP) — Two sisters in Quincy were astounded $140,000 by working, scrimping and saving died in the hope that their sister's daughter, 11, and her children, might have their money.

For years the spinster sisters had tried to learn what happened to their sister, Mrs. Ruth Bell, who died in Glasgow, Dec. 15, 1882.

Finally they were told they were that she was supposed to have died in Canada. Their later search in Canada was fruitless. She was five when they last saw her.

The story of their quest was revealed by Louis I. Altshuler, who assisted with the task of finding Isabel, her children or other heirs before the estate reverts to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Neither of the sisters knew for sure that Isabel was known as Isabel Sutton.

Convicts Lean on Shovels To See Queen at Garden Party

The convicts and their guards saw the Queen when she attended a garden party commemorating the 200th anniversary of the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew.

West Ministers Agree To Seek Early Showdown

Study Gromyko's Speech For Hint of Concessions

GENEVA (AP) Western foreign ministers were reported to have decided today to call for an early showdown with Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko in secret talks over the Berlin crisis.

The ministers of Britain, the United States, France and West Germany agreed in a mid-day strategy meeting, officials said, that Gromyko should be told the time has come for Russia—which touched off the crisis last November—to put up new, constructive proposals for a solution.

Gromyko's answer to this challenge, it was hoped, should disclose shortly whether the Geneva meeting has any chance of success in easing the East-West dispute on Berlin and thereby pave the way for a summit conference.

MEET FOR HOUR

An American spokesman said the "situation with regard to Berlin is not appreciably advanced" by Gromyko's statement in the first news conference Tuesday.

But British and French diplomats said Gromyko's speech was being studied with extreme care, in the hope it might indicate that the Soviet Union may be interested in finding a way out of the Berlin deadlock.

These British and French experts sought the next 48 hours of the conference — now in its fourth week—could prove to be the most critical of the parley.

CITE FOUR POINTS

The British and French experts cited four points as possibly significant:

1. Russia, Gromyko asserted, is not asking the United States, Britain and France to sign a Socialistic recognition to East Germany's Communist government. Western Allies adamantly refuse to do. Earlier in the conference Gromyko had pressed arguments for recognition on the Western ministers.

2. The Soviet Union does not question the Western powers' right to fly their air corridors to West Berlin although it considers the air corridors to be only "provisionally dated." Gromyko insisted some new arrangement must be made for West Berlin.

3. Although he again called for withdrawal of West Berlin from under international guarantees, the Russian diplomat said his government would agree to Western troops remaining in Berlin pending nothing public accord, perhaps for better inter-municipal relations.

NOTICES WOMEN

Mr. Diefenbaker, addressing a crowd of 2,000 at the municipal arena where conference sessions are being held, said he noticed an increasing number of women participating in municipal politics and he commended them.

"I understand your problems," he said. "I once was a councillor myself in a small Saskatchewan village. And it is no secret . . . that I aspired to become mayor without success."

He made a concession to one problem that has been repeated several times during the conference. That is the high taxes, social legislation and the like, bring about the necessity of increasing co-operation among the three levels of government."

PRIME MINISTER ADVISES MAYORS TO BE PATIENT

No Indication of Further Federal Aid

NORTH BAY (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, once a village councillor himself, has assured the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities he knows and understands their problems.

But he gave no indication of further immediate federal aid to municipalities, as requested by the federation, when he addressed the CFMM annual convention Tuesday night.

"The central administration faced the same problems as the municipalities, that of finding enough money to meet mushrooming demands for government services, he said.

Since its inception 22 years ago the federation has been fighting for assignment of tax resources to give the third level of government money to provide services for an urban population that now makes up some 60 per cent of Canada's population compared with half that 50 years ago.

ONLY THE PUBLIC

Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"We all realize that there is only one taxpayer—the public—that we can appeal to. That is made in this country except through taxation and only one person pays for all these things.

"All of us have problems. You have problems and I find ourselves in that paradoxical situation . . . of finding ways of meeting financial responsibilities that could not have been contemplated a few years ago.

He made no reference to a federal-provincial-municipal conference, which earlier speakers said is a must.

Mayor Diefenbaker said the fiscal problems of all levels of government will be studied at a federal-provincial financial conference slated for Ottawa July 6, where "the provinces will naturally present the municipalities' viewpoint."

The conference was to end tonight with activities placed several ideas in the federal suggestion box but a top-a resulting nothing public accord, perhaps for better inter-municipal relations.

Improved Means May Double Oil Reserves

NEW YORK (CP)—World oil reserves may be more than doubled through improved methods of getting the oil out of the earth, the World Petroleum Congress here was told.

Estimates of reserves are based on the amount of oil expected to be brought to the surface, and under traditional methods this is only about 40 per cent of what is available. The remaining 60 per cent remains in its underground stone formations, after the natural flow pressures required to force it up.

PC'S OF QUEBEC CHALLENGED ON TAX SHARING

Debate Is Resumed On Important Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Lionel Chevrier has challenged Progressive Conservatives from Quebec to stand up and be counted on the question of federal-provincial tax sharing.

The former transport minister, now MP for Montreal Laurier, issued the challenge Tuesday as the Commons resumed debate on the government's proposal to levy new tax - sharing arrangements with the provinces for another year.

The Quebec government has steadfastly refused to accept federal tax rental assistance in lieu of personal income tax and imposes a personal income tax of its own. All other provinces have signed tax - sharing agreements with the federal government.

Mr. Chevrier, speaking in French, said the government's objectives have criticized the tax-sharing scheme—devised by the former Liberal government—as an invasion of provincial rights. Yet not one Quebec supporter of the new Conservative government had suggested a concrete proposal to replace it that had any hope of provincial acceptance.

AMEND CLAUSES

Meantime, the government's national resources bill went through the detailed-study stage. Its broad principles underlined but a number of its clauses amended and revised. Mainly, the opposition fought to make cabinet power over the board. It had some success.

The bill now requires only third reading—usually a mere formality—to become law.

As the energy board debate ground through its 19th day, the Liberals tried unsuccessfully to have a one-year limit—instead of 25 years—set on the licences the board may grant for export of electricity.

The CCF teamed up with the Progressive Conservatives to defeat this clause.

But the government was more amenable to a motion by CCF House Leader Hazen Argue which deleted a section of the bill empowering the government to make exemptions from board regulations on exports or import of natural gas and electricity.

Mr. Churchill accepted this amendment, but brought in one of his own to give such exemption power also to the minister with regard to board regulations on gas and export of oil—should it eventually be brought under board jurisdiction.

Eight Injured As Bridge Arch Gives Way

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Eight persons were taken to hospital Wednesday after a highway overpass on which they were working collapsed, trapping them in a heap of concrete and debris. None were reported critically injured.

The men were working on the top of the bridge when one arch gave way. They fell with it in the twisted wreckage as it crumpled 20 feet below.

Reginald Ford, president of the firm building the structure over Highway 401 near the Toronto area town, said the accident may have been caused by vibrations as the roadway section before the side beams were strengthened.

Highways department's chief construction officials have begun an investigation to determine the cause of the collapse.

Spanway Construction Limited of Willowdale, the contractor, has built one or two similar structures for the highways department. In this case, the $60,000 structure is still in the hands of the contractor who is required by its contract to carry insurance against such an accident.

Convicts Hold Guards at Knifepoint While They Saw Way to Freedom

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP)— Four long-term prisoners held a guard and a cellblock captain at knifepoint and sawed their way out of the Iowa state penitentiary early today.

The four, one serving a life term for killing a policeman, sawed two bars from a window located in an outside wall of the prison after having sawed their way from their individual cells.

The breakout came in cellhouse No. 3, housing about 400 prisoners. The four who escaped had to drop less than 10 feet to the ground after cutting the opening in the window.

Warden John Bennett identified the four as Lloyd Woodson, 38, Quincy, Ill.; Albert M. Boerger, 26, Kansas City; Elun Gardner, 22, Peoria, Ill., and Robert Smith, 23, Kansas City, Kan.

Almost simultaneously with Jones' escape from his cell on the second tier, Boerger got out of his in a different part of the cellblock and put a knife in the throat of guard Larry H. Pickard, 60. Theo Woodson and Gardner came out of their cells and also were widely separated from Jones. The other two convicts, Lawrence Smith, 33, night cellhouse supervisor, said Jones was being dragger on him and forced him to call the deputy outside the cellhouse door. He had rubbed against the intercom system to make it inoperative and that everything was all right.

Pickard was tied with twine and Smith was ordered to sit at his desk while the prisoners took turns hoisting a knife on him, he said.

The convicts then went to work on the bars of an outside wall window while each 20 minutes, according to prison procedure, Smith signalled that things were quiet inside the cellblock.

ARCH COLLAPSES — One arch of an overpass under construction on Highway 401 west of Toronto collapsed yesterday, hurling several workmen into a pile of reinforcing concrete and debris. English-Owned Colt, Parthia Wins Epsom Derby in Upset

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

EPSOM, England (CP)—English-owned Parthia, a 13-to-1 shot, today beat off a strong French challenge and the strongest of seven French challengers, for second place. Shantung was third in a field of 15 at Epsom Downs Race Course.

Parthia, by Persian Gulf out of Lightning, is owned by Mr. Humphrey de Trafford and was trained by Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochefort. It was the trainer's first derby winner in more than a quarter of a century of trying.

It also was the first winning ride for jockey Harry Carr, known as the Queen's jockey because he rides most of the horses Boyd-Rochefort trains for Queen Elizabeth.

Parthia's victory was worth £36,078 to owner Sir Humphrey. Second prize was £4,288 and third £2,134.

FRENCH FAVORED

The French-trained horses entered in the mile-and-a-half race had been strongly favored to take the Derby crown back to France.

But Parthia, unimpressive in winning its last three races by narrow margins, found Epsom's up-and-downhill course with its twisting turns to its liking, and won by 1½ lengths from Fidalgo. The winner's time was 2:36, compared with the Derby record set by Mahmoud of 2:32.8.

Much more than the actual prize money was at stake, as the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes was based on the outcome of the race.

The Queen and Prince Philip were among the estimated 250,000 spectators who watched the race on a sunny day.

Three Canadians today won $140,600 each when Parthia finished first in the Epsom Derby in England.

The three, as registered with names or noms de plume in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, are: H. Crystal, Toronto; Nickey, Montreal; Ginger, Ontario.

Eight others held sweepstakes tickets on Fidalgo, second-place horse, and will collect $56,000 each.

Six other Canadians will pocket $28,000 each if Fidalgo or Shantung, third-place horse in a photo finish.

Official indications of the winners will be cabled later from Dublin.

Say Schooners Carry Rebels To Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) —Three schooners carrying revolutionary invaders and arms were reported en route to Nicaragua from Cuba today to join in Latin America's latest vest-pocket revolt.

Nicaraguan President Luis Somoza ordered his ambassador in Washington, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa, to ask the Organization of American States for an investigation of the threat to his regime, one of Latin America's last three dictatorships.

An emergency meeting of the OAS council was expected later today.

The foreign ministry said Tuesday night it had learned that three schooners carrying revolutionaries and arms set out from Cuba for Nicaragua to support 75 or more rebels who landed by plane from Costa Rica during the weekend. The government claimed it had that force on the run.

Cuban Premier Minister Fidel Castro, asked in Havana about the report of invasion from his country, said he was too busy to answer baseless charges.

Managua is calm, but troops on guard everywhere lend a tense atmosphere to the capital.

Relations between Nicaragua and neighboring Costa Rica, haven for leaders of the anti-Somoza exiles, have reached a delicate point.

The Costa Rican National Assembly Tuesday night approved unanimously a motion of support and sympathy for the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua.

Women Scrimped To Get $140,000 For Their Sister

BOSTON (AP) — Two sisters from Scituate who amassed $140,000 by working, scrimping and saving died in the hope that their brother Seth Smith, 57, and his children, might have their money, it was disclosed today.

For years the spinster sisters had tried to learn what happened to their brother, who disappeared in Glasgow, Dec. 15, 1882.

All they were able to learn was that she was supposed to have gone to Canada. Their later quest in Canada was fruitless. She was five when they last saw her.

The story of their quest was revealed by Louis I. Altshuler, executor with the task of finding Isabel, her children or other heirs before the estate reverts to the State of Massachusetts.

Neither of the sisters knew for certain that Isabel was known as Isabel Sutton.

Convicts Lean on Shovels To See Queen at Garden Party

With the nine killers—all serving life sentences—were 11 other prisoners in a working party from Wormwood Scrubs jail.

The convicts and their guards saw the Queen when she sat down to a garden party commemorating the 200th anniversary of the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew.

The men leaned silently on their shovels as the monarch walked a few yards of them. Nobody disobeyed the guards' instructions not to try to speak to the Queen or wave to her.

"The prison party works regularly at Kew," a palace spokesman said today.

"The Queen was asked if she would rather they were not there and she said, 'Of course, they can be there. They have as much right to see me as any of my subjects.'"

West Ministers Agree To Seek Early Showdown

Study Gromyko's Speech For Hint of Concessions

GENEVA (AP) Western foreign ministers were reported to have decided today to call for an early showdown with Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko in secret talks over the Berlin crisis.

The ministers of Britain, the United States, France and West Germany agreed in a mid-day strategy meeting, officials said, that Gromyko should be told the time has come for Russia—which touched off the crisis last November—to put up new, constructive proposals for a solution.

Gromyko's reaction to this challenge, it was hoped, should disclose shortly whether the Geneva meeting has any chance of success in easing the East-West impasse on Berlin and clearing the way for a summit conference.

MEET FOR HOUR

The Western ministers met for an hour at U.S. headquarters. They wound up their strategy session a little more than two hours before another round of secret talks with Gromyko at State Secretary Christian Herter's villa.

An American spokesman said the "situation with regard to Berlin is now ripe for specifically advanced" by Gromyko's statement to the Big Four conference Tuesday.

But British and French diplomats said Gromyko's speech was being studied with extreme care for hints that Soviet concessions that the Soviet Union may be interested in finding a way out of the Berlin deadlock.

These British and French sources thought the next 48 hours of the conference — now in its fourth week—might be one of the most critical of the parley.

CITE FOUR POINTS

British and French experts cited four points as possibly significant.

1. Russia, Gromyko asserted, is not asking the United States, Britain and France to grant diplomatic recognition to East Germany's Communist government, but something the Western Allies already refuse to do. Earlier in the conference Gromyko had pressed arguments for recognition on the Western ministers.

2. The Soviet Union does not question the Western powers' "natural" right to have troops in West Berlin although it considers the presence of the troops "undesirable." Gromyko insisted some new arrangement must be made for West Berlin.

3. Although he again called for "demilitarization" of West Berlin under international guarantees, the Russian diplomat said his government would agree to Western troops remaining in Berlin provided their number is limited and Soviet troops also are admitted.

Gromyko urged the Western three to join Russia in trying to "bring our positions closer together."

Improved Means May Double Oil Reserves

NEW YORK (CP)—World oil reserves may be more than doubled if they were added by means of getting the oil out of the earth, the American Petroleum Institute Congress has been told.

Estimates of reserves are based on the amount of oil expected to be brought to the surface, and current institutional methods tap only about 40 per cent of what is available. The remaining 60 per cent remains in its underground stone formations, after the depletion of the pressures required to force it up.

PRIME MINISTER ADVISES MAYORS TO BE PATIENT

No Indication of Further Federal Aid

NORTH BAY (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, once a village councillor himself, has assured the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities he knows and understands their problems.

But he gave no indication of further immediate federal aid to municipalities, as requested by the federation, when he addressed the CFMM annual convention Tuesday night.

The entire administration faced the same problem as the municipalities, that of finding enough money to meet mushrooming demands for government services, he said.

Since its inception 22 years ago the federation has been fighting for assignment of tax resources to give the third level of government enough money to provide services for an urban population that now makes up some 60 per cent of Canada's population, compared with half that 50 years ago.

ONLY THE PUBLIC

Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"We all realize that there is only one taxpayer—the public—and no advancement can be made in this country except through taxation and only one person pays for all these things.

"All of us have problems, both in the municipal field find yourselves in that paradoxical situation of increasing demands, mounting financial responsibilities that could not have been contemplated 30 years ago."

He made no reference to a federal-provincial-municipal conference, which earlier speakers said is a must.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the fiscal problems of all levels of government in Canada are the result of provincial financial conference first called for Ottawa July 6, where "the provinces will naturally present the municipalities' viewpoint."

The conference was to end today. The 500 delegates placed several ideas in the federal suggestion box but a mass really big improvement is limited, except perhaps for better inter-municipal relations.

NOTICES WOMEN

Mr. Diefenbaker, addressing a luncheon, said that in the municipal arena where conference sessions are being held, said he noticed an increasing number of women participating in municipal politics and he commended them.

"I understand your problems," he said, "I once was a councillor myself in a small Saskatchewan village. And it is no secret . . . that once a man's wife becomes mayor without success."

He made a concession to one principle that has been repeated several times during the convention—that of municipal legislation and the like, bring about the necessity of increasing co-operation among the three levels of government."

Council Refuses to Grant Zoning By-Law Exemptions

TRENTON — "Let's rescind the thing, we're stopping the town completely," said Councillor Claude Graham at the last meeting of the Trenton Town Council when the new zoning by-law came under debate over nine requests for changes from private individuals in various parts of the town. The council, by a statement was greeted with a chorus of "no" from his fellow colleagues.

Mayor Ross Burt said he would like to see the council approve some of the applications at work was being held up and if projects were approved it would cut down on some of the unemployment in town. He said he would also like to see the zoning "a little more "elastic" in some of the cases.

"We'll it's up to you council-lors. It doesn't matter to me, I'm through (as mayor) this year," Mayor Burt said at the conclusion of the discussion.

When asked by town engineer Eric Aldersey, for instructions as to what to do with the cases in the zone which forbids this type of building and he was turned down by the council. And what does this contractor do? He goes to another area in town, which also forbids under the by-law the building of an apartment house, buys another lot of land and is back at council all prepared to be bold. And this apartment house is being constructed in a business zone.

Are we going to allow this? Some of the other issues we may be able to allow but certainly not this one.

"If we start in one of these applications before us to be approved, we'll have to start spoiling the market and spoiling places for shopping to park. He reminded the council that it had been once before in the parking area in town.

Mayor Burt said he did not know if the Police Commission was aware of it, but he would bring it up at the next meeting and see what could be done.

Councillor Wm. Carr said he had space available in which these cars could be kept under lock-ed storage.

"I'll go along with some of these applications before us to be approved, but I'm not going to support the whole zoning by-law.

"If we start going wrong now where are we going to be? We had several hearings on the by-law and have made all kinds of changes to satisfy those who had appeared. This was proper time to make the by-law. But now, when the by-law has been passed, it's not proper for each individual where will we end up? We might as well not have one.

"I would like to go out to this area in question and ask the other property living there about it and see how many of these people are for the by-law broken. We have to start somewhere in drawing the line on these cases and it might just as well be now. We have the right to and most certainly should follow it.

TOOK THREE YEARS

"We have been three years putting this by-law into effect and now some of you want to kick it all out. Another area building are meant to be built near industry and in the down-town areas, not in residential sections where homes are."

Other councillors expressed their opinions on the cases in-cluding Councillor Lane and three with Mayor Burt. However no vote on the matter was taken.

Asked for an opinion on the by-law, town solicitor C. Harry Larry told the council it was the same as any other by-law. But you can change it and you should uphold it. If there is some part of it you do not like then it is your privilege as a municipal body to change it anytime you want. The committee of adjustment, when appointed, can make minor variations but cannot change it.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital by Dr. H. J. Forsyth. The attack occurred about 2.55 p.m.

Object to Cars In Market Area

TRENTON — The question of two old cars, which have been impounded by the police and have been sitting outside the police station for a considerable length of time, will be brought up at the next meeting of the Trenton Police Commission.

Mayor Ross Burtt told the council meeting on Monday night.

The two cars are the property of Mr. Burtt said he did not know if the Police Commission was aware of it, but he would bring it up at the next meeting and see what could be done.

Councillor Wm. Carr said he had space available in which these cars could be kept under lock-ed storage.

Hire Attendant At Govt. Dock

TRENTON — Trenton's town council took over from the Chamber of Commerce, which went out of business at the end of last year, and hired an attendant at the government docks at the last meeting of the council.

The attendant, Leo Auger, who has been there for many years was re-hired for another summer with the town paying his full wages and will also buy him his uniform.

In the past years the salary of Mr. Auger had been paid on a $0-50 basis between the, city and the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber had also supplied Mr. Auger with a uniform.

The employment will be for the summer months only.

The councillors also passed a verbal resolution congratulating the town clerk-treasurer, C. H. Larry and his wife on the recent birth of a son in the Trenton Hospital.

Following the passing of the resolution the next month meeting adjourned.

Present at the council meeting were: Mayor Ross Burtt, Councillors Wm. Lane, Lloyd Reynolds, Lloyd Hawley, Wm. Axe, Claude Graham and Wilfred Bradshaw, Town clerk-treasurer, O. W. Larry; town engineer Eric Aldersey and town solicitor Rod Campbell.

Traffic Rules Must Be Known Rotarians Told

TRENTON — The first citizen of the new Trenton Police Traffic Training School is Sgt. Gordon Steenburg. Sgt. Gordon Steenburg told the Trenton Rotarians at their regular meeting held in the Hotel Gilbert Monday night.

Sgt. Steenburg was the guest speaker at the club's dinner which started away with the formation of the Traffic Training School which was sponsored and financed by the Rotarians as a community project.

The police sergeant told the meeting that traffic enforcement is one of the most important jobs of the police department in any town. "Motor accidents," he said, "still far more serious in a year than criminals although the criminal investigation department is also an important part of police work as well."

Education of traffic rules, the sergeant continued, has paid off in many ways and not only for the same for adults. The children are beginning to be wise on the safe roads, how to cross streets properly and how to conduct themselves generally on the cycle on the highways or streets. Right now throughout the classes it is hoped that adults can be instructed on the safety rules of the road so that when they drive their cars along Trenton streets the number of the accident rate has dropped considerably over a certain period of time. Also a lot of driving schools have been credited for this.

He said that some times it is not a motorist's fault and is in-nocent of any accident that occurs. He told the group that at the police station there is always a map and each time an accident occurs, no matter how small, it is recorded on the map with a colored pins. If it is found that there is a number of pins at one intersection they get in touch with the town engineer to have the situation remedied for such things as hidden approaches, overgrown trees and other things. Nine times out of 10 the matter can be rectified right away but now and in a while it takes a little longer than a day.

"There is also a problem in Trenton with large drivers and transport and said, "but we hope we can get them to respond through the courts."

TAUGHT RULES OF ROAD

Rotarians were told that the school does not only hope to actually drive but it taught them the "rules of the road" and other laws governing the highways. It also brought out any defects a motorist may have and not know about himself.

Speaking on traffic laws Sergeant Steenburg said that such year amendments are made to the Ontario Highway Traffic Act to publish these amendments on the back pages rather than bring them on the inside pages when they are released.

He told the sergeant for his address, Cliff Baker also expressed the thanks of the Rotarians for his work through the past years in promoting safety on the streets of Trenton. Mr. Baker said: "It is unfortunate that we have such things which will never be known, but we wonder how many Sergeant Steenburg has saved through his work in safety education."

The sergeant was also extended a vote of thanks by Rotarian Ivor Bell, by the president, J. C. "Gill" Gillen.

Special guests of the Rotarians at the meeting last night were Rotarians from the Town of Belleville; Inspector D. W. Wilson of the Ontario Provincial Police Safety Service; Secretary General's Department, of Belleville, and Rotarian Fred Probert of Belleville, and Rev. Jack Irwin of King Street United Church in Trenton. Councillor Claude Graham, chairman of the Police Persons and Property Committee, represented the town council.

Following the meeting the members and guests of the Rotary Club adjourned to the police station where the official opening was held.

Must Repair Or Tear Down Vacant House

TRENTON — The town council decided to take steps in having a vacant and condemned house on Murphy Street either repaired by the owners or torn down within the near future.

The council made the decision following the reading of a letter of complaint from a resident near the old house and another letter from Fire Chief Ellis stating the house was a fire hazard and a danger to the homes which are near it.

The council were told that the house was owned by an estate and the executors have lived in the U.S.A but that it could not be sold because one of the persons involved would not

Car Tests Held At Airport On Reservation

DESERONTO — Sunday was a busy day at Mohawk Airport on Tyendinaga Reserve. The airport has been leased to the private flying club which was using it to some extent during the past few years.

Sunday's activities, however, was furnished by the Peaceful Pusers, and an automotive car club from Kingston. This is an organization to teach safety on the highway and proper operation of a motor vehicle. It has been formed by the Kingston police and Sergeant McKegney of the traffic department of the club acts as advisor.

The club began operations about 11.00 o'clock in the morning and finished about the middle of the afternoon. The main events were: acceleration tests, a standing start, the time for the tests began, all cars to compete were given a safety inspection by the committee in charge of that detail. There were about 12 cars in the tests and they used the longest runway at the airport, from end to end a quarter of a mile from a standing start and the timing was taken. Two cars at a time, times the tests were interrupted to allow planes to land.

There was a public address system in use which was donated by Mr. Norton Electronics of Kingston. This was a trial competition and while it was advertised, it attracted a goodly-sized crowd from the neighboring towns as well as from the immediate vicinity.

'Al' Wickerson Named Chairman Of Safety Assoc.

Elwood G. Wickerson, of the Mead-Johnson Company, Belleville, has been named chairman of the Central Ontario Division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. He succeeds R. L. Starkey, of Canadian Oasis Company, Peterborough.

The election of the new chairman for 1959-60 was made at the annual meeting of the Central Division held at the Club Aragon at Peterborough Tuesday evening with over 300 delegates in attendance.

The Central division which covers Oshawa, Ajax, Whitby, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Picton and Belleville, has the best accident record with respect to frequency and severity in all Ontario, the outgoing chairman told the meeting.

Greetings from the city of Peterborough were extended by Mayor J. Roy Gordon, Q.C., and president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Mr. V. Dixon of Kitchener.

General manager of the IAPA, Mr. R. G. Anderson of Toronto, also spoke briefly.

Speaker for the evening was Bob Hayes, supervisor of safety and training for Quaker Oats Company Ltd. in Chicago. The speaker was introduced by S. Coulter-John at the Trent Bridge, Trenton, with thanks being expressed by Al Metcalfe, Peterborough Merine, Peterborough.

Quinte District artists provided the entertainment for the annual meeting. The Morrow Sisters of Frankford, delighted with several vocal numbers while Cary Storms, 13-year-old singer and guitar player from Picton, also entertained the members.

Clarence Young Faces Trial For Burglary

The trial of Clarence Young, accused of a charge of breaking, entering and theft in connection with a recent Belleville incident at the premises of Garage Supply office on Harriet Street in the early morning of September 28th last, began this morning before Judge C. S. Smith and an empanelled jury.

Crown Attorney Robert Pringle called on several witnesses to establish the scene of the alleged crime. Cpl. Brackenridge of the Ontario Provincial Police gave evidence on the damage to the safe and the probable means of entering, and produced photographs taken showing that the incident was discovered. Photographs were also produced of the exterior of the premises concerned and a window which was found broken was indicated.

Under cross-examination by Defence Counsel Robert Temple, Cpl. Brackenridge informed the court that the safe of the accused had been found in his possession. No gloves were found. The presence of footprints on various pieces of furniture in the room was also noted.

The next witness for the Crown was Orliff Lloyd, owner of Garage Supply. He described the scene of the alleged crime as it was discovered by him and noted that about $400 had been taken from the safe, which Cpl. Brackenridge described as being opened with the use of oxyacetylene equipment and other tools from the rear. The presence of footprints and marks on the window sill at the window through which admission had apparently gained was also revealed.

Cross-examination by the defence revealed that the accused had not worked in the new building and that a person could be easily seen in the office by the interior lights. Questioning by the Judge revealed that the accused had worked for Mr. Lloyd some time previously.

The next witness, P.C. Yeamans of the Belleville City Police, testified that he and P.C. Ashley had stopped a vehicle containing the accused and several other persons at 1.30 a.m. of the morning of the offense is alleged to have occurred. The questioning of the witness allowed to proceed after the car had been searched and a brief description of several of the occupants was given, although the identity of the accused was not definitely established.

Following a recess of the court P.C. Ashley was called to the witness stand. He related the incident of the arrest that he accompanied P.C. Yearwood but could not completely describe the clothing of those present in the vehicle stopped. He also testified that there checks of the premises of the Garage Supply firm had been made that evening and morning at the hours of 11.30 p.m., between 1.30 and 2.00 a.m., and at 3.30 a.m.

The fifth witness for the prosecution was Morris Archer, who was briefly examined by the Crown Attorney. Under questioning by Mr. Temple, counsel for accused, he said that he had not seen the accused after about 15 minutes following the stopping of the vehicle in which he was an occupant, by Constables Yearwood and Ashley. The accused was apparently left at his residence by Mr. Archer and the other occupants at this time.

An attempt made by Mr. Pringle, the Crown Attorney, to re-examine the witness following Mr. Temple's questioning, but this was not allowed by Judge Smith on the grounds that the proposed question did not arise out of the defence counsel's cross-examination. The case was adjourned until this afternoon for the hearing of several more witnesses.

"Sounds of Our Times" Talk Given Members Kiwanis Club

The Bell Telephone scientific research laboratories are currently working on electronic equipment to produce sound in four dimensions, which will be a great deal purer than that produced by present stereophonic high fidelity equipment.

This was disclosed Tuesday in interview with Mr. Lucien Moise, public relations representative of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, following an interesting address and demonstration given members of Kiwanis Club at the regular meeting in the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Moise, in addressing the group on the subject "Sounds of Our Times", stated that some of the projects now under development by Bell Telephone scientists are as "fantastic" as the things which are commonplace and as would seem to people 40 or 50 years ago.

The speaker, who has been an employee of the Bell Telephone Company for the past 31 years, explained that Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone paved the way for the development of such commonplace electrical apparatus as the phonograph and hi-fi, radio, sound movies, tape recordings, and modern day stereophony.

BASIC PRINCIPLE REMAINS

"The basis of Bell's invention was his discovery of how to change sound into electrical energy and back into sound again", he said. "The basic principle remains the same today as it was in the original telephone, but plain strides have been made in perfecting the ways of doing it, and it is now possible to reproduce sound with great precision, whether it be a voice, a full symphony orchestra, or the noise of a jet airplane."

To illustrate this point, a selection of recorded sounds from past and present were played. Included were examples of how the first long distance call (a distance of 6 miles) and the first transcontinental telephone call from New York to San Francisco, sounded when transmitted in 1876 and 1915 respectively. Ping-pong, the sound of a Stereophonic recordings of a jukebox, and a train; and audio demonstrations of the way overtones give sound their distinguishing characteristics, were also played.

"Everyone's voice is different, and it is the overtones which give it its personality," Mr. Moise explained.

The speaker noted the development of transistors and vacuum tubes by telephone scientists have enabled the Bell company to integrate transistors into telephone communication.

An example is the new volume control telephone which has been on the market for the past two years. This type of phone is equipped with a transistor which permits users with impaired hearing to understand what the other person is saying by simply turning up the volume. For people with feeble hearing, they are invaluable. Only a similar transistor amplifier can be included so their voices will sound stronger at the other end, the speaker said.

He also explained the vacuum tube was developed to "boost the sound of your voice before it sets out on a transatlantic voice message, or a coast-to-coast call. Voice may be carried over as many as 10,000 of these tubes. "Vacuum tubes will carry your voice anywhere in the world," he stated.

The network of pathways are provided by the coast-to-coast microwave radio relay system, he said. Telephone calls and TV programs are beamed electronically across the country over a chain of relay stations 30 miles apart.

"A new system of microwave transmission, known as a 'troposcatter', is expected permits stations to be located as much as 200 miles apart and is playing a big part in opening up Canada's remote northlands," the Bell representative explained.

The speaker also mentioned of the development of new types of dialing device now in use by Bell Telephone subscribers. The operator merely presses keys for the number desired and different combinations of sound are emitted. This system is a great time-saver because it allows switchboard operators to handle more calls in less time, he said.

Among the more unusual sounds which Kiwanians were called upon to identify were the underwater sound of a school of porpoises, a heartbeat, and the sound of a rator scraping the face.

Mr. Moise was introduced by past-president Charles Lusk, and by Ernest Wesley Gee. He was presented with a token of the club's appreciation by president Gerry Wishart.

President Wishart announced the date for this month's directors' meeting has been changed to Monday, June 8, at the Centre.

Among the guests present for the meeting were Mrs. Moise, Grant W. Procter, manager of the Belleville branch of the Bell Telephone Co.

Canadian Ports 'Missing Boat' Say Travellers

The two hardy nautical adventurers who passed through Belleville on May 8th at the beginning of a 2,000-mile trip to Montreal by harbor facilities and other amenities which the various ports along the lower Great Lakes — Lake Ontario, Erie, and St. Clair — and their interconnecting waterways have to offer for yachting and boating fraternity, Reg Fife, publisher of the Bayside Digest Annual, accompanied by Ed Langley, both of Montreal, arrived in Belleville yesterday evening at about 6.30 p.m.

Their stay was short as they were anxious to get on with their trip, which will take them to Kingston, up the Rideau Canal to Ottawa, and then down the Ottawa River to Montreal. By pressing on they expected to arrive in Montreal between 8.00 and 10.00 p.m. this evening with their 17-foot outboard boat which is equipped with a 35-horsepower motor. This will be the end of their trip for this year.

In assessing the situation along the Canadian side of the waterway, Mr. Fife stated that Canada "missed the boat" in this matter. In his estimation and through information gathered by visiting the major yachting clubs along the route, there are "at least 12,000" pure craft in the United States which are looking for ports to visit along the Great Lakes. Mr. Fife, who makes this trip annually in order to prepare material for his publication, feels that Belleville and especially Trenton have excellent facilities which have not been developed. If these facilities were developed the tourist dollars would benefit greatly by calls from these pleasure craft.

LOOK FOR PLACES

As the Montreal publisher stated, "they are looking for places to visit . . . a person gets tired of running his boat around in circles on Lake Ontario and they will visit any place which can offer facilities for refueling, refueling, visiting and obtaining supplies and food.

Belleville and Trenton are especially favorable position felt Mr. Fife, since it is located at the end of the Trent Canal system.

Along their route, which took them through the city of Cornwall, Belleville, Toronto, Welland, Buffalo, Erie, Detroit, Detroit, Port Huron, Sarnia, Windsor, back to Welland and across to Midland, then down the Trent Canal to Trenton and thence to Belleville, Messrs. Fife and Langly met with a few varied experiences. The most exciting was being caught in the Lake Erie amongst 12-foot waves.

Major Patching Job Underway On Two Streets

With a program of street patching underway, motorists on lower Front Street and on Bridge Street East between Front and Pinnacle Street are being inconvenienced today as the surface is being ripped up and new patch is rolled into place.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said that the extensive program of patching on the Front Street south from the four corners to below the mill pond and also on East Bridge Street. Bulk of the work is being done during overtime with the extra daylight holiday sees reduced traffic on the streets.

The centre section of the street is being ripped up and the old asphalt dropped away with a new surface of hot-mix penetrating the underlying stone in place.

The old material will not be wasted but will be re - mixed and used for other patching and other uses, it was stated.

D-DAY IS YEARS IN PAST

Here it is, another June and most of us who are old enough to remember the years when Junes were months in which history was written large in blood and fire will experience a kind of shock to realize that fifteen years have elapsed since the days the whole world were focused on the beaches of Normandy.

Memories of that other June, now almost incredibly fifteen years in the past, will vary widely, but to those Canadians who spent it at home the memory is almost certainly inextricably entangled with the name of Rose Munro and his reports from the battlefield.

Munro was a Canadian Press war correspondent whose special talent was an ability to make home-town newspaper readers realize that the events he described were being forged by thousands of home-town boys, people whom the readers of Canadian newspapers knew intimately.

To read Munro once again, fifteen years later, makes the passing of the years seem even more incredible.

Yet nothing is of greater importance in any analysis of the international situation today than a realization that the men who fought the last war are, in Munro's words, "getting paunchy, or bald, or both," that "none could pack a Bren gun again." Not only in Canada but in Britain and France, in both West and East Germany, in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Russia, few of the men in the fighting forces have any vivid memories of the days when all the world was at war.

Both danger and hope lie in this fact. The danger, of course, is that men in authority will never have learned the lessons of the great conflict; the hope is that the hatreds then spawned may now be dying.

For those who have memories, perhaps the lesson which needs to be learned from Munro is a different world, for many of its inhabitants, from that which they knew and that their outlook, beliefs and prejudices are not necessarily shared by any of today's younger generations. On this continent, at least, few under the age of thirty will have any sharp recollections of what a world at war is like.

DUPLESSIS AND DR. JAMES

When Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University, declared after a visit to Russia that the educational system in that country was in many ways superior to the system in the West, it did not require a clairvoyant to predict that he would eventually run into stiff criticism.

Dr. James, though, has proven singularly fortunate in the identity of his first adversary of any considerable stature. To be criticized by Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec is considered a badge of honor in many Canadian circles.

By linking his criticism of Dr. James with attacks on views expressed in the Toronto Star and by Jean Louis Gagnon, managing editor of the Montreal La Presse, which were critical of denominational education, Premier Duplessis has chosen to regard Dr. James' estimate of Russia's education achievements as support for schools divorced from religion.

This may assure him of considerable backing in Quebec, and even in other parts of Canada, unless notice is taken of his declaration that Dr. James "did not perceive that he saw nothing" of Premier Duplessis' advances in the province with regard to "what the Russians wished him to see.

Now this argument has long since worn threadbare. It ought to be granted that visitors in Russia are kept from seeing many things which the regime does not want revealed to the outside world, but the comparison between that with which visitors are permitted to move about larger centres makes it evident that there is much in Russia of which the authorities are not ashamed. If it were otherwise, we should not have to take the Russian threat so seriously. No matter what was concealed from Dr. James, he surely saw enough to be impressed and it would be a foolish man who would suggest that a scholar of his calibre could have been duped by the arrangement of an elaborate facade hiding all the real facts.

The task of Premier Duplessis, and of other provincial politicians throughout Canada, is not to cast doubt on the reliability of Dr. James as an observer but to discover ways in which to inject into the framework of the existing educational systems here those features of Russian education which are worthwhile. We suspect that Dr. James might not insist that it would be necessary for Quebec to divorce its schools from religion in order to do this and no matter what Premier .Duplessis may say we feel that "atheistic education" was not one of those things which Dr. James found admirable in his inspection of Russian schools.

For you the sun is shining,
For you the roses bloom,
For you, who now are pining,
The breezes bring perfume.
For you the birds are singing,
For you the skies are blue,
Why to your grief stay clinging
Since there are all for you?

For you a baby's laughter,
For you a loved one's kiss,
With joys to follow after
Undreamed realms of bliss;
For you kind friends are waiting
To serve you when they can;
Then why should you be hating
The world, unhappy man?

With pleasures, more and more;
A life this line of sorrow,
A little hour of dread,
With joy for you tomorrow,

Hindu Praises Kipling

BBC London Letter

Kipling's novels and short stories about India came to be regarded by many of us as imperialistic or reactionary and imperialist. An appreciation of the work from the Indian point of view is therefore all the more interesting, and is a recent talk in English for Asia broadcast in the BBC's General Overseas Service on the distinguished Indian writer Nirad Chaudhuri, author of the "Hindu Books" and "Kim" in particular as "the finest products of the genius of the Hindu East on English literature."

"I always wondered," Mr. Chaudhuri said, "how so English a temperament as Kipling's could become so susceptible to Hindu influences. The English mind and the Hindu mind stand for totally repellent things. But in his case the two seem to have been fused, and the explosion of genius, to create imperishable literary masterpieces, was permanently quality in Kipling's Indian writings did not come from any familiarity with the country and its people. Mr. Chaudhuri said, for he only lived in India as a child (he was born in Bombay in 1865) and again, for about seven years only, from the age of 17 to 24.

"He got his amazing insight into things Indian and his equally amazing knowledge of them through the nature of his surrender to India, sensuous and passionate, but at the same time decidedly not intellectual.

Three and One-Half Weeks In China - - Some Impressions

By Walter L. Gordon

In April Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the recent Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects, visited China. He has written eleven articles and one will be published daily. Mr. Gordon gives a detailed summary of his observations.—The Editor.

(ARTICLE 1)

One day last April I set out for China with James S. Duncan, the Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, and our wives. We went at the invitation of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade. This is a Government organization to develop trade with countries that have not established diplomatic relations with the People's Republic. We arrived in Hong Kong on April 22 and two days later crossed the border into China—Red China.

We stayed there for three and a half weeks. In the course of which we visited six big cities, inspected factories, workers' living quarters, kindergartens, schools, universities, hospitals, theatres and several Communes. We were present at the closing session of the People's Congress on April 29. We were in Peking for the May Day parade, a fabulous performance, and were received by a number of the leading members of the Government. We met and talked with Government officials, university professors, factory workers, peasants, shopkeepers, pedicab drivers, and many others.

Our hosts, the staff of the China Council, were pleasant, hospitable and friendly people who seemed dedicated, like everyone else we met in China, to the task of building up their nation and improving the living standards of her people. They were courteous, considerate and made every effort to show us what we asked to see and to introduced us to the people whom we wished to meet. But they did not convert us to their system. China is no place for Communism in Canada.

THIRD LARGEST COUNTRY

In area, China is the third largest country in the world, slightly smaller than Canada and slightly larger than the United States. It is densely populated with more than 650 million people. Nearly one out of every four persons in the world is Chinese. And the population is increasing at a rate of perhaps fifteen million annually. At this rate, it may reach a total of one billion soon after 1980. It goes without saying, therefore, that in any appraisal of China's potential and future power, her tremendous population and its rapid rate of increase is a fact of great importance and significance.

The Chinese are a very ancient people with a civilization that has been in existence for some 4,000 years. In the course of centuries, they have developed customs, methods of expression, and a sophistication in their dealings with other people that are deep seated and very much their own. All this involves real difficulties for a visitor from the West. He must realize not only that he does not understand the language which, in itself, may cause serious misunderstandings no matter how excellent an interpreter may have been assigned to assist him, as was the case with us; but also that it is very difficult for him to understand the thought processes of the Chinese which are so different from anything in his experience. These are important reservations that apply to any interpretation about what is going on in China.

In these articles I shall describe some of the places we visited, some of the things we saw and some of the conversations and discussions we engaged in. But first a few general impressions. Because in three and a half weeks in a strange country, even if one does not understand the language and despite the reservations I have mentioned, one is bound to form some tentative opinions.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

To begin with, my first and all embracing impression was of the gigantic nature of the task the present Government of China has undertaken and which apparently it is quite confident of being able to carry through to a conclusion. My second was of the undoubted progress that is being made. Thirdly, I was impressed by the complete, almost fanatical, unanimity of belief, on the part of everyone we met and talked with, in the truth, integrity and rightness of the Communist system. And my fourth impression of importance was of the undoubted strength of the present Government and of its hold upon the people. These were not by any means the only impressions we came away with but in some ways I think they are the most important. For this reason I shall discuss them in the first two of several articles.

When the Communists came to power in 1949, the country was in frightful shape following decades of revolution, invasion and civil war. There had not been a strong Government in China for a century. Millions of people starved to death each year and the fear of famine was universal. The currency was worthless as a result of uncontrolled inflation. Officials and businessmen were corrupt. Perhaps 90% of the people were illiterate. And from all accounts, the poverty was appalling. There are many stories about this but I shall repeat one only as an illustration. It was vouched for by someone whose word I would not think of questioning.

In the worst times it was not uncommon for parents in desperate peasants to sell or kill their children in order to end their suffering for a few months. We were told about one mother of two small children who had been deserted by husband. She could not afford to feed her children so she sold them. However she was terribly upset at losing them and sometimes many aged to get them back in her possession. This did not help matters very much and she was nearly driven to distraction by their continued crying out for food. They were literally starving to death before her very eyes. So she personally killed them.

AWESOME POVERTY

I do not suggest this sort of thing went on all over China. But we were assured that this story was not too untypical of what happened in the famine areas. And there was real poverty everywhere throughout the country. Everyone I talked with who knew China in the 'thirties and the 'forties agreed the poverty then was simply awful. When the new Government took over its objectives, or some of them, were to stabilize conditions and then to raise the people's living standards; to eradicate illiteracy; and to industrialize the nation. These were among the gigantic tasks the new Government assumed apparently with confidence.

The situation today is obviously much improved. Prices have been stabilized and the value of the currency re-established. The supply of food is greater. Real progress has been made towards industrialization an dthe groundwork has been laid to stamp out illiteracy in the years to come.

I will have more to say in later articles about the statistical record of the progress that is being made to increase both industrial and agricultural production. Both, of course, were at very low levels even for China when the Communists took over. Perhaps great things would have been achieved under any Government which came to power at such a time. Who can tell? The fact is that remarkable improvements in production levels and in the living standards of the people have taken place since 1949, i.e., "since Liberation". No doubt many mistakes have been made.

Unquestionably living standards are still very low indeed compared with North American or European conditions and there are grave and serious differences between different areas and regions. Staple foods are rationed in the cities. And quite apart from food, such things as soap and cotton cloth are still not in plentiful supply. The peasants need to get no more than two ounces of meat twice a month in some areas and probably more than this in some parts but perhaps one at it is others. However the ever present fear of death by starvation has been averted in the case of all of China. This, to some people who knew China years ago, is itself a modern miracle.

May Rainfall Much Lower Than Year Ago

After a long cold winter and early spring weather which proved just as difficult, the month of May brought bright sun and pleasantly higher temperatures.

Statistics from the Belleville Filtration Plant on the Trent Road indicate that the mean temperature for the past month was just five degrees higher than the mean reading over a 25-year period and was almost five above that of last year.

High temperature for the month was 81 degrees with a minimum of 31 degrees. A year ago the high was 76 and the low 31.5 degrees.

Rainfall was considerably below the average at 1.81 inches, the only month in the rain totalled 2.68 inches for the month. The 25-year averags for rainfall during May is 2.3 inches.

Admire Exterior Of New Bank At Intersection

With sidewalk barricades and scaffolding now away from the building, downtown shoppers are admiring the exterior of the new Toronto-Dominion Bank on the corner of Front and Bridge Streets.

The unusual window treatment with vertical panels of glass running almost from the sidewalk level to top of the structure lend a different appearance to the new building. Vertical columns of polished granite separate the window sections.

The entire ground floor section of the building and part of the second floor will be utilized by the bank, while the main part of the second floor is to be used by Cameron and Sprague law offices.

Plastering of the interior is completed and painting is underway.

Successful Dessert Bridge At Country Club

A beautiful June day was Monday, and equally lovely was the "Dessert Bridge" held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club amid ideal surroundings of sweeping greens awards, under the auspices of the Ladies' Section.

Peonies, iris, tulips and lilacs adorned the entrance, the clubroom and the dance hall making of the latter a veritable indoor flower garden.

Greeting the guests at the lounge entrance were, Mrs. Steve Bowerman, president of the Ladies' Section of the Club, and Mrs. Arder Mathews, social convener.

The two large tables appointed with white cloths, and centred with spring flowers, flanked by yellow candles, displayed a bounteous assortment of mouthwatering desserts, which were enjoyed by approximately 200 ladies.

Following the repast, bridge was enjoyed with the favors going to high, Mrs. J. G. Tatham; 2nd, Mrs. C. E. James, and 3rd prize to Mrs. Norman Black. The hidden prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Mott and Mrs. R. Smith of Belleville, and Mrs. Golley of Mrs. Mandell.

The very successful Dessert Bridge, with commendations going to the convener, Mrs. Harold Mott, assisted by the house and social committees.

PLUMP NUDE

RICHMOND, Eng. (CP) — A nude statue of the goddess Aphrodite is to be removed from this Surrey town. It has been defaced several times, and recently someone painted the words "Bubous Betty" on it.

Christ Church Parish Guild Sponsors Delightful Blossom Tea

White baskets of wine-colored peonies, fragrant- white lilacs, delicate lilies-of-the-valley sweeping sprays of white Van Houtii spirea, cream and mauve iris, and nature's fitted chrysanthemums adorned the window ledges and strategic points in the commodious auditorium of Christ Church parish hall yesterday afternoon for a delightful tea sponsored by the Parish Guild. These coupled with the attractively adorned booths with their entwined garlands of pastel green and pink, backed by the pale grey walls made a most inviting picture.

Receiving the many guests were Mrs. J. B. Creegan, wife of the Rector, Mrs. Everett Smith, wife of the assistant Rector, and the president of the Guild, Mrs. R. Dawson.

The long, damask-covered tea table was centred by a crystal bowl of double-white lilacs and tall spikes of orchid-tinted lupins, and flanked by crystal candelabra with pale green and pink tapers and candles ribbed from lacey white collars. At either end were the silver services presided over by Mrs. A. S. McConnell, wife of the Rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, and Mrs. L. Arthur Page, wife of the Rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill; Mrs. R. Godden and Mrs. L. Wilson; Mrs. H. Pitt and Mrs. G.G. Wright, wife of a former Rector of Christ Church, the late Rev. G. G. Wright.

SERVING

Those who served included: Mesdames E. Colbourne; T. Schofield; P. Thil; Hall; F. Lister; G. Adams; H. Bateman; M. Vanner; J. Wright; Livingston; W. Gray; Osborne; S. Maxwell and Miss Erma Panter, while those replenishing were Mrs. H. Thompson, Mrs. Beeby, Sr., and Mrs. Vesterfield.

In charge of the teapots, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. M. Kane.

The tea room hostesses were: Mrs. E. Hickey; Mrs. F. Beeby, Jr., and Mrs. F. Lister.

Mrs. R. Hinchey and Miss Florence Brown presided at the seat of customs and received the dues.

The homecooking booth, which extended across one end of the auditorium was prettily appointed with two vases of peonies and snowballs, spirea and mauve and white iris, and adorned with entwined ropes of pale green and pink.

BOUNTEOUS HOMECOOKING

Centring a bounteous array of lemon, pumpkin, apple and raisin pies, chocolate angel cakes, lemon filled; orange breads; short breads; muffins; homemade Chili sauce; canned black cherries; taffy tarts; vegetable relish jars, and many other delicious viands, were three "blossom tea cakes," topped with the legend, "Blossom Tea 1959" in white, prettily iced with pale pink, and placed in the form of a penny with two tiny cake "buds." These were conveyed by Mrs. Charles Bishop, assisted by Mesdames G. Watkin, S. Lemmins, Slavin, W. Dawson, Vagg, S. Noakes, D. Bradford, E. Bradford and S. Wallbridge. Mrs. G. Winter was the treasurer.

On the fancy work booth, which was also prettily decorated in the same motif of pale green and pink, as were the others, and conveyed by Mrs. H. Wright, assisted by Mrs. W. Kempston, Mrs. William Adams, Mrs. F. Rodgers and Mrs. Ron Godden, was a vast of snowballs mingled with tulips and lily-of-the-valley, and surrounding this were lace-edged pillow slips, tea cloths, fancy handkerchiefs, men's ties, costume jewellery, fancy crocheted doilies, table runners, and on stands at either end an array of aprons fashioned from prints and organdies, some in half styles and others in the all-over pattern. Children's pyjamas, overalls, shirts, and a beautiful quilted pink and Canadian Rose" quilt with pink roses on a white ground, the whole bound with matching pink.

CANDIES

A candy booth, with its centre of snowballs, lily-of-the-valley, mauve lupin and mauve iris, was quite attractive with little cups in purple with pink bands filled with maple creams, chocolate fudge and divinity fudge. There were also boxes of the same. These were convened by Mrs. Burtt and Miss G. Scott.

The jewelry booth was colorful and gay with its artificial sprays of pink apple blossoms, knitted animals which included a Rhesus monkey, like the little fellow which travelled into space, a pink Mrs. Peter Rabbett, Donald Duck, doll bandettes, gloves, perfume, darky dolls, a cardinal bird, an old fashion pin stand in wood with bearing the promise, "Jesus Never Fails," several wooden chrysanthemums and other potted plants. These were in charge of Mrs. Day and Mrs. Chaplin.

A nursery was also provided for the wee tots in charge of Mrs. Ashton and Mrs. Dack.

A brilliantly successful "Gleam tea," bringing appreciative thanks to the overall convenors, Mrs. G. H. Dimeet and Mrs. R. Jordan, and to all who assisted.

Wedding

JOHNSTON — EASTON

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, was adorned on Saturday, May 23rd, at 3.00 p.m. for a lovely Maytime wedding with white snapdragons, white Calla lilies, and white chrysanthemums, when Teresa Gail Easton of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilford Easton, became the bride of Alec Eugene Johnston of Hillier, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnston. The Reverend R.D. MacLean officiated. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Egerton Boyce, church organist, presided at the console of the organ and rendered the wedding music, accompanying the soloist, Mr. Donald Cherry, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in white satin over lace accented with mother-of-pearl on jacket collar and gown, which was fashioned in floor-length with molded bodice and jacket, having a Peter Pan collar and three-quarter length sleeves complemented by full fingertip gloves. She wore a veil of silk tulle illusion richly embroidered, with lace headdress adorned with lily-of-the-valley and carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with white 'mums, and tied with white cascading streamers.

Miss Gloria Noyes, as maid of honor, cousin of the bride, from Buffalo, was attired in white embroidered lace over silk taffeta with taffeta cummerbund and back butterfly bow, and carried a bouquet of pink daisies; the latter in turquoise, carried pink carnations. Their headdresses of white satin were studded with seed pearls. White accessories completed their bridal costumes.

Miss Mary Johnston, 6-year-old sister of the bridegroom was flowergirl in white organdy, with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Eugene Johnston are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Teresa Gail Easton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilford Easton of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnston of Hillier, Ontario. (Photo by Mac McGrimmon, Belleville.)

Mr. David Johnston, of Hillier, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Jay Easton of Belleville, and Thomas Johnston, of Bloomfield, R.R. 1, ushered.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother received, wearing a navy blue ensemble with pink accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in navy embossed satin with white accessories and corsage of red, Sweetheart roses.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask and centred by an all-white pedestal talled wedding cake in three tiers and topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom beneath a heart shaped white floral arch. Tall, white candles in silver holders, and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial accent.

For travelling to Brockville, Smith's Falls, Perth and Sharbot Lake, the bride chose a powder blue suit with white accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside in Trenton.

Guests attended from Buffalo, Port Hope, North Bay, Brockville, Peterborough, Trenton, Hillier, Wellington, Sharbot Lake, Frankford and Belleville.

The bride was honored at a shower prior to her marriage held at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Mays. The office staff of Delaro Sitellie presented her with a tri-lamp and reading lamp.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A few weeks ago, the Kinnemen and Kinette conference had, as a giveaway, a lawn set of umbrella, table and chairs. It seemed such a happy choice, because the garden is definitely becoming an extension of the home, and garden furnishings have become very stylish. It brings to mind a funny British song about modern living. It goes: "We're terribly House and Garden at number TB . . . awfully contemporary . . . The garden is full of furniture . . . the house is full of plants." And so on.

However, the sweeping popularity of outdoor living is creating a big boom in garden furniture, lawn umbrellas, children's swimming pools, portable radios, record players and TV sets. Folding chairs for outdoor purposes are purchased by most home owners, but the demand for fancier outdoor wood and metal furniture with padded upholstery is tremendous.

Canadian fabrics especially developed to stand up to exposure have helped boost the popularity of outdoor living. Colorful easy-care, cotton, duck, and canvas cloths and many modern fabrics coated with rubber or other water and weatherproof finishes are most popular.

The lawn swing and hammock have also staged a comeback, and new fabrics are being produced for them. There is apparently something very appealing about the idea of relaxing and swinging gently in the garden to escape from the ruth of modern living.

The outdoor living extends to cooking. It seems that no self - respecting Canadian wants to be caught eating steaks indoors anymore. Predictions are that practically every house will soon have a backyard barbecue. This has created a new demand for colorful tablecloths, place mats, floor cushions and other such items with all the color-fast, easy care qualities we have come to demand. And if what we have heard about men is true, have a lot of outdoor tables too, no eating steak on their knees for them!

We heard someone expounding the other day on how to take a real economy vacation by car; you might be interested too. Here are the points:

Abolish extras: To avoid that mysterious "miscellaneous" section of your travel budget, have a detailed account of everything you spend on route.

Make reservations, avoid fancy restaurants. You can save a great deal by packing lunches whenever possible.

Shun expensive admissions. Many of the most famous scenic views — the Rockies, Niagara Falls, are admission free.

Stay in tourist camps with housekeeping units; preparing your own meals and dinners saves you time as well as money.

Travel in the off - season: you can cut 10 to 25 per cent from food and lodging if you travel outside of the tourist season.

Use a good guidebook (unbiased) to show you the quickest, most economical route.

Bellevillians are taking an especial interest in the beautiful approach of the Queen, painted by Robert Hyndman, appearing in the last issue of Chatelaine. The artist is the son-in-law of Dr. and Mrs. Van Blaklaee of Belleville.

During heavy traffic time, we sometimes drive east on Bridge St. recently. We realize that this is now a lovely broad, straight avenue of travel. But it appears that some motorists feel that they have more to drive up for anything, much less stop even in a line of cars. If the saw two cars within a few blocks, swerve out almost into oncoming traffic around cars making a right turn ahead of them, and missing the front wheels by inches. We can only hope that the time saved by these drivers-in-a-hurry at the risk of accident, is put to good use.

Explorers Hold M-D Banquet

WELLINGTON — The Explorer group of Wellington United Church held a mother and daughter banquet Friday night. The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers and flower favors for each mother and guest being made by the girls. The Rev. A. Poulter led in grace. Following the toast to the Queen, Brenda Marshall proposed a toast to the mothers. Mrs. Helen Laver suitably replied. Mrs. Fern Gibson proposed a toast to the Explorers ,which was replied to by Ronnie Claire Ross.

The pot-luck supper was served by members of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the W.M.S. Delores Preston played a lovely piano solo. Connie McQuaid gave a fine recitation, followed by a girls' quartet consisting of Brenda Adams, Susan Alyea, Sharon McNeill, and Brenda Marshall.

Mrs. C. B. Hicks introduced the guests, Mrs. W. D. Grant of the Belleville Presbyterial, and Mrs. O. Bertrand, of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch. Mrs. Grant addressed the girls on the subject "You", and asked that the girls dedicate themselves to the church early in life as Christ did and to keep the goal in mind.

The affiliation service was held with members of the Woman's Missionary Society taking part. The counsellors, Mrs. Dorothy Preston and Mrs. Barbara Jandrew, presented the stars to those qualifying. A great deal of credit is due to the leaders for a most successful year of "exploring".

IODE Working Against Reds Across Canada

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—The work of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in the fight against communism was described Monday at the order's national convention.

A democratic action committee report prepared by Mrs. B. B. Osler of Toronto showed chapters across Canada have contributed $1,502 toward the Alert Service, a voluntary organization which provides information on Communist activity in Canada.

Mrs. Osler said there is an increasing demand for factual information on communism. She said "the IODE is making a determined effort to overcome the apathetic attitude of so many of us in Canada today."

LACK INFORMATION

Mrs. John Mills of Toronto, national public relations convener, said the public hasn't much knowledge of IODE activity.

"I am amazed," she said, "by the public's idea of the kind of things that are done by the IODE. The average person on the street thinks the IODE flag-waves. 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. You and I know this is not the case."

The order had petitioned the government to make the Canadian Ensign Canada's official flag but this was only "one small part" of its work.

Mrs. Mills said the order annually spends some $500,000 in welfare services at home and abroad and another $250,000 on education.

She stressed the importance of "word of mouth" public relations.

Women's Activities

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.—W.A.

4th SIDNEY — The May meeting of the Stone Church Woman's Missionary Society was held in the hall on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mrs. E. B. Phillips, group leader No. 2 of the Women's Association, presided over a short worship service assisted by Mrs. F. Vermilyea, Mrs. W. J. Tufts and Mrs. E. B. Phillips gave a short skit "Know Your Neighbors" taken from the study book.

A discussion on supply work followed and a collection taken to help the Mission Band buy paints as this is their share of supply for Mission overseas.

The treasurer, Mrs. Tufts, reported a good share of the allocation of $150 has been raised.

The next meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held on June 17 at the home of Mrs. W. J. Tufts as scheduled. The society will also serve lunch and meet with the Mission Band at the school later in June the date to be announced later.

The Women's Association held a short business session with Mrs. Phillips in charge. The Women's Association conference was announced. It was decided to ask for donations instead of having a Strawberry social and those who can to bring their contributions to the next meeting.

A Silent Auction was held and about $15 was raised.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge and a social half hour enjoyed.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

FORM OF NAME IN RETURN ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What form of name should I use when I write my name, or have it printed, in the return address on the flap of the envelope? That is, should I use the form Mary Smith or Mrs. John Smith? Or should I use Mary Smith when I write the return address and Mrs. John Smith when my name and address are printed? — Reader.

For this "public" information you use your formal name — Mrs. John Smith, whether the return address is handwritten or printed. That is, the return address should read like a postal address:

Mrs. John Smith
123 Park Street
Haven 3, New York.

SUGGESTIONS TO GROOM FOR REPLIES TO GUESTS' COMMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm the prospective bridegroom at a wedding in late-June. Would you like to help me by giving me a few suggestions as to what would be proper replies for me to make when, in the receiving line, the guests offer me their "Congratulations," or "I congratulate you . . . your bride is beautiful," and so forth. Just two or three suggestions will help, and I thank you. — Bob

Good question, sir, and it's a pickle that's to be "reparied" You'll need most of all a ready and a gracious reply to the cus-tomary "Congratulations" . . . and "Thank you, very much" and "Thank you so much" and "Thank you. You are very kind" are easy to remember and easy to say. Add the name if you're sure you know it. To such pleasant comments as "I congratulate you . . . your bride is beautiful," a gracious reply is, "She is beautiful, isn't she, and such a lovely bride!" And I recommend highly "Sallie and I are so glad (or 'so very glad') that you could come to our wedding."

Summer Topper

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

An accommodating topper is this coat in the new five-eighths length, which is just a bit longer than the regulation car coat. Its on trim Chesterfield lines is oyster white cotton poplin, it has a black velvet collar. A rain-or-shine selection, it is versatile enough to be worn over, or with, almost anything save very dressy apparel.

IODE Service Work Abroad And at Home Spelled Out

REGINA (CP)—Summer camps and clothing for under-privileged children . . . reading material for servicemen . . . hymn books in large type for elderly people . . . equipment for institutions and playgrounds . . . All this adds up to part of the services at home and abroad of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Delegates to the order's annual convention today heard convener Mrs. R.C. Latimer of Toronto review the work done by the department during 1958-59.

The order's 964 chapters across Canada spent $435,185 on services —75 per cent of it in Canada and the remainder abroad.

Members tagging and canvassing for worthwhile causes sponsored by other organizations raised $100,963 to put a total of $538,128 on the department's books.

LARGEST ITEM

Clothing and bedding earmarked for such groups as the British Save the Children Fund and the Indian Sisters Society totalled $146,573, largest single item.

Furnishings for hospitals, country and senior citizens' homes accounted for some of the $73,199 spent on institutional services.

British Columbia has opened the first IODE guest home for elderly women, to be known as the IODE Emerson House, Mrs. Latimer said.

Other large expenditures were for food—Christmas hampers, hot lunches, cod liver oil and vitamin pills for school children, treats for the elderly and milk for babies at clinics—which totalled $43,306.

VARIETY OF AIDS

Under recreation, funds for swimming lessons, camps for underprivileged children, and orphanage parties totalled $20,438.

"Amenities", a general heading covering items such as pocket-book editions for servicemen overseas, handicraft materials and home permanents for patients in mental hospitals, cost $41,538.

Chapters spent $20,471 on services ranging from donations for costly heart operations, artificial limbs, dentures, eye glasses and hymn books in large print for the elderly.

The order's work in memory of the dead of two world wars cost $11,961. One Nova Scotia chapter spent $2,316 to erect a plaque and cairn at the Louisbourg National Historical Site commemorating the bicentenary of the siege of the Cape Breton town.

Gentlemen:
Just a few brief comments on the 1959 Buick Hard Top Sedan.
The performance of this car is exceptional. The appearance of the '59 Buick is very striking and many favourable comments have been heard on this feature.
The riding qualities are very smooth, particularly on rough roads and on corners at reasonably high speeds.
There are many other features I could mention, but all in all, I would sum it up by saying the '59 Buick represents a top quality in comfort, convenience, riding qualities and appearance.
Yours very truly,
Gordon S. Henry, President, Central Alberta Broadcasting Co. Ltd.

W. Hastings District W. I. Meets In Stirling I.O.O.F. Dining Hall

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

The 58th district annual convention of the West Hastings District W. I. was held Thursday in the I.O.O.F. dining hall, Charlotte St., Stirling, with River Valley W.I. as the hostess branch.

The hall was attractively decorated with a blue and gold crest representing "Home and Country", flanked by Union Jacks. Baskets of white and mauve lilacs and tulips of various colors were used for decoration.

The president's table was covered with a gold cloth, and a low bowl of blue and gold pilous, tulips and pansies, carried out the institute color scheme. The luncheon at noon was served on long tables and bouquets of large perennial pansies added beauty.

A table along the west wall was used to display the various rugs and quilts that were completed this winter and shown on achievement day. There were 11 in the group and all were different in designs and made a colorful picture.

A.C.W.W. DISPLAY

A large poster map of A.C.W.W. showing institutes and countries in green and gold was placed on the front wall. One branch institute has had the "friendship link" with an institute in England for the past 14 years. A display was made from the cover of an English "Home and Country" depicting their 40 years of carrying institute news to the women of England. There was also English patters, clippings, and reports of the meetings of Abbots Leigh W.I. in Bristol. Copies of "The Countrywoman" and "Federation News" were also displayed.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, president of River Valley W.I. (the hostess group) and Mrs. Ross Bush welcomed the guests and they arrived. The total attendance was over 60. This included four visitors and 20 representatives from seven branches — Bay of Quinte, Chatterson, Frankford, Islandale, Stirling, Wallbridge and River Valley.

Mrs. Percy Utman, the only charter member of River Valley Institute and Mrs. Vernon Harris were in charge of registration.

Mrs. Harry Coulter, president of West Hastings district, presided over the two sessions. She opened the meeting and then introduced the guest speakers, Mrs. Clifford Gillespie, Grafton Federated Board member, and Mrs. Marilyn Sauve, home economist for the county of Lennox, Addington and Hastings.

Mrs. Harold Phillips read a fine report of the 1958 annual and outlined the financial picture. This showed a balance on hand of $44. Mrs. Grace Bartindale read the auditor's report for herself and Mrs. Berson Mitts.

EXTENDS WELCOME

Mrs. Ernest Carr extended a welcome on behalf of River Valley W.I. She expressed the opinion that meetings of this nature strengthened the bonds of friendship between branches and that teamwork of all the members striving for one goal, "home and country".

She read excerpts from "The "Best Things of Life", which included the following: "The blessings and comforts of our homes. The love of our friends, the joy of working in freedom and peace, and the respect of others. The best law is the Golden Rule; the best education a self-knowledge; best philosophy, a contented mind, best science, extracting sunshine from cloudy day; best telegraphy, flashing a ray of sunshine into a gloomy heart; best biography, the life that writes Charity in the largest letters; best art, painting a smile on the face of a child; best mathematics, multiplying the joys and dividing sorrows of a friend. And the best things of life are within reach of us all. If we don't make use of them we cannot realize their value and happiness."

Mrs. Ada Meyers of Bay of Quinte W.I. gave the response to the welcome and wished River Valley continued success in its endeavours.

The president gave a full report of her visits to the branches in the district and said at Tweedsmuir Institute Work shop, six branches were represented. The branches were all represented at the spring executive meeting. She urged the branches to use their own resources more rather than engaging guest speakers. She also urged the use of "The Hand Book" in carrying out proper procedure.

Mrs. Gillespie ratified the district directors or their alternates in attendance as follows: Chatterton, Mrs. Harold Bloor, present; Mrs. Harry Elver, alternate; Finkle; Bay of Quinte, Mrs. Arnold Ketchum, absent; Islandale, Mrs. Arden Gilchrist; Unlondale, Mrs. Gerald Harrington, absent; Frankford, alternate, Mrs. Milton Grille; Pinegrove, Mrs. Allan Finkle; River Valley, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; Wallbridge, Mrs. Arthur Carleton; Stirling, "Friendship Link" with an institute in England for the past 14 years. And the best things of life are within reach of us all. If we don't use their franchise and thus preserve democratic government.

MANY DISPLAYS

There were many displays of fashion articles, school books, rug-making in England. A double float was entered in the Stirling centennial parade. The Tweedsmuir History Workshop was informative on dish branches have their own histories. Motion included "Preservation of Past, Events," and poems included, "Pioneers," "Past and Present," and "God Began History in Creation and He Has Not Finished Yet."

Demonstrations included "Hydro in the Home," smocking, plastic foam flower-making, making of handmade christmas gifts, soft toys. Roll calls included health rule, emergency shelf, first aid supplies, article made from a yard of material. Three humorous girls' clubs and nearly all took advantage of an Extension Service. Three branches have girls' clubs and a training school. Several contributors gave individual papers which were highly commended, she said.

Mrs. Bert Bush, Unlondale, gave a report on "Resolutions." This included articles read from "Home and Country," regarding resolutions adopted the previous year. Branches were requested to carefully follow procedure outlined in the Hand Book when drafting a resolution. Any resolution should be carefully thoroughly at more than one meeting before a vote is taken. Try to have one topic devoted to resolutions, she said.

Public relations was next. Five, Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a report on this committee work. She said in part: "Today we are pioneering as this is the first report of a public relations convenorship in West Hastings district. The first appointment was made at the last year's annual meeting.

AIMS, OBJECTIVES

She said the main thought is that through public relations the world is brought to our doors and the accomplishments of all institutes will be published. Each branch make their own decisions as to how they will spend their public relations grants. Reports reported their regular meetings in the newspapers. They also publicized Extension Services, social evenings, card parties, and such. Two branches have a paid corner in a weekly newspaper.

The total amounts recorded was $2,497.50. This was itemized on special sheets for branch secretaries and convenors of this department. A large poster was also placed on the front of the hall which gave a picture of the vast scope of this department.

The latter covered gifts to the sick, donations to fire victims, Scouts, Legion, Red Cross, "Friendship Link" magazines, personal gifts, advertising, honorariums, flowers, transportation, and building fund. Costs of approval projects to FWIC, FWIO, and local quilt donations amounted to $649.

"The public relations convenor in each branch should be alert to publicize the new approval projects," she said. "Don't experiment, but give the simple truth, and thus let the general public know what you are doing," she said in Mrs Joyce Gay at 1 p.m. every Tuesday, over CJBQ to keep informed on Institute work.

"The public relations convenor must constant job all through the year. She must be alert to all that is going on in her branch and help promote ideas. All branch convenors are asked to co-operate with this key officer."

Publicity included exchange of pictures between branches, clippings, roll calls and in available public places. A good roll call — "Lucky Ive, but decide for yourself."

The group sang "Sonny Side Up." All sang "God Save the Queen."

PRESENTS MESSAGE

Mrs. C. Gillespie commented on the various reports and then presented a message and form, FWIO. She thought greetings outlined by the president, Mrs. James Haggerty, Saguenay. The Hand Book committee is busy preparing the new book for next year at Guelph the public relations convenors will be given special assistance in this new department.

The five delegates chosen to attend the provincial conference at Edmonton were expressed by the president, and selected in "Heroes" Mrs. Marilyn Sauve, home economist, gave a message on behalf of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, directing that it is important to invite all of the women of the community, if possible, to participate in the short courses.

Branches may have more than one short course per year if they so desire. It is also a good idea for two or three branches to join in a course and then make the necessary arrangements to carry out the plan.

Miss Helen McKerober, director of this Extension Service in Toronto is eager to keep up to date with new trends. The good old standards and skills are basic in homemaking and thus food and clothing are important. Institute women are anxious to have the latest information on nutrition and facilities as well as the most progressive methods in cooking and sewing.

There are several Leaders' Training Schools available and Miss Sauve will make all necessary local arrangements. The secretary of each branch make application not later than June 15 to the head office in Toronto.

The short courses cover: food and nutrition under various headings, clothing and textiles. There are also special study units, home crafts, health education, safety begins at home, cultural interests, Institute projects, leadership and bookcraft.

The new A.C.W.W. slogan was displayed and many other helpful ideas were presented from the board. Her closing thought was: "Keep programs on a high level; have dignity in meetings, and strive to further aim of departments for "Home and Country."

This closed the morning session.

After grace the hostess group served a 50-cent plate luncheon.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with entertainment by River Valley public school children under the direction of the school supervisor, Miss Grace Pitman, and the school teacher, Mrs. R. Gordon.

"Irs. George Heasman led in the singing of "Marching Along Together," "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet" and "Let the Rest of the World Go By."

Mrs. Roy Bush expressed a special thank you to Mrs. Harry Coulter, retiring president for the year during the past two years. Mrs. Coulter reciprocated with thanks to all members of West Hastings for kindly cooperation during her term of office.

North Hastings W.I. Holds District Annual at Springbrook

Springbrook branch of North Hasting's Women's Institute was hostess to the 31st district annual on May 27th. The president, Mrs. Ernest Irwin, Campbellford, presided at both morning and afternoon sessions.

Mrs. C. McKeown of Springbrook, welcomed the ladies and Mrs. J. Watson of Rylstone, replied. The minutes of the last annual meeting and the financial report were read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Carl Linn and the auditors' report was given by Mrs. W. J. Barlow. These were adopted as read.

Mrs. Irwin called Mrs. A. Herrington of Madoc, branch to the platform and explained to the ladies that Mrs. Herrington had won second prize in the Ontario W.I. song contest. She congratulated Mrs. Herrington and said how proud North Hastings district is to know that one of its members had won this honor. Copies of the song were passed to the audience.

In her president's address, Mrs. Irwin said that during her term of office she had visited twelve of fourteen branches and had tried always to work for the good of the district. She had enjoyed the work and urged the ladies to be ready to take an office. No office is too difficult is one puts one's heart into it and enjoys working with and for others and the return in knowledge and happiness is more than one can tell.

Mrs. Irwin introduced Mrs. Clifford Gillespie of Grafton, representative of the Federation Board, who brought greetings from Mrs. Haggerty, provincial president and told of some of the work done by the FWIO Board. She reported some difficulties arising in preparing the new handbook but hoped the final draft would be ready by fall.

There is to be a conference next year for public relations representatives, this being a new office that needs some explanation.

RESOLUTIONS

Many resolutions have passed through the FWIO board and have been acted upon by the government departments concerned, one of these being reimbursement to farmers for animals lost from rabies. The FWIO, in co-operation with the Junior Farmers is giving Miss Ethel Chapman a trip to Scotland to attend the ACWW conference. The FWIO has been requested to provide a steel bench bearing Ontario's coat of arms for the W.I. nook in the International Peace Garden.

Mrs. Gillespie ended by asking the ladies to keep their programs and social activities always on a high level and to be ever ready to throw out a helping hand.

Mrs. W. Rollins, of Cooper, conducted a sing-song, including Mrs. Herrington's song.

Reports of standing committees were interesting and challenging, showing that real effort is made in each department. One resolution was brought in and sustained.

Miss Nancy Reynolds of Cooper, reported on Junior Institutes. The Madoc group is the only one this year but they have been most active. They held "12 meetings, had several speakers on timely topics and enjoyed several social affairs.

Mrs. K. Tompkins conducted a brief memorial service for deceased members.

AFTERNOON SESSION

In the afternoon, Mrs. M. Sauve, home economist spoke on 'Extension Services for the home maker and Girls' Work'. She reported on last year's courses asking the Institute to examine the hobby tables where a splendid display made well for the interest taken.

Most of the districts had asked for a Tweedsmuir Book Workshop, and these are being carried out as quickly as possible. A suggested Workshop for the year is "Hints, save dollars and make sense."

There is an increase in the number of Girls' Clubs this year and much credit is due the branches who sponsor them and provide leaders.

Miss Jayne Gay sent a message asking branches to report to her any items of interest that she might use in her radio talk over C.J.B.Q.

Roll call was answered by the president of each branch speaking on any subject she chose for one minute. These were most interesting. Mrs. J. Thompson told of a proposed setting of a plaque at Eldorado, last year, to commemorate the beginning of gold mining in the County.

Mrs. Chapman, of Cooper, had recently visited in England, and compared older ladies there to those of Canada. Her mother, who is 81, walks twice a week one and one-half miles to visit a son. Another woman at 75 years, has obtained her first driver's permit and she also rides a bicycle in company with her grandson, sometimes going four miles.

Mrs. E. Holmes of Queensboro, spoke on conservation of wild flowers. Some told of special work done in their branch and others brought greetings or told a humorous story.

Mrs. S. R. Beatty, of Madoc, explained that the Belleville Area will now be named "Trent Valley Area." The 15 branches of Hastings-Prince Edward County are to be added to this area, bringing the total to 75 branches to be represented at the area convention.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The new slate of officers presented by Mrs. A. Bailey of Madoc is as follows: Hon. president, Mrs. E. Irwin, Campbellford; president, Mrs. George McClennon, Eldorado; 1st vice-president, Miss Jayne Gay, Ivanhoe; 2nd vice - president, Mrs. Rex Rollins, Madoc, R.R. 3; secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Carl Linn, Bonarlaw; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harold Chambers, Eldorado; Federation representative, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Rylstone; alternate, Mrs. Frank Cosby; auditors, Mrs. W. J. Barlow, Bonarlaw and Miss Grace Warren, Marmora; press reporter, Mrs. Newell Broad, Madoc, R.R. 2; district delegate, Mrs. Ernest Irwin; alternate, Mrs. Harold Chambers, Eldorado.

STANDING COMMITTEES

Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Russell Ezard, Eldorado; citizenship and education, Mrs. Leonard Trotter, Madoc R.R. 2; public relations, Mrs. Frank Slater, MacArthur's Mills; historical research and current events, Mrs. J. McKeown, Springbrook; home economics and health, Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins, Harold R.R. 2; resolutions, Mrs. Holmes, Queensboro; Junior Institutes, Miss Nancy Reynolds, Madoc R.R. 2.

Mrs. McCrimmon, the new president, was introduced and she thanked all for the honor they had given her in making her their president. She pledged her best effort in the coming year.

Mrs. Irwin spoke briefly in farewell, again thanking all for their generous co - operation during her term of office.

Mrs. S. R. Beatty expressed to Mrs. Irwin, on behalf of the district, sincere appreciation of her untiring efforts in the past and best wishes for continued happiness and health.

Mrs. B. Carman reported for the courtesy committee. An invitation from Madoc branch to be its guests at the 1960 district annual to honor its 50th anniversary, was accepted.

Three Canadian Equerries Ready to Start Canada Tour With Queen and Prince Philip

LONDON (CP)—As equerry to the Queen, Lt.-Cmdr. Ian Macpherson, 33, of Halifax, plans to "play it by ear" when he travels across Canada on the Royal Tour this summer.

"What I mean is, we will handle each situation as it arises," he said. "It's a case of common sense and courtesy."

Another equerry, Sqdn. Ldr. Robert Edwards, 34, of Lloydminster, Sask., and Winnipeg, generally agrees with this approach. "And it's also a case of being around when required."

The third Canadian equerry for the tour, Maj. Antoine Reid, 39, of Montreal, returned to Canada several months ago after completing a one-month tour of duty at Buckingham Palace.

Two of the three equerries will be with the Canadian party during the entire Canadian tour, except when the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh are ... ciling.

TRAINED AT PALACE

A palace spokesman defines their duties thus:

They must be in personal attendance of the Queen at all times; they are responsible for details of the Queen's engagements, seeing that they are orderly and on time; they must be close by when anyone is presented to the Queen, offering background information on the individuals. Finally, they look after the Queen's guests are well looked after.

As an initial training course, the three Canadians each spend a week with the Queen at Balmoral is there now—and act as equerries to the Queen. They also attend various functions in the United Kingdom. A senior British equerry is trying to explain the routine.

"All this goes along very smoothly," explains Macpherson, who completed his month in Scotland May 7. "We are in formation immediately behind the royal party and are told where and when to dismount. Edwards describes this phase of the job as "very interesting and pleasant."

WEARS UNIFORMS

While in the palace, the Canadians are assigned rooms with private baths and are free to wander where they please—except for that, of course, to the royal suites. They wear their individual service uniforms, with a gold cord and tassel on the right shoulder and a gold E-R insignia on the left.

Edwards, a meticulously-dressed, sandy-haired pilot, will fly to Canada with the Queen and Duke aboard the Comet IV airliner. Macpherson will cross on the royal yacht Britannia and join the Queen at Sept-Iles, Que. Reid will join the royal party at St. John's Nfld., the first stop on the tour.

Like other members of the palace staff, the equerries can say little about their experiences with royalty. "We are guests of the palace," explains Edwards, "and we wouldn't talk about our hosts."

EXPERIENCED

Macpherson, heavily-built and jovial, is the only experienced equerry of the three. For 18 months he was aide-de-camp to Governor-General Massey and he performed some of the ceremonial duties of the governor-general's ropes at that time. Apart from this, he has spent most of his 12-year naval career at sea, including, a brief stint in Korean waters. He is a bachelor.

Edwards, who joined the RCAF in 1947, has spent his peacetime career around the cockpit of North Stars and other transport aircraft. Most of the last three years, when he worked behind a desk, he was posted to Transport Command. During the Korean air lift he was awarded the Air Force Cross.

But he offers little information about his reward. "I guess I got it for just being around and staying out of trouble."

GREAT DANGER

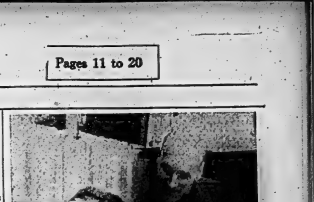
GENEVA (Reuters) — The nuclear powers face no danger of direct or indirect exposure to fallout, but probably large illness though it is impossible to estimate at present, the International Red Cross Association reports. An 80-nation conference will consider the report at the opening of an international convention on safeguards for workers against radiation hazards which the ILO and 70 member nations already have adopted.

CBC Monopoly In Television Will Be Broken

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC's television monopoly of six major Canadian cities will be broken next year by private TV competition.

Revenue Minister Nowlan told the Commons broadcasting committee Tuesday that "in a few months" the Board of Broadcast Governors will begin hearing applications for licences to set up the private outlets next year.

The publicly-owned CBC now has sole TV rights in six centres —Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver—whose metropolitan areas have a combined population approaching 10,000,000.



Mr. Nowlan had indicated earlier that the government would be ending the "single station" policy under which only one TV station has been allowed in each area.

His announcement Tuesday referred only to the CBC monopoly. There was no specific mention of relaxing the policy in 14 cities now served by private stations.

In Toronto, BBG Chairman Dr. Andrew Stewart commented that at least one of the six CBC cities will have a private station next year. He said he doesn't think it will be possible to license applications for all centres next year.

Mr. Nowlan's reference to the broadcasting policy was part of his argument against a motion by Conservative Leader Diefenbaker that the CBC produce a cost breakdown and revenue figures for its various programs over a one-month period.

However, a group of progressive Conservatives on the committee carried the motion by a vote of 11 to 9.

SMOOTH CHANGEOVER — The army is being kept busy with accommodation arrangements for some 2,000 Canadian housewives who will accompany their soldier husbands to Soest, Germany, this fall when Canada's Infantry Brigade Group is stated. Sgt. Ed Mills of London, Ont. (left), and Sgt. Major. Mel Dunn of Ottawa are shown here working on a master chart controlling 607 married quarters in Soest. In the 48 hours before the departure of one family and the arrival of another, the two assist in supervising a top-to-bottom housecleaning job for the benefit of newcomers. Government Plan to Expand Jobless Insurance Coverage Shapes Up Into Major Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Government would spread their forces too proposals to expand unemployment insurance coverage and increase costs to workers and employers are shaping into the biggest parliamentary battle of this session.

Sitting after sitting of the Commons industrial relations committee—which is studying the government measure — has exploded into verbal crossfire with Conservative Martin(L — Essex E) leading the foray against Progressive Conservative Bell, Carleton) and Liberal Chairman R. Hardy Small (PC —Toronto - Danforth) there are opposition outbursts Tuesday as he demanded that the committee, which has been meeting morning, also hold afternoon sessions while the House is sitting to speed up consideration of the bill. tagged by Mr. Martin as containing "unfair imposition" and "hidden taxes."

In the hubbub that ensued, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue cried "steamroller" and Liberal Caron JE — Hull) charged the Conservatives were trying to muzzle the Liberals. Conservatives said the Liberals were shedding "crocodile tears."

Mr. Small finally agreed to postpone a decision on afternoon sittings until today, though he made clear that afternoon sittings will be required soon.

The Liberals claimed this would spread their forces too thinly so that they could not carry out their responsibilities as an opposition.

Mr. Martin sought to question Labor Minister Starr on replacements of the three labor men who resigned from the unemployment insurance commission's advisory body after the government appointed Alastair F. Macarthur of Toronto as labor representative on the three-member insurance commission.

Mr. Small ruled Mr. Martin's question out of order.

The bill also drew criticism outside the Commons.

The Canadian Metal and Mining Association said in a telegram to the committee is "considerably disturbed" by the proposed insurance rate boosts. They would add substantially to operating costs.

The Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, representing 70 insurance companies, said in a brief there had been a gradual departure from sound financing principles in the insurance commission's operations during the last two years.

During this time the commission's funds had been cut about one-half to some $500,000,000. The association said seasonal benefits to unemployed workers had been expanded during this time. These benefits were in effect welfare payments.

Civil Defence Responsibility Has Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—New arrangements in federal government departmental responsibilities for civil defence come into effect Sept. 1 under a May 28 cabinet order tabled Tuesday in the Commons.

The order revokes a 1951 order-in-council that made civil defence the responsibility of the national health and welfare department.

Now it is to fall under four areas of authority: National defence, health and welfare, justice and the prime minister's office.

The National Defence Department will be responsible for:

1. Provision of technical facilities and operation of a warning system to warn the public of impending attack.

2. Determining location of any nuclear explosion and warning the public of fall-out dangers.

3. Assessment of damage and casualties, control of re-entry to damaged or fall-out contaminated areas, direction of police and fire services, municipal and other maintenance and repair services including law and order and emergency communications.

The health department's duties will be:

1. Assistance to provincial and municipal governments in providing medical, nursing, hospital and other health services.

2. Operations of the federal civil defence college at Arprior. Through the RCMP, would be responsible for helping provincial and municipal governments maintain law and order and for controlling and directing civilian movements in the civil defence exercises and operations.

Other responsibilities not covered by these departments would become the concern of the prime minister's office.

Interest on Treasury Bills Is Under Fire as Too High

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is borrowing $200,000,000 through a special one-year issue of treasury bills—an innovation in federal financing—but has run into Commons criticism over the interest rate it will have to pay.

Finance Minister Fleming announced to the Commons Tuesday night that the issue, on which tenders closed late Tuesday, had been "heavily over-subscribed."

He said the government has allotted the full $200,000,000 issue at an average price of $98.78—a figure which will mean an interest rate of 5.492 per cent for the year.

William Benidickson Liberal finance critic, said there appeared to be "a very outstandingly heavy discount."

"The effective rate is exceedingly high for the exceptionally short term."

CAN REJECT TENDERS

Under terms of the issue, the government reserved the right to reject any or all of the tenders for the treasury bills submitted by banks and other financial institutions. However, the government said the entire emergency issue—the first treasury bills to have such a long term—

These average interest yield of 5.492 per cent compares with the average yields at last week's regular weekly treasury bill offering of 4.9 per cent for 91-day bills and 3.26 per cent for half-year bills.

This is the first time the government has sold treasury bills through other than the routine weekly offerings, which are bought by financial institutions wishing to invest money for relatively short periods.

The $200,000,000 issue, to be dated and issued June 10, is intended as the first step in paying off a $509,925,000 issue of 2½-per-cent bonds which matures July 1.

The treasury bills can be paid for either in cash or through exchange of the 2½-per-cent bonds maturing July 1.

One statement by Mr. Fleming raised fears suggesting that the new treasury bill issue may provide the means for an expansion of credit by the chartered banks.

Replying to a question by Mr. Benidickson, the minister said the banks can use the bills as part of their reserves deposited in the Bank of Canada. Mr. Benidickson said this wasn't the way to handle the $½-per-cent bonds which may be exchanged.

Color Questions Again Crop Up In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) —A veteran Indian army nurse who tended wounded under Japanese fire here says accommodation for herself, her two sons and her Anglo-Indian husband has been refused because of their colors.

Mrs. Irene Barrett and her husband Wallace said Tuesday they have been turned down three times in applying for apartments and had been refused twice Mrs. Barrett's dark skin was the reason, Mrs. Barrett is Eurasian.

Mr. Barrett, a shipper with an import firm here who met his wife when they encountered a cholera epidemic in India during the Second World War, said it was the first time they encountered a color barrier either in England or in Canada.

For three years before she met her husband Irene Barrett was in India army nurse tending casualties in British army forward field hospitals in Burma and Assam. In 1942 she was with the who arrested Stevens, told the Burma front a day before the Japanese forces broke through and court Stevens was non-operative to the south.

Political, Social Change Roots Of Unrest in Latin America

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Acts of violence in Nicaragua, Paraguay, Argentina and Peru are manifestations of a continuing revolution in Latin America, in a continent of nearly 200,000,000 people.

Political and social change plus grinding economic problems are the roots of unrest from Rio Grande. And the success of Fidel Castro's revolution to the north has set a fresh pattern in the few countries where dictators remain.

Instability has been chronic when it's remembered that Latin America is formed of 20 republics less than 150 years old, economically under - developed, with a population explosion and at various stages of a winning struggle to free itself from the political subservience to the United States.

Currently, the most spectacular events are taking place in Nicaragua, where President Luis Somoza has been challenged by an actual — if small—invasion by a group of possession of narcotics.

Stevens was arrested April 19 by the RCMP outside the prison. They found a suitcase containing several capsules in his shirt pocket, which on analysis proved to be heroin.

Earlier a statement Stevens made to RCMP officers was read in part to court of appeal on April 17 a prisoner named Gullet said a package of heroin which pills would come to Stevens through the mail.

The package arrived from Toronto, Stevens' statement said. He found it contained capsules which he placed in an envelope and put in his shirt pocket before going to work.

", told Gullet to get headache pills from the penitentiary hospital and he had these pills were stronger than headache pills.

"I was going to give the pills to Gullet and I expected to receive money for them although I don't know how much."

But his republic has never had anything else but dictators since it was formed in 1811.

Of the 1,500,000 inhabitants of land-locked Paraguay live on a bare subsistence level in an agrarian economy. Average per capita income has been estimated at less than $150.

The people have lived under a military dictatorship since 1954 in mutual law—less civil violence in 1947, except for a 30-day period in 1948, has been absent.

On that day Strossner dispersed a force of rebels and revolutionaries after it had protested police repression of demonstrations by university students—accused Communist agents.

MANY ARRESTS

Since then the dictator, whose army is tough if ill-equipped, has had scores of arrests—of his own Colorado Party and moved cavalry troops into the capital. Most of the 300 political prisoners are said to be members of Paraguayan exiles live in Argentina, where they reportedly hoping some day to invade their homeland.

Argentina, meanwhile, has itself been the scene of riots and demonstrations that have been trying to enforce an austerity campaign and a 60 per cent devaluation that followed the exile of former dictator Juan Peron in 1955.

The cost of living inflation—the cost of living has gone up 40 per cent since last December—is crippling Frondizi's program while labor unions, some under Communist influence, are opposing it, and demanding increased wages.

The government of Peru, also facing serious economic troubles, is fighting a major challenge from the opposition Popular Action Party headed by Fernando Belaunde Terry, defeated candidate in the last presidential election.

A bank strike was the spark for the current riots in Peru as well as Argentina, resulting indirectly in the arrest of virtually the entire high command of the opposition party and suspension of some constitutional guarantees.

In the 1956 elections President Manuel Prado defeated Belaunde by more than 100,000 votes, but Belaunde still asserts that he but because of fraud.

Acquit Guard On Charge of Possessing Drugs

KINGSTON (CP)—Henry Stevens, 39, a Kingston penitentiary guard was acquitted Tuesday on a charge of possession of narcotics.

Stevens was arrested April 19 by the RCMP outside the prison. They found a suitcase containing several capsules in his shirt pocket, which on analysis proved to be heroin.

The general sessions jury was out for an hour and three quarters before it brought in the verdict.

Earlier a statement Stevens made to RCMP officers was read in part to court of appeal on April 17 a prisoner named Gullet said a package of headache pills would come to Stevens through the mail.

The package arrived from Toronto, Stevens' statement said. He found it contained capsules which he placed in an envelope and put in his shirt pocket before going to work.

", told Gullet to get headache pills from the penitentiary hospital and he had these pills were stronger than headache pills.

"I was going to give the pills to Gullet and I expected to receive money for them although I don't know how much."

RCMP Corporal J. E. Arnold, who arrested Stevens, told the court Stevens was non-operative to the south.

Annual Pension Of Ministers Under Thousand

GWEN SOUND (CP)—Retired ministers of the Toronto conference of the United Church will receive an average pension of $950 a year, the annual meeting of the conference was told Tuesday.

Rev. E. W. Hart, secretary of the pensions committee, said a minister with 40 years' experience now could collect a pension of $1,440 a year. Pensions had been boosted 20 per cent effective last June 1 by action of the general council of the church.

In order to keep the 300 delegates voted in favor of supporting a new university of Northern Ontario. The United Church relations consultant for the province, Rev. Roman Catholic Church has formed the University of Sudbury during the last two years and a number other of the Roman Catholic Church is trying to promote a university in North Bay.

It was time the Protestant community entered the picture and established a first-class university in the north, Rev. Mr. Hart told the Northern University Association proposed a United Church - run liberal college in a federation under a non-denominational board of governors, he said.

Second Space Monkey Active

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Two rocket monkeys were safely recovered from under the skin of space monkey of the Atlantic Missile Range was reported active and normal afterward.

The recovery was used on the one-pound squirrel monkey.

Baker's flight came on a 200-mile ride through space in a Jupiter rocket Thursday died yesterday night at Ft. Knox, Ky., while undergoing a similar operation.

An anaesthetic was used on the first monkey, Able.

Officials of the School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola Naval Air Station, said Baker's condition was normal.

Able's spokesman said, it wasn't a formal operation, but that the doctors merely removed the electrodes, or tiny coiled wires just below the skin."

The two monkeys are to be removed in a few days.

BISHOP CLOSES CHURCH

FORSINONE, Italy (Reuters) A bishop has ordered a Roman Catholic church here to close indefinitely to punish local resistance for opposing his nomination of a new parish priest. The decree signed by the Bishop of Veroli and Forsinone, Msgr. Carlo Livraghi said parishioners had "obstinately sought to impede, with every means of intimidation, pressuring and oppressions, the full execution of acts of ecclesiastical jurisdiction."

2,000 Housewives Divide Belongings to Set off on Three-Year Stay in Germany

SOEST, Germany, (CP)—Sometime this fall about 2,000 housewives will divide their belongings into two groups, select one and set off for a three-year stay in Germany.

They are the wives of soldiers scheduled to replace members of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group now completing its tour of NATO duty in Europe.

The majority of families will be moving into the 1,620 brigade married quarters on the outskirts of the Westphalian towns of Soest, Hemer and Werl, scattered across the Canadian army camps—nine of them — are located. The rest—more than 800 in the present brigade—will be forced to seek accommodation in German homes. As in Canada, the married quarters are allocated on a points system primarily based on size of family and length of service.

HELPFUL HINTS

Defence headquarters in Ottawa is putting the finishing touches to a revise edition of a helpful little booklet entitled "So You're Going To Germany." Besides information on the trip, se-commendations to be found in many and differences in customs in the two countries, the booklet offers numerous suggestions to the girls about articles to take with them and things to leave behind.

Canadian army wives now in Germany have some tips of their own to offer.

Mrs. Ruth Harrington, wife of Cpl. Gordon Harrington of Walkerton, Ont., said the success of the army booklet was a great help—"I'd have been lost without it."

"But I still left behind several things I'd like to have had here."

Along with scores of other wives, Mrs. Harrington puts knick-knacks high on her "to get-list—"little ornaments, a copper warming pan, a special vase, things like that."

FULLY FURNISHED

The apartment-style married quarters are fully furnished and equipped down to refrigerator, washing machine, iron and can opener. The chairs are comfortable, the furnishings practical, the decor tasteful. But with typical military thoroughness, kitchens and other schemes are repeated unchanged in block after block of apartments.

It perhaps eliminates jealousy but it does get monotonous.

Knick-knacks are a must. A favorite painting adds a homey touch too. But, generally speaking, they should be left behind. Things like pictures and vases are easily obtainable in Europe and are cheap by Canadian standards.

Mrs. Gladys Stirton took her vacuum cleaner and floor polisher with her when her husband, Maj. Alex Stirton of Calgary and Ottawa, came to Germany as the brigade's senior public relations officer two years ago. "A friend who had already done a tour over here advised me to bring them. I wouldn't be without them."

A vacuum cleaner adds a floor polisher are, in fact, provided for each block. But most wives would like their own. Transformers can be obtained to eliminate the problem of voltage differences.

Two scepticisms was the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Mike Mitchell of St. John's, Nfld., retired Ken Reeves of Morden, Man., said their wives thought electric hair driers should be brought over, also pressure cookers.

CLEAN AND READY

A master chart of the 607 married quarters at Soest aids the month change-over, and working with this Sgt.-Major Mel Dunn of Ottawa and Sgt. Ed Mills of London, Ont., supervise a fast house-cleaning job for new arrivals.

The army puts a limit of about 1,200 pounds on the total weight of belongings for each family, a generous allowance all furniture goes into storage in Canada.

Most families bring over less than 900 pounds. It is just as well. When the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade moved to Germany in November, 1957, about 30,000 pieces of personal baggage were involved in the shift. Brigade officers working out details of the return journey say that at a conservative estimate the soldiers and their families will be taking 50,000 pieces back to Canada.

Wants New Riding

OTTAWA (CP)—Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) said Tuesday in the Commons he will soon introduce a bill which would create a new federal electoral constituency.

He said the proposed riding would take in the districts of Franklin and Keewatin which now have no representative in the 265-member Commons.

Mr. Nielsen said defence and transport department workers, RCMP, Indians and Eskimos living in the Arctic islands and east of the 100nd meridian now are disfranchised.

Programs for Royal Visit In Many Municipalities Are Nothing Short of Lavish

OTTAWA (CP)—Informal royal visits apparently are easier said than done.

The pattern laid down for the Queen's six-week summer tour of Canada was that it should be as informal and restful as possible.

But Esmond Butler, the Canadian who is press secretary at Buckingham Palace, sums up the difficulty this way: "After all, who is more representative than a mayor?"

The 60-odd men and women here who are planning what Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will do in Canada are pleased with what they have achieved.

NEAR COMPLETION

Production of a detailed program for the tour, which begins from 18 at St. John's, Nfld., in three weeks behind schedule. It should be completed by next week. Bits and pieces already have been announced.

General Howard Graham, commissioner for the Royal Tour, says all should be ready when the Queen begins the longest visit she has ever made to a country outside the British Isles.

Programs being laid on by municipalities are in many cases nothing short of lavish. All have striven to be interesting.

Take the Calgary program, where the Queen will see chuckwagon races and take part in an outdoor barbecue. Or her visit to the storybook land of the Klondike and other northern points.

Most communities are expected to declare holidays when the Queen arrives, although some will not, such as Montreal where the Royal Visit follows St. Jean-Baptiste Day, a provincial holiday.

CIVIC GREETERS

Mr. Butler, who is acting as liaison with Ottawa in tour preparations, and other Royal Visit pioneers see no contradiction of the pledge of informality in the fact the Queen will be greeted by mayors and aldermen at most of her 100 stops.

"Are we to pick up someone off the street and make him the Queen's host?" one official asked.

So a degree of formality—in fact a large amount of it—is unavoidable when the monarch moves among her subjects.

But to this extent the tour planners are succeeding: There will be no laying of cornerstones, only two unveilings and just one big ceremonial opening, that of the St. Lawrence Seaway June 26 at Montreal. This ceremony is one of the main purposes of the visit.

The prime purpose is, in the words of the Queen herself, is for her to learn how Canadians live, work and play, and to give Canadians as much opportunity as possible during the 44 days to see her.

CHANGE FROM PAST

The relatively small number of ceremonial functions is in contrast to the Queen's 34-day tour of Canada in 1951 when, as Princess Elizabeth, she was called on day after day to perform ceremonies.

The story was similar on the first occasion a reigning monarch visited this country—the 1939 visit of the late King George VI and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

A tour spokesman said "there will not be nearly as much handshaking this time."

This will be a restful tour compared to the 23,000 miles covered when most of the travelling was by train.

The Queen will spend most of her first 21 days in Canada aboard the royal yacht Britannia sailing up the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes. The tour will end with a week of rest aboard the yacht when Her Majesty sails for home.

More than half the 11,142 miles to be covered in Canada will be by air. Only 2,000 miles will be by train, and on these portions of the tour to the Queen's 36-day journey in Canada she will be taken in guarantee no strain on her Majesty.

The Queen will have additional opportunities for rest when she spends three days at Pennask Ranch near Kamloops, B. C., another three days at the home of Governor-General Massey at Port Hope, Ont., on her return eastward; and one day at the home of an as yet unidentified farm family near Charlottetown.

Tour planners have encountered some major problems, but not an unusual number considering the size of the tour. Derek Sedens, Manitoba's tour co-ordinator, resigned when a difference arose between him and General Graham.

In dispute was General Graham's veto of one item in Manitoba's proposed program. Mr. Sedgen wanted the Queen taken on a scenic drive in Winnipeg at 9 a.m. July 25 before her scheduled departure from the city at 10 a.m.

A strict rule, followed on Buckingham Palace instruction, is that the Queen's daily program must not start before 10 a.m. and must end by 11 p.m. There must be "reasonable" time for rest during the day.

In a few places such as Ottawa, city fathers have said they are not getting a fair share of recognition. But such problems have been ironed out, sometimes by small concessions.

LASTING GIFTS

A dilemma for many provincial and local planners is what to give the Queen as a gift. The Queen herself suggested a solution—that they do something that will benefit young Canadians. The royal household is bulging with fur coats, paintings and other gifts of this sort the Queen has received in the past.

Ontario has placed $500,000 into a fund for Queen's scholarships for Canadian university students. Saskatchewan also has established a scholarship. Governor-General Massey has urged that the Queen's decision be made by local communities.

The Hudson's Bay Company had no choice in the matter. King Charles II stipulated in the company's 1670 charter than in return for vast fur trading rights the company must present a gift of two elk heads and two beaver pelts whenever the monarch visits Rupert's Land. The company has said it will keep the ancient dictum.

The federal government has not announced what its gift will be.

Freese, Smoky Prove Good In Pinches

NEW YORK (AP)—If guys like Gene Freese or Smoky Burgess are available as pinch-hitters, it's time for the opposing pitcher to start worrying.

Freese, Philadelphia Phillies' secret weapon, has slammed five pinch-hit homers this season to move to within one of the major league record set by Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn in 1932. Freese also has had a double and a single and driven in 13 runs in 17 times at bat as a pinch-batter for a .412 average.

Freese's first pinch-hit home run was a grand slam off Miguel Cuellar of Houston in April 18 and helped the Phils win 14-9.

Burgess has collected six hits, including three doubles and two homers, in seven pinch-hit tries for a .857 mark. Smoky's overall mark for Pittsburgh is .370.

Rookie John Romano of Chicago White Sox has four hits in as many attempts as a substitute batter. Johnny Groth of Detroit has 3-for-4 including a homer. Al Pilarcik of Baltimore has 3-for-7 and a .714 pinch - hitting average. Gene Woodling has four safeties in five tries.

Dave Philley of Philadelphia, who holds the big league record of nine consecutive pinch hits, has had 4-for-11 and a .364 average. Bob Bowman of the Phillies has turned in the same pinch hitting performance.

Mickey Vernon has done well as a pinch-batter for Milwaukee with seven hits in 19 tries for .368. The Los Angeles Dodgers have gotten effective pinch hitting from Duke Snider (5-for-11) and Rea Fairly (3-for-7). George Crowe of St. Louis has six hits in 14 efforts for a .429 percentage.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS

Gnats Were Strictly for The Bird

CHICAGO (AP) — A swarm of gnats chased Orioke pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm off the mound in the first inning Tuesday night and delayed the Baltimore-Chicago White Sox game for 18 minutes.

Wilhelm, entering the game with a string of 22 consecutive scoreless innings, walked Nellie Fox, the second man he faced then he began waving his arms as if being attacked by phantom enemies.

Wilhelm refused to return to the mound until the air was cleared.

The ground crew went out and lit newspapers, to no avail.

Larry Doby forced Lollar at second with Fox scoring the first run off Wilhelm in 25 innings.

Veeck cracked later: "Since I probably will be accused of having something to do with the... bugs, I might as well say now I have had them in a bottle and have been training them for several years for just such an occasion."

Imlach Says Canadiens Want Al MacNeil

TORONTO (CP) — George Imlach, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday night his club has been approached by Montreal Canadiens for the services of defenceman Al MacNeil.

"Sure, they made advances, he said, "I'm rather slow and hard to handle. No agreement was reached but the door isn't closed. We'll probably talk some more about it."

MacNeil, a sturdy 22-year-old who was a standout with the junior Toronto Marlboros a few seasons ago, plays for Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

Imlach said he was not eager to see the rearguard depart his farm string, but he might be persuaded for someone of the calibre of Jean Beliveau or Henri Richard in exchange.

"I think that would be eminently fair. Either Beliveau or Richard would be acceptable for MacNeil."

Brampton Wins Over Welland

BRAMPTON (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors outfought Welland-Crowland Switzons 10-9 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game Tuesday night.

Hentry Bennett and Bill Wanless scored twice each for the Brampton club, with singles going to John Ford, Frank Cook, Larry Kendall, Clarke Pulford, Bert Russell and Bill Castator. Excelsiors also picked up 11 of the game's 13 penalties.

Bennett has scored three for Welland, with singles by Garry Carr, Jack Tunlock, Dave Hall, Mike Damico, Ted Howe, and Jake Bomberry.

"You know, Helen, I think all the weight you've put on lately is adding distance to your drives."

Twenty Nags Go to Post At Epsom

EPSOM, Eng. (CP) — Twenty thoroughbreds led by 7-to-1 favorite Pricillion, the French-trained colt owned by Prince Aly Khan were due to go to the starting post today for the 180th and richest running of the Epsom Derby.

Starting time was 10:20 a.m. EDT and the winner's prize $101,021.

Among the three-year-old colts were two America-owned hotes —Dan Cupid, a 20-to-1 shot owned by Mrs. P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, and Arvak, owned by Mrs. Josephine Bay Paul of New York and quoted at 33-to-1.

The tough, twisting 1½-mile Epsom Downs course was firm for the race, on which the Irish hospital sweepstakes is based, as a result of dry weather.

The big bookmakers fixed their final two-point odds at the Victoria Club in London as the annual epidemic known as derby fever gripped Britain.

Del Rice Breaks Leg

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Catcher Del Rice of Milwaukee Braves was found Tuesday to have suffered a fracture of the left leg when he was hit hard by Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants who slid home in the eighth inning of Monday night's game.

Rice will remain in hospital for several days and the leg will be placer in a walking cast. A club spokesman said he would be out of the lineup four to six weeks.

Infielder Mel Roach, sidelined with a knee injury since last Aug. 7, was reinstated by the Braves as an active player in time for Tuesday night's game with San Francisco Giants.

Roach was restored to active duty to make room on the disabled list for Rice.

WHO GETS IT?

The Royal Canadian Golf Association ahh backed by the Ontario Golf Association, is or has been, flooding the country with publicity regarding National Golf Week starting June 7 through June 14.

Says the RGA release: "Canadian golfers will all have the opportunity to challenge the National men's and women's champions during National Golf Week at over 600 clubs throughout the country.

"The men and boys will play against Henry Martell, Canadian PGA champion from the Highlands Club, Edmonton, Alberta. The ladies and girls will play against Marlene Stewart Streit, Canadian Open Ladies' champion of Fonthill and Toronto.

"Over 15,000 male and female players have 'beaten the champ' since the event was inaugurated in 1953 or just under 20 per cent of all those who have played.

"Conviviants may play as many rounds as they wish for $1.00 per round and select their lowest score to match against that of the green established by the champions. Players without handicaps will be handicapped by club pros, using the Callaway system.

"Pians are well advanced at all clubs for this annual tournament and the RCGA and the CPGA estimate over 25,000 will compete this year.

"All net funds are specifically used to teach the royal and ancient game to Canadian boys and girls."

The Ontario Golf Association bulletin says: "Every golfer has a personal stake in National Golf Week. It gives the only opportunity individually and collectively for everyone of us to do something that is important for all Canadian junior golfers and through golf to mold fine future citizens of our country."

It also states the OGA will give a special prize of ten lessons and one playing lesson to the lady and man golfer who shoot the lowest score in the province during National Golf Week.

The topflight golf organizations do a grand job in publicizing this event. After the tournament is over a news despatch tells the public how many golfers of both sexes "beat the champions" and possibly how many tried. There the publicity ends.

The gesture is a fine one. Anything that goes towards the betterment of Canadian youth, sports or otherwise, will get the wholehearted support of every news outlet in the country.

Unless we have been on vacation or the mail has been mislaid we have yet to receive a communication from the RCGA regarding the disposition of the funds from the "Beat the Champions" tournament.

The tournament is held, it is stated, to "do something truly important for All Canadian junior golfers."

We asked a veteran golfer his opinion. "As far as I know," he said, "the smaller golf clubs of the country do not benefit one cent from this 'Beat the Champions' tournament.

"In our district," he went on, "The Bay of Quinte, Trenton, Belleville and Napanee clubs do not get a cent from the tournament proceeds to finance junior golf." That's what the man said.

If this is the case where will some estimated $25,000 go this year? What juniors benefit by it? What clubs post in on the frenzy?

Perhaps this is the reason for the more or less lackadaisical attitude on the part of hinterland golfers to get into the "Beat the Champions" swim.

While on the golf subject, there was the case of 14-year-old Joe Horst, who, on his first shot on his first golf course, aced a 180-yard hole in one at Snyder Park Golf Club, Springfield, Ohio.

Joe raced to the clubhouse to tell pro George Smith about it.

"What will I do now?" the youth asked.

"You'd better quit," was Smith's retort, "you can't get any better."

Kid Howard Knocks Out Jackie Hayden

It was Howard's fourth victory in five bouts over the 22-year-old Pictou County boxer. Three of the wins were scored in title matches.

A big hole in the jaw ended the fight at 1:13 of the eighth round of the scheduled 12-rounder. There were frequent boos from the 3,480 fans.

Hayden complained mildly about the refereeing of Jack Macintosh but his manager, Henry Flisinger, said "Macintosh was disgusting." Flisinger said the referee allowed Howard to maul his fighter throughout the fight.

Hayden was ahead on points before Howard uncoiled the sizzler last that ended the battle. There were no other knockdowns.

The challenger piled up an early lead with sharp left and right combinations but began to tire under Howard's bull - like rushes.

Howard weighed 134¾ pounds, Hayden 134½.

Eastern Senior Hockey League Faces Extinction

Must Decline Five Entries By Deadline Set for July 7; Ottawa, Whitby Wait Word

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The brief three-year-old meteoric career of the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League is threatened with extinction.

The Cinderella League which spawned three Allan Cup champions and two world title-holders in its short span of action has until July 7 to survive.

That was decided at a fiery, fireworked verbal meeting of the league held in Whitby last night.

The Hull-Ottawa Canadiens withdrew its entry pending full operation of the five-team league.

Cornwall said it could not operate under last season's financial condition.

Kingston likewise. Belleville asked for and got a respite until July 7. Whitby stated it would wait until the deadline, and lacking no five-team action would seek other senior fields.

FIERY ARGUMENTS

The fate of the league hinges more or less on the possibility of Belleville McFarlands to enter a team and the Kingston Merchants to pay a pool deficit of some $1,683.82.

Representatives present were Ray Miron, Cornwall; Wren Blair, Kingston; Charles D. Tice, Belleville; Steve Amey, Kingston and Sam Pollock, Ottawa. The meeting was chaired by OHA past president Lorne Cook, Kingston, assisted by OHA executive member Jack Devine. Also present was George Dudley, league treasurer and secretary-manager of the CAHA, of Midland, Ont.

First proposition was the pool question. It was revealed Kingston had not paid its pool debts over a year of at the time amounting to $3,683.26 net. Outstanding accounts were: $1,200, Belleville $218, Cornwall $1122 and Whitby $130. This amounted to $6,634.

Revision of the pool figures revealed that Kingston owed $2,396, while Belleville had contributed $1,060. Hull $6.72; Cornwall $183.30 and Whitby $1,157.14.

Treasurer Dudley stated later that some $885.46 remained in the pool coffers. It was ruled by motion carried 4-1 (Hull-Ottawa) Cornwall ($163.30) be paid out of the pool in connection with $325 each be paid to Belleville and Whitby with the balance payable to each of Kingston.

The actual motion moved by Whitby and seconded by Hull-Ottawa was to the effect that July 7 be set as a deadline for the league to declare five entries and that Kingston pay its pool deficit.

Commonly Ray Miron told the meeting that his club had operated under a $18,000 loss last year and unless something is done this summer "we cannot operate. Unless this league reduces the salary limit we are not interested." We owe the bank $6,000. Things are tough with us."

Steve Amey, representing Kingston, said they were in the same position as Cornwall. Bill's Sam Pollock said he had the two teams to play but he did not know where they were going to play. Whitby's Blair said "We want to stay in the Eastern League. We want to play here but we want to know a date and if the league will operate, we otherwise we can go in another loop."

At this point, Hull-Ottawa Sammy Pollock said he would withdraw his team from the league because he cannot operate on the same basis as last year and pay three outlets. He would seek readmission if the league decided to operate on a full five-team basis.

Kingston, failing to pay its pool requirements, came in for a bitter league-lashing from all quarters. It was revealed that the Merchants "grossed" some $83,000 and showed an operating loss of $10,000.

Mr. Dudley, lashing out at the Kingston club, said senior hockey in Kingston is on a delicate footing. "The western leagues are losing money and Brantford Columbia is on the balance whether to operate or not."

"One thing that bothers me is the casual way in which some senior clubs look on operations. I think clubs have obligations one to the other and when one club fails that is a serious matter. Business men should operate the same in hockey as they do in their own business."

Keeping Kingston again, Dudley said, "they had the money to pay other debts such as supplies. What did they do with the rest of it. Kingston said they started with an $8,000 deficit and they send a man here without any proper information for this league."

Blair intruded at this point and proceeded to know if Kingston grossed $83,000 and netted $80,000 where did the money go.

"I can tell you, to education."

Dudley said that hockey is no different to any other business. Years ago senior hockey in Canada was very good. Now it has lost popularity and club operators won't recognize the fact. They must change their methods. They must convince players that their game is like living out of hockey is past. It is simply a lesson to augment their pay envelope.

ASK BELLEVILLE

Club representatives wanted to know the standing of the Belleville club. Alderman Tice explained that it had been operated by a manager and the arena commission.

As far as the city of Belleville is concerned, we are out of business by the time the city of Belleville is concerned," he said.

Asked by Mr. Dudley if anything was being done about a club, Alderman Tice was not in a position to answer.

OHA executive member Jack Devine reminded the meeting that two years ago the OHA-Ottawa club was given until July 15 to make up its debts and operate. "We have a problem in Belleville and it is obvious some people are willing to get behind a club. Why not give us two or three weeks like two years ago. Ottawa, so we might straighten things out."

Mr. Dudley agreed: "There are a lot of fine people in Belleville but they have been let down. and I think they should be given a chance," he said.

Then came the motion that the deadline be set at June 30, which was changed later at the request of Alderman Tice to July 7.

Whitby's Wren Blair was adamant over the deadline. "We must know by July 7 if there are to be five entries and Kingston has paid its debts. Otherwise we feel there is no league and will seek another berth."

The question of employment for players was brought up and Whitby Blair stated that "no player plays for the Dunnies unless he is gainfully employed. I have never played yet him a day, but Gro him."

Jack Devine told the meeting some 14 of the McFarlands were living and working in Belleville with the most of the players buying houses.

TWO SUGGESTIONS

Two suggestions were aired in an effort to soothe the troubled waters. Cornwall's Ray Miron suggested a central pool from which everything would be paid and at the end of the season remainder would be split among the clubs. "That way" he stated "we would have five teams operating every year."

Mr. Dudley suggested that each club post a guarantee or bond at the start of the season. "Put it on deposit and every team that does not meet its obligations should count cash game as a loss".

He thought Cornwall's idea was "revolutionary but worth consideration."

So there is the sum and substance of the meeting.

Whitby and Hull will not consider an entry unless there is a five-team loop and Belleville and Kingston must pay their pool deficit. Cornwall is not sure, neither is Kingston. Belleville has until July 7 to declare whether it will be represented.

Major Leagues Offer Termed As "Whitewash"

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Some minor league clubs may abandon operations of any part of an "up to $1,000,000" fund offered them by the majors, the head of the newly - organized Independent Baseball Congress Association says.

Clyde Perkins of Portland, Ore., president of the group formed Monday in Seattle, termed the majors' offer as a "whitewash and a sop to satisfy the minors for this season."

The minor league executive committee met with minor league Georges M. Trautman here Tuesday to discuss the grant and possible methods of distribution, but Trautman said there would be no immediate announcements or developments.

The meeting was secret, and only the 12-man committee member, was requested to leave before deliberations started. He said later, however, that he had told Trautman and the executive committee:

"No matter what you decide, we're going to take a long look at it. And if there are any strings attached, we'll have no part of it."

He said he was speaking for the Pacific Coast League, and said he knew "many" other clubs from six leagues which originally had backed plans to fight someone else for the title.

The New York State Athletic Commission decision to overlook technicalities and allow Sugar Ray to retain a crown he has not defended since March 25, 1958, was deeply resented by Basilio, the No. 1 challenger.

After the commission hearing, attended by both Robinson and Basilio Tuesday, Basilio telegraphed National Boxing Association officials expressing his readiness to sign for a title-bout with Gene Fullmer as recognized by the NBA. The NBA already had stripped Robinson of the championship.

Delays and postponements characterized a postponement of New York hearings, with contracts signed by Robinson for a fight in Philadelphia having a major bearing on the case.

The commission finally decided to recognize a second Philadelphia contract between Robinson and Philadelphia promoter Sam Rose, signed May 12, 1958, and submitted May 21, although the deadline set for the turning in of a contract was May 15.

Basilio did not sign the contract, which called for him to receive a minimum of $250,000, or 30 per cent of the proceeds, with Robinson getting 45 per cent.

"I want a chance to dicker about terms," Basilio said. "They're telling me what I got to take."

Basilio would not say what he wanted for such a bout, but his gave an indication.

"Irving Kahn (Teleprompter president) met me in an elevator a week ago and told me there was $100,000 in the bank for me," he said. "I told him it was not enough—I've got to have four."

He accused Robinson of "ducking and dodging" for 14 months and said he wasn't going to wait forever to get into the ring with Sugar Ray.

Robinson, who said "justice has prevailed," accused Basilio of refusing his offer to make more money than he ever made for a fight before so he could fight a man (Fullmer) Robinson has knocked out.

"It's egotistical enough to think I'm the best middleweight in the world," Sugar Ray said, "and I think the public thinks so too."

He said he believed Basilio was "yellow" and that their two fights had taken a "lot out of him."

Club Owners O.K. Second All-Star Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league club owners have approved the players' request for a second annual all-star game.

The game, which must receive the approval of commissioner Ford Frick to become official, would be played Monday, Aug. 3, at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The players will receive 60 per cent of the gate and radio-TV receipts, with the remainder going to the club owners, who would also have all previous and future youth baseball programs such as the little league and Babe Ruth loop.

The players may possibly use their share of the cash to set up a pension plan for umpires and the former players are currently benefitted by the pension plan.

The players' share of the first game to be held in Pittsburgh July 7, goes into their pension fund.

Frick is expected to announce his decision next week after consulting with presidents Warren Giles of the National and Joe Cronin of the American League.

"The owners have authorized the second game at the players' request," said Cronin, "but as far as we have been informed no details have been worked out."

Giles said he expects to meet with Frick and Cronin in New York some time next week to iron out details.

It was not an unanimous vote. At least six clubs—Boston, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City and San Francisco—are believed opposed to it. Some of them have said, however, they would go along with the majority.

Frank Lane, general manager of the Indians, said: "Two all-star games make as much sense as two Kentucky Derbies or two World Series. It means a lot when it's only one game. You dilute it when you have two games." The other objectors took the same view.

Ray Retains Title in N.Y. Now Basilio Wants Fullmer

NEW YORK (AP)—Ray Robinson still is world middleweight champion in New York but Carmen Basilio is making plans to fight someone else for the title.

The New York State Athletic Commission decision to overlook technicalities and allow Sugar Ray to retain a crown he has not defended since March 25, 1958, was deeply resented by Basilio, the No. 1 challenger.

After the commission hearing, attended by both Robinson and Basilio Tuesday, Basilio telegraphed National Boxing Association officials expressing his readiness to sign for a title-bout with Gene Fullmer as recognized by the NBA. The NBA already had stripped Robinson of the championship.

Says Second All-Star Game In Process

CINCINNATI (AP)—National League chief Warren C. Giles says a second all-star baseball game this year is in the works.

He said Tuesday night he expects to meet sometime next week in New York with commissioner Ford Frick and American League president Joe Cronin to iron out details.

"It's still in the formative stages and nothing has been definitely set," he added.

The traditional all-star game will be played in Pittsburgh July 7.

In Philadelphia, Phillies owner Bob Carpenter said Tuesday that the second all-star game will be played in Los Angeles in August.

"The whole thing was approved by all the owners of both major leagues a couple months ago," he said. "Everything now is to work out a radio and television deal."

Hoists Birds Into 2nd Place With 3-2 Win Over Chisox; Yanks Blanked, Tribe Beaten

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hoyt Wilhelm and Don Mossi, two former relievers, and Tom Sturdivant, an expendable world champion, are pitching the American League top-flight.

Wilhelm, the unbeaten right-hander who was waived out of the National League won his eighth in a row Tuesday night, hoisting Baltimore into second place with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

That left the stumbling White Sox in third and the Birds just a half-game shy of first-place Cleveland, beaten 3-2 by Washington in 10 innings.

BEAT YANKS AGAIN

Mossi, the lefty who was "washed up" when Cleveland peddled him to Detroit last winter, beat New York for the third time this season, ending the Yankees' winning streak at four with a four-hit, 3-0 decision.

And Sturdivant, the big right-hander the Yankees traded to Kansas City last week, chalked up first victory with 7 1-3 innings of four-hit shutout relief that beat Boston 5-3. That pushed the fourth-place As within 2½ games of the top and also kept the Yankees, who skidded to seventh, from replacing Boston in the cellar.

A swarm of gnats that attacked Wilhelm in the second in the first inning upset him enough to end his string at 22 2-3 innings but he came off a winner again with a seven - hitter. He struck out eight.

The Orioles came from behind against loser Bob Shaw (4-2) on Billy Klaus' tying, two-run homer in the sixth, then won it in the ninth on three consecutive singles.

SAMFORD'S HOMER WINS

Ron Samford's homer off loser reliever Bud Podbielan won for Washington. The Nats had taken a 2-3 lead in the sixth on rookie Bob Allison's solo 10th homer off Mudcat Grant but Cleveland tied it again in the eighth. Pete Ramos (4-5) went all the way for the Nats, striking out eight and giving up seven hits.

Mossi (4-2) won his fifth in a row over the Yankees as the Tigers, who finished with three hits, beat Duke Maas (3-3) with single runs in the second and third. The Tigers now have won three straight and eight of nine.

Sturdivant (1-2) relieved starter Ray Herbert after the Red Sox scored three in the first. The As took the lead against loser Frank Sullivan (2-4) in a three-run third capped by Hal Smith's two-run double.

Ted Williams had only one hit, a double in the big Boston first, but it was his 2,500th in the majors.

Aaron, Haddix Tied for Player of Month

CINCINNATI (AP) — The hitting of Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves and the pitching of Harvey Haddix of Pittsburgh Pirates gave them a tie Tuesday for the National League's first Player of the Month award for 1959. The award covers play during May. League president Warren Giles announced that Aaron and Haddix each received 17 votes from the 40-man committee of baseball writers and broadcasters who cover league games daily.

Only two other players figure in the voting. Ernie Face, the Pirates' relief pitching star, received four votes and two went to Johnny Logan, shortstop for the Braves.

Much of Haddix's came from one game—the till with Milwaukee May 26 when he pitched 12 consecutive perfect innings before losing in the 13th.

But the brilliant 35-year-old southpaw did some other good pitching during the month. Although he had only a 2-3 record for May, he completed four of the six games he started, allowed only 34 hits in 52 innings, walked only nine and struck out 39. His earned-run average was 2.08.

Aaron, the league's leading hitter, compiled a .376 average during May. He hit eight home runs and batted in 21.

Face appeared in 11 games for the Pirates and had a 5-0 record with four saves plus a federal "saves." He had an earned run average of 1.46 in 19 2-3 innings of work. Logan had a .394 batting mark in May.

Champ Joe Brown Favored To Retain Lightweight Title

By MURRAY ROSE

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Fighting is my business," says Joe Brown, world lightweight boxing champion.

To prove his point, the 33-year-old champ risks his crown for the seventh time when he takes on dangerous Paolo Rosi tonight. The 15-rounder will be televised by ABC starting at 10 p.m.

This could be the toughest assignment Brown's defenses since he won the crown from Wallace (Bud) Smith three years ago.

Rosi, a sneer-puncher, probably is the hardest hitter among the contenders in the division. The 31-year-old Italian-born New Yorker has run up an unbeaten string of nine in the last two years. He is ranked No. 3.

Rosi said Tuesday night, "Brown is a very good fighter. But I am faster and younger than he is and I think I can hit just as hard.

"I think the way to beat him is to go right after him and forget about getting hurt myself. I'm going to do it. He's down or I go down."

CHAMP FAVORED

The oddsmakers figure Rosi will be the one to hit the deck. They have made the champion a 2-to1 favorite.

Rosi's record is 31-4-1, including 13 knockouts, most of them scored with a slashing left hook. He has been stopped twice, on cuts, by Orlando Zulueta and Baby Vasquez.

Brown, a potent left - hooker, outpointed Johnny Busso in his last outing, a 15-round title defence Feb. 11. His record is 109 plus two no-contest affairs. He has 32 knockouts to his credit. The champion's only loss in his last 20 fights was a non-title 10-rounder to Busso Nov. 5.

A record of 6,000 may buy around $50,000 at the gate. Television will add $10,000 to that.

Brown will collect 40 per cent and Rosi 20 per cent of everything. It should come to about $20,000 for the champ and $15,000 for the challenger.

Image Minorities to Be Attempt at Exposition

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A nameless number of years ago when Matthew J. Culligan, executive vice-president in charge of the NBC radio network, was in knee pants, his father took him aside for a heart-to-heart talk.

The subject was not the bees and the birds, but the viciousness of racial, religious and national prejudice. The elder Culligan opened his discourse by reading his son a most misquoted item from the New York Times of 50 years ago which concluded with the words, "Irish need not apply."

Joe Culligan never forgot his father's talk and that ad. Seeds planted then are bearing a harvest on NBC radio this week—and for three weeks to come.

Image Minorities is the subject of some 20 hours of special programming which will be heard on NBC Monitor Summertime Monitor Days, Thursdays 6:40-10 p.m. EDT, for four weeks.

NOT AN EXPOSE

"This is not an angry expose," says Culligan, who wears a black eye-patch and dates at your porcelain with a single bright blue Irish eye. "Rather it's an attempt at exposition. We hope to build a platform which proves on the record that many minorities in this country have moved out of the area of being 'problem minorities.'

In the course of the Image Minorities series the listening audience will hear from such diverse persons as Vice-President Richard Nixon, former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney, former U.S. immigration commissioner Edward Corsi and Harry Golden, author of the best-selling Only in America. Bob Considine is the narrator.

"We want to show the contributions to American life made by minorities," says Culligan, "and so give a message to those who still have it to do."

PLUG PAID

CHAPLEAU (CP)—Ernie Gaetz of Winnipeg used a homemade plug last week to nail a big speckled trout in Foot Lake, nine miles east of this Northern Ontario community. The fish, weighed at the Ontario lands and forests district office 24 hours after it was landed, scaled eight pounds, 10½ ounces. It was 23 inches long and had an 18½-inch girth.

Ricky Nelson Becomes a Star In Role of Youthful Gunslinger

The sudden emergence of 18-year-old Ricky Nelson as a versatile star is one of the fabulous success stories of show business.

He is currently co-starring with John Wayne, Dean Martin, Walter Brennan, Angie Dickinson and Ward Bond in Howard Hawks' "Rio Bravo," Technicolor production in Wide Screen presented by Warner Bros. continuing at the Belle Theatre.

As the tow-headed, impish little wise-cracker of the Nelson family radio and television series, he was a favorite of listeners and viewers for years. His infectious grin and famous "I don't mean around, boy," made him everybody's favorite little brother.

But little brothers grow up and so did Ricky. In fact, he grew up in front of millions of weekly viewers. Soon he was six feet tall, and the impish grin became a shy smile that began to make young feminine hearts flutter.

When rock'n'roll caught on a year or so ago, Ricky secretly cut a record of his own. After hearing it, his father, Ozzie, took a hit written into the family TV show with Ricky singing a few bars imitating Elvis Presley.

In April 1957, Ricky's first recording, "I'm Walkin," came out and was a smash hit. This resulted in a series of singing tours for the boy at state fairs which broke all attendance marks.

There remained one logical progression left in this swirling-moving career, and it was a distinguished movie-maker, Howard Hawks, who recognized it first. But Hawks wasn't interested in Ricky Nelson the rock'n'roll singer; he wanted Ricky Nelson the actor.

In the process of casting a multi-million dollar western drama, "Rio Bravo," which he was producing and directing for Warner Bros. release, Hawks signed Ricky for the role of Colorado, youthful, soft-spoken gunslinger who comes to the aid of John Wayne, a border-town sheriff. It's a big part and Rick gets co-starring billing with Wayne, Dean Martin, Walter Brennan and Ward Bond. That's fast company for an 18-year-old.

But Hawks wasn't worried. "This boy is no amateur," he says. He's been doing a professional job on that Television show for 10 years. The camera is no stranger to him". And now fame is no stranger to him, either.

Frank Avalon Says Marriage Would Kill Singing Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What would happen to the career of a singing idol if he got married?

"It'd kill me," says Frankie Avalon, latest of the rock 'n' roll sensations to invade the movies.

His manager, Bob Marcucci, agrees.

"A big part of the appeal of pop singers today is the fact that they are single," says Marcucci. "Every teen-aged girl likes to believe that she could be Frankie's girl friend."

Frankie cited the example of Eddie Fisher, whose popularity dropped with the younger set after his marriage to Debbie Reynolds.

"The same thing would happen to Elvis Presley if he got married," the boy said.

There remains one glaring exception to the rule: Pat Boone. But he was already married and had kids before he became a star," Frankie argued. "The fans accepted the fact."

Aside from the danger to his career, Avalon hasn't time for romance.

"I figure I've been home to Philadelphia about five or six days in the past three months," he said. "And when I'm there, I don't have much time for dating. I like to spend as much time as possible with my family.

"When I'm on the road, I spend most of the time in a hotel room. The only time I leave is to go to the place where I'm appearing. Then it's back to the hotel room. Sometimes if I meet a girl, I have time for coffee after the show. That's about all."

Frankie's the latest of the singing idols to be pressed into duty to aid the ailing box office, following Presley, Boone, Ricky Nelson and Paul Anka of Ottawa. Frankie is playing a frontier boy in Guns of the Timberlands with Alan Ladd, Jeanne Crain and Gilbert Roland. He also sings two songs in the picture.

Avalon, now 18, has been an entertainer for seven years, starting as a trumpet player.

½ AWAKE NIGHTS ½ ASLEEP DAYS
Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed—and then are dull and listless throughout the day. All of which may be due to a temporary basic condition which calls for the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.
Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they also there and impurities stay in the system, disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you haven't that sprightly step of health in the daytime—use Dodd's Kidney Pills. You can depend on Dodd's!

HOPE FOR BETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration flatly says there is an excellent chance that a new steel industry labor contract can be negotiated without a July 1 strike. A high administration source said Tuesday assurances built up on both the industry and union by President Eisenhower's repeated appeals to their public responsibilities argue for a peaceful steel settlement.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive discovery right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or hospital visit.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' examinations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Showdown Today In Battle for Missile Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House of Representatives confused by conflicting claims must decide today where to throw its support in the battle for missile money.

Nearing a showdown vote on a $38,848,339,000 defence appropriation bill for 1960, the House faced a choice between the army and the air force in the current row over which service has the better air defence missile.

If the House follows the recommendations of its appropriations committee, it will sustain a deep cut in Bomarc missile funds and approve a substantial increase in Nike Zeus money. That course appeared likely in view of agreement within the committee.

The Bomarc is the U.S. Air Force anti-aircraft missile whose effectiveness and availability have been the subject of debate both in and out of Congress. The Nike Zeus is an army missile designed to seek out and destroy enemy missiles.

PROGRAM SLASHED

The committee cut $162,700,000 from the Bomarc program and shifted some of the extra money to the Nike Zeus project.

Republican Representative William E. Minshall of Ohio has offered an amendment to cut out all the $200,000,000 remaining for Bomarc production but to allow $84,600,000 for continued tests and evaluation. He called the Bomarc program a "billion-dollar boondoggle" promoted by "high-pressure salesmen in and out of uniform." He said the missile is not operational and would be useless if and when it reaches the firing pads.

But Representative Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, senior Republican on the committee that drafted the bill, defended the Bomarc and said recent tests of an improved model have been successful.

DEBATE OLD

recollet anything memorable being said by Mr. MacDonald."

If the CCF leader wanted a statement about the gas lease, he could turn to the premier's speech in Galt last week — in which Mr. Frost accused Mr. MacDonald of trying to destroy public confidence in Ontario politics.

ANGRY DEMAND

"Who has lowered the standards of public morality in this province—I who have revealed, or those who are guilty?" the CCF leader angrily demanded in his Galt speech.

Until his speech last Wednesday the premier had not even condescended to mention the scandal which forced three cabinet ministers to resign because they got shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, Mr. MacDonald said. And then it took the form of a personal attack.

"The reason gas is becoming the most important issue is not just arrogance but the way this government is willing to sacrifice the needs of the public to the greedy drive for profits," he told his 120 listeners.

Premier Frost had defended the deposed cabinet ministers as honorable men and had refused to even deal with the question of corruption.

"In dulling the public conscience, he is contributing to the lowering of public morality."

BLASTS WINTERMEYER

Mr. MacDonald also repeated the scathing attack he delivered two weeks ago in Kitchener against Mr. Wintermeyer for his lack of "conscience" in getting gas stock from former mines minister Philip Kelly.

Mr. Wintermeyer pressed his attack against Premier Frost's election manifesto in New Liskeard before making a plane trip to Manitoulin Island and back to Thessalon for an evening rally.

He told 104 persons at a mid-morning meeting in New Liskeard that the manifesto is an arrogant document. It claimed credit for building 425,000 homes in 10 years while the government had actually contributed money toward only 4,234. It spoke of $20,000,000,000 in capital investment but the government's share of this was only $1,125,000,000.

The Liberal leader also challenged Premier Frost and Prime Minister Diefenbaker — attending a Canadian mayors convention in North Bay—to announce Ontario will get its extra $100,000,000 a year in tax revenues.

Otherwise, he said, "it is time we realized we were misled and we are not going to be misled on June 11."

TO MEET PEARSON

In Thessalon, Mr. Wintermeyer said the fund shortage reported in Toronto did not indicate a rift with federal Liberals — he was meeting with national Leader Lester Pearson in the morning "and Mr. Pearson is appearing at our meeting in Sudbury tomorrow night."

The Liberal leader appealed to supporters for campaign donations and an on-the-spot collection among his audience of 50 netted $33.

He said Liberal contributions in this election have been highest in history but they were in smaller amounts.

"I'm very proud of this. We are the one party having difficulty collecting large funds.

"The government party's friends came to its assistance handsomely. Are they friends because of favors done them?

"Then there is the third party that purports to be impoverished and represent the little people—where in the world they get such funds as they seem to have I don't know but they seem to have no difficulty in getting them."

LABOR LEADER SPEAKS

While Mr. Wintermeyer spoke the president of the Ontario Federation of Labor was speaking on behalf of a CCF candidate in Port Hope, 25 miles east of Oshawa.

Doug Hamilton, leader of the 400,000-member labor organization, squared off at the Conservative government with a major blow aimed at Labor Minister Daley. He described the minister as too old for the job and said his department illustrated the lack of vigor and new ideas in the government.

Meanwhile, a boycott of the election was sounded by a group of hog producers opposed to compulsory marketing legislation.

Representatives of the 600-member Free Enterprise Hog Producers' Committee appeared in Toronto led by secretary Charles Cwille of Belgrave, 35 miles northwest of Stratford.

Mr. Coulter said his group is anti-socialist and both Conservatives and Liberals had supported a marketing legislation that amounted to a trend toward socialism.

"Not only producers but thinking people everywhere will stay away from the polls in the coming provincial election because of frustration," declared one of several resolutions passed by committee supporters at meetings in Stratford and Elmira last week.

Nike and Bomarc Missile Programs To Be Cut Back

Compromise Decision At the Highest Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise decision to continue both the Nike and Bomarc missile programs at a cut-back level was reported in the making today.

An influential congressional official said he has been informed that Defence Secretary Neil McElroy plans to recommend a go-ahead for both the Nike-Hercules and Bomarc missiles.

But he said the secretary is likely to propose to President Eisenhower a reduction in outlays for both of the missiles, since they represent air defence only against bombers at a time when ballistic missile attacks are growing. This decision was expected to depend in part on the reports McElroy receives on progress toward solving the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.

SURVEY MISSILE FIELD

Eisenhower told his press conference yesterday that a complete and exhaustive" survey of the missile field is being made by McElroy and should be completed within 10 days.

The army and the air force have been squabbling over the development of their anti-missile missiles, and congressional committees also have taken opposing stands.

The air force Bomarc still is being developed, but its proponents contend it is needed to keep enemy planes far enough away from close to their targets. It now has a range of about 200 miles, and a tentative increase to 400 miles is an improved model.

CURTAIN RAISED FUNDS

The House of Representatives, passing a $38,848,329,000 defence money bill Wednesday, cut $162,700,000 from funds in the budget for the year. It rejected an effort to cut another $200,000,000 which the appropriations committee left in the measure for Bomarc procurement.

The House also has yet to vote the full $35,000,000 in the budget for its Nike-Hercules.

The armed services committee earlier had cut $17,- 000,000 from Bomarc and $22,000,- 000 authorization for extension of the Nike-Hercules, saying that system is virtually obsolete.

At the same time it was cutting the Bomarc programs, the House $700,000,000 to budget requests for the army's Nike-Zeus, to speed the time when this weapon can be made available.

Fleming Replies To Criticism On Borrowings

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Wednesday that CCF criticism of government borrowings amount to adding "debauching" the Canadian currency by printing more money or as compulsory borrowings from Canadian wage earners.

Mr. Fleming was replying to Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) who said that faced by the need to raise $2,000,000,000 before next March 31 the government "is placing little undying faith in the money market and hoping that events and circumstances will rescue it from the dilemma in which it now is."

Later, Mr. Regier said the CCF never advocated the sort of monetary reform that would increase big money, but pressure for that sort of reform would continue as long as the government followed present methods of raising money.

SUPPLY BILL APPROVED

The exchange occurred as the Commons approved a resolution authorizing an interim money supply of $634,417,000 to July 31 June and July bills.

Mr. Fleming said that in criticizing the government's borrowings, including the one - year treasury bills for $200,000,000 on which they accepted tenders Wednesday night, the CCF financial critic failed to offer any other alternative than printing more money or taking it from the people by compulsory means.

Mr. Regier said the one-year treasury bills issued were the first kind in Canada—was made at an effective interest rate of 3½ per cent. What is so high for the government could not long delay amending the banks to charge still chartered banks; to charge more than the current maximum of 6 per cent on loans to industry.

LIBERAL CRITICISM

W. K. McMillan (L—Welland) said Mr. Fleming should take no pride in saying the money bills were in a "fully oversubscribed. Why shouldn't the issue be oversubscribed when a rate of 3½ per cent as high as 5½ per cent?

He feared schools and municipalities would have to pay higher interest on their borrowings as a result of government borrowings.

Mr. Fleming said he has rarely heard such "unmitigated nonsense" as that voiced by Mr. Regier. Treasury bills were quite different. The interest rate had been set by the prevailing situation in the market for an issue of that period of time.

He assured Mr. McMillan of preaching gloom and trying to "scare people" as had no good cause, which resulted in injury to Canada's credit.

REFUSES DISCLOSURE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge refused Tuesday to order the disclosure of the staff payrolls of all members of Congress. He said reporters have no special right to see documents not available generally to the public. Throwing out a suit brought by Royce H. Trimble, of the Scripps - Howard newspaper alliance, Judge Alexander Holtzoff held: "It is no part of the judicial function to supervise or control the discretion of the executive or legislative departments of the government."

ARNOTT AND BATEMAN IN NEW QUARTERS

SANTU BILL ADVANCES

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—South Africa's lower house of Parliament passed Wednesday the nationalist government's sweeping, controversial Bantu (African) self-government bill. City Debentures Placed on Sale In New Manner

City debentures for the Corby Public Library addition, and also for the new Moira Secondary School, both now under construction, are on sale today following a special meeting of council last night.

The debentures amounting to $100,000 for the library, and $1,300,000 for the new high school, will be offered for sale by a syndicate of four firms, Dawson Hannaford and Co. Ltd., Gairdner and Company Ltd., Deacon Findley and Company Ltd. and the Bank of Montreal which will sell the debentures for the best price obtainable at a commission of .9 per cent.

Ordinarily debenture issues would be tendered for but this year it was felt that a better price could be obtained by selling individually rather than by tenders.

TWO REASONS

Reason given for the change in policy was that (1) the issue is marketable this year in generally poor; and (2) bond houses feel that because of the present status of the city's financial picture, the position regarding the sale of bonds would be "cloudy."

The "cloudy" position of the city's finances with respect to bond sales may expected to be only temporary.

The four above companies have been in past years tendered on city bonds and among them have sold all Belleville debentures in the past four year.

The firms voluntarily combined to offer the city their services in selling the debentures.

Clarence Young Acquitted on Burglary Charge

Clarence Young was acquitted on a charge of breaking, entering and theft, following the presentation of evidence by witnesses and summations by Crown Attorney John Pringle and Defence Counsel Robert Temple. The case was heard before the current Sessions of the Peace presided over by J. F. Smith of Napanee. The jury took almost an hour to reach its decision at the conclusion of a long day in court.

Chief witness for the Crown were Robert and Mrs. Mondeville. The first witness confessed to the crime and is now serving four years in the Kingston Penitentiary for it and other crimes. Mr. Mondeville's testimony was to the effect that the accused had been with him the night the crime, a break-in and theft was committed on the premises of the Garage Supply firm, was committed. The testimony of witness had personally observed the accused through a window in the building. Under cross examination by Mr. Temple the witness was asked to account had discussed the layout of the building but that he, himself, had originally suggested the commission of the crime. The defence also pointed out some discrepancies in the witness' testimony and that his identification of the night in question was somewhat confused.

Mrs. Mary Mondeville, the wife of the previous witness, admitting under questioning by Crown Attorney Pringle that she had seen the accused in the window of the Garage Supply building. Upon being asked to identify Mrs. Mondeville by Mr. Temple during the cross-examination, she indicated a large picture of the window shown in a photograph previously submitted as an exhibit by Cpl. Rackam of the Ontario Provincial Police. The previous witness had performed the same action and the defence counsel pointing out to the jury that there was a discrepancy in the testimony concerning this point despite the fact that the two witnesses were together in a car several days before the trial.

Cpl. Rackam, in his testimony, indicated discrepancies in the testimony concerning the actions of these two witnesses when they were at his residence on the evening in question.

ACCUSED TESTIFIES

The accused was put on the stand and gave testimony to the effect that he had been left at his residence by Mr. and Mrs. Mondeville shortly after being stopped by the police on Bleecker Avenue, at a time prior to the commission of the crime in question. He also stated that he had not left his residence after that time until the next day. Under cross examination by the Crown, Young admitted that he had been convicted on a charge of breaking, entering and theft previously. Mr. Temple was restrained from pursuing further questioning concerning this previous record by Judge Smith.

An excellent summary was made for each side of the case by the defence counsel and the Crown Attorney.

In his remarks to the jury, prior to their retiring to reach a verdict, Judge Smith complimented the jury members on their attention to the case and stated that it was their duty to decide on the facts presented to them, keeping in mind that the accused is innocent until proved guilty. His honour also advised them that it after considering the evidence given, there existed a reasonable doubt in their minds as to the guilt of the accused they should give him the benefit of such doubt. The bench advised the jurymen as to the value of evidence given by an accomplice and as to how they should determine if the witness Robert Mondeville was an accomplice. It was pointed out that there was a grave danger in convicting an accused person on the basis of an accomplice's evidence unless such evidence was corroborated by an independent witness.

Judge Smith also pointed out that all 12 jurors must agree before rendering a verdict.

The jury adjourned to its rooms to reach a decision. At this point both the Crown Attorney and the defence counsel requested the bench to instruct the jury to instruct it further on a couple of points the main one being as to how Mrs. Mondeville's possible status as an accomplice should or should not be arrived at. The jury was recalled and the requests of both the Crown and the defence were carried out by Judge Smith.

Shortly after six o'clock of the afternoon Clarence Young was acquitted and discharged from the custody of the court.

Jury Urges Courthouse Be Built at Once

A recommendation that the proposed new Hastings county courthouse be proceeded with immediately has been made by the Grand Jury at the conclusion of their duties at the General Sessions of the Peace which opened in the city this week.

The jurors heard six criminal cases listed for trial and made their report regarding the courthouse prior to their dismissal by Judge J. F. Smith.

The report was as follows: "We the Grand Jury having inspected the courthouse facilities for the country of Hastings are of the opinion that construction of the new courthouse should commence forthwith so that the administration of justice can be carried on in a building that will adequately house the various courts".

The jury further recommended that the new building be erected in a place where adequate parking facilities can be obtained."

Officially, however, the erection of a new courthouse has been at least temporarily shelved by members of county council, when a special session failed to take any action after tenders for the new building were opened. The lowest of about 19 tenders received was in excess of half a million dollars.

Ratepayers Hold Active Meeting At City School

Members of the Belleville Ratepayers' Association had a very active meeting yesterday evening as several members spoke their minds in the uncertain terms. Centre of contention was the current state of ratepayer representation committees in Belleville and their effectiveness in gaining recognition by City Council. "A denial of democracy" cried Arthur Cole in describing the present dismissal of a petition of 2,500 ratepayers concerning the recent parking issue. Mr. Cole also accused the local press of "suppressing the news" by "burying" the account of the current problem at city hall "deep" on the inside pages.

The main action taken by the ratepayers present was to authorize their directors to have a joint meeting for all ratepayers' and citizens' committees, or committees about to be formed, with the purpose of having a central directive body for such committees in Belleville. This motion was unanimously carried. It was decided that an election of officers should take place within the next two weeks and the public be invited to attend the meeting.

About forty persons were present at the meeting which was handled most capably by the chairman, John Codwin.

Tanned, Relaxed Khrushchev Visits Hungary

BUDAPEST (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, tanned and relaxed after spending more than a week in Albania, arrived here today for talks with Hungarian leaders before returning to Moscow.

Khrushchev, accompanied by Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, arrived in a Soviet TU-104 jet transport. They were greeted by Hungarian Communist party chief, Janos Kadar, Premier Ferenc Munnich and other local leaders.

A spokesman for the Hungarian foreign ministry said the program for his visit and the length of his stay in Hungary have not been determined.

Khrushchev last visited Hungary in April, 1958. On this visit he is expected to discuss Communist party matters and Soviet-bloc policies.

Presumably the Soviet premier also will discuss plans for a conference of Balkan governments heads which was announced Wednesday night. The purpose, the magazine New Times said, would be to ban nuclear weapons from the Balkans.

In his speeches in Albania Khrushchev condemned demands that nuclear weapons be kept out of southeast Europe with warnings to Italy and Greece not to permit bases for U.S. nuclear missiles to be established on their territory.

A representative of the Hungarian Communist Women's Organization handed Khrushchev a bouquet of red roses. Then the Soviet premier, smiling broadly, began shaking hands with Hungarian officials. Then he came to Interior Minister Bela Biszku he laughed and remarked:

"Oh, so you are the terror of the counter-revolution?"

"In Communist countries the Ministry of Interior has charge of the police forces."

Then Khrushchev greeted members of the Hungarian workers' militia and squeezed jovially to say hello to a child.

Hungarian officials said they did not know anything about reports from Geneva that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko might seek a weekend meeting with Khrushchev here.

Stores Will Be Open Friday, Saturday Nights

CAMPBELLFORD— A survey of merchants this week regarding store hours has resulted in a situation where stores will now probably be open on Friday and Saturday nights, at least until the first week in September.

A questionnaire circulated by the Chamber of Commerce asked, "Would you be willing to stay open Saturday nights until 10 p.m. during the July-August-Sept 5 inclusive, provided the majority of merchants do the same?" Why, for 1959 only?" 49 merchants answered 'yes' to this question, 10 answered 'no' and several had no comment.

Most of those who answered 'no', also objected to other merchants being open on Saturday nights.

A number of merchants claim the survey is not conclusive because, although they signed saying they would open on Saturday night if the majority wanted it that way, they did not actually want to open. Several merchants said they would not open their stores on Saturday night, saying that only 'devoted' business was done on this open night.

Two weeks ago, at a Chamber of Commerce meeting, the merchants decided by 12 against Saturday night opening. At that time they all said they would abide by the majority decision. However, by the time Saturday night arrived, some half dozen storekeepers went back on their word and opened their stores in an attempt to 'steal' trade from some of their competitors who were closed. There was quite a gave the excuse that they were losing the farm trade.

Fined at Skunk, Two Men Fined

TRENTON — Two 30-year-old Trenton men were each fined $10 and costs and $3.50 in magistrate's court Tuesday afternoon when they appeared before Magistrate W. J. Bell on charges of using a gun within the town limits.

Both men, Ronald Terry and John Brinkilow, live past Rowcoe Avenue and only a short way from the town boundary line. They told the magistrate they did not know where the town line was. They said they were shooting at a skunk.

The charges were laid by the Trenton police department following a complaint from a Mr. Sturgess who lives on Rowcoe Avenue. Constable Sid Vickers gave evidence for the crown.

In passing sentence on the charges, to which the men pleaded guilty, Magistrate Bell said there was no excuse for this sort of thing.

THEFT CHARGE

Albert Desrochers appeared in court on a charge of theft from Woolworths Store on May 26, of three electric and a desk memo pad. The magistrate remanded the case until June 8 when it was brought to his attention that the Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville will be placing a charge against the man.

W. James Coe pleaded guilty to two charges of fraud. The first charge was in relation to a hotel and a clothing store. He was remanded for sentence until Thomas H. Mountenay was given two weeks to get legal aid when Magistrate Wills reserved he appeared on a charge of reporting a false accident and theft case which did not take place. He will appear again on Monday, June 22, at 2 p.m.

Kiwanis Bicycle Rodeo Planned

TRENTON — The Kiwanis annual Bicycle Rodeo, in co-operation with the Trenton Police Department, will be held on two separate Saturdays this year, it was announced yesterday by co-chairman of the project, Ted Snider. Chairman of the Police is Inspector Cousineau is Norm Davis.

The first Rodeo will be held on Saturday, June 6 and will take place in the Community Centre. This Rodeo will be only for the boys and girls who attend school on the east side of the Trent River.

On the second Saturday, June 13, the Rodeo will be held at the Trenton High School for the boys and girls who attend school on the west side of the Trent River.

It is reported that the reason for holding the two separate Rodeo Days is chiefly because many parents do not wish to have their children cross the busy town bridge on their bicycles.

On each Saturday the Rodeo will start at 10 a.m. and will continue until It is finished. All boys and girls with bicycles are eligible to attend the Rodeo as safety certificates will be awarded as well as cups and shields.

High Noon Brings Three Crises For Motorists

TRENTON — High noon arrived in Trenton yesterday as usual and it appeared as though everybody was "going."

Traffic paraded at the local police department took the brunt of most of it but the sewer crews from the town's public works department had the noisiest job.

At about 11.45 traffic started to tie up when inspectors ordered the swing bridge to open half-way while they examined some part of the underpass. This caused cars to come to a halt far back on Dundas St. on both sides of the bridge. Nothing moved and tempers of waiting motorists began to get as hot as the inside of their cars with the noon sun beating down.

However, in about 15 minutes, traffic began to roll again and all was serene until a tractor trailer loaded with huge metal culverts tried to get across the bridge.

The driver made the swing bridge part but the top of his load caught on the overhead beams of the town part of the bridge and brought it to a halt. Then it was another half inches of asphalt put on the deck yesterday had cut the clearance just enough to stop the truck.

Traffic was backed up as far before the truck was able to get the bridge and for a short time traffic across the bridge was cut to one lane.

Said one driver as he looked things over, "Somebody goofed." Said one sewer department official in the line-up. "Yes, sir. We're in Trenton alright."

But their troubles were shortlived as the attention of many of the motorists was drawn to an unpleasant odor which drifted into the open windows of their cars.

Investigation showed that a mechanical digger digging a water line in the street in front of the Quinte Dry Cleaning plant had broken open a sewer line and the main water valve backing up through it and out the basement and back into another's catchbasin.

The town engineer, Eric Alchesney, was called and he sent a crew out to repair the break.

Merchants Hear How Community Chest Operates

TRENTON — "One of the most important things to remember when starting a Community Chest in a community is to pick out good leaders and good workers," Knox Davis of Belleville told the regular meeting of the Trenton Retail Merchants Association at the Country Club last night.

The Retail Merchants' Association decided at its last regular meeting to take the first steps in bringing the Community Chest or some similar program to Trenton to help in cutting down on the number of drives which go on each year.

They decided to ask Mr. David from the Belleville group to attend the meeting and explain to them how to go about it.

He explained how the money is collected through various means. One of the most successful is through payroll deductions and it has been found that companies and their employees are most willing to co-operate in this type of thing.

He said the Community Chest will not end all drives because there are some organizations that cannot possibly be consolidate the majority of them.

"The main purpose of the Community Chest," he said, "is to raise money for welfare work and it is a great thing if set up properly. It is the best way people seem to give more.

"Perhaps the first thing to do," he told the merchants, "is to set up a steering committee and send out letters to people they think would be interested in working for the Community Chest and in July or August have organization going.

Mr. David was also thanked by President John Lyttle.

The Retail Merchants Association also made a motion to ask the town for a subsidy similar to that given to the Chamber of Commerce in past years. Part of the money which is collected and paid to the Chamber was for the operation of the tourist information booth and the retail merchants felt they would like to continue the operation of this booth.

The Retail Merchants also decided to ask a sign, white in color and with black letters, be placed on Highway 33 where 401 comes onto it reading "Trenton Business Section," with a large arrow pointing in the proper direction.

TO DO ONE'S DUTY

A recent incident in British Columbia wherein an RCMP constable was seriously wounded whilst investigating a brawl demonstrated the ability of a citizen to perform his duty. Although there is nothing in black and white on the statute books to cover the situation there was a moral obligation to be fulfilled, as indeed it was. The citizen heard the gunshot which felled the policeman and, upon arrival at the scene, found the constable, in serious condition, attempting to place a radio call for help. Using the constable's revolver to frighten away the gunman, the citizen placed the emergency call and then proceeded to drive the wounded officer to the hospital.

That act, we feel, is the manner in which any responsible citizen should have responded to the situation. We wonder though as to exactly how many of us would. There have been incidents wherein several police officers have been assaulted by superior odds of young ruffians and little more action has been taken by the onlookers other than to "hoot and holler" and urge the offenders on.

Fortunately, this does not happen frequently, but it serves to illustrate a point of human nature in our society. That is too many people seem to feel that a policeman is little more than a bully in uniform. Sometimes this stems from an unpleasant encounter with the law in which the individual concerned came off second best or else felt that he was being "picked on" or sometimes it is an impression gained by talking, or rather listening, to the protests poured forth by someone who feels he has been "picked on" because of previous wrongdoings. At any rate the result is that some people will just stand around at a time when they should be fulfilling one of their responsibilities as a citizen—ensuring the preservation of law and order.

Perhaps if these people had a taste of how police forces were used in other countries they might be happy to change their tune very quickly. We shall not forget the difficult time once experienced in explaining to a Hungarian refugee that the police were a source of help to the individual and were a body designed to protect the interests of the people. He could not comprehend for some time that police were used for anything other than to spy on, abuse, and torture "enemies" of the state.

There used to be a time in most communities when everyone knew the "cop on the beat." That time is rapidly passing in a lot of communities. Times and conditions have changed to the extent where the duties incumbent upon an officer or a police force allow very little time for the public relations that could be enjoyed just a few years back. The basic responsibilities and the basic principles of the police have not changed however; the men in blue are there to see to the safety and well-being of the citizens and property of the community.

The citizens might be reminded that their co-operation and assistance is often required to make this project a success. The time might be rare indeed that a citizen has to rise to the occasion of emergency assistance or co-operation, but when the time does come it is his moral obligation to render help without being asked.

DR. FU IS DEAD

Sax Rohmer, who died on Monday, is reported to have sold the film, TV and radio rights to Dr. Fu Manchu for more than $4,000,000. It may well be, therefore, that Dr. Fu is as well known to this generation of youngsters as to the last—(or should that be to the generation before the last? The generations follow one another too quickly.)

Be that as it may, nobody really knows or appreciates Dr. Fu if his acquaintance has been made by film, radio or TV. Dr. Fu was known most intimately when he was read in school, during Senior Fourth grammar, as a substitute for Dick Merriwell and after "Chums" and "Boys' Annual" had both been painfully proven too big to be successfully concealed in a desk without arousing suspicion.

Dr. Fu was a bloody old rascal. About the only thing he lacked to make him a horror comic was pictures — and the aspect of unbelievability. Dr. Fu was as real as the first dark corner on the way home on a windy night.

THE SHEATH SKIRT

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Oh, have you seen the sheath-skirt girl
How wonderfully is she dressed!
In what a slender cylinder
Her graceful form is now compressed!
Oh, have you gazed upon her frame,
And have you wondered what she'd do
If she would have to bend herself
To fasten the buckle on her shoe?

Oh, have you gazed upon her form,
Securely held from head to toe?
She dare not even give a yawn
For fear that something might let go.

And have you wondered what she'll do,
And just what seam will promptly tear
When she forgets herself and starts
To rearrange her short back hair?

Behold her tripping down the street,
Once fair and round, now straight and thin;
Oh, lady, what would happen if
You'd slip on a banana skin?
But still I wonder what you'd do
If on a crowded bus we'd meet;
Would you be brave enough to sit
Or I should offer you my seat?

Most Famous Detective

St. Thomas Times-Journal

One hundred years ago Arthur Conan Doyle was born in Edinburgh. His father and grandfather were artists, but there is nothing to indicate that he was ever interested in art. He graduated in medicine at Edinburgh University, and in 1886 took up practice in Southsea, a small town on the English Channel. Like many young doctors he drummed his fingers on the desk and hummed tunes in the manner while waiting for patients to turn up. To pass the time he began to write, and in due course produced a book called "A Study in Scarlet." In that book a character called Sherlock Holmes appeared. Holmes was a distinctive figure. He usually wore a deer-stalker's cap, smoked an underslung pipe, and in the quiet of his apartment in Baker Street, London, was not thinking out the solution to a murder or a robbery, he played the violin.

Dr. Doyle could never have dreamed when in years to come he would abandon his profession altogether and devote himself entirely to the adventures of Sherlock Holmes.

The Sherlock Holmes stories were published in the long-defunct London Magazine of which they were a feature for years. Another of the stories was the Boer War and the part played in it by Conan Doyle, and Sherlock Holmes became world-famous. Sherlock Holmes detective is sometimes referred to as a Sherlock Holmes. Sir Arthur (the knighthood was conferred upon him in 1902) had created a character that is living out where a person came from is rarely started into conversation. The kind of shoes he wore, the cut of his coat, the color of his cheeks or something else and he would instantly say, "I see you have lately been in such and such a place." It was this process of ratiocination that made Sherlock Holmes the great detective he was.

Sherlock in all parts of the world came to believe that Sherlock Holmes was a real and living person. Doyle grew tired of his creation, and in one of his stories he got rid of him (or thought he did) by allowing him to be killed in an avalanche while struggling with Moriarty in Switzerland. But there was such an outcry that the author brought him back to life and resumed the Sherlock Holmes stories.

There are in the British Isles and the United States many Sherlock Holmes clubs which hold regular meetings and discuss the methods and deductions of Holmes' creator. It is not uncommon for American tourists to pay a visit to Baker street and gaze interestedly on the building where the famous detective lived. It is now a private furniture store.

Sir Arthur wrote many other books of a historical character and he stated once in regard to his "Tales of the White Company, a historical novel, as his finest achievement." He wrote several successful plays, including one in which he starred, but his greatest actor of his day, had one of his greatest roles a play about Napoleon and Waterloo. He wrote a history of the World War, in which he reverted to his original profession and served in the army as a surgeon. He had two sons, one of whom is an author living in Switzerland. The other was killed in the First World War and is an avowed spiritualist, a fact the leader of the spiritualists in Britain, Lodge, started into conversation. The kind of shoes he wore, the cut of his coat, the color of his cheeks or something

Must Protect Protectorates

Montreal Star

South Africa has presented Britain with another problem. She has given notice to the three protectorates of Bechuanaland, Swaziland and Basutoland and Britain's response will determine if would be either expedient or necessary to have black populations of these places ever to the tender mercies of South African politicians and their apartheid policy.

Theoretically the claims to Basutoland and Swaziland are natural ones. The first is an enclave in South Africa. Its territory, the second nearly enclosed by the Union. They are relatively small. Bechuanaland is a different case. It is as large as Southern and Northern Wales together (somewhat larger than Texas, reference books say) is a great swath of territory with 290,883 Africans in it and only 4,000 whites. Britain established the protectorate over Bechuanaland in order to block the northward expansion of the Boers from the Transvaal and Orange Free State. Now the descendants of the same Boers, in the person of the Union, have taken in more territory than the original states, claim possession, and believe they have a perfect right in Bechuanaland now, in 1958 Britain undertook great reforms planning facilities to South Africa. It has overlying rights, under certain circumstances, to rescue operations, inspect airstrips for sanitation and by its air force in emergency, and carry out a reconnaissance for an emergency search for uranium. Africans, which is on Bechuanaland's western border.

There are normal arrangements and can be continued. Turning the three protectorates over to South Africa is something else again. Their African population is only 1,220,000 but to engulf these in the miseries of the 13,500,000 South African blacks would be inexcusable.

Mass Scale Delusion

Renfrew Advance

Psychologists run into many baffling problems. One of the minor ones is the fact that all males over 18 to accept the thought that they might not be perfect drivers. Each of us has a driving superiority complex to self-delusion on a mass scale.

The youth who has handled a hockey stick since he was knee-high to a duck would be low on the totem pole if he ever let on to the man who has done odd jobs around the house for years and married will admit coolheartedly that he is no mean carpenter. But both would think twice before they'd admit in question that they would be willing to learn about driving a car.

A boy seeking his first operator's license is only 16 years of driving ahead of him. His car will become an integral part of his life. For many years it will probably be his most valuable possession. Yet it is seldom that he or his parents think to take this vehicle in testing a little time and a little money to learn how to handle the car correctly . . . to give extra protection to his property, and to his own.

Much of the knowledge necessary for good driving can be found in the hundreds of a number of excellent books on the subject. They are not interesting as well as informative. Each offers to the new driver a greater degree of safety, and a greater hope of avoiding unnecessary expense. A very common feature of these books is that they are unknown, unbought, unread — and perhaps 99-point-something percent of the population.

Every father should consider giving his boy a book on driving as a 16th birthday gift. Maybe it would give less immediate pleasure than a bike, but it might save his life . . . for $2.50!

Strength for The Day

RIGHT COMBINATION

Thorwaldsen, the great Danish sculptor, made a statue of Christ for a church in Copenhagen. He modeled that statue with the hope of Christ raised imperiously as the King of Kings.

But as the plaster dried, the head sank down upon the breast and Thorwaldsen realized that what he would ordinarily have considered a failure was in fact a great consequence turned out really to be a revelation of the true nature of that Jesus who had said, "Learn of me for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Although Jesus Christ is King of Kings, although all authority has been put in His hands he ever remains lowly and meek. His humility implements in the lives of those the eternal and loving purposes of God.

Jesus in His Sermon on the Mount declared that the meek shall inherit the earth. How many centuries will number that declaration has been verified.

Everywhere in history the world's real heroes. Their heads are not held high. They are bowed in humility and submission to Christ.

Somehow we feel that we know a great deal. Maybe we do, and, again, maybe not. But we do know that we are to learn of Him as we remember that King of Kings and Lord of Lords, "Meek and lowly in heart."

Hard to Make Milk Sinful

Hamilton Spectator

We don't know for sure, but we doubt if there ever has been a sensible ad duly signed. Fleming, the minister of finance, with a Mr. Herbert Carmichael of Pittsburgh, who is president of the U.S. Milk Industry Foundation.

After Mr. Fleming's deliberate libel of milk as a beverage for consumers, we think that a meeting should be arranged, the underlings of wives might be profitable, as the diplomats say. Mr. Carmichael believes that dairymen would sell more milk if a way were found to make imbibing it a little more animal. "The trouble with milk is that it is a food that is taken for granted," he said the other day. "It lacks the glamor of tobacco and alcohol."

Now there's a campaign that would be worthy of the best psychological talents of the grey flannel suit brigade — a movement that would make milk bars places to sneak into, and to create a state of mind which would inspire one good citizen to say to another: "I think there's nothing more revolting than the sight of a woman who's had one milkshake too many."

When this atmosphere has been so thoroughly spread that cows and their attendants are given explicit shifts to cope with the demand, then Mr. Fleming can come along and put a tax of so many cents per proof gallon on the stuff — at the source.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

MANY THINGS CAN CAUSE LACK OF ENERGY AMONG TEEN-AGERS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am particularly interested in a lad of 16, very peppy and a good worker. However, he frequently complains of feeling tired, and even though he gets plenty of sleep he fades out," regularly. Could you suggest anything that might help? — C.E.S."

In this boy's case, you mentioned that he is anemic with low hemoglobin," and the doctor, we must be would like you also wonder whether the "modern advances of medical science" can help.

Has this young man had a physical condition checked recently? The "modern advances of medical science" are of no use unless they are applied. (As has been shown so vividly, the new polio vaccine doesn't prevent paralytic polio unless people get the shots!)

Quite a bit has been learned about low hemoglobin (anemia) in the last 10 years. One thing is that when a mother is anemic, it is not unusual for the baby to be, too. After all, the mother up to the time of birth furnishes all the sustenance for the baby!

Therefore it becomes important to see that the child's diet includes the things he needs — particularly those that correct the problem.

This, however, is not the sole cause of lack of energy among teen-agers, although I do feel that faulty diet does have a bearing to look for, and the chief offender.

Teen-agers can be erratic eaters, skipping breakfast, eating lunches that don't amount to much sense, nibbling, sandwiching or candy-bar-ing between meals, and not getting balanced meals at all.

Lack of protein is one frequent mistake. Proteins are mainly meat (the best source), fish, eggs, cheese. But too many youngsters acquire a taste for starch and sugar instead — bread, crackers, cookies, cake, ice cream. Yet its abundance protein is more necessary.

VARIOUS BLOOD DISORDERS

There are, too, blood disorders (perhaps anemia is) that happen something else) that need analysis and treatment.

Worm infestation can be troublesome — and the thyroid gland needs attention. There's a common cause of low reserve of energy.

Infection can do the same thing — any kind of chronic infection, including tuberculosis.

There can be psychological troubles. Poor adjustment in school or other elements in life; discord in the family; parents who are too indulgent; lack of incentive — there are different things, and it ought to be made known that psychological or psychiatric troubles are more common than is generally suspected in the age group. They can be subtle and hard to detect, too.

In protection I don't say that the above is a complete list of the things that leave young people tired — but it's a pretty fair start. And if the real cause is something else, its likewise a start showing up if a careful check is being made for the unknown causes that I have named.

"Dear Dr. Molner: For more than 10 years I have used cider vinegar on my corns. Now I am wondering whether this will be harmful, as I am diabetic. — Mrs. C. H."

I'll answer as gently as I can — but if you have been using a remedy for 10 years and still have corns, it's the wrong remedy. It is harmless, so far as the diabetes is concerned. I don't think it would hurt if you aged in vinegar.

Note to Mrs. J. Z.: The world is full of "cures" for colds, and the practitioner to whom you go in hopeful trust for the same back and lame knee is a member of one of them. Stick to the honorable and proved professions. Members of the medical profession have the hard way, but the long, difficult training is the best. The short first cuts, and the cults that make big promises, don't come through for you.

Are you a victim of "vitamin starvation?" To make sure that your diet always contains proper food, write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 4350, Chicago 77, for my pamphlet, "Vitamins — Alphabet Of Health," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5¢ in coin to cover handling.

College Costs Less Than Car

Ottawa Journal

Those who complain that university fees are too high might listen to Robert F. Goheen, president of Princeton.

"The average American family can afford to think seriously of a fee of $1,500 to educate a young person is horribly steep, although the same family won't complain a bit about spending the same amount on a car or trip to Florida or a new car every year."

A university education still remains a bargain. It should not, however, be given away and those who can afford to must continue to pay their fair share.

TODAY'S TALK

THE DAWN

I cannot recall the time when I did not look forward with joy to the coming of a new day. Everything about it is new — and inspiring. It's then that the kindly sun-gods give their opening concert. How very wonderful are the early, early songsters in the early Springtime and Summer.

How silently the Dawn creeps up, and before we realize it it's there and day is at hand. We are startled, for its possibilities are often hidden from us until we have sufficient courage and vision to handle them.

The Dawn in the "wide open spaces" with its wrappings in sheets of gold and silver, is not to be found out of the East we do a great deal of thinking. We make resolves, and offer up a prayer for those whom we love, and for the many whom we do not know, for we are of a pattern — the children of a universal Family.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

About a year ago, one of my old school chums who has risen to be a big industrial wizard was appointed to the managing directorship of the prosperous engineering firm I once worked for. I saw him at the time, and he looked pretty worn and weary. I thought, a little complacently, of the price he had obviously paid for his present success.

Yesterday I saw him again for the first time since, and was astonished to see how well he looked. Carefree, ruddy, relaxed, he seemed ten years younger than a year ago. And I commented on it.

"I'll tell you the secret," he said. "No more conferences. No more meetings. No more management seances. I am the head man now. So why should I have to sit and preside over gatherings at which everybody seems to feel obliged to sound off? Why should I wait and waste my time? I make up their minds! I have put an end to all that. More time is wasted in conferences and meetings than in any other process in industry. I have abolished conferences. I tend to it. And when I want an opinion, I ask for it. It has to be made to me before it comes to me. Result: I never felt better in my life."

"And how's the business?" I enquired.

"Up nine per cent," said he, very healthy.

Maybe his subordinates are looking a little peaked! These executives usually waste a restful way of spending several hours of the work week in pleasant chumminess on executive type chairs, curved to fit.

call 'em the ninety-mile snipers. They're proud of it.

For they're the "right of the line; the left of the paybook, and the pride of the Swedish army."

Say that to one of those war veterans you'll see in town Saturday and Sunday—and if he flips his head and smiles, he's a member of the 34th Battery RCA Association.

And if his chest is out-thrust a trifle you'll forgive him. For he belongs to the only complete unit to represent Belleville in two World Wars.

Upwards of 150 members of the famous field artillery unit, member battery of the 14th Canadian Field Regiment, will hold their annual reunion in the city this weekend.

They will represent Canada from coast to coast. From Wolfville, Nova Scotia, comes Lieut. George Buffee. From Prince Rupert Land on the northern tip of British Columbia comes Big Chief Tom Prince. Every province of the Dominion will be represented.

If their chests glint with medals, you'll understand. For they boast a record of which they are inordinately proud.

The 34th received more casualties than any other artillery unit on the western front.

It was the first field artillery unit ashore on D-Day when it supported the 8th Canadian Light Infantry Brigade.

Its guns fired the last salvo of a field artillery unit in World War Two. And it has the cartridge case of the last shell fired in that war to prove it.

If you do not believe that, ask "Snipe" Matthews, secretary of the 34th Battery Association and general impresario of the reunion. He has the cartridge case, jealously guarded in his home.

The dates of the reunion commemorates the 15th year since the battery and regiment landed on the bloody shores of Normandy and made for itself as "Snipe" puts it " the name of the best d—d artillery unit in

Battery Has Last "25" Fired in War

It's a shiny but battered old twenty-five pounder cartridge case. But it has a history.

It is one of the most treasured possessions of the 34th Battery RCA Association.

For it is the cartridge case of the last shell of its calibre fired in World War Two.

On May 4th, 1945, at 1700 hours the order "Cease Aggression", denoting the end of the war was issued to the troops. The only firing, the 34th was told, was to be done if the enemy made a counter attack.

It was later announced that all German forces in northwest Germany, Holland, Denmark, the Frisen Islands and Heligoland would officially surrender at 0800 hours, May 5.

Following this announcement the 14th Field Regiment on request from the infantry fired numerous rounds of high explosive on a target described as enemy infantry digging in.

Later the observing officer decided to "register" a building suspected of being an enemy observation post. He used "A" Troop of the 34th Battery in ranging on at 2101 hours May 4, fired the last round.

"This was said to be the last round fired in the war as far as 25-pounders are concerned — and the 34th Battery proudly claims it as it's own.

The gun which fired the last round was "Able Three" and the crew consisted of Sergeant C. Shewring, Bombardier H. A. Gouley, Lance Bombardier D. C. Keyes, and Gunners F. L. Kipling, D. H. Filson, K. R. Ballantyne and R. Harrison. They will be here for the reunion.

Later a high-ranking artillery officer visited the 34th and requested to be given the last cartridge case fired, as a souvenir.

"Snipe" Matthews recalls the incident. "We gave him a cartridge case, all right," Snipe said, "but the 34th has the last one fired in the war."

Murder May Be Linked With Buy-Back Deals

MONTREAL (CP) — The buy-back deals in stolen bonds, recently brought to light through official Ontario and Quebec sources, are said to be linked now with murder.

An informant, who declined to give details, said Wednesday one phase of the many investigations concerns the slaying of Kenneth (China Boy) Winford earlier this spring.

Winford, fatally shot, was found on a road in the Laurentian area north of Montreal. He refused to talk before he died.

The informant said the FBI, RCMP, Quebec Provincial Police and Montreal police are crossing paths during the various phases of investigating burglaries and the theft, movement and sell-back of bit bonds.

Jean-Paul Ste. Marie, a Crown prosecutor in Montreal, said he has sent to Charles Cantin, Quebec's deputy attorney-general, a report stating an organized receiving ring in Montreal has had a part in handling bonds stolen in Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Ste. Marie said he is awaiting instructions from Quebec to proceed with criminal charges against "a number" of persons. Several are to be charged with receiving stolen bonds.

Investigators said arrests are expected of persons involved in a buy-back deal of $1,400,000 in bonds taken in the hugh burglary operation at the Brockville Trust and Savings Co. in May, 1958.

The deal is said to have been negotiated at Montreal through a New York lawyer for about 10 per cent of the actual value of the bonds.

The sellers, it was reported, also offered or claimed they had access to bonds and securities from burglaries in Montreal, Dame de la Guadeloupe, Que., and St. Catharines. The amount was reported ranging up to $1,500,000.

Mr. Ste. Marie said formal application has been made at Quebec for a preferred indictment against Peter (the Russian) Stepanoff on an habitual-criminal charge.

Stepanoff, 39, of Montreal is awaiting sentence June 12 for possession of $9,600 worth of bonds, said to be part of a $890,000 burglary of a trust company in St. Catharines.

A preferred indictment eliminates preliminary hearing and the defendant is sent to trial on arraignment.

Coe Hill C of C Will Advertise By Brochure

A meeting was held of the Coe Hill Chamber of Commerce with a view to work out ways and means to advrtise the beauties and possibilities of this county, and it was decided as a first step to publish a tourist brochure showing a map on one side pinpointing the highways leading to this part of the county, and on the other side a story of interest to tourist about Coe Hill and the surroundings, with the business men and tourist resorts showing what they have to offer the public.

The co-operation of the members since the Chamber's first efforts to put this county on the map have been most gratifying and with ten thousand brochures distributed to the various tourist information centres, there are high hopes of building up a real vacation attraction.

Jap Women Take Important Role in Country

CALGARY, (CP) — Mrs. E.H. Ashdown of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs says the Japanese are worthy citizens in the world who owe a lot of credit to Japanese women for their progress since the Second World War.

She is the federation's United Nations chairman, and recently attended a UNESCO gathering in Japan. Since her return she has spoken to many groups about the Japanese.

In spite of holding a secondary place in Japanese public life, Japanese women are taking an important role.

"It is only since 1955 that they have been allowed to vote," Mrs. Ashdown explained. "Yet in one city 40 women are presidents of companies. Now there are 115,000 women enrolled in the universities, and three university presidents told me their best students are women."

In the cities of Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe and Nagoya there is one women in almost every occupational field, but in spite of training equal to North American standards they earn much lower than the equivalent salaries on the continent.

"A top-flight secretary in Japan is a university graduate with six languages and four or five years' experience. But she earns only about $50."

Most professional women in Japan have jobs on the side, to make ends meet, she said.

FUTURE PROBLEMS

In spite of her admiration for Japanese women's progress Mrs. Ashdown is unsure about their future.

They are so eager to learn that under the wrong leadership they could be disastrous. There is strong Communist infiltration in almost every field, and it is up to the Western world to do more than just talk friendship."

Mrs. Ashdown said she felt more Japanese should be allowed to emigrate to Canada.

She also criticized Canada's import laws. "Japan has to export to survive," she declared.

Loyal Group Of St. Andrew's Holds Tea

Pretty white baskets of fragrant lemon lilies, deep red peonies, smokey iris, and graceful sprays of bridal - white spirea adorned the lovely home of Mrs. J. H. Sloan, 28 Pine Street, yesterday afternoon, with its soft Persian rugs and artistic antique furnishings for the "Blossom Tea' held under the auspices of the Loyal Group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Receiving the many visitors and patrons, were Mrs. R. D. MacLean, wife of the pastor; Mrs. H. J. MacKay; Mrs. W. H. Walker, and Mrs. P. Tounsley. The treasurers for the afternoon were Miss Jean MacIntosh, and Mrs. D. Fleming.

Mrs. Sloan was the gracious hostess and escorted the guests into the tea room with its dainty appointed tea table, centred with yellow candles in the branched silver candelabra flanking an attractive arrangement of old-time flowers. Lemon lilies, blue bachelor buttons, old-fashioned sweet garden pinks, and columbine in Star of Bethlehem and wine-toned pyrethrum.

Mrs. O. J. Reed and Mrs. M. Barlow, Mrs. E. Pigden and Mrs. Beavie presided at the smaller silver services.

Those replenishing included Mrs. A. Murray, Miss D. Poole; Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. P. Millar; Mrs. Cranz and Miss Helen Blair, while Mrs. S. Lloyd; Mrs. C. Powell; Mrs. H. Bondie; Mrs. Whitefield; Mrs. M. Yorke; Mrs. J. Miller and Mrs. G. O'Neill did the serving. Mrs. H. McConnell was in charge of the tea making.

ADDED-ATTRACTIONS

As added attractions there were two tables, one of homecooking and one of miscellaneous articles. The home cooking displayed dainty chocolate squares, tiny cookies; coconut layer cake; white-iced angel cake; fruit and nut loaves; asparagus and freshly pulled rhubarb; apple pies; jars of relish, and little baskets of parsley, as well as mouth-watering muffins, piled high and golden.

On the miscellaneous table were, men's straw hats; children's bonnets, also in straw; a garden hat in colorful red, blue and green checks; a lovely, crocheted afghan; pretty aprons; tiny booties in pink and blue; crocheted dishcloths; needlework embroidery - edged baby pillow cover; tea towels and pretty place mats.

An attractively arranged tea bringing commendation for the gracious hostess, and to the convenors, Mrs. Gordon Shaw, and co-convener, Mrs. Harold Arnott.

Wedding

LASHLEY—LOTT

On Saturday, May 23rd, at 1.30 p.m., a very pretty wedding was solemnized in Plainfield United Church, by the Reverend R. W. T. Middleton, when Joyce Ethel Lott, of Holloway R.R. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross S. Lott, was united in marriage to Keith Floyd Lashley, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Lashley. Tall standards of fern, pink snapdragons and white carnations adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Beverley Foster of Canadian reindeer moss.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ross Lott, was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of pure silk organza enhanced with a bodice of Alencon lace having a pleated neckline and lace tulip-point sleeves. The matron of honor Mrs. Guy Thompson, of Belleville, was attired in a floral satin

St. Margaret's Jr. Aux. Holds Banquet

On the evening of May 27th, the Junior Auxiliary of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, held a mother and daughter banquet.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Arthur L. Page, wife of the Rector of St. Margaret's; Mrs. F. E. Huson, leader of the Junior Auxiliary, and Beverley Smith, junior president.

Mothers were invited to view some of the work done by the girls during the year, which was on display.

The Rev. Arthur L. Page gave the invocation and some 85 guests sat down at well appointed tables, resplendent with bouquets of flowers and laden with appetizing foods.

Mrs. L. Henning, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, convened the dinner and assisted by other members of the W.A., who sponsor the Junior Auxiliary, prepared and served a delicious meal. Everyone seemed in a conversational mood and a friendly atmosphere prevailed throughout the dinner.

While those present lingered over their cups of tea, Mrs. Huson extended a warm welcome to the mothers and commended Mrs. Henning and members of the W.A. for their co-operation. To them went a well-deserved round of applause.

JR. AUX. AIMS

Mrs. Huson spoke briefly about Junior Auxiliary, its aims, activities and accomplishments for the year. An expression of gratitude was given to Mrs. J. R. Bennett, Mrs. W. Gorham and Mrs. Jeffrey for their assistance with Dominion Competition work.

"INVISIBLE ARMOR"

Following this, the Juniors presented to their mothers "Invisible Armor," a series of suitable Bible verses and hymns, in keeping with their Study Book of the same name. Mrs. F. E. Moore, a member of W.A. provided musical accompaniment.

Mrs. F. Woodcock, assistant leader of J.A. introduced Mrs. A. Watson, who gave an informative talk on the Girls' Auxiliary, for the benefit of all present, but most particularly for the girls who would be graduating from juniors.

Mrs. Woodcock thanked Mrs. Watson and called upon Mrs. Henning to present promotion certificates to these girls. Those receiving certificates were: Ann Mountford; Beverly Smith; Susan Clarke; Linda Jones; Ann Burns and Claire Watson. At this time two new members, Janet Stewart and Heather Wood, were presented with membership cards.

PINS, SHIELDS PRESENTED

Mrs. Page came forward to present silver pins and shields to the girls who had been members of A. for one year. Receiving these were: Cathy Bradley; Janice Coles; Dianne Gervey; Carol Gilbert; Nancy Green; Debbie Grier; Karen Grier; Karen Howse; Frances Innis; Margaret Innis; Janis Jeffrey; Linda Jones; Louise Male; Judy Nichols, and Patsy Rose.

Following the presentations, Mrs. Page spoke to the girls commending them for their efforts and reminding them of their responsibilities as Juniors to do justice to their uniform and the cause for which it stands. He expressed the wish that they would have a pleasant summer holiday.

GOOD MANNERS

GIFT TO SEMINARY GRADUATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A close friend of ours, a very fine young man is being graduated from the Seminary this month (it is a four-year course) and we would like to give him a very nice gift. He is not married. He and his mother, a dear and long-time friend of ours, have both asked us surely to be present at his ordination, and we are planning to attend. If you will please suggest an appropriate gift for him, will you also tell us when we should present the gift? Thank you. — Reader

Unless you would be willing to ask the young man's mother to suggest something she knows her son would particularly welcome, I suggest that it would be wise and very practical to give him a gift certificate on a department store near his home. This would mean he could shop in various departments for a gift he would particularly like to have.

Whatever gift you plan to give him, send it to him at his home. I suggest that it would be wise and very practical to give him a gift certificate on a department store near his home. This would mean he could shop in various departments for a gift he would particularly like to have.

Flag Etiquette Demonstrated At Melrose W.I.

Mrs. N. Denill kindly opened her spacious home for the May meeting of Melrose W.I., which had an excellent attendance. The new president, Mrs. K. McMeehan, presided and thanked the hostess after which she conducted the business session.

A visiting committee, composed of Mrs. C. Hagerman, Mrs. G. McLaren, Mrs. R. MacFarlane and Mrs. E. Whiteman was appointed to visit the shut-ins and newcomers in this community.

The new ruling for life membership was read by Mrs. E. Pascoe, who informed that a member with 25 years' standing is eligible for this honor on payment of a $25 fee. It was decided to cater to a wedding in June and a special committee was selected to arrange for the same.

At this stage, Mrs. J. English, convener of historical research and current events, took charge and called on Mrs. T. Howard who demonstrated "How To Raise and Lower the Flag." As the royal tour nears flag orders zoom so it was most fitting to learn the correct manner of always having the wide white stripe nearest the mast and taking care that it doesn't touch the ground.

Her description of the Canadian Red Ensign with the Union Jack in the corner and the various emblems of England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Canada proved most educational. All stood at attention as the flag was lowered and joined in singing "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall."

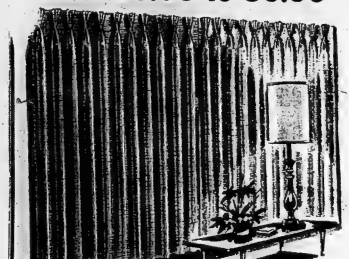
A contest on "Flags" proved informative and was followed by a hearty sing-song with Mrs. C. Bates at the piano.

Mrs. G. McLaren gave the topic on "Flags."

"As the time approaches for the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip everyone becomes more flag-conscious and realizes what the flag means to us. It's significant that the Union Jack is distinctly a Christian flag formed with three crosses used by the patron saints, namely, St. George of England, St. Andrew of Scotland and St. Patrick of Ireland."

She stressed the correct usage of the flag at meetings and public functions. "It should be hung flat against the wall; never caught up or draped. The bunting for draping or festoons and make sure all flags are spread out when suspended in mid-air. When we wish to fly the pennant of a special club with the Union Jack always be sure the flag is above at the peak.

FLAG FLYING



"At international gatherings flags of different countries are flown from their separate staffs producing a thrilling sight. The proper terminology of flag-flying consists of the hoist, that part of the flag flying next to the flag staff; the fly or the field is the outer part that flies in the breeze; the truck is the circular cap that rests on top of the staff and should be flat on the underneath side as well as to prevent sagging. All these formalities can be fascinating so this year, particularly when we are honoring the Queen and revelling in the traditions of the Commonwealth, let us fly the flags of freedom in the correct manner."

Brief highlights of the district annual recently held at the Empey Hill church, were given by each member attending same. A comprehensive report of the Guelph conference by Mrs. K. McMeehan, who had attended, brought forth a wealth of suggestions for future meetings. The theme, "Adventures in Service," stressed the need for serving others. The roll-call, "Name One Country in the Common wealth," blended in well with the topic. A "Ghost Story" read by Mrs. Jack English and cleverly enacted by several members who portrayed the various characters involved proved most amusing.

Refreshments were served.

New Style Strawberry Dessert

by Mary Moore

We wow-ed the troops with a Strawberry Cream Roll. As a matter of fact I sort of wow-ed myself.

Dinner Manus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Stewed Chicken; Boiled New Potatoes (make double for tomorrow); New Green Peas; Radishes; Sweet Pickles; Ice Cream with Sliced Strawberries; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Roast Stuffed Boston Butt (fresh pork) (see Tuesday); Red Cinnamon Apples; Fresh Frozen Succotash; Spinach; Shredded Beets with Orange, Celery Hearts, Carrot and Cucumber Strips; Strawberry Cream Roll (see Thursday); Coffee.

The recipe calls for a sponge cake as it is made for a jelly roll, this one does not have to be trimmed off at the sides because it is not crusty. The very slick way to bake it in a homemade "jelly roll pan" made from a double thickness of heavy duty foil. Of course if you have a 10" x 15" jely roll pan you don't have to make one. But the foil pan does prevent crusty edges forming.

STRAWBERRY CREAM ROLL

Four eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 5 tablespoons (level) water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon each baking powder and salt, ½ pint cream, whipped and slightly sweetened, and 1 pint strawberries, sliced and slightly sweetened. Use an electric mixer at rotary beater. Beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored, then gradually beat in the sugar. Stir in all at once the water and vanilla, sift together dry ingredients and add all at once, folding them in by hand thoroughly. Pour immediately into 10" x 15" jelly roll pan that has been lightly buttered.

If you do not have a 10" x 15" jelly roll pan (exact measurements are important to success), use a 9" piece of 18-in. wide heavy duty aluminum foil. Fold in half to make sheet 12 x 18 inches. Turn up the edges 1 inch on all sides and miter corners for firmness. If you're an old jelly roll hand, you'll appreciate the cake this foil pan produces. It is soft and rolls easily. Place homemade foil pan on a cookie sheet before pouring batter. Bake the cake in a moderate oven (375 deg. Fahr.) for 12 to 15 minutes or until very light brown (Do not overbake.) Turn out on large sheet of foil which has been heavily sprinkled with granulated sugar. If you have made your own pan, unfold corners and peel foil off cake. Roll up immediately and let stand until cool. When cool, unroll and spread the whipped cream and arrange the sliced strawberries over it uniformly. Roll up again and chill in refrigerator thoroughly before serving. Cover with foil during chilling. This is excellent 24 hours later and serves 10.

Dr. C. Booth Addresses PTO On 'Education'

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. Charles Booth, Deputy Minister of Education addressed the Parent - Teacher Organization in the high school auditorium on Thursday night.

Mr. Booth was born on the family homestead in the Township of Percy, in the vicinity of While school house about two miles east of Warkworth. He attended Warkworth Continuation School and Campbellford High School, and later became High School inspector for this area.

"Education is the preparation for complete living", he said and went on to tell of the aims of education. He said the object of education is achieved when the pupil attains the maximum of his capabilities. Knowledge in itself is most commendable, but is not the end to which education strives.

Firstly, a pupil must be encouraged to think for himself; to exercise mental muscles, and to learn self expression and a proper sense of values. Teaching should be done on the basis of mutual respect and understanding between teacher and student.

If education is to bring forth well-rounded personalities, leaders with a high degree of desirable characteristics must be available. Teachers of good character and integrity will impress pupils, and when a teacher can present a good example and appeal to the imagination of the pupil through a dedicated, conscientious effort to inspire, there should be no problem of discipline, Mr. Booth said.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Booth answered a number of questions put to him. He outlined the plan underway now to study needs of High School and University pupils. He stated that Ontario is now conducting the most extensive research ever undertaken on this continent, and is spending millions in bursaries and scholarships to enable those who can not afford college, to do so.

Prior to the address, Mr. S.A. Hopping, president of the Parent-Teacher Organization, welcomed those present and a short program was presented including a dance team from Grade 10, a piano duet by Norma Tinney and Barbara Watson, and a vocal duet by Ileen McKelvie and Ione Sharp.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. E. E. Darling and thanked by Miss Wynn Hay.

Program Planning Studied At W.A. Presbytery Meeting

"If you want to get the women of the church to come out to your W.A. meetings, the programs must be worthwhile", said Mrs. K. B. Clysdale, guest speaker at the 27th annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward branch of the Belleville Presbytery Woman's Association held recently in Bridge Street United Church.

"In those days, life is so involved and so busy, it takes a real effort on the part of the women to come out to meetings. If the meetings are not interesting or are not filling the needs of the women, it is not worth while for them to make the effort. Many meetings are boring due to lengthy discussions of trivialities and lack of an adequately prepared agenda. It is the duty of the leaders to carry out the aims and objects of the W.A., to include as many members as possible so all phases of the program will be used, to broaden their vision, and to make the programs so interesting and challenging that the women will want to come to the meetings".

SCHEDULE PROGRAM

To do this, Mrs. Clysdale suggested: that the executive plan the meetings at least six months in advance; that those responsible for the needs of the and particularly those taking part in the service of worship, spend much time in adequate preparation before the meeting; that business details be kept to a minimum, having all projects planned by committees and only necessary details brought to the meetings for confirmation; that greater use of the programs planned by Dominion Council W.A. be made; that evaluation sheets be handed out for each meeting with definite questions on them to be answered; that a questionnaire be filled in at the end of six months to see if the programs have improved, if they women, and if there are any suggestions for future programs.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM

Mrs. Clysdale emphasized the fact that leaders must be able to take constructive criticism and act upon it. If programs are planned, and carefully prepared, they will be stimulating and challenging, and the ladies will attend the meetings, looking forward to them with enthusiasm.

Mrs. Clysdale, of St. Mary's, Ontario, chairman of Leadership Education committee and a member of the program planning committee of Dominion Council W.A., was introduced to the meeting by Mrs. G. E. Dobbs who thanked for her address by Mrs. R. C. Jackson.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson, of Madoc, president of the Presbytery W.A., conducted the business of the morning and afternoon sessions. Both sessions were opened with devotions. The morning service of worship was given by Mamamaga W.A. with the various sections being taken by Mrs. E. Jose, Mrs. William Jose, Mrs. Roy Vallean, with Mrs. William Gray at the piano.

- Mrs. William Jose chose a most timely topic for the meditation, "Carelessness," comparing parts to gardens.

The afternoon devotion was given by Holloway W.A. under the leadership of Mrs. F. Wellington. The scripture was read by Mrs. G. Roth and the meditation by Mrs. E. Snider who took for the story of the talents to illustrate how God uses the average man to do His work.

Mrs. W. Dallas, president of Bridge Street W.A. graciously welcomed the visitors to the church, and hoped that they would receive inspiration from the meeting to forward the work of their local in the coming year. Mrs. Longhurst of Centre St. W.A. thanked Mrs. Dallas for her kind welcome.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. H. Adams, showed an increase of 60 in membership. Mrs. G. Roblin, recording secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting held in Picton; and also the report of the corresponding secretary in the absence of Mrs. K. Weaver. An invitation was received from Tweed W.A. to hold the next annual meeting in their United Church, and this was unanimously accepted.

GREETINGS BROUGHT

Greetings from Belleville W. M. S. Presbyterial were brought by Mrs. C. Holmes, president, who remarked that the Christian church needs enrichment which must begin in the local churches with harmony and fellowship at all levels. When Mrs. G. Dobbs, newly-elected president of the Bay of Quinte Conference W.A., Mrs. E. S. Presbyterial were greetings to the meeting, she was presented with a lovely corsage by Mrs. Jackson on behalf of the Presbytery W.A., and a fine address of congratulation by the Board of Stewards of Holloway St. United Church, read by Mrs. Holmes.

Mrs. Dobbs challenged the ladies to read and study in order to make themselves worthy leaders and workmen, approved of God. Before closing her remarks, she asked if each W. A. would consider making a donation to help the W.A. of Marven United Church, near Napanee, which was burned last week, to aid them in their great task of rebuilding. Donations should be sent to the Presbytery W. A. treasurer, Mrs. C. Smith, R.R. 1, Belleville, who will forward them. Greetings were also read from Mrs. S. Botting of Harrowsmith, president of Kingston Presbytery W. A. and from the Rev. H. E. Beare, president of Belleville Presbytery, who was unable to be present.

A most appreciative audience enjoyed the singing of the hymn "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," sung by Mr. A. Hughes, accompanied on the organ by Mr. William O'Connor.

Mrs. Jackson gave a report of her activities as president of the Presbytery W.A. during the past year, and also an excellent summary of the meetings of Dominion Council W. A. which she and Mrs. LaRue had attended as delegates. In particular, she mentioned the report of the commission on women's work telling of the progress on the unified woman's organization in the church. Mrs. Dobbs remarked that a team of ladies was being sent out across Canada by the Dominion Council W. A. and the Dominion Board of the WMS to give information and to answer questions on this new organization. She suggested that the leaders of the fall rallies give consideration to having joint meetings with the WMS this fall and asking this team to speak to them.

STANDING COMMITTEES' REPORTS

The reports of the standing committees showed that the ladies are widening their vision, increasing their knowledge, and taking ever greater activity in extending the work of the church. Most of the chairmen remarked on so few of the 96 WAs filling in all parts of the annual report forms, and hoped for more complete reports next year. Mrs. Jackson reported that one new W.A. had been formed, the Coronation Club of Bridge Street Church, and welcomed them to the Presbytery W.A.

Mrs. C. Sire, literature secretary, emphasized the value of the fall rallies in the distribution of literature to the locals. In speaking of the trashy and salacious books being offered on many bookstands today, she pointed out that Christian people can raise the standards by reading Christian literature. She then reviewed several books and pamphlets that the literature department of the United Church have issued that would be helpful in W. A. work.

In the afternoon, the reports of the seven fall rallies showed that these meetings are providing fellowship and creating interest among the W.A. ladies particularly in the rural areas. Centre Hastings suggested the donations toward a resuscitator for Quin-Mo-Lac camp would be much appreciated.

The offering was taken by ladies from Bethany W.A. and dedicated by the president of Zion-Malone W.A. Mrs. F. Beckett and Mrs. J. Pollock sang a lovely duet, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. A. N Pyear.

The new slate of officers for 1959-60 was presented by past president Mrs. J. E. Marsh, and installed by Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, assisted by Mrs. A. N. Pyear. They are as follows:

Hon. president, Mrs. J. A. Lott, Frankford; past president, Mrs. J. E. Marsh, 343 McDonald Ave., Belleville; president, Mrs. R. C. Jackson, Madoc; vice-presidents, Mrs. Frank Davidson, 294A George St., Belleville; Mrs. D. G. Carter, Picton; Mrs. B. H. Smithrim, 272 Dufferin St., Trenton; Mrs. C. H. LaRue, Foxboro; corresponding secretary, Mrs Kenneth Weaver, R.R. 3, Stirling; recording secretary, Mrs. George Robin, R.R. 1, Belleville; treasurer, Mrs. C. W. Smith, R.R. 1, Belleville; press secretary, Mrs. R. C. Ellis, 160 Dufferin Ave., Belleville.

Chairmen of Standing Committees

Literature, Mrs. C. W. Sine, RR 1, Harold; Mrs. Mervyn Hudgin, South Bay; visiting and Christian fellowship, Mrs. V. A. McMurray, Gilmour; parsonage, Mrs. Arthur Clare, RR 3, Belleville; Christian citizenship, Mrs. Harry Pierson, Wellington; devotions, Mrs. B. H. Smithrim, 272 Dufferin St., Trenton; Christian education, Mrs. J. W. Sherry, 184 Queen St., Belleville; leadership education, Miss Laila Johnson, Box 315, Trenton; Christian stewardship, Mrs. Perry Brownson, Madoc; organization, the president.

Mrs. F. Davidson expressed the thanks of the ladies to every one who had helped to make the day one of inspiration and fellowship — in particular to Mrs. J. Guiberidge who had presided at the piano throughout the day, and to all the ladies of Bridge St. W.A. for the very delightful lunch served at the noon hour.

Mrs. R. Jackson closed the meeting with a benediction poem and prayer.

ILLUSTRATES BOOKLETS ON QUEBEC FISH — Eugene Klimoff, 34, Russian-born painter now living in Quebec, was one of two Canadians commissioned by the Quebec game and fisheries department to illustrate a series of booklets called "Fishes of Quebec." Full-page color reproductions of life-size oil paintings of male and female of each species were used in the booklets, publication of which began on a limited scale six years ago. The department is continuing the series and plans to distribute them to the public this summer. Mr. Klimoff's paintings have an almost photographic quality and are accurate in every detail. Explains Mr. Klimoff, "I like natural art — art which everyone can understand." He is shown, above, in his Quebec studio working on one of his many paintings. (CP Photo)

PAINTS QUEBEC FISH — Germaine Bernier of Montreal puts the finishing touches on one of the life-size paintings which are reproduced in a series of booklets called "Flashes of Quebec" being published by the Quebec department of game and fisheries. She was one of two Canadian artists commissioned to illustrate the bilingual booklets which are being distributed to the public for the first time this summer. Canadian and American biologists have praised the series of booklets and experts say nothing quite like them has ever been published. Each deals with characteristics, habitat, spawning and eating habits of various fish found in Quebec's 8,000 lakes, 4,000 miles of St. Lawrence Gulf waters and its numerous inland lakes. (CP Photo).

Cold Spring, Rugged Winter Destroys Crop Seeding in Areas Except Ontario and Quebec

By NEVILLE NANKIVELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A rugged winter and a cold spring delayed crop seeding everywhere in Canada except in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Despite the early setback, a Canadian Press cross-Canada survey shows that acreages will probably be about the same or slightly higher than last year. And crop prospects look fairly good in most areas.

Agricultural officials in British Columbia, where seeding was delayed several weeks because of a late start-up, said 1959 is expected to be the biggest year in the province's general crop history.

QUICK RECOVERY

Seeding advanced rapidly after initial delays. At the end of May it was nearly completed in most provinces and the green shoots of new crops showed above ground.

Crop growth, however, will be determined by what the weather does during the growing season. Good rainfalls now would be beneficial to most crops.

Wheat, Canada's main crop and a valuable source of export revenue, was originally expected to show an acreage increase of about eight per cent—based on farmers' intentions in March.

The estimates will likely be reduced slightly due to the seeding delays. Final figures are not yet available.

Early estimates of wheat seeded on the Prairies were put at 22,000,000 acres. Last year 20,200,000 acres were seeded and the value of the crop came to about $387,400,000—based on initial payments to farmers.

SLIGHT INCREASES

Other major Prairie crops are oats, barley, rye and flax. All except barley are expected to show slight acreage increases. Barley will probably be down about four per cent.

Special field crops such as rapeseed, mustard, sunflower seed and soybeans are all expected to show substantial acreage increases.

Initial crop prospects appear good in Alberta and Manitoba but not as good in Saskatchewan where it's been abnormally dry since April 1 and subject to a lot of soil drifting. Rains are needed in Saskatchewan to germinate seeded crops.

Hay seeding was nearly complete in Saskatchewan and much of Alberta last week. Rains in Manitoba and parts of Alberta delayed operations and seeding was only 25 per cent complete in eastern Manitoba.

British Columbia has 1,100,000 acres under cultivation, about two-thirds of it in grass for grazing. Hay and silage Grain crops in the Peace River country are up to a week later than last year and the pea crop in the Creston area is expected to show a 20 per cent acreage increase.

ONTARIO REPORT

In Ontario, where 1958 crops totalled at $230,082,000 and was a tobacco crop at $90,433,000, seeding was delayed until late last week was complete in the south. Forty per cent remained to be seeded last month.

Ontario's winter wheat—600,000 acres seeded last fall—suffered badly because of an overload of ice followed by cool, dry weather. The ice smothered the grain and spring runoff came too late.

The weather was good for spring - sown crops though, because a heavy snow cover kept frost from penetrating too deeply and gave a good start to spring seeding.

Barley and spring wheat acreages show slight increases, helping offset winter - killed crops. Tomatoes are reduced due to heavy crops last year. Soybeans are down because of depressed prices and potatoes remain about the same.

Heavy snow also helped Quebec to get a good start on seeding and nearly all of the 5,300,000 acres to be sown had been completed last week. Pastures are reported in excellent condition and acreage of main crops this year is expected to be unchanged.

Crops, mostly grain and potatoes, are expected to have the same acreage as last year. Seeding of the two crops started only a short time ago in Prince Edward Island where severe winter killing of grain has been reported. Hay and pasture prospects are uncertain.

Good growth is good in Nova Scotia as a result of one good crop, breaking a long spell of costly weather. Seeding was progressing rapidly in New Brunswick where last year's farm crop was worth about $21,014,000.

Newfoundland where farming is not extensive. The province's west coast has some good farms but mostly only small plots scratched from rocky ground to support a family, usually fishermen. Vegetables and root crops are the largest crops and are expected to be about the same as last year. Plowing started only recently.

See Anti-Labor Trend Sweeping Across Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of the nation's biggest single union today sounded separate warnings of a "growing" anti-labor, anti-union trend in Canada.

The speakers — top directors of the 83,000-member United Steelworkers of America (CLC) — expressed alarm in opening reports to the union's national policy conference here.

"We are meeting this year in an atmosphere influenced by a constant barrage of anti-labor propaganda," William Mahoney, USWA national director, told some 300 local union leaders at the conference.

"The line of attack stretches from the fog-bound domain of Joey Smallwood to the balmy shores of Bennett's British Columbia," added Larry Sefton, USWA chief of 317 local unions from Ontario to the west coast.

Text of their speeches were released in advance of delivery.

CITY PROVINCIAL ACTIONS

They pointed to Premier Smallwood's intervention in the Newfoundland loggers strike and to B.C. legislation that makes unions legal entities open to court actions.

Mr. Sefton called it "a nationwide, hysterical smear campaign."

Both speakers pressed for full USWA backing for current efforts by the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress to create a socialist worker-farmer political party.

Mr. Mahoney advised Labor Minister Starr to "hesitate to accept" the presidency of a Geneva general assembly of the International Labor Organization later this year.

WAS WELFARE LEADER

TORONTO (CP) — George Black, 72, former Canadian sugar interests chief, Dr. Barnardo's Homes, a welfare organization which brought 15,000 children from Britain in Canada between 1877 and 1937, died Tuesday. The home closed down in Toronto two years ago.

Only Confusion Would Follow Says Reeve

TORONTO (CP)—Reeve Chris Torks says suburban York Township council hesitated to amend or scrap zoning bylaws after it learned of violations because the action would have caused "confusion" amongst basement dwellers.

The reeve was given evidence Wednesday at a judicial inquiry into the townships land transactions.

A fire department check on one such basement apartment, Reeve Torks said, "multiply that by 1,000 streets and you will see the tremendous problem we are forcing we had."

Later, Deputy Reeve William J. Graham said he heard three weeks ago about a bribe being offered Fred Rowntree, then deputy reeve in 1956 to facilitate a land deal.

Mr. Graham added that when the other deputy told him of the bribe offer, he also said someone was trying to "frame" him. According to his testimony the Rowntree and provincial police were in some way involved.

No one has ever offered him a bribe and he had never used his position as deputy reeve on behalf of anyone, Mr. Graham said.

The hearing is continuing.

Syndicate, Two Women Share Biggest Plums

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two women and a three-man Toronto syndicate shared the biggest plums in a $1,000,000-plus Canadian jackpot provided by the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes Wednesday.

Widowed Mrs. Audrey Jackson of Montreal, Mrs. Richard Stevens, a Sandwich West, Ont., housewife and the Toronto trio each collected $140,000 when Partbia romped home first in the English Derby.

Ninety - nine other Canadians with tickets on Derby horses also came in for money. Eight held tickets on second-place Fidalgo worth $50,000 and six more hit for $28,000 on Shantung, third-place horse.

QUEBEC SWEEP WINNERS

There were also three big winners in a $121,000 sweepstake sponsored by the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association of Quebec. Mrs. Anthony Of Toronto won $37,100, Antoinette Alain of Chicoutimi, Que., $18,000 and Ed Izsett of Winnipeg, $12,000.

Mrs. Jackson, a secretary-receptionist with two teen-age children, the $140,000 windfall proved unnerving.

She packed up and with her children went into temporary seclusion in the Laurentian resort area north of Montreal.

She said the ticket was given to her by two girl friends "for good luck because we had a lot of bad luck last year."

ENGLISH-BORN

English-born Mrs. Stevens' first reaction to the good news was: "Is it bloody well true?" She is the wife of a Windsor factory fireman and has been in Canada 23 years. They have three children and four grandchildren.

Harry Crystal, in whose name the third $140,000 ticket was registered, shared the money with Dave Hersh and Morris Binstock, all employees of the same clothing store. They said they planned to pay off mortgages with their shares.

OTHER ONTARIO WINNERS

Two Torontonians were among those winning $50,000 with tickets on Fidalgo — Mrs. Vickie Beale, an office clerk, and Leslie Trowsse, a store man who came to Canada five years ago from England.

Jim Hazelhurst of Brantford who won $30,000. The money will speed up the day of his marriage. He is a tester for Bell Telephone.

Bob Brown of Ottawa won $28,000 with his ticket on Shantung. He is a painting contracting agent, for an automotive supplies firm.

Another $28,000 went to Kenneth Morey, 21, of Mitchell, who was injured in a fall last year that left him with back pain compensation since before Christmas.

Holders of tickets on non-starters and horses that did not place got half back. There were also consolation awards of $280 and $50.

PAINFUL STUNT

HAMILTON (CP) — Pete Arnett, 19, who gulped a shot of ammonia for a joke is in fair condition in hospital. Police said that Arnett and a couple of friends were drinking in a bar when a bet developed. Arnett was passed around as a joke. Arnett downed it, became violently ill and was treated for burns to the mouth, throat and stomach.

German Artillery Officer, Now AP Staff Writer, Tells Of Events After Landing

Editor's Note — When the Allies swarmed ashore on the French coast, a young German artillery officer was busy training green replacements for the defenses of Hitler's Atlantic wall. Almost immediately Horst Fluegge was caught up in the desperate attacks on the beachhead. Fluegge — now on the Associated Press staff in Germany — recalls the momentous events from a German viewpoint.

By HORST FLUEGGE

BONN, Germany (AP) — We had waited for the phone call for a long time. It came around 8 o'clock on June 6 and I sergeant picked up the receiver. He listened for a while then turned to us and said, "They have landed."

That was D-Day, 15 years ago.

I was a lieutenant stationed with a German army mobile artillery unit at Avranches, 60 miles from the Allied invasion beaches at Cherbourg on the Normandy coast of France.

I didn't see what happened at Cherbourg that morning, for we were marshalling the curious mixture of youthful veterans of the Russian front and the kids and old men hastily recruited for the defence of the Atlantic wall.

We marched for five days until we reached the Orne River near Caen and there we ran into the powerful barrage of the Allied naval vessels that lay offshore.

LITTLE SLEEP

From then until Aug. 11, I scarcely slept. Finally a spray from an Allied machine-gun put me to the hospital.

Gen. Patton exhausted, defeated bunch, the men of Artillery Unit 1154. We knew we had lost the war, but there was nothing to do but fight it out. To us it did not appear honorable to surrender.

I remember standing among the batteries of interior Italian long-range guns and Russian material confiscated on the Eastern front and listening to our staff chief.

"Maybe they'll smash our artillery in a hurry ani we'll get new stuff," he observed lamely.

Another artillery officer, a man with whom I had made the long retreat from the heart of Russia, had this caustic comment: "Maybe the side by a machine-gunner and removed to a hospital in Holland.

When the Allies moved into Holland I was shipped back to Germany and eventually found myself in command of a newly organized artillery unit on the Eastern front. I was in Czechoslovakia when the war ended in May, 1945.

At the beginning of the war, Hitler had proclaimed: "Germany has grown larger." It isn't very large now.

Series of Booklets About Fish In Quebec Waters Available

QUEBEC (CP)—A particularly fine series of booklets about fish in Quebec waters will become available to every-day people this summer though their printing started six years ago on a limited scale.

The booklets, called Fishes of Quebec, have been a source book of Quebec's fisheries department authorities. So far the booklets in English and French have been circulated among biologists, libraries and some schools. They will also be available to visitors when the department's aquarium near Quebec City is officially opened this summer.

Canadian and United States biologists have expressed high praise for the publications and the fisheries department expecting a good public demand has ordered new printings.

FINE REPRODUCTIONS

Experts say nothing quite like them has ever been published about Canadian fish. The booklet size is 10 by 14 inches and each contains full-page color reproductions of paintings of male and female of one species. The back cover of each booklet carries a coloured illustration showing the devices and methods used in Quebec to catch the species discussed.

So far six booklets have appeared. Each deals respectively with the characteristics, habitat, spawning and eating habits of speckled trout, Atlantic Salmon, lobster, cod, sturgeon and eel.

The series is aimed primarily at the Quebec public and the scientific observations in the booklets about each species are directly related to this province whose maritime fisheries extend over 85,000 square miles of St. Lawrence Gulf water. Sport fishing waters also are plentiful throughout the province where the daily bag limit of 15 pounds of speckled trout is proudly served as the highest on the continent.

But author Vadim V. Vladykov, internationally known biologist who recently left his post here to go to the University of Montreal, has crammed a lot of general information into each species and the four to eight pages at his disposal in each of the booklets.

Information about the fisheries department deputy minister, wanted the booklets to be text that would the layman who has no taste for scientific lingo and the experts who demand accurate information. He gave the job of putting the text into shape to Jean-Marie Roy, a young Laval University graduate in biology who is a newspaper man as well as a government employee. Mrs. Vladykov prepared the English text.

The vivid paintings of each species were commissioned from Germaine Bernier of Montreal and Eugene Klimoff of Quebec. Their accuracy impresses even the casual reader.

Pleased with the results of lis efforts the department plans to continue the series. Next species to be described: The herring.

The booklets are available from the fisheries department for 50 cents a copy.

CHARGE ARSON

PRESCOTT (CP) — Gerald Reid McFarlane, 22, of Prescott was charged with arson Wednesday after investigation of three separate fires in a second-floor hallway of the Ferguson Block Tuesday. Damage was estimated at about $1,000. The building had just been restored after a fire last March which caused about $180,000 damage.

Pay Heavy Doctor Bills Also "Terrible Death Toll" For Heart Disease in Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada pays a $200,000,000 doctor bill every year because of heart disease.

In addition, the country pays a $1-billion death toll each year resulting in an inestimable loss to its economy and future, says Alex B. Hill, executive director of the National Heart Foundation.

"If the wealth of our great and growing country is to be kept healthy its greatest asset—its people — then every Canadian must be fully aware of the greatest claim on that resource—heart disease," he said Wednesday in his annual report.

In terms of lost income alone the disease costs the country more than $80,000,000 a year, he said.

WORST KILLER

Disease of the heart and blood vessels is today recognized as by far the most widespread and crippler of Canadians and of the peoples of the world," Mr. Hill said.

"Almost one in every two deaths, of our people in their most productive years is from this cause. Forty per cent of deaths of men between 35 and 54 is from heart disease."

He said the Heart Foundation, meeting here all this week with heart specialists of the Canadian Heart Association, "faces a huge challenge" in its fund-raising efforts.

Grants-in-aid offered by the foundation are supporting 95 research workers in 45 different locations in Canada. Mr. Hill said the Nuffield Foundation research workers are fully supported through fellowships.

Delinquents Enjoy Their Delinquency

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Juvenile delinquents enjoy being juvenile delinquents, says a scout leader.

"It's very difficult to get them to give up juvenile delinquency once they've got started," Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, told a press conference.

"But if you have a constructive program, as we feel we have, you can keep the numbers down."

A total of $500,780 has been given in 1958-59 to the support of research by scientists working at universities.

But research efforts "are rendered by lack of assured continuing financial support," Mr. Hill said.

Mr. Hill said a minimum of 20 additional full-time researchers are required by the foundation. The cost would be $1,000,000.

Mr. Hill was re-elected president of the three-year-old foundation.

James Muir was awarded the first annual achievement presented by the foundation. Mr. Muir, president and general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, led the organization's first public drive for funds in 1958.

SEEDING DELAYED — This Ontario farmer, working his land, is more fortunate than most across Canada because he was able to do his seeding on time. Except for those in Ontario and Quebec, farmers were delayed in their work by a rugged winter and a cold spring. But despite the late start, they estimated total acreage would be about the same as last year and predicted good crops. (CP Photo).

LIBERAL CHIEF

education tax burden on local property owners.

"You don't create the best education system in the world by putting a 78-year-old doddering man in charge."

PEARSON IN ALGOMA

National Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson spoke in his own federal riding of Algoma East. He scoffed at the conference of provincial treasurers to be held in Ottawa July 6.

"The conference is only going to set up a committee to discuss the whole problem," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Frost told his rally Ontario leads the continent in education facilities. Universities had been increased to nine from three and grants to universities were double, what the former Liberal government had spent on all education.

Earlier Mr. Frost told a reception in Espanola, 48 miles west of Sudbury, that doubts about the future of Northern Ontario's uranium industry are groundless.

"Remember this fundamental fact: Uranium is a source of great energy and the needs of a power-hungry world for energy are indeed acute."

RAPS FROST

National CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell spoke in Oshawa and criticized Mr. Frost for his "abusive" treatment of Mrs. MacDonald during the Northern Ontario natural gas debate.

"When Mr. MacDonald revealed the fact that three of Mr. Frost's ministers were involved, it was indignantly denied. And then when the facts were made known, three members of the cabinet resigned."

He said that under British tradition they should have taken the entire government with them.

Ontario Liberals may be broke but they are "happy and confident," W. J. Henderson, president of the Ontario Liberal Association told the Port Arthur campaign committee.

He assured delegates any money promised them by the Ontario organization had been put in trust and would be delivered as promised.

R.C. Missionary of North Will Dine With Queen July 1

EDMONTON (CP) — A Roman Catholic missionary familiar with Eskimos and Indians of the Far North will dine with the Queen this summer.

Rev. Anthony Binasse, 60-year-old member of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, is one of 35 Canadians from all walks of life invited to have Dominion Day dinner with the Queen and Prince Philip at Government House in Ottawa July 1.

The missionary who has spent more than half his life with the Eskimos and Indians passed through here on his way to summer headquarters in the Northwest Territories, after a vacation in Belgium.

He was eager to return to Norman Wells, more than 1,100 miles northwest of Edmonton, where he built a church.

LOVES NORTH

"I don't envy your situation in the city," he said in an interview. "There are too many red stop-lights. I'm used to the liberty and freedom of the bush."

Father Binasse was a secular priest in Namur, Belgium, when he joined the Oblates in 1924. The following year he was on his way to Canada's northland for work with the Eskimos.

He now speaks English fluently as well as French, Greek and Latin, and the Eskimo and Hare Indian tongues. He says he thinks in French.

But no language could have helped him when he got lost in the Arctic peaks behind Aklavik. He had been hunting alone, on foot, when a sudden snowstorm struck the first of the season.

Father Binasse shot a caribou, wrapped himself in the animal's skin and ate raw meat until the storm subsided. He took a bearing on the stars and three days later walked back into his post.

In 1933 he became captain of the 57-foot schooner Our Lady of Lourdes, although he didn't know anything about sailing. "There was no one else," he explained.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. Nathan Wannamaker, who recently underwent an operation has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for the past two weeks. Her many friends here were pleased to learn, that she is progressing favorably.

Messrs. Clarence Pitchett and Maurice Clancy attended Stirling Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 69 divine service at St. Paul's United Church in Stirling, on Sunday morning.

Mrs. William McMullen and Mrs. Bruce Stapley attended the annual convention of the Woman's Association of the United Church of Canada, which was held on May 28th in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burrell were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey.

Master Lloyd Clancy spent Saturday afternoon with Master Wayne McMullen.

There were two others aboard, an Eskimo pilot and a Roman Catholic brother who acted as mechanic.

The vessel was used for supplying mission outposts along the Arctic coast. In 1936 he became trapped in ice before it could supply Father Binasse's home base of Paulatuk.

The bishop was aboard on that trip, Father Binasse recalled. A call for help brought supplies by plane, which took off the bishop. The vessel remained trapped from September to July and during that time eight of the mission-ary's 12 sled dogs died.

Father Binasse's maritime work ended in 1940. Now he lives in Norman Wells during the summer, and at Fort Norman in the winter. The settlements are 50 miles apart on the Mackenzie River.

SWIMMERS BADGES

Scoutmaster Lionel Blaker of the 2nd Christ Church group wants every boy in his Troop to have his Swimmer's badge. The boys are evidently of the same opinion, according to Capt. J. Watson, Badge chairman. Scouts Mike Nicholls, Tim Cole, Jack Colwill, Steve Middleton, Geoffrey Gray, David McMurray, Glen Reinbird and Frank King all passed their Swimmer's tests. Bill Gibson, David McMurray and Geoffrey Gray qualified for the Resuer's badge. Mr. L. G. Monteith and his staff rate an assist on this magnificent showing. Also of the 2nd Scouts David McMurray, Frank King, Brian Cooney and John Moore were awarded a Ambulance badge.

Basilio Will Fight Fullmer Robinson Not Yet in Clear

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmen Basilio has agreed to fight Gene Fullmer for the National Boxing Association version of the middleweight title and let Ray Robinson keep his New York version of the 160-pound crown. But there still is a big "IF" to the muddled situation.

A few hours after Syracuse promoter Norman Rothschild announced that Basilio and Fullmer will meet during the first two weeks of August in a western city, NBA President Dr. Ward Wylie said the NBA's executive committee might reconsider its stand against stripping Robinson of his title.

The request to reconsider was made by commissioner Al Klein of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission. Wylie said no date has been set for the meeting but that it probably will be held in Indianapolis or Cincinnati.

Rothschild listed Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver, Chicago and Ogden, Utah, as possible sites for the Basilio-Fullmer 15-rounder.

Robinson expressed bitterness over the new turn of events. He reiterated willingness to meet Basilio. He also charged the craggy-jawed upstate New Yorker with siding in bad faith in telling the commission Tuesday he was free to fight when in fact he already had a written contract to meet Fullmer.

Robinson still hopes that Carmen will have a change of heart. So does Commissioner Klein, who was balked in staging a Robinson-Basilio match in Philadelphia Municipal Stadium when Basilio refused to sign.

The last time there were two champions in the middleweight division was in 1941, when Tony Zale was recognized in the NBA states and Billy Soose was the titleholder in New York.

ESKS SIGN THREE

EDMONTON (CP)— Edmonton Eskimos have signed holdover import tackles Ed. Gray, Tom Emerson and J. T. Frankenberger, bringing to 27 the number of Americans to report to the WIFU club's training camp next month. Gray, 24, is due to start his third season with Esks. Emerson, 24, and Frankenberger, 26, will be sophomores.

Didn't Request Machen Rematch Claims Swede

NEW YORK (CP) — Ingemar Johansson testified in federal court Wednesday that when he decided to fight Eddie Machen for the first time last September he had not wanted a rematch.

He knocked out Machen in the first round Sept. 14 at Goteborg, Sweden.

Johansson, training at Grossinger, N.Y., for his fight with champion Floyd Patterson at Yankee Stadium June 25, made his statement before Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who is hearing a petition by Machen asking that Johansson be prohibited from fighting Patterson on the ground the Swedish fighter had failed to live up to a return match agreement.

Machen's lawyers contend Johansson agreed through an agent to give Machen a rematch before fighting anyone else. Johansson denied this.

Archie Moore To Fight In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Arrangements are reported virtually completed for world light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore to fight here next September. No date has been set.

The word came Wednesday from Doc Kearns, Moore's manager, and Russell Farnsworth, Kansas City advertising agency official who heads a Kansas City syndicate backing the fight, in a telephone call from Washington.

"I've been negotiating with Farnsworth for the last three weeks," Kearns told the Kansas City Star from Washington. "We are practically set on all the details as far as Moore is concerned. The next step will be to select an opponent, mutually agreeable."

Moore will meet Canadian Yvon Durelle in a title bout July 15 at Montreal.

Hoodlums Beat Key Witness In Ring Probe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—One of the key witnesses in a recent investigation of underworld influence in the California fight game was severely beaten by unknown assailants Wednesday night.

Two men attacked Jackie Leonard, fight promoter of Hollywood Legion Stadium, as he was putting away his automobile.

Leonard suffered a severe head wound. Police said he apparently was struck with a gallon jug containing chlorine for his swimming pool. But Leonard's wife said a hammer was also out of place in the garage.

The promoter has been under daily police guard since he told a special hearing by the California Athletic Commission that he had been threatened by Frankie Carbo, who is under indictment in New York on charges of acting as an undercover boxing manager.

Leonard testified that Frank (Blinky) Palermo, an associate of Carbo, demanded half the manager's share of welterweight champion Don Jordan.

Police had escorted Leonard home late Wednesday but he decided later to go to a drugstore for a newspaper.

Some time later his wife found him unconscious on the garage floor.

Discrimination Case Closed Against Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts commission against discrimination has accepted as evidence of good faith" an assurance"from Boston Red Sox to pursue a policy of non-discrimination in hiring Negro ballplayers.

On April 22 the commission began a probe into the Red Sox hiring practices after three Boston groups charged the club was biased in its handling of Negro infielder Jerry (Pumpsie) Green, who was sent back to the minors a week before the season opened.

The Red Sox denied the allegation, asserting "when capable players are available they will be used, regardless of race, creed or color."

Green, at the end of last week, according to the Red Sox, had played in 42 games for Minneapolis. His batting average was .293. He had four home runs, one triple, and eight doubles. He received 37 bases on balls.

Chairman of the three - member commission, said Wednesday the agency considers the case closed.

The game went two extra innings before Bishops scored the winner in the 5th frame. Jack Reid pitched the distance for the winners.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"To be or not to be—that is the question."

If you will pardon the Shakespearian reference, that is exactly the hockey situation in Belleville at the moment—and you can add "by July 7th."

Little short of ultimatums were handed the Belleville and Kingston representatives at the Eastern League meeting in Whitby Tuesday night by the Hull-Ottawa Sammy Pollock and Whitby's Wren Blair.

As was reported Pollock withdrew his Ottawa Canadiens pending the formation of a five-team league while Blair followed a similar pattern by demanding and getting a deadline date.

Neither man had his tongue in cheek. It was quite plain both teams have other senior pastures available in which to convert their hockey steeds should the Eastern circuit fold.

Hazarding a guess, we believe Blair would go to the western Ontario OHA group while Pollock would cast in his senior "A" lot with the northern group. That has been suggested more than once by Northern Ontario sportswriters.

It came as a revelation to most of those present to learn Kingston had a gross gate of $32,000, a net income of $650.000 yet operated at seasonal loss of $10,000. Pollock said it cost him $97,000 to operate both junior "A" and senior "A" Ottawa Canadiens. Blair said he operated his Dunlops on a $1450 weekly budget and the champion Clinton Comets on a $1450 weekly payroll.

Kingston's failure to pay pool obligations amounting to $3683 net, or the percentage from 23 games brought bitter blasts from around the board. Unfortunately Mr. Steve Amey, representing the Kingston club was not fully acquainted with the figures and facts and was at a disadvantage. He stoutly denied charges by Whitby and other representatives that the bulk of the income went for salaries.

OHA treasurer and CAHA secretary-manager George Dudley of Midland, told the meeting that hockey is no different to any other business. If business men operate at a yearly loss they are in trouble unless some readjustment is made.

He said that years ago senior hockey was very popular in Canada. Then things started to creep in and it began to lose favor. Club operators won't recognize the fact that they must change their methods of operation to get the old crowds back.

"I think it is ridiculous to have a season extending from early October until early spring. Schedules should be cut down to a reasonable amount of games, players paid what they are worth, around $75 per week and let the gates pay for the show. Continuous digging down by sponsors gets them discouraged and they quit. The junior leagues adjusted themselves and are operating very well."

Blair said he did not think senior hockey was losing its appeal — it was the method of operation that was wrong. Harry Pollock told the meeting there was just one difference between junior and senior hockey and that was about $40 a week salary. "It cost $18,000 more to operate a senior club than a junior organization."

Dudley said it is time that senior hockey players were convinced that the day is past when they can make a living out of playing alone. "Hockey pay is simply a bonus to augment jobs."

But to get back to the big questions, will Belleville be represented in eastern hockey this year, and will Kingston come through with its pool collusion so that the league can survive?

Let's get this straight. Ottawa-Hull and Whitby were not fooling when they handed out their ultimatum. They were deadly serious.

There are many stories going the rounds here pertaining to this sponsor, that sponsor and three sponsors. Thus far, as far as this department is concerned, they have been just stories. Now it is time for action, if any, to be taken. The next move is up to Belleville's hockey-minded people.

Indians Drop Five In Row; Braves Spank Giants

Killebrew's War Club Helps Senators Blank Tribe 4-0; Chisox Nip Birds, Yanks Win

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

It seems like ages ago, but remember when the word was that Milwaukee's Braves were choker cops guys? Whether that was a born rap or not, they're a cool crew of two-time champions now, chopping down anyone who threatens their shot at a third straight National League pennant.

It was mid - May when the Braves zeroed in, running off six in a row for a six-game bulge. Then they slowed to a walk and San Francisco started to close in.

Just last Monday, the Giants steamed into Milwaukee with a 2½ record and walloped the Braves 11-2, whittling their edge to 1½ games.

TIGHTEN UP

That did it. The Braves tightened up and blanked the Giants 3-0 in the second game of the series and made it two straight Wednesday night battling Frank Sullivan for a 7-4 victory on a pair of two-run homers by Ed Mathews; and a solo shot by Hank Aaron that clubbed the second-place Giants 3½ games behind again.

Mathews, who had hit only two home runs in 17 games has upped his total to 9 with three in two nights. And Aaron, hit-less in three consecutive games, now has passed the 80 mark for the fattening his startling average to .456.

While the Braves were spanking the Giants, third-place Pittsburgh grabbed a lot within 4½ games of the lead by beating St. Louis 5-3. Los Angeles retained Cincinnati 5-1 on Stan Williams' two-hitter, and Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 4-3.

Mathews' winning shot came in the seventh inning off Al Worthington, who then gave up Aaron's 15th.

Bob Buhl (4-3) was the winner, although giving way in the eighth when Willie Stargell opened up and the Giants loaded the bases with two out. Don McMahon saved it, Buhl then was tagged for a two-run homer by Orlando Cepeda.

Righthander Bob Friend (2-8) won his second in a row for the Pirates, but only after Vito Face's perfect relief in the ninth. It was Face's fourth save of the year. Bill Mazeroski's two - run triple triggered a four-run eighth inning that beat Cardinal lefthander Wilmer Mizell (6-1).

John Roseboro, who hit his first homer Tuesday night at Cincinnati, belted a pair Wednesday night for four runs against Oscar Orlando Pena (3-3).

The Reds' only hits off Williams (2-1) were singles by Roy McMillan in the third and Frank Robinson in the fifth, but the young righthander walked seven men, forcing in the run with four walks in the fourth inning.

Ed Bouchee hit two run homers; then walked and scored the clincher for the Phils on Wally Post's single in a two-run fifth inning. Jim Owens (4-3) won by giving up eight hits but only one scored run. Dave Hillman (3-4) was the loser.

They're still holding on by a scalpicel, but Cleveland's Tribe is fast becoming a burial site for visiting Indians in the American League race.

Washington Senators handed the Indians a fifth consecutive defeat, 4-0, Wednesday night on home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Don Lee, and that has chalked up Bill Fischer's three-hit pitching.

Chicago White Sox moved into a virtual tie for the top, .003 percentage points behind Cleveland, by recalling second place from Baltimore with a 6-1 victory over Detroit.

Fourth-place Kansas City is in the U's games back of first. Indians after a 3-3 victory over the last-place Boston Red Sox, who are 12½ games out of first. And fifth-place Detroit is within 2½ games of the leaders after losing 6-5 to New York Yankees. The champs still are seventh, but only 4½ games shy of first.

FIRST WIN OVER TRIBE

Fischer, 3-2, breezed by a 5-1 record and his first victory ever against the Indians after Killebrew clouted his fourth home run in the fourth inning and Washington added a pair in the fifth. It was the second in two nights for Killebrew, whose entire major league total of four has come this season.

Dutch Score (5-3) was the loser, giving up six hits in his six innings as the club—in place Kansas City—lost games out of first, padded their season road record to 9-20 and 2-8.

Southpaw Billy Pierce, after losing three straight, gained a 6-5 decision over eight-hitter as the White Sox ended their losing streak at three. Pierce, with his 7th victory in 11 games, Gene Woodling's eighth-inning single and Jerry Lumpe's bases - loaded double in the fifth drove in Detroit's four innings by Billy O'Dell (2-5).

Ex-Yankee Johnny Kucks (1-2) had a one-hit shutout for five innings for the A's, but gave up two walks and Ted Williams's scoring single in the seventh third, then had to wait until the ninth to clinch it on Mickey Mantle's tie-breaking home run off Ray Narleski (1-4). Home runs by Mantle and Woodling, his first in the majors, and Yogi Berra, a two-run smack, chased Larry Gerchart (3-3) in the fourth before Hyne Bonham helped the Tigers battle back to 5-5 before Hyne Bonham came in and wrapped up his first victory in three relief decisions for the Yankees.

Cards Shuffle Player Deck

ST. LOUIS, (AP) — The ongain, off-again St. Louis Cardinals demoted outfielder Tom Green and Chuck Essegian and lefthanded pitcher Bill Smith to their Rochester, N.Y., International League farm club Wednesday and promoted two Redwings.

The Redbirds also placed catcher Ray Katt on the active list. He replaces Green as second-string catcher.

Added to the Card roster from the club were Geno Oliver, an and left-hander Marshall Bridges. Oliver, 24, owns a .263 batting average with 12 doubles, two triples, 13 homers and 40 runs batted in.

Leafs Drop Two To Richmond; Royals Win

By JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer

Montreal Royals seem to have the right answer when they need it. Not even Columbus Jets. They send Billy Harris to the mound.

Harris, who beat the Jets four times in 1958, chalked up his first 1959 victory over Columbus Wednesday night, and it knocked the erstwhile league - leaders back into a first place tie with Buffalo Bisons.

The Bisons, getting only two hits, defeated Havana 1-0. Richmond won a pair from last-place Toronto, 7-0 and 6-5. Rochester-Miami were rained out.

Columbus, which reached first place only Tuesday, couldn't with Harris, he native of Marysville, N.B. scattered seven hits for his third victory in seven decisions and also had three hits.

Jim Gentile clouted homer, lifted struck out eight and walked only two in beating Fred Green (3-3), who lasted three innings.

SCULL STARTS FAST

Outfielder Angel Scull, whom Montreal got from Toronto Wednesday in a trade, scored twice, had three hits in his first at-bats and stole two bases. Harry Schwegman also homered for the Royals, who collected 12 hits in all but in seventh place.

Bobby Morgan shook off two previous strikeouts by Ted Wieand and singled home Bobby Del Greco to break the ice in the fifth inning. Pancho Herrera had the Bisons' other hit, a triple.

Henry Mason (3-0) gave only three hits, two in the fifth inning when Larry Novak and Chacon singled. But Novak was out at the plate trying to score on a short fly to centre field. Mason didn't talk a bases and struck out eight while Wieand (3-6) was victim of a shutout for the third time, striking out nine.

LEAFS DROP FAIR

Toronto Leafs gave six Toronto hits in the seven-inning opener, getting help with a two - run homer by Cirius Boyer and a solo smash by Jim Pisoni. Al Pehanick, making his first start since getting out of the service, was the Toronto loser.

Three Vees scored three runs in the last of the ninth on Pisoni's two-run homer and a three-base error by centre fielder Hec Rodriguez. The splurge came off Jerry Nagy (5-5) in his first appearance for Toronto.

Outfielder and infielder Bob Wilson were traded by the Royals to Toronto for Scull and infielder Mike Goliat.

Eli Grba (3-1) won it, pitching one inning of relief of Johnny James, who in turn relieved starter Zach Monroe. Negro's worked in relief of Bob Chakales,

Goliat Goes To Royals

MONTREAL, (CP) — Montreal Royals have announced a two-for-two trade with Toronto Maple Leafs, currently seventh in the International League.

The Royals send to the Leafs outfielders Bob Wilson and Angel Scull in exchange for infielder Mike Goliat.

Goliat, 28, has won two and lost two.

Green and Smith were sent out on the 24-hour recall. Essegian batted in Bridges, 28, has won two and lost two.

Canadians Lead Commonwealth Golf Tourney

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP) — The unbeaten Canadian team has a day off today after moving into a two-point lead Wednesday in the five-country Commonwealth women's golf tournament.

Paced by Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Judy Darling of Montreal, Canada defeated New Zealand 4½ points to 1½ to boost its point-total in the team standing to a maximum four.

The Canadians picked up their first points Tuesday by defeating South Africa foursomes.

Mrs. Streit and Miss Darling teamed up Wednesday to beat Nicki Campbell and Mrs. P. S. Land of New Zealand 4 and 3 in the first foursome.

Rae Milligan of Calgary and Toronto's Roma Neundorf defeated Aileen Nash and Jean Mangan 5 and 3 in the second foursome.

In the lead-off single, Marlene won a tight two-stroke victory over Miss Campbell.

Miss Darling clinched her team's triumph on the second-last hole of an 18-hole contest with Mrs. Mangan.

Miss Neundorf recovered in heroic style to halve her match with Miss Grigg. She was 3 down with 3 to play, made certain of the 14th, 15th and 17th and split the 16th and 18th to take a hard-earned half point.

Friday, Canada meets the favored British team which defeated Australia 4-2 Tuesday in its first match.

Mary Gay of Calgary remained on the sick list, scratched to bed worked in relief of Bob Chakales, with the flu that hit her Monday.

Red China Won't Take Part In Olympics Winter Games

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Olympic organizers declare flatly that Communist China won't compete in the 1960 Winter Games at Squaw Valley, Calif.

At the same time they assure Congress and the United States state department that Nationalist China has been invited and accepted the invitation.

This double pronouncement followed a House of Representatives vote in Washington Wednesday to prohibit use of army personnel and equipment at the Feb. 18-28 Games if athletes from any free nation are banned.

The restriction was attached to a $400,000 appropriation for army support of the Games. Planners seek an additional $400,000 for the same purpose.

PROTEST BAR DECISION

Congressional action was in protest against last Thursday's decision by the International Olympic Commission in Munich, Germany. The IOC unseated Nationalist China as China's official delegation on grounds that government no longer represents sports in that country.

IOC President Avery Brundage said Red China could apply as China's representative and the Nationalists could apply as representatives of Formosa.

Robert L. King, executive director of the organizing committee for the Squaw Valley event, said there will not be another IOC meeting until after the Winter Olympics. The Red China could not be a member in time to compete. He did not comment on political aspects of the situation.

King said Brundage, in a telephone conversation from Switzerland, told him Nationalist China could compete but reserved comment as to what name that delegation would bear.

Brown Retains World Title With TKO Over Paoli Rosi; Fight Stopped in 9th Round

The 33-year - old champion emerged from the scheduled 15 rounder with 100th fight—in such good shape that he declared: "I'm ready to go again on Monday if someone brings along a little money."

A straight right—Rosi moaned it was a butt—caused the cut, an inch and a half long and a quarter-inch wide, in the eighth round.

Blood streamed down Rosi's face and it was no surprise when referee Charley Reynolds, at the direction of two ringside doctors, stopped the skirmish between the eighth and ninth rounds. Under District of Columbia rules it was recorded as a ninth-round TKO.

SEVENTH DEFENCE

It was the seventh defence for the busy Brown, from New Orleans, since he won the 135-pound title from Bud Smith in 1947. He and Rosi were tied on point at the time the fight was stopped.

Brown's plans?

"I don't have anything lined up. But if Rosi wants another shot and it can make some money, that's okay with me. There's Kenny Lane and Carlos Ortiz (the No. 1 and 2 contenders) and I'm ready for them.

"The only thing is that I don't think Lane can make 135 pounds any more and I think Lane will make a helluva fight with Ortiz."

Lane, from Muskegon, Mich., and Ortiz, of New York, clash in Madison Square Garden June 12 for New York recognition as world lightweight champion. Brown edged Lane in his fifth defence last July 23.

RAN FREEZER PACE

The cut-prone Rosi, who confused Brown a bit by pressing the fight, said the cut was opened when the champion "hit me with his head."

"That little bald head can butt pretty hard," said Brown in rebuttal. "Feel them lumps on my forehead. I don't blame him for trying but as an alibi for everyone in the place saw that butt coming a mile."

Rosi, a 31-year-old Italian-born New Yorker, was the aggressor all the way. Although the back-tracking champ had the gaunt-faced Rosi missing punches, Paolo still landed several to the body and head.

The officials were divided in the scoring. Referee Reynolds had Rosi ahead 76-71, Judge Harry Volkmail had Brown in front 77-73, Judge Harold Lee had them even at 75 each.

A crowd of 3,966 paid $28,789 to see the fight, which grossed $40,000 to the pot, making Brown's purse $25,586 and Rosi's $12,789. It was Paolo's biggest payday in 27 pro fights.

The champ was 7-to-5 favorite over Rosi, No. 3 challenger.

Point Anne Bats Back Al Carkner In Solid 13-0 Win Over Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Al Carkner's sling-shot slants and batting punch from some unexpected spots helped the Point Anne Cementmen push Trenton Garrets deeper into the Bellerville and District softball league cellar last night with a 13-0 whipping.

Carkner came up with a four-for-four performance, with half of that total being of the infield variety, for his second win as against many games for the Ox-pointers.

Meanwhile his mates grabbed an early 5-0 lead on the hitting of Chuck Kingston and John Batchelor. These were the only two with safeties for the winners until the sixth. From this point on almost everyone got into the act to make it a run-away victory.

Pacing the victors with the hickory was Doug Soule with a double and two singles. Also prominent with the wood were cf. Chuk Kingston with a two-run homer and a single, Johnny Batchelor with a double, single and two rbi and Gary Goyer with a brace of singles.

Al Carkner helped his own cause with a run-scoring double while Doug Hull and Dave Jones picked up one-base hits.

Doug Alexander and Gord Maroney poked solid singles for Trenton with Don Cole and Roger Drake batting out infield hits.

Carkner was never in trouble throughout the contest and he received excellent support from his mates. They played errorless ball and erased a couple of base runners with double plays. Carkner blazed third strikes by half a dozen batters while walking three.

Gord Maroney started and took the loss for Trenton while working six and one-third innings. He had a three-hitting going until the sixth. Ron Wannamaker took over to finish up. Neither fanned a man while Maroney walked five and his successor one. They gave up 13 hits in all while five errors added to their troubles.

Trenton ran into trouble in the initial frame with two out. A walk, Kingston's single and another free ticket loaded the sacks. John Batchelor delivered a solid smash to right field to plate two and another scored on a throwing error.

Carkner had threw put Goyer on in the third and Chuck Kingston slammed a homer to left field for a 5-0 lead. Carkner had not yet allowed a hit.

Maroney did not give up any other hit until Soule opened the sixth with a single. Buskard sacrificed and Carkner scored Soule with a fielder's choice that backed Hall and got a run. Jones singled and Goyer beat out a bunt. One man was forced at the plate but two walks forced in the 7th and 8th runs.

Soule singled again to open the seventh and Maroney left after Carkner doubled him home. Jones' sacrifice followed and Goyer drove in another with a base hit. Back to back singles by Batchelor and Soule, a walk, Carkner's sacrifice and an error made it 13-0 in the eighth.

FIRST HOLE-IN-ONE

KITCHENER (CP) — Gerry Kosseling has been golfing for 18 years but it wasn't until this week that he scored his first hole-in-one. Kosseling scored the ace Tuesday on the 305-yard 14th hole of the Rockway Course, using a No. 5 iron.

"Well if you haven't got this beat fixed, how come I'm still conscious?"

Soccer "Ringer" Brought in, Two Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — "A change by the name of Shaughnessy" played under the name of Frank Sulek in a senior soccer league game May 24 and Wednesday the president and manager of the Hillcrest Soccer Club were suspended until Nov. 15, 1950.

Bert Houslander, the manager, admitted to the executive of the Toronto and District Soccer Association that Shaughnessy played as a "ringer."

Deception came out last week when the discipline committee of the association suspended Sulek for the remainder of the season for rough tactics. However, the real Sulek protested that he had been in Utica, N.Y., when the game was played.

Howard Trebilcok, Hillcrest president, appeared before the discipline committee which suspended Shaughnessy - Sulek, but didn't mention the switch.

Houslander said he had only done what many managers did. He claimed he had only nine players to start the game and when Shaughnessy appeared and asked for a game, he dropped him into the lineup under Sulek's name.

Club Pro Picks Ben Hogan Over Him Fifth U.S. Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)— Ben Hogan is at the peak of his game, Claude Harmon says, "I would have to pick him to win his fifth Open next week."

Harmon, former Masters champion, is host professional at the Winged Foot Golf Club where the 39th U.S. open golf championship will be played June 15-18.

"Ben still is the best golfer in the world, and I become more impressed with every time I play a round with him," the paunchy master of Mamaroneck added wistfully.

"He still has that keen competitive edge, from tee to green, no one can touch him. Every shot is thought out thoroughly.

"His control is something fantastic. He misses so few shots it is alarming."

Hogan, 46, now burdened with the responsibilities of a club manufacturer, next weekend will seek to break the three-way tie he has with old Willie Anderson and Bob Jones as the winningest of all U.S. Open competitors. Each has won four times.

Hogan is tight-lipped about his pre-match form.

"I'm not as sharp as I would like to be, nevertheless, he is never satisfied.

How about his chances?

"I don't know," Ben replied. "Let's wait and see."

Latta Holds Juniors to 1-1 Tie In South Hastings League Thriller

Belleville Juniors scored a run in the top of the sixth and final frame in Latta last night to keep their undefeated record intact although forced to settle for a 1-1 deadlock in their South Hastings Baseball League contest.

Latta, beaten 14-0 by the Juniors here Saturday, came up with an excellent game of ball, as did the Belleville squad, in battling to a tie.

Stan Reid took the rubber for Latta and gave up only three hits, all singles, over the 7-inning distance. The rangy southpaw struck out ten while allowing three walks.

Glen Denard started for Belleville, but was forced out of the game with back trouble in the third frame. He gave up a second-inning run, allowed two hits, fanned a pair and walked three. Billy Letchford went the remainder, touched for three hits while striking out three and passing an equal number.

A free ticket to Rollins paved the way to Latta's lone run in the second. He advanced to third on outs and raced home on Frank Ray's single.

Reid had his shutout in the sixth with a walk to St. Louis, pacing the tying run on base. Moe Hunter followed with a base hit and St. Louis stole third. Bill Mason's long sacrifice fly scored the equalizer.

Frank Ray with a double and a single topped the Latta crew at the plate. Meeks hit a two-bagger with Don Harris and Stan Reid picking up singles.

The only Belleville players to connect safely were Gordie St. Louis, Moe Hunter and Glen Clarke, each with a single.

Both clubs played good ball afield to back the strong pitching performances. The Juniors did not commit an error while Latta was charged with a pair.

Belleville Juniors make their next start in Shannonville on Saturday. In three starts to date they have won two games and tied the other.

Dodgers, L.A. Sign Contract For Ball Park

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League and the city signed a contract for a new baseball park Wednesday, exactly a year after voters approved a Dodgers-city deal for building the stadium in Chavez Ravine.

They haven't reached the point where they can start digging the foundations, but Dodgers president Walter O'Malley said during the signing at city hall:

"I'm still optimistic about our target dates. We hope to start work by July 1 and to play our first game in the new park on opening day next season."

Opponents of the contract forced a referendum which approved the deal. But the contract was ruled invalid by a Superior Court. The State Supreme Court overturned that decision but new opponents are seeking to bring the matter before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Story of George Hamilton One of Riches-toRiches

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's refreshing to come across a riches-to-riches story.

Consider the success saga of George Hamilton, a rangy member of Palm Beach society who came here with polo mallet and 20 suits of clothes, including three formal. In just a year, he is well on his 'way to starring roles and has bought his first Rolls Royce.

George is a dark, likable lad who talks with the ease of one who has never known want. Born in Memphis, Tenn., he has lived most of his 19 years in New York and Palm Beach with stops in 23 different schools.

The last was Palm Beach High School, and that's where he won "best actor" honors in a dramatic competition.

"I think I won because I was the only one who didn't have a southern accent," he grinned. "In a way, it encouraged me. I guess I had always wanted to be an actor, but I had the idea it would take years of training. I couldn't see taking acting lessons for as long as it would take to become a doctor or lawyer."

With high hopes, he went to New York and was introduced to MGM executives.

George decided to assault Hollywood. Despite his moneyed background, he came here on his own.

"I arrived with $800 in my pocket," he said. "I vowed I would take no help from my family. And by the end of my first two months, I had $1,700 in the bank."

George hit it rich with an artistic little picture called Crime and Punishment, U.S.A.

MGM tabbed him a comer and signed him to a contract.

He still doesn't want to take dramatic lessons.

"If it doesn't come easily to me, it isn't right," he said of his acting. So far it has come easily.

China's New Faith - - Communism

By Walter L. Gordon

In April Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the recent Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects, visited China. He has written eleven articles and one will be published daily. Mr. Gordon gives a detailed summary of his observations.—The Editor.

(ARTICLE 2)

In order to understand the dedication of the Chinese Communists and their absolute, unquestioning faith in the rightness of their system, it may be helpful for a Westerner to recall periods in our own history when our forbears believed just as blindly and as absolutely in the truth of Christianity as then practised, and to recall also some of the excesses that were perpetrated in its name. It is not with any thought of being blasphemous that I suggest comparing the unreasoning faith of the Chinese Communists, who are atheists, in the virtues of their system with the Christian zealots of the Middle Ages. But I believe some such comparison, no matter how one may wish to qualify it, does help in understanding or in beginning to understand a little of what is going on in Modern China.

Religion, as we know it in the West, has not been an important factor in Chinese life and history. For generations the educated classes in China were brought up on the teachings of Confucius which became the orthodox doctrine of the empire and the communists would say perhaps the rock upon which feudalism was supported. Confucianism was not a religion; in fact it was not interested in religion. To this extent at least Confucianism and Communism do not differ in their basic concepts. And to this extent it was less difficult for the Revolutionary Government to substitute their belief in Communism when now is established as the official "faith" or, in my analogy, as the new "State religion."

My impression, based on three and a half weeks in China, is that an absolute belief in Communism or the Chinese version of it is a basic fact of life in modern China. China, which used to be notorious for prostitution and other forms of vice, for corruption, for the development of swearing and obscenity into almost a high art, for opium smoking and for dirt, has been transformed into a highly puritan society.

LITTLE VICE SEEN

Now the casual visitor sees no evidence of vice; women do the same work, wear much the same clothes and have equal rights as men; sex seems to have been reduced to nothing more than a biological phenomenon (a phenomenon incidentally that has not entirely been neglected judging by the numbers of small children one sees in all directions); there is no corruption and no lipstick; swearing, we were told, and opium smoking are no longer practised and we were properly impressed by the cleanliness of the streets and alleys that we walked through in several different cities, particularly in places where there are no sewers or running water. These remarkable achievements are part of the new puritanism.

The enthusiasm, the way in which everyone seemed to be working their sense of purpose and the way they appeared to co-operate with and to be ready and willing to help each other reminded me a little of the extra effort that most people of our country were prepared to make in wartime. There is a sort of wartime spirit in the air.

A young Chinese intellectual I ran into quite by accident expressed his feelings about this in somewhat different terms. He said that if I had wandered into a small shop by ourselves; it was almost empty; and we had been told by the ward that were on display. The shopkeeper was no English and we were having a little difficulty. At this point a Chinese in his early thirties whom I shall call "Ho" for present purposes, came up to us and in perfect English asked if we were not Canadians. He had recognized our accent.

PREFERRED SPARTAN LIFE

It turned out he had lived and studied in the United States for many years and had returned to China only a year or two before our meeting. We guessed that he came from a family that must have been very well-to-do and certainly he was intelligent and exceptionally well educated. He told us that at first it was most difficult for him to adjust himself to the new approach to life under the Communist system with its emphasis on equality and with all men and women regarded as the nature of their work or education level being regarded as respected members of society. He dwelt at length on the new attitude of man to man in China and added with a smile that in a sense he thought it the most "Christian" atmosphere imaginable despite the fact the Chinese do not believe in a supernatural God. We talked to Ho for nearly an hour and were left in no doubt that he preferred his present somewhat spartan life to anything he had previously experienced.

Perhaps some day there will come a reaction from the present puritanism. In the meantime, there is no place in China for heretics or non-conformists. Decisions promulgated by the leaders, after full discussion and debate must be accepted without question as articles of faith. This is facilitated by the techniques of propaganda and persuasion which have been developed into high arts in China which, of course, are managed and directed very skillfully by the highly disciplined members of the Party now thought to number nearly 20 million.

My fourth impression of importance to which reference was made in the first article of this series, is the undoubted strength of the present government. This government has united China for the first time in more than a century. It takes to itself the main credit for driving out the Japanese invaders. Since it took power fear of starvation has very largely been removed and living conditions, while still very low indeed by Western standards, have risen and are rising steadily. China is re-establishing her position as one of the important nations in the world and her progress in increasing both agricultural and industrial production is being noted by all countries, particularly by those in Asia. Whether or not they believe in the present system, Chinese people everywhere, both in and outside of China, are bound to take pride in the accomplishments. The Government, not unnaturally, takes the view that all these achievements were only possible under Communism. And this is emphasized and repeated constantly through the medium of propaganda and persuasion, the insidiousness and pervasiveness of which cannot be overestimated. Above all, the nation has been provided with a new faith. Communism, which high priests the members of the Party, are working full time and with disciplined dedication in the interests of the Government. It would be surprising in such circumstances if the Government were not strong and getting stronger.

REDS MAY DROP

West Berlin do not serve a military purpose so much as the purpose of symbolizing Western protection of West Berlin. Their presence, in whatever numbers, is vital to the morale of West Berliners.

A. Gromyko has been told repeatedly that the Western powers will not give up their basic rights in Berlin and they will not agree to admit Soviet troops to share in the occupation of West Berlin, as Gromyko has suggested.

B. One sign of progress is that both Gromyko and the Western ministers have been exchanging "talking papers" in their secret sessions this week. Such documents do not represent policy commitments on either side though they could quickly be converted into formal agreements. Their chief value is in getting propositions down in writing. One of the papers, perhaps the most important, is a four-point Western formula introduced Wednesday for negotiation of an end to the crisis.

Canada Wins Dag's Support On UN Role

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has won support from United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold for its plan for a UN role in Berlin, informants say.

At the NATO meeting at Washington in April, Canada proposed that the UN might play a useful role in Berlin — provided a four-power agreement is reached first.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons April 7:

"They has cl role of the UN might be to verify that all parties were abiding by the terms of the agreement.

"An essential part of the agreement might be a Soviet pledge binding itself and its associates to full freedom of access to West Berlin and the acceptance of a UN presence on the lines or communication to that city."

Informants here say that what Canada has in mind is definitely not a UN force similar to the one now serving on the Egypt-Israel frontier but rather a judicial or appeal body similar to the truce supervisory commissions in Indochina.

Mr. Hammarskjold, it is understood, is expected to establish most of any UN garrison in Berlin but endorse the idea of UN observers being stationed there and along the lines of communication once the Big Four reach an agreement—if they do.

Canada was among the first countries to suggest a role for the UN in Berlin but apparently no serious discussion has taken place on this point at the current Geneva conference.

ADENAUER ALTERS DECISION TO RETIRE

Will Try To Win Right To Remain As Chancellor

His Inability to Pick Successor Said Reason

BONN (Reuters) — The parliamentary group of the ruling Christian Democratic party today accepted Konrad Adenauer's decision to remain in office as chancellor of West Germany, a Christian Democratic deputy said after the group's meeting.

The party's 208 parliamentary deputies at a three-hour meeting in the Bundestag (lower house) this afternoon accepted Adenauer's change of heart, announced Thursday night, the party deputy said. But he added that many deputies did not like the chancellor's decision.

Adenauer at a news conference two months ago that he would vacate the chancellorship this summer to run for the relatively powerless post of federal president.

The 83-year - old statesman called an emergency meeting today of members of his faithful Democrat party to explain his bombshell decision. He told them he was confronted by one of the toughest tests of his political career.

At the meeting Adenauer reaffirmed an "unshakeable intention" of remaining chancellor.

Eugen Gerstenmaier, Speaker of the Bundestag and president of parliament, told reporters after the meeting none of the chancellor's arguments for remaining had changed.

"But since we live in a free state, we must respect Federal Adenauer's decision," he declared.

REASON FOR DECISION

Party sources said Adenauer had given the difficult international situation as the motive for his decision — his desire to see West German policy remain unchanged.

The sources added that at the party meeting only Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder supported Adenauer's statement to remain as chancellor.

One explanation was that Adenauer changed his plans because he could not dictate his successor to parliament. The party leader, unassuming Finance Minister Franz Etzel but a majority of the party supported the more aggressive Ludwig Erhard, who as vice-chancellor is economics minister guided West Germany's amazing post-war recovery.

Erhard, now visiting the United States, was "most surprised" at Adenauer's change of plans and declined comment, a spokesman at the German Embassy in Washington said.

REVEALS REASON

The Christian Democrats' chief parliamentary whip, Will Rasner, said Adenauer felt he could not be replaced as the government leader during the present international crisis.

The burning question here today was: Can the chancellor, still a fighter at 83, swing the party behind him once again.

NO CHANGE NOTED

There was also some speculation Adenauer might change his mind again and decide to run for president provided the party approved Etzel as the next chancellor.

Political observers said Adenauer appeared to Erhard as chancellor because he fears he may not follow the chancellor's policies faithfully.

Adenauer had been an overwhelming favorite to succeed 75-year-old Theodor Heuss, who is to step down as president after completing two five-year terms as president. The constitution bars a third term.

BONN (Reuters) — West German newspapers today reflected the general shock and confusion caused by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's decision to remain at his post and not run for president.

The usually pro - Adenauer Bonn General Anzeiger said Adenauer, who attended John Foster Dulles' funeral, in Washington last week brought back the conviction he is still needed "as the representative of the hard course toward the Soviet Union."

The independent Duesseldorf Morning said that Adenauer had launched this "manoeuvre" to stop Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard from becoming chancellor and push through Finance Minister Franz Etzel as his successor.

DESCRIBED AS SHAMEFUL

The Independent Frankfurt evening newspaper Abendpost-Nachtausgabe criticized Adenauer's decision as a "shameful play."

But the Westdeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Essen said Adenauer's move was "thoroughly understandable" because there was no one to hold the Christian Democrats together in the latter's absence.

The Munich right-wing Daily Express said Adenauer had precipitated post - war Germany's greatest political crisis by "staging" his party and fighting to keep his power.

The Bonn correspondent of the Frankfurt Circle, said Adenauer's "sudden change of mind will have an unsatisfying effect on Western policy at the Geneva talks."

Western Rights In Berlin May Be Granted By Reds

Report Gromyko Shows Surprising Flexibility

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is reported to have hinted in secret talks that Russia may be willing to concede the rights of the Western allies to maintain their military garrisons in West Berlin indefinitely.

This is said to be one reason why Allied diplomats persist in thinking the Big Four foreign ministers conference may yet produce an East-West agreement on Berlin leading to a summit meeting.

The guarded, underlying optimism apparently was not shaken by Gromyko's flat refusal Thursday to have detailed negotiations to ensure the free flow of Western traffic between West Berlin and West Germany.

ASK GUARANTEE

The Western ministers asked for a guarantee of access to West Berlin as a test of Soviet willingness to work out a permanent agreement in the Berlin crisis.

Gromyko said he would give the requested assurance if the Western powers agreed to make Berlin into a demilitarized free city—a proposal the Western allies have rejected because it would leave West Berlin defenceless.

The development which seems to have impressed the Western ministers most during the weeklong series of secret meetings has been that Gromyko talked at times as though the present Western position in Berlin might be maintained.

One informant said Gromyko showed a flexibility that did not appear in earlier public debates. He engaged in discussion, this informant said, which clearly implied that Russia might agree on terms not yet indicated to the maintenance of all Western rights in West Berlin.

WANTS PRESTIGE

The Western ministers think Gromyko may be under considerable diplomatic pressure here to win prestige and the largest possible degree of recognition for the East German regime. The Western powers recognize only West Germany and informants said Gromyko has not hinted to change his policy of non-recognition for East Germany.

Some authorities think Gromyko might achieve part of his purpose if he can get agreed to the creation of one or more commissions to deal with all-German problems pending the next East German representatives on the commissions.

One current Western proposal would establish a Big Four body with East and West Germany as members to deal with problems arising in the divided city short of any stop-gap arrangement made here.

1,000 HOMES BURN

MANILA (AP) — A fire left 6,000 persons homeless in the Cebu City, central Philippines, police reported today. It already has destroyed more than 1,000 houses and other buildings. Two children were reported dead and nine persons injured.

SAGE Electronic Control Unit For Bomarcs Now Being Set Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction of the SAGE electronics control unit for Canada's two Bomarc anti - aircraft missile units has started at North Bay, it was learned reliably today.

The control unit is scheduled to be installed near North Bay and the other near Mont Laurier, Que.

One authority who declined use of his name said the installation of SAGE at North Bay will make North Bay one of the prime defence targets for Canada and possibly in North America.

The SAGE unit there were knocked out, neither Bomarc unit would function and Bomarc units in the United States might also be affected. This is because the Bomarc cannot operate without the SAGE control system.

The letters SAGE stand for Semi-Automatic Ground Environment.

Two RCAF CF-100 jet fighter squadrons now are located at North Bay.

It is understood that North Bay was chosen as the site for the SAGE installation because the RCAF barracks there would be available for Bomarc personnel.

SAGE can control Bomarc units based as far as 1,500 miles away and the practice in the U.S. has been to locate the SAGE and Bomarc as widely - separated points.

In the Commons today, Defence Minister Pearkes reiterated that the Bomarc-B on production here would be available by the end of 1961. He did not say whether it would be installed by that time.

Mr. Pearkes was replying to Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity) who asked about a Washington report in the Toronto Globe and Mail today which says the Bomarc-B won't be available for installation in Canada until 1963.

Looters Roam Ecuador Port Despite Warning

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP)— Looters were still abroad Thursday night in sections of Guayaquil despite war threats that troops would fire on all persons roaming the streets. The population was warned to keep its windows down and locked.

Defence Minister Gustavo Diez said 450 looters were arrested and more than 40 shops and an orphanage were stripped after the two nights of rioting. The riots claimed 25 lives and injured more than 150 persons.

Students, blamed for the initial disturbances, joined troops in battling the looters. The Ecuadorean University Federation meanwhile cancelled a call for a general strike.

MARTIAL LAW IN FORCE

President Camilo Ponce, in declaring martial law, declared he was acting "to save the republic from anarchy and aggression." His press office charged that Communists exploited last week's initial outbreak at Porto Viejo, brought on by a squabble between an army recruit and a captain.

But both Guayaquil's military commander, Col. Luis Ricard Palmieri, and political observers disagree. They say if there was any Communist exploitation it was disorganized and ineffective.

Officials say after 20,000 mourners had filed peacefully through the streets to attend funerals of earlier riot victims, gangs of toughs started wholesale looting sprees.

LOST IN THE WOODS

DANNEMORE, N.Y. (AP)— Robert L. Schnopp, 28, serving a 1½-to-three year term for burglary, walked out of a farmhouse Thursday and asked the farmer for his telephone. Dannemore prison Schnopp said he hadn't tried to escape—he had just got lost while out in the woods with a work crew's earlier in the day.

Higher Corporation Taxes Would Pay Benefits - - CCF

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition proposals to raise corporation taxes and establish a provincial water utility highlighted the Ontario election campaign Thursday, a week before voting day.

Premier Frost countered them with an arm-waving plea for support of his Progressive Conservative administration.

The tax pledge came from CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald who promised his party's plan for financing new social and economic needs. Most of the money, he said, would come from higher levies on the profits of beer, financing, forestry and mining industries.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said his party would set up a utility to pipe water from the Great Lakes and sell it to communities on the same basis as hydro power now is handled here. Frost drew the biggest crowd of the campaign thus far—10,000 persons—in a rally staged by Toronto-area ridings. Before speaking he shook hands with almost 800 in the receiving line.

The premier said support of his government would mean "a greater measure of economic progress in the future than anything we have had to date."

Arms outstretched, he made an impassioned plea for votes "to strengthen the government—not to strengthen anybody else." He referred indirectly to opposition contentions that the government's strength—83 of the 98 seats in the last legislature — was too overwhelming.

Earlier in the day he told a luncheon attended by 400 supporters that reports of a weakening of Tory ranks in the Liberal party should serve as a warning to voters. The Liberals had contributed for the most costly political advertising campaign in Canada's history.

He said the Conservative did not rely on such "high-pressure, soap-selling methods." The party avoided such extravagance both in its campaigns and the handling of provincial business.

"They (the Liberals) have made a lot of extravagant promises, promises they have never gotten around to telling the people how they would be paid for. I warn you . . . that the story of their campaign would be the same story as they ever got into office."

Mr. MacDonald said the CCF program stresses more education and, extra government housing and medical insurance, natural gas supplied at cost and $75 monthly pensions for the aged. He spoke on a CBC free-time television broadcast.

The CCF proposed to pay for these things by raising corporation taxes and cutting the "exorbitant profits" of the beer and liquor firms. Controls would prevent the cost of such tax increases being passed on to consumers.

"Out of our great and growing wealth, we are convinced that the most vital needs of the people can be met. If human needs be given priority over private profits it will be done."

The party were "entitled to

All Parties of Parliament Endorse Selection of Green

OTTAWA (CP)—In a scene of unusual amity, Howard Green has received unanimous endorsation of all Commons parties as Canada's new external affairs minister.

Mr. Green, 62-year-old Vancouver lawyer who has been public works minister since the Progressive Conservatives came to power in June, 1957, immediately pledged Thursday "to see to it that Canada maintains the high position in which she has been placed by my predecessors in office."

Among those predecessors whose efforts he singled out were Opposition Leader Pearson—"one of Canada's great statesmen"—and Sidney Smith whose death March 19 left the foreign affairs portfolio vacant.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, acting external affairs minister since Mr. Smith's death, told the Commons Mr. Green will come to the public works post on an acting basis until that department's spending estimates are approved by the House.

He also will continue as government House leader, a delicate job of steering the government's legislative business through the Commons, until the end of this session. He will be relieved as chairman of the Conservative caucus.

The appointment was announced in the Commons by Mr. Diefenbaker a short time after he and Mr. Green went to Government House to receive the oath of external affairs minister was sworn in before Governor-General Vanier.

A prolonged round of desk thumping applause greeted the prime minister's Commons announcement. Mr. Pearson remarked on "the great, the eloquent, and perhaps I can say, the affection" of all for Mr. Green.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) in a comment on Mr. Green in the 54th Kootenay Battalion in the First World War said "his old comrades . . . will rejoice in his opportunity to serve the cause of peace in international affairs."

Mr. Pearson underlook to give the party's support "in every strong and forward-looking Canadian move that he may initiate to keep our country's position high and respected in the world" and in pursuing the objective we all share . . . namely good relations between all peoples in the world of peace and freedom."

TOP OBJECTIVE OF STEELWORKERS IS HIGHER WAGES

Want Salaries in Line With U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The powerful steelworkers union has advocated general wage increases as a top policy objective in Canada this year.

Without specifying amounts, the national policy conference of the 83,000-member union called for pay increases to bring Canadian wages in the steel industry more in line with those paid in the United States.

This was one of a number of targets set Thursday by some 300 local officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

ECONOMIC GOALS

They also set their economic sights on higher unit premiums, better incentive rates, a 40-hour week with no reduction in pay, paid statutory holidays plus longer summer holidays, and severance pay.

Opening their two-day conference here, they dealt chiefly with economic matters.

Today they were to turn to the political field. They were expected to pledge USWA support for efforts to create a new political party in Canada—a party combining the forces of the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress, Canada Labor Congress.

The union, Canada's biggest single bargaining agent, talks for 170,000 workers in mines, mills and fabricating plants.

OUTLINE ARGUMENTS

Arguing that wage boosts don't cause inflation, the union bucked the federal government's "hold-the-line" appeal on wages last year. It fought an 85-day strike for more money from the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton, which employs more than 7,000 USWA members.

The new policy target is for "general wage increases that take into account the close relationship between Canadian and American price levels in the steel manufacturing and mining industries."

The union's argument is that the price policies "prove that Canadian wages be at least equal to the wages paid in similar U.S. industries."

The delegates approved the wage proposal after hearing USWA research director Clevy Kidd forecast a "vigorous push forward" in the Canadian economy in 1959. The Canadian union economist linked the economy boom to increased consumer spending, which he said should rise by six per cent this year.

Diefenbaker Will Be Court Judgment

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will examine an Exchequer Court judgment, handed down Malton Airport land expropriation values but emphasized he will not question the integrity or honesty of purpose of John C. Pallett, Progressive Conservative MP for Peel who was involved.

The issue that reply in the Commons to Opposition Leader Pearson who asked for the Prime Minister's comment on the judgment, which said a real estate agreement signed by Transport Minister Hees to make an "independent" valuation of the Pallett-owned land had testified he was working under Mr. Pallett's instructions.

If You're Flying 7,638 Miles Solo Don't Let Arabs Put Mint in Tea

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Flying granddad Max Conrad says he learned on his record non-stop flight from Africa to California by:

"Mint tea makes me ill."

A tired-but happy Conrad said it with a grin Thursday after the 56 hours, 30 minute, 7,638-mile hop from Casablanca, Morocco.

But it was no joke, he admitted. He took a swig of the tea and became nauseated over a lonely expanse of ocean near Iceland.

"I didn't take any food—only a thermos of coffee and tea," said Conrad, who makes his living as a commercial pilot around the world. "The Arabs put mint in the tea and it became rancid. Boy, I was sick."

But Conrad, 56-year-old father of 10 children, recovered and piloted the single - engined Piper Comanche plane into Los Angeles, via Corpus Christi and El Paso, Tex., and Phoenix, Ariz.

He had originally set El Paso for his goal. But he continued on, he explained, because of the previous record that Pat Boling set from Manila to Oregon in 1958.

FISCAL MEASURES EXTENDED FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Tax Sharing Pact Under Discussion

OTTAWA (CP) — The current federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangement is virtually assured of remaining in effect for another year.

The Commons Thursday gave second reading approval in principal to a bill extending the arrangement to the end of the fiscal year next March 31.

Howard Green, minister of public works named Thursday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker as the new external affairs minister, settled down into putting through public works spending estimates for the current year.

Normally, members from all over the chamber jun for a works minister on this annual occasion. This time, Mr. Green had to easy as the friendly mood that greeted his appointment carried over into the night sitting.

UNANIMOUS PASSAGE

On the federal-provincial fiscal measure, a vote was called over 102 passage through second reading. It carried by 136 to 0.

The extension formula, put into effect by the Conservative government last year, provides for a 13-per-cent share for the provinces of federal personal income tax collections, against 10 per cent previously. Other parts of the formula, originally devised by the Liberal government, are unchanged.

Liberals forced a vote on second reading, evidently in an attempt to embarrass their Conservatives. The Quebec government has refused to participate in tax-sharing. The Liberals have claimed that Quebec Conservatives had strong, if silent, backing from Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government in the last election.

Twenty-six out of 91 Quebec Conservatives voted in the House at the time of the vote, and all supported the measure.

SAPS LIBERALS

During the debate, Finance Minister Fleming accused the Liberal opposition of "empty prudence and hypocrisy" in demanding a better tax deal from the central government.

He said Thursday the Liberals were in government, they "banged, bolted and barred the door in the provinces in their pleas for assistance."

Opposition Leader Pearson was not able to get from Mr. Fleming any indication of whether the federal government has any new proposals to put before a meeting of provincial treasurers in Ottawa July 6.

The agenda, Pearson said, Mr. Fleming, will be as broad as the provinces want to make it. The federal government would consider any proposals.

United Appeal Eliminates Three Tag Days

Local citizens should be happy to learn the Belleville United Appeal has succeeded in eliminating three of the numerous annual tag days held in the city.

Two of the tag-days were eliminated when the St. Julien and Argyll Chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, were accepted as participating agencies in the Belleville United Appeal.

Tag day number 3 was dropped from the calendar when the local Kiwanis Club decided to cancel its annual tag day in a gesture to co-operate with the B.U.A.'s aim of eliminating as many of the almost-weekly tag days as possible.

At the monthly meeting of Belleville United Appeal, held last night in the assembly room of the Ontario Hydro Building, Dundas St. East, it was unanimously resolved that the city council be asked not to grant any other organization permission to tag on these vacated days.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of BUA president, Mrs. Jane Forrester.

All groups concerned reported progress in the organization of the 1959 campaign, which has been organized down to the canvasser level.

Studio of Ballet Recital Is Enjoyed by Large Crowd

By EUGENE LAING

Ages, as in former years there were hundreds of parents and friends of the young participants present to enjoy another annual recital of the Esther and Lillian Studio of Ballet that was given in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening. The dozens of young dancers that performed, be it in solo numbers or group ensembles attested to the fact that they had all practised many long and arduous hours to attain their proficiency in the various phases of ballet, that were demonstrated on stage.

Barring the evil eye of stage fright, which looked down upon a few of the dancers, all who performed did their utmost to show the results of the famous and patient training that their two instructresses, Esther Hughes and Lillian Lazarford had imparted to them during the past year. And the results were gratifying.

Careful and attractive costuming for each number presented were carefully prepared by Esther and Lillian and added immeasurably to the enjoyment of the effect displayed. Many stylings were nicely arranged as musical accompaniments for each selection, and the modern jazz number deserve kudos for their individual participation. Jackie Hanson and Anita Teshoppe merit inclusion also for their Pierrot and Pierrette, as do Donnalee Griffith and Nancy Painchard in their Little Girls in Blue routine. The Grecian Chainoff Ballet "A Child's Day" was a highlight as it blended with notable charming interest in both many, especially Anna Richard and Judy Shulman. The concluding Ballet from Faust gave vent to the classical ballet school and added laurels to the majority who were included in this finale of the recital.

SUMMED UP WORK

Following the final number, Mrs. Robert Tanner summed up the work of the Esther and Lillian Studio of Ballet, bringing these two directors on stage for well earned applause from the audience, also for the presentation of gifts and flowers from their dancing charges. Mrs. Tanner then presented to the audience the twenty-four dancers that have passed their grades for this year. Owing to a holdup in the engraving of the certificates, which had not yet arrived for presentation in the various grades same each young dancer came forward and took a bow, when her name was read out. The certificates, awarded by the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing will be given later to the students when they arrive here. Grade One: Mary Elizabeth Andrews, Mary Margaret O'Brien, Shelagh M'Conigle, Janet McCoy, Elizabeth Anne Richard, Beverley Hunt, Helen McFee, Candy Jamros and Mary Jean Deacon. Grade two: Donna Thornton, Linda Nelson, Carolyn Wyatt, Nancy Punchard, Gail Harris and Candy Jamros. Grade 3: Barbara Jones, Carolyn Wyatt, Donna Thornton, Leslie Deacon and Donna Lee Griffiths. Grade Four, Sherill Jeffery, Candy Jamros and Carolyn Wyatt were both fortunate enough to pass two grades in one year, showing that they had worked hard to bring added grades for one's efforts.

The only flaw in the recital was the unnecessary amount of noise that emanated from the audience, especially from those in the side ground floor, where people were continually coming and going, clomping up and down aisles during numbers and showing little respect for the dancers. This was so bad at times that the accompanist could not even be heard and one wondered what the dancers were attempting. A slight intermission would also be most acceptable in future recitals.

TRENTON — Dr.G. S. Cronk of Belleville was elected president of the Queen's Alumni of Belleville and District at the annual Spring meeting of the group, which was held on Wednesday evening at the CPR recreation rooms in Trenton, with Dr. W.A.J. McDonald, Trenton, 1st vice-president.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Dr. J. A. Harrower, Physics Professor at the university, who spoke on a trip he took to Russia and Samarkand last year, when he attended a convention of Astronomers in connection with the International Geophysical Year.

Other members of the new committee were: Archie Frost reelining president; Lorne McDougall, second vice-president; Mrs. Helen Bateman, vice-president in charge of Alumni funds; Margaret Pickering, secretary; Douglas Burt, treasurer; and Jack Sisson, Athletic representative.

Head table guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ron Mormon, Dr. Cronk, Mr. and Mrs. D. McDougall, Dr. Harrower, Mr. Burt, Dr. and Mrs. Bateman, Hamilton. It was decided to donate not more than two hundred of $100 to deserving students in the district for Queen's University.

Dr. Harrower showed most interesting colored slides taken by himself while in Russia. He said that the desire of the Russian people seemed to be for peace. He visited Moscow, Leningrad and other centres, and he saw great building programs being up to house 500 people, also 25 storey apartment buildings which are now being used as museums.

The University building at Moscow was the largest in the world said Dr. Harrower, and that a permanent industrial and agricultural fair was held in the city. At the fair he saw in Samarkand covered 21,000 acres and employed 100,000 people to operate.

The hall was decorated with red, blue and gold Queen's colors for the occasion.

Falling Rock On Mining Claim Kills Prospector

Ira Ellis, 43-year-old Cordova Mines prospector, was fatally injured Thursday afternoon by falling rock from a dynamite blast set off to uncover rock on a mining claim in Lake township 20 miles north of Madoc.

Reports were that Mr. Ellis was prospecting with another man, Iva Sopha. After firing the dynamite charge the two men separated on ways for cover. After the blast Mr. Sopha found Mr. Ellis lying on the ground with his head crushed by a falling piece of rock.

Making the injured man as comfortable as possible, Mr. Sopha ran through the bush to a mining claim where he had been when he returned an hour later Mr. Ellis was dead.

Mr. Ellis was a married man with several children.

Trenton Win Streak Ended by Batawa, 4-0

TRENTON — The unbroken winning streak of Trenton Soccer Club ended at five games when a strong Batawa squad handed them a 4-0 defeat. Batawa had beaten Batawa 1-0 in their only previous game. Trigger men for the Shoe Town team were little Kitchi who completed the hat trick with three goals to the first half.

In the second half Trenton still worked for a comeback but Batawa put up a staunch defence to keep up for the specified goal tending of G. Simon.

This game narrows the gap in the league standing between these two rival clubs.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Another in a series of training schedules set up by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis was undertaken last night by both volunteer and permanent members of the Trenton Fire Department. Classes last night took the men down to the town docks where practices were held on the aerial ladder truck and with the small auxiliary pump. Chief Ellis said he had designed the classes to improve the efficiency and speed of all the men. During the past month the Fire Chief reported two minor fires with an estimated loss of $1,782.50. Other calls were: oil burners, 6; dwellings, 1; trucks 1; service calls, 3; electrical, 1; grass fires, 3; barns, 1; trailers 1. During the month the Fire Department also answered a call to 'Carrying Place where a cottage was on fire.

Repairs to the windows at the Memorial Club are underway and the work is being done by Steenburg Construction. The masonry above the windows were weakening. Meanwhile lawn bowling and golf are in full swing at the club, with hundreds turning out on the green and greens to enjoy the facilities provided.

How much traffic will be tied up when the Dominion Construction Company of Belleville starts resurfacing Dundas street on Ontario Street with a sewer is not definite as yet but the company has guaranteed that it will not hinder or tie up traffic any longer than necessary. Single three of the building of the sewage disposal plant calls for the installation of a new main on Ontario Street from Meyers to Dundas Street and moves up the pump house now being built at the south east end of the bridge. Yesterday workmen at the Lightfoot Construction Company were busy digging a trench in front of Dundas towards Ontario.

Registration indicates that well over 200 boys will attend the "Cubaree" to be held in nearby Batawa on Saturday and packs of the entire area will be represented. Cubs and cubmasters from many adults will also attend the ceremonies which get underway at 1 p.m. Special visitors will be welcomed to Batawa by Dr. A. E. Hunt and opening exercises. The members of the district Wolf Cub Pack will meet at the ball field and young and old are invited to attend.

WIN DART HONORS

At Legion Zone Singles and Doubles Dart Tournament, Branch 110 won all the honors. Luke Glover was the winner in the singles competition. Larry Sweigard and Bill Frauts were the winners of the doubles tournament. Winners of the Zone Tournaments will now proceed to the District "7" Tournament, to be held at Bowmanville, Saturday, June 20th.

Minister Denies Allegations of Cheese Producers

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Harkness has denied that cheese producers are suffering "enormous losses" as a result of changes in the federal government's price support program for cheese.

He was replying in the Commons to Augustin Lussier (Lac Lapointe) who complained that heavy losses are being suffered by cheese producers in Quebec's Lake St. John area. Mr. Brassard said Ontario producers receive a higher price.

Producers have been receiving about eight-tenths of a cent a pound more for their cheese since May 1, Mr. Harkness said. It was traditional for Quebec producers to receive one-half cent a pound less than Ontario producers.

Premier Frost Attributes Party's Success to Govt. Efforts and Own Personality

TORONTO, (CP)—A weathered old farmer listened to a speech by Premier Frost at one point in the June 11 election campaign, pursed his lips and declared:

"That was a good speech. Not very political, but real friendly."

It went a long way toward explaining why the Conservatives' popularity with Ontario voters for 25 years of public life.

Leslie Miscampbell Frost called the election on his 10th anniversary as Ontario's Progressive Conservative leader. He was born in Orillia.

Leslie and his older brother, Cecil, were inseparable until the latter's death in 1947. Together they attended the University of Toronto, enlisted in the same regiment, went to Osgoode Hall Law school and established a law practice in Lindsay, where they married the Carew sisters in 1926. The Frost brothers were well known lawyers although the premier likes to call himself "a backwoods lawyer."

Both had a passion for politics — Cecil behind the scenes as Conservative party president - and Leslie on the public platform.

The younger Frost was first elected in Victoria riding in 1937 after a defeat in 1934. He became opposition financial critic and was a pole-jumping treasurer and mines minister when George Drew formed his government in 1943. He took over the Conservative premiership of the late Tom Kennedy in 1948.

WITHOUT THE WHITE MAN

"Moider da hum."

Not only in Brooklyn, and not only at the fights, is that sentiment popular.

A similar sentiment, voiced in tougher words, is often expressed in private conversations as the ideal way to solve certain international problems.

We may hold up our hands in horror at genocide, but most of us occasionally dream of the beneficial results of a little spurge of mass murder, provided we ourselves were permitted to control the direction of the operation.

On this continent the most popular choice for victims would be all the world's Communists, while from the Dneiper to the Bering Strait capitalists might be front-runners.

In a world-wide vote, though, a third party might win the unenviable distinction of finishing first on the unwanted list.

If the world were to be suddenly rid of all white men, what a change there would be in the international situation.

In the first place, there would be no immediate danger of an atomic war - - not even any worry of increased fall-out from nuclear tests. After the first sigh of relief, the black, brown, yellow and red men remaining on earth might start to look askance at Japan and China, as lands where the white man had had pupils who were too apt, the Japs copying the U.S. and its capitalism and China following Russia and its Communism. But, all U.S. capitalists and all Russian Communists being comfortably dead, there would be hope. The Japs have not only shown that they can imitate but there is also a suspicion that, unlike the white man, they can also learn. After Admiral Perry they imitated the Western capitalism so well that they almost whipped Teacher. Defeated, it now appears that their reform may have been genuine. As for China, despite the fact that since the revolution of Dr. Sun Yat Sen there has been no time which has had so many soldiers under arms so many masters, there remains considerable doubt as to whether the Chinese are really a military people.

The danger of atomic war, though, is after all a major threat and therefore not one with which the majority of the world's inhabitants are really greatly concerned. We all of us have much more annoyed by a mosquito which has invaded the bedroom thap by the problem of over-population and we are all much more afraid of catching a cold on a wet day than of lung cancer. It is the relatively minor annoyances which tend to make life seem unbearable.

The disappearance of the white man from the face of the earth would solve innumerable problems. The Algerians could stop fretting about the danger of being considered Frenchmen, the Bantus in South Africa would not have to worry about the police samboks and passes, the West Indians would be free to walk the streets of Notting Hill without fear or to emigrate to Canada, Mississippi negroes could vote and there would be no little white girls whose kiss could land little black boys in jail.

About the only places where the seeds of strife would thrive undiminished would be in the lovely vale of Kashmir and in the Holy Land and in the latter locality might depend upon how the term person was defined "white man," whether he included all the peoples with white skins or whether he considered the term did not apply to Semitic people of pale pigmentation.

Of course, the world would lose much if it lost all white men, but one might pardon brown, black, yellow and red men from concluding that, on balance, the earth would be a happier place in which to live.

No more Cold War, a united Berlin and a unified Germany, no more Westerns, or rock 'n roll, no Communist power west of Cathay, no vestige of colonial imperialism, no Madison Avenue and no big-busted blondes.

For a while there, we were thinking of making application for the position of sole white survivor, a sort of museum piece. But no blondes, no red-heads, no Scotch, no port or sherry, little roast beef and no cheddar - - man it's unthinkable!

PRODUCTION DILEMMA

Canadian coal and Canadian iron ore are both being shipped across the Pacific to provide the essentials of Japan's steel industry.

It is one of the ironies of Canadian life and the hard facts of its economics that Canada has the resources but it still cannot support an industry of this kind' itself.—(Calgary Herald.)

HIS CHANCE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

"I want a chance to show what;"
I can do," he sighed when others seemed to pass him by.
"There are great problems I could master, too;
Somehow, I never get the chance to try.

"Give me a chance to show what I can be;
This was the burden of his daily whine;
"I might achieve success as well as you
If only opportunity were mine."

One day they bade him fill another's place,
Another's work they offered him to do.
He grumbled, and a frown passed o'er his face;
"I am not paid to do the work of two."

Blowing Up a Storm

By Arthur Blakely in The Montreal Gazette

Parliament Hill's spectacular this season is being provided by the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industrial Relations. This hasn't happened often.

In politic theory, the Committee is engaged in the discharge of an extremely important mission. It is hearing the proposals and ramifications of Bill No. C-43 a controversial piece of legislation to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Such measures are rarely in a position to guess this without program.

Actually, this is so is a tribute to the ingenuity of Mr. Paul Martin, Minister of Health and Welfare, who is staging a one-man display of pyrotechnics which may well be unrivalled in the recent history of Parliament and its committees.

Mr. Martin's aim, object and purpose, which he at times seem to be to get the Committee into an uproar as soon as possible, is to amend the Act in previous, and keep it there until the proposed changes are adjustment arrives. It is a formidable undertaking. But Mr. Martin, a lively and forthright veteran of many years standings, has formidable and well-understood talents with such skill and industry that he has been able to create a state of pandemonium with despatch and apparent facility.

In normal circumstances, it is the responsibility of a committee chairman to maintain order and keep the committee on the business at hand. But these circumstances are not normal. The committee chairman, Mr. R. H. Brown, is an industrious soul outspoken but rather unimaginative Conservative member from Toronto-Danforth, has been quite unable to cope with Mr. Martin's tactics. He has, at times, been placed in the involuntary position of acting as the Minister's straight man.

Mr. Small has tried desperately and with some success to deal with Mr. Martin's stratagems. But the latter is a virtuoso of the parliamentary scene in terms of Canadian politics, and the effective opposition he can offer as the exasperated chairman, never high, has been in inverse ratio to his own. The Minister of Health and Welfare Minister has worked the committee into a frenzy of mental nerves and short temper to his own advantage.

Mr. Martin's adroit guerilla warfare has produced convincing evidence that the Conservative Government is disgraceful, that the Liberal party is the party with the best political traditions. But this consideration hasn't been of much comfort to the frustrated Conservatives who have watched one of Parliament's ablest showmen give a masterful performance, from a minority position.

The techniques applied by the cabinet minister with such resounding success are deceptively simple. He may begin with a fairly mild but firm production of a document which, as he alleges, is being hidden from Parliament, the public and the Committee. As soon as the Committee chairman rules out of order the motion he protests that the Liberal party's minority position on the Committee are being trampled upon by an all-powerful Conservative majority. The protest is couched in language forceful and offensive enough to invite a counter-protest from offended Conservatives. Before the latter be-lier oblige, Mr. Martin replies to their protests on a question of privilege in such a fashion as to raise a fresh protest, on totally new grounds, while the chairman is still trying desperately to deal with the last one.

In this exciting game of hare-and sounds, Mr. Martin has left the hounds far behind. While they are searching the Cedar hedge, he's far out in front under the bridge. By the time that they have methodically sniffed their way to the latter, he is kicking up his heels out in the orchard.

The following brief extract from the proceedings of one recent session is not untypical;

Mr. Browne (Vancouver-Kingsway): On what page of the brief are you finding your questions?

Mr. Martin (Essex East): I am not referring to the brief at all. It is my friend suggesting that the witness is in control of ideas that he must stick to the brief?

Mr. Browne (Vancouver-Kingsway): I think it is very disconcerting to the witness not to consult the brief when he has just read it.

Mr. Martin (Essex East): This gentleman's great concern is for the Minister of Labor in the House of Commons as belonging to the C.C.F. Party, and not that account he did not, in the Minister of Labor's judgment, deserve or warrant the consideration which the Minister of Labor thought should be paid to a member of another party.

Mr. Diefenbaker (Prince North): I object to that statement. I do not think there is anything in Hansard which the Hon. Mr. Mensies can draw such an inference and I don't think that statement should go on the record unchallenged.

Mr. McDonald (Hamilton South): On a point of order —

Mr. Martin (Essex East): I am dealing with a very disconcerting man, if this Committee is going to continue into the Committee and members of the Committee and I expect others, will find it necessary to call in some persons who are not going to have, every time we put questions, Hon Gentlemen opposite the reason or excuse to seek to prevent us from Parliamentary procedure. Everything in the House we apparently were denies the minutes of the —

Mr. McDonald (Hamilton South): On a point or order — Mr. Martin (Essex East): I take objection to you sitting behind the chairman to indicate that kind of observation.

Mr. Ricard: I am not sitting in the chair. I am helping in case there is translation to be done.

Mr. Martin (Essex East): If you want to make that kind of comment outside of the proper body of this committee. Do not express your position on the rostrum to impose your views on anybody.

Mr. Ricard: I am telling you all the confusion comes from you.

And so it goes. Witnesses come and witnesses go, but Mr. Martin attract much attention. Interest in the committee's work is wealth Minister Martin and his sallies.

Know Little About Hitler

Ottawa Journal

The New York Times tells a tale of innocence abroad which we do not find charming. According to a recent survey, nine out of ten West German students 14 to 17 years old either knew nothing at al. about Hitler or believed that he was a great statesman.

Here was a typical response to the question, "What do you know about Hitler?" "Hitler was vice-Germany. He did away with unemployment and built autobahns"

One can understand the resistance of the Germans to dwelling upon the shameful past. All nations tend to gloss over their scoundrels and exalt their heroes.

But surely one of the best lessons that children German and all others — could have and one of the best assurances that a Hitler does not come again is to tell something of the infamy of the man. And history, after all is to deal with the whole truth of the past, however distasteful and for some of its parts.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GET NEXT TO THE MAN IN NEED

In the Epistle to the Hebrews we find the statement that it behooved Christ to be made like unto His brethren, "that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the things pertaining to God."

In the last analysis, it takes a human being to help a human being; here are a few divine revelations on mountain tops recorded in the Bible, but the greatest revelations came to men through other men. Even the Word, the creative power and message of God, had to become flesh at last and dwell among men. This happened when Christ took on flesh and entered the stream of history.

If you want to help somebody, get down and walk with him along the pathway of life. Try to get your line of vision as close to his as possible. Learn his language, and then listen to him when he talks. There are millions of books full of ten-dollar words, but the man in need doesn't need a book. He needs a friend — but he needs even more than a friend; he needs an understanding friend. Not one who will preach to him, not one who will give him a hundred dollars or agree to lend him a thousand without interest. He needs someone made "like unto his brethren," and who because he is so made, becomes a merciful and faithful High Priest in all things pertaining to God — and pertaining to the tribulation, pain, and problems of the world.

An iron lung, the gift of Lord Nuffield of England, will arrive shortly at Kingston General Hospital, it was announced yesterday by officials of that institution.

The whole-hearted hospitality of Belleville residents, the genial hosts of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and last but not least — the natural beauty and vacation facilities of this part of the Quinte district, made a last-ing impression upon the members of the Rochester Club when they paid a visit here last year. That was exemplified at a meeting of the Club a few nights ago when members unanimously voted that they pay another visit to this city.

Blubarb Jam, Rhubery Pie

Halifax Chronicle Herald

A news item states that the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture has combined "the toothsome flavors of blueberry and produced blubarb jam."

The department says that blueberries are too bland for flavorful preserves and that rhubarb is inexpensive but too tart.

"Equal portions of the two ingredient each other and give blubarb jam a tempting wild berry flavor."

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SCABIES IS EASY TO GET AND EASY TO CURE

I have a letter from a most distressed reader — and I can't blame her for being distressed— who picked up a case of scabies, apparently from a friend who had just returned from overseas.

I can sympathize. I had scabies when I was an interne. I got no pay in those days but I did get scabies!

This particular reader is probably going to be displeased with my answer (although I hope not!) but there is the fact: Scabies is easy to get and easy to cure.

The itchy affliction is caused by a mite, a small insect which is big enough to see under a microscope. Well, you can see one if you know where it is, with the naked eye, but it is too small to identify positively.

Anyway, the female of the mite species has the irritating habit of burrowing into the skin (for reasons that are obscure, but which prefer human skin) to lay eggs.

This creepy nesting habit makes you itch like — well, I've experienced it, and hope I don't run into it again! The itch usually shows under the skin. And the itching is worse at night.

Exposed parts of the body are more likely to be affected, but the trunk can be, too. Rarely, however, will the face or scalp be attacked, except in infants.

The mites are easy to catch. I think you have been exposed, the best thing to do is to take a thoroughly. Scrub the mites off before they can dig foxholes in your personal anatomy.

If they do dig in, sulphur is the best remedy. Stinkweed there are some other medications that have been used successfully. The sulphur can be applied as an ointment, or in a soapy preparation (Vleming's Lotion). Then you let it dry on the skin. It's smelly, but a few applications do the work.

And that is the point at which my reader's letter left me hoping to be unhappy with my answer, because she tells me she has been treated by a doctor right now, and is beginning to give up hope. May be the time she reads this, she'll have won the battle. I pray this is so.

Here, however, are the two possible causes of the trouble continuing longer than is fastest. First, is it really scabies, or something else? In the case of scabies, the doctor can easily rule out one of the burrow in the skin, and make a definite proof then and there.

Second, the condition is so itchy that you do a lot of scratching, and this in turn can lead to complications such as infections or impetigo.

Indeed, in some instances the victim can overdo the ointment treatment and (perhaps if the skin is unusually sensitive) develop a dermatitis, or skin rash which persists and continues to itch after the mites, the original villains, have been driven off.

When a case hangs on in such fashion, I would not delay going by.

to a skin specialist. Let him take over the treatment while you stop worrying.

These mites, which seem so fond of us, are evidently passed from person to person, although there are varieties which may be picked up by cats, dogs, lions, camels and other animals. Sportsmen have stopped up milk while skinning foxes.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a spot on my abdomen. I don't think it is cancer, however. My doctor wants to remove it. Is there any chance of this kind of cancer spreading?—C.M.C."

Not only a chance, but it is bound to spread unless it is removed. The sooner the better. Skin cancer, which can be found — and removed early — is very close to being 100 per cent curable. But if not removed, it ends in disaster.

Power Mower Dangerous

Ottawa Journal

In this mechanical age, oldfashioned tools continue to yield place to the new. Today in all power saws, power steering, power brakes and power lawnmowers. Even if a man's lawn is perfectly flat and rectangular, he must for the sake of prestige, possess a power lawnmower, and machines are hailed as a sign of progress but reports not only from this country but Britain as well indicate these things can be as dangerous as a pair of scissors or a double-edged sword.

Recently a boy from Hampshire for instance that Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, a former Chief of the British General Staff, lost a tiit with a power lawnmower and suffered the fracture of three ribs. And Prince St. Edmund de Polignac days ago, a player on the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team was confined to bed by the bite of a mechanical grass cutter. Fast as hockey star is, the power mower was faster. Last year, one of these machines picked up a kitchen knife left on a lawn and hurled it with vicious effect at a passer-by.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON FURNISHING YOUR MIND

How is it that we detect so much about a person after the first sentence or two? Even a person's home and quite often get a good idea about that one from a few moments' visit. Things that we note, upon the smallest introduction. Especially when there are many books in that home. We get almost an immediate picture of that person's mind.

The mind is important if it is well furnished. There can be great and impressive works of art upon the walls and in the cases of books. Such books easily and silently tell many a tale. If there are but a few furnished articles, the books alone will tell you much. Character is outstanding in a home and in books. Outside of the person himself, books talk as no other medium. They are socially and mentally by themselves.

I recently attended the dedication exercises that announced the great Lincoln Centre in New York City. Fast as that centre is one of the great Centres of education and inspiration. The President of the United States gave a brief talk and turned the first shovel of dirt. It is destined to be one of the great cultural centres in America, and perhaps the world. Many a mind will be furnished from this inspiring spot, with the arms of great surrounding skyscrapers announcing it to the world.

There cannot be too many important institutions of learning in our worthwhile books. They both are teachers to the mind.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a motor trip last week, I stopped for lunch mostly in small towns and put up for the night in motels adjacent to towns and villages. I had no part of cities recently eight days. And one of the impressions I gathered in the restaurants, in the motels and in the shops was that teen ages in the smaller centres of population are much more relaxed and unaffected than they are in cities. They have the aggressive airs, the air of liberty and independence that the young people of the cities have. They are not as sophisticated as their city cousins. They are, or perhaps a quality of respectfulness to their surroundings that is often absent in the city teen agers when abroad on the town.

A person shared a restaurant table with me, and I mentioned this impression.

"I've been in this parish four years," he said, "after having spent eleven years in the city. Your impression is perfectly correct. And the reason is very simple. In the smaller communities everyone is known to everyone else. The eye of the entire community is on everyone. But cities are too big to have their eye on anybody. Teen ages in cities have only to move a few blocks away to be in completely strange territory in which they feel free to do as they anyway they like. There is a measure of social discipline in small communities that is lacking in the cities, especially in self. Today, it is a blessing. My eyes are on the steadiest and sturdiest element of the next generation just coming into power and will be contributed by the small communities of Canada."

There rolling boys tramped past our table.

"Good day, sir," they said, suddenly politeful.

"Well," explained the parson to me, "I'm coach of the baseball team."

Cadet Nursing Division Wins Honors at Inspection

The St. John Ambulance Belleville Nursing Division, No. 150 C, held their annual inspection last night in the Moose Hall, 53 Victoria Avenue.

The division was inspected by Mrs. C. D. Ashley, provincial Cadet Nursing Officer, from Toronto headquarters.

This year's annual inspection and presentation of awards was highlighted by the division's First Aid Team's winning of the Leonard Trophy, emblematic of junior provincial first aid championship. This trophy is awarded by the Priory of St. John Ambulance to the team in the province earning the highest marks.

This is the first time the local team, captained by Mary Anne McGuire who stepped in at the last moment, when the former captain became ill, has brought this honor to Belleville. Others on the team include Valerie Smith, Lillian Reid, Carolyn Baker, and Elaine Ward.

The trophy was to have been presented at last night's inspection by Mrs. Ashley, but unfortunately it did not arrive from Ottawa. It will be presented at a gathering of the division at a later date. Individual trophies will also be presented to each member of the team.

The provincial cadet nursing officer officially presented Mrs. Nora Baverstock with her warrant as Cadet Officer. Upon presentation of the warrant, Mrs. Ashley congratulated Mrs. Baverstock, and told the girls they were "getting a fine officer."

Whether the Belleville division will again win the "Mrs. R. H. Beck Efficiency Shield", awarded to the cadet division obtaining the highest marks at inspections for first aid, home nursing and other proficiency subjects, will not be known until October when the marks have been totalled for all the divisions in the province, Mrs. Ashley explained.

Last year the local division won the shield by a margin of 60 points above all other teams in Ontario.

SPECIAL AWARDS MADE

Other awards were presented as follows. Special service shields for 200 voluntary hours of cadet duty during the year were awarded to Lillian Reid, Elaine Ward and Mary Anne McGuire. In addition, Miss Reid was chosen "cadet of the year."

Service awards were presented as follows: first stripe, Carolyn Baker, Mary Dawkins, Lynn Godby and Lillian Reid; second stripe, Mary Anne McGuire; first star (for three years' service) Muriel Biron, Carolyn Price, Valerie Smith, Virginia Smith and Barbara Taylor; and star and stripe, Janet Langabeer.

In addition Miss Langabeer was promoted to the rank of Junior Officer, and also received her Cadet Officer's pips. Misses Valerie Smith and Barbara Taylor were promoted to sergeants and Misses Muriel Biron and Carolyn Potts were promoted to corporals.

Misses Elaine and Lois Ward were commended for having served continuous 4 months all year.

Mrs. Ashley gave a brief address of welcome to parents and friends in attendance, on behalf of Cadet Superintendent Mrs. Hollie Bowen, who was unable to be present through illness.

MAYOR HYDE HEARD

Prior to the inspection of the division, Mayor Gerald B. Hyde gave a brief address commending the girls on their good work. "If any of you had to attend an accident, I am sure you would be well qualified to do so," he stated.

The program consisted of demonstrations of such proficiency subjects as children's ills, bandaging, fire fighting, and care of animals. In addition, the first aid team which has won the Leonard Trophy for first aid work among cadet corps in Ontario for 1959. Seated are Elaine Ward and Lillian Reid and standing Carolyn Baker, Mary Ann McGuire and Janet Langabeer.

Morris Archer Acquitted by Session Jury

A Hastings County petit jury at noon today acquitted Morris Archer, 36, Belleville, on trial at the General Sessions of the Peace before His Honor Judge J. R. Smith.

Mr. Archer was charged with breaking and entering at the Garage Supply warehouse on Capital Street.

The jury was out only 20 minutes during which time they were recalled for direction by His Honor.

No defence witnesses were called by Defence Counsel Robert Temple and the morning's court proceedings were taken up by addresses to the jury by Mr. Temple and by Crown Attorney John A. Pringle, and summation and direction to the jury by Judge Smith.

"You have heard the verdict and I accordingly discharge you," stated Judge Smith to the accused following returning of the not guilty verdict. "I have no other comment to make, except that to say that something very peculiar has happened in the city of Belleville."

"There must be some doubt in the minds of the jury and I must say that from a legal standpoint I agree with them."

"You are a very fortunate young man," Judge Smith told Archer as he discharged him.

The case against Mr. Archer was started Thursday morning after a true bill had been returned by the Grand Jury earlier in the week.

Following discharge of the accused just before noon today Judge Smith adjourned court until Tuesday morning at 10 a.m.

The first witness for the Crown was Cpl. R. J. Rackham of the Ontario Provincial Police who testified certain footprints found at the Garage Supply premises last September 20, had identifying similarities with the boots owned by the accused, which boots were taken from the accused by the Belleville city police about one month after the alleged criminal act had been committed.

Under cross-examination defence counsel Robert Temple obtained the information that there were also dissimilarities in the wear patterns of the boots of the accused and those boot prints found at the scene of the crime.

Robert Monderville stated that he had been a friend of the accused for four to five years and that he knew him as Gordon. He stated that the boots produced as exhibit one were similar to those usually worn by the accused. In giving testimony much of which was very similar to the witness' testimony at the Clarence Young trial of Wednesday, he placed the accused at the scene of the crime together with Clarence Young who was found not guilty by a jury on Wednesday.

The witness stated that he had seen Clarence Young in a small window at the front of the Garage Supply premises on the single occasion when his wife and he saw Young in the building. He stated that he was driving his vehicle at a speed between 25 and 30 miles an hour and that he deliberately swung over to the wrong side of the street when parallel to the building in order to obtain a better view.

TESTIMONY DIFFERS

Upon questioning by the court the witness Mondeville, stated that he had stopped in Newcastle for there beers prior to arriving in Belleville from Niagara Falls on the evening concerned. He also stated that his wife knew he had had these drinks.

Mrs. Mondeville was the next witness for the prosecution. Under cross-examination by the defence she stated that she did not think her husband had been drinking prior to the event concerned and that they had made no stop on their trip from Niagara Falls to Belleville. Testimony was given to the effect that when she and her husband, the previous night, had driven by the scene of the crime they had passed at a speed of about five miles an hour, driving along the proper side of the road when they had noticed Mr. Young in a large window of the Garage Supply building.

Upon re-examination by Crown Attorney John Pringle, Mrs. Mondeville stated that she and her husband had definitely not stopped on the way back to Belleville from Niagara Falls.

Upon questioning from the bench the witness stated that her husband was not drinking since she had been with him all the time.

OWNER HEARD

Orliff Lloyd, owner of the Garage Supply firm, was the next witness called by the Crown Attorney.

Cross-examination by Mr. Temple concerned the lighting of the general area around Mr. Lloyd's business premises. The witness also stated that, in his opinion, it would not have taken very long to cut through the back of the safe with oxy-acetylene equipment. Under re-examination by the Crown Attorney the witness admitted that the job could have taken some time if the work was interrupted.

Police Constable Yearwood said he had stopped the Mondeville auto early in the morning and at that time he had noticed the accused wearing rubber boots. He also stated that he had been on patrol past the Garage Supply location on two occasions during the time the crime was allegedly committed. The first time was between the hours of three and four o'clock in the morning and the second time was at about 6.00 a.m. Nothing suspicious had been noted in checking the premises.

Upon re-examination by the Crown Attorney the witness stated that only the front large windows had been checked on his patrols.

Belleville Police Constable Asbury corroborated Constable Yearwood's testimony.

Crown Attorney stated that this testimony concluded the witnesses for the prosecution, Judge Smith adjourned the court until 10:00 o'clock this morning.

British Pairs Defeat Canada In Cup Matches

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (Reuters)—Britain defeated Canada 2-0 in the second day today of the effort to break the tie for leadership between the two countries in the women's Commonwealth golf tournament.

British pairs routed Canada's contestants in both foursome events this morning to pick up two points. There remained four more points to be decided in singles play in the afternoon.

Playing "magnificent golf in blustering wind and rain, Mrs. Frances Smith and Miss Janette Robertson of Britain defeated Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Judy Darling of Montreal 6 and 5.

Britain made it a 2-0 foursomes win when Elizabeth Price, the British champion, and Bridget Jackson beat Rae Milligan of Calgary and Roma Neundorf of Toronto 2-up.

The second match was not up to the high standard of the first, although it was good considering the conditions," Miss Price said. Miss Jackson, after winning the fourth and fifth holes to go 2 up, were never caught.

In the first foursome, the British girls opened with a birdie three to go straight in front. However, they then fumbled the second to bring the Canadians square. But that was the only hole the Canadian pair won and the British ended the match on the 13th.

Japan, Its People' Told By Word, Slides

A good many ladies of various church groups were privileged to hear an interesting and informative address on Japan by Miss Hazel Farley of Trenton, when the Evening Auxiliary of the United Church entertained at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening.

Miss Farley brought with her slides illustrative of her topic which she made as a member of a UNESCO Mission to Japan. The mission was to get to know Japan and its peoples and thereby better to understand it, which in turn purposes to eliminate wars and, "wars must begins in the minds of men, so war begins', UNESCO is educational, scientific and cultural.

The following facts were most interesting. 43 per cent of the world's population cannot read or write; 250,000,000 have had no or very little schooling. UNESCO tries to provide these people with some form of fundamental education so that they may learn to help themselves. Japan has a lot of farming, or by making things to sell. In Tokyo there are 93 million people in a space about the size of Saskatchewan. There is only 15 per cent of Japan's whole foodstuffs can be raised, yet 45 per cent are literate in Japanese. However, they make use of every inch of producing soil, which seems to be all have to be fertilized.

CO-OP SYSTEM

Under General McArthur the large land holdings were divided under a co-operative system. One-fifth of every farmer's income he gives back gladly to his government to help it make a come-back in the world."

She spoke very highly of the people as being very clean (no litter on the streets of their big cities, however), very polite, clean personally (as indicated by the pure white shirts all the men wear), they are honest and thrifty and most polite. She said she had never seen children who were generally so polite as the Japanese, even though they are rarely spanked.

The transportation system in Tokyo was extensive, many of its vehicles of all sorts cover seven times the circumference of the world in one day. One in five families have TV, with no commercials. Its radio station casts 15 hours a day in 16 different languages to 60 different countries in the world.

"Although Christianity is not a major religion in Japan, its teachings have evidently rubbed-off on people and it is hoped by the missionaries that example will sometime draw them to Christ," she said in her exemplary of Christ's way of life and he has done much for the Japanese."

Miss Farley completely entertained the audience by her interesting account and her most enjoyable manner.

DAVIS — OLIPHANT

White and mauve chrysanthemums and yellow snapdragons banked the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews in Holloway St. United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 16, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely springtime wedding, when Nancy Mossman Oliphant, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Oliphant, became the bride of Larry Evan Davis, of Trenton.

The Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, officiated by the Reverend H. J. Townsend, assistant pastor, officiated.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ivan Rollins, as she sang "The Wedding Prayer," before the ceremony, and "At Dawning" during the signing of the registers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her waltz-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over bulle satin, with fitted bodice and sheer lace with scalloped neckline in Sabrina style outlined with seed pearls and sequins, and sheer-like sleeves ending in lily-point cuffs at the wrists. She wore a shoulder-length veil of bulle illusion edged with lace, and pillbox type headdress of matching lace accented with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her flowers were of red roses in cascade form tied with white satin streamers.

Miss Marjory Mackenzie of Belleville, as maid of honor, was gowned in waltz-length bridesmaid style of blue lace over satin with satin cummerbund, matching picture lace hat and mitts. Carrying a nosegay of tinted 'mums, matching her gown.

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor also." Our duty first to God, then will overflow to our fellowmen.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Wilson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George Carlisle, 1st vice-president of the Women's Presbyterian, who spoke on the theme, "Fellowship" which she defined as "a friendly people sharing their ideas and experiences."

"The Church is the ideal place for this communion for it is the only agency set up to fulfil the mission of the Church and Christ Himself, the only community exemplifying the Body of Christ.

Humility to God means loyalty to our Fellowmen; concern for the welfare of others is a Christian. Sin disrupts and debases men's lives, and Christ is the answer, must be a praying church. The church should be an educational force molding lives and leavening the community — missions must be the work of the church; therefore and teach all nations baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and of the Holy Ghost and lo I am with you always.

"The church upholds unity: Christ's prayer, 'That they may be one.' Unity in Christ, one God and Father of us all'.

We must be led by the Grace of God. The Bible maybe misinterpreted by others; aim to seek out the study teaches us God's will for the church and the world, opening the way for the Holy Spirit to work in the lives of others. Fellowship is teaching Breaking of Bread and Prayer. In real fellowship we're conscious of our own weakness and become gentle to the weaknesses of others; aim to win souls for Christ, worship God, and serve our fellowmen."

Tea was served and a social time closed an enjoyable and profitable afternoon.

Mr., Mrs. Wm. Davidson Marmora, 60 Years Wed

A token leg and three rapid strokes with the "fix and tell" axe did to dampen life's enthusiasm for William Davidson, 8th concession, Marmora township, who with Mrs. Davidson will on Sunday celebrate sixty years of married life.

A family get together is being planned for the day while the couple will also be at home to friends. Mr. Davidson is 84, while his bride of sixty years is 81.

A firm believer of the old adage that "hard work hurt nobody", Mr. Davidson had led an active life up until a year ago when an accident with a stone bruised and crushed his leg just above the ankle.

He was only slowly recovered from the broken leg when he took down with the "flu and as a result he remained confined to the house for the past 13 months. He just recently returned home from the hospital where he underwent an operation.

Although he has farmed "off and on" for the past 50 years, the 8th concessionist has during his lifetime worked at many varied occupations including mining, shantying, lumbering and in custom threshing.

He said he "got his start" on a farm across the road from where he now lives, receiving 50 cents a day.

He recalls the early river driving days on the Moira, and Trent rivers and also on Black Creek. Working for the Gilmour Company he drove logs for all three rivers and during the winter months drove a team in the bush, finally putting in anywhere up to 16 hours a day. Wages for a man and team then were $1.50 per day and found.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Mrs. Davidson is the former Martha Lee. She came to Canada from England with her parents who were drawn to the Madoc area with reports of the current mining boom.

It was the same mining boom which brought the Davidson family to the Marmora area. The family also came from England but settled first in the Parry Sound district, later moving to Madoc.

As a miner Mr. Davidson had experience in underground operations both in Madoc and at Deloro and at Cobalt.

He started mining in the days when steel drills were hammer and all drilling was done by hand. Two men, dependent on rock and other conditions, could drill up to 10 feet a day and received $3 per foot drilled.

Against this miners were working one cent for each foot blunted and two cents each for candles.

"We were lucky to make $1.50 per day," he recalls.

However, Mr. Davidson fared better than many workers of his time. He could swing a drill hammer with either hand and the result often worked alone. When he tired the simple trick shifted the hammer to the other hand and continued working.

As a young miner he won several drilling contests in the Madoc area.

He was working in the mines at Deloro when married and after moved to Cobalt, where the family stayed for three years before returning to Marmora township to take up farming. But he did not work exclusively on the farm but took to custom threshing, which he followed for the next half century. His first threshing experience was with horsepower, then he acquired a portable steam engine and finally a steam traction engine.

BORN TOO SOON

"Anything with hard work attached I seemed to strike," he says. "I was born just 50 years too soon."

Of the accident which a year ago broke his leg Mr. Davidson says he was fortunate. "Instead I should have known better", he says.

He was helping his son to do some stone picking and was seated on a rock watching the stone-boat being winched from a swail after dumping. The stoneboat struck a rock. The end of the stoneboat swung around and struck his leg, breaking it against the rock on which he was seated.

He was just nicely better when I took down with the "flu" and since I have occupied a bed most of the time. He said, "but I am picking up a bit now".

The Davidsons have four children. One son George Henry while another William Davidson operates a garage on No. 7 highway midway between Marmora and Madoc, while a third son John operates the homestead. A daughter, Mrs. Henry (Mary) Weldon, lives on the old Marmora road.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are blessed with good eyesight and use glasses only when their eyes become tired with reading.

But they needed assistance to total up the younger members of the family. With the assistance of their daughter-in-law Mrs. John Davidson the tally was 17 grandchildren and 22 great grandchildren.

And most of them will be here for the anniversary.

DIVORCED MOTHER REFUSES TO LET BRIDE'S FATHER GIVE BRIDE IN MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married soon, and I have two very important questions on which I need your help. I would deeply appreciate your guidance, particularly on my first question.

1. My mother and father are divorced. I had always planned to have my father give me in marriage. However, my mother refuses to attend the wedding if my father is present. Because I love them both, I want them both to be with me at my wedding. What do you advise would be the best thing to do?

2. Also, how should the wedding invitations be worded in this case? — B. A.

1. What would be the best thing to do is this unhappy and unfortunate situation? Pray . . . for you and your father and your fiance pray, and ask everyone concerned with your happiness to pray (I will pray, too, please) that your mother will be so lovingly concerned with your happiness that for your Wedding Day she will be big enough and understanding enough and co-operative enough to over-look past bitterness and conflict, hold her head high with devotion to you and pride of you, and make every effort to have your father participate as you want it.

Since you love your father, he must be worthy of being at your wedding, should have the honor of giving you in marriage. Try again to get your mother to cooperate; and if you cannot, ask the minister who is to perform the ceremony to give you his help and guidance. God bless you.

2. The wedding invitation may correctly read:

Mrs. Robinson Arnold requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Barbara to
Mr. Arthur Clark
on Tuesday, the seventh of July at four o'clock
Grace Church
New York City

The correct form for your divorced mother's name is the combination of her maiden surname . . . Robinson, for example . . . with your father's surname.)

WHO GIVES THE ENGAGEMENT-ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever proper for the fiance's parents, or any other relative of his, to give the engagement-announcement party? The answer to this question is extremely important to us. — Reader

The very definite answer to your question is no. If an engagement-announcement party is to be given . . . and this party is never necessary . . . it is given by the engaged girl's parents, or, if the parents are not living, it may be given by a close relative that never should it be given by the fiance or any member of his family.

Mrs. J. S. — I am terribly upset about my 15-year-old son, Steve. He has the most violent temper. He flies into a rage and rushes out of the house at the least word of criticism from his father or me.

All I ask is that he keep himself and his room reasonably neat and clean and appear at the dinner table on time. My father insists that he get decent grades and help out with a few of the lighter household chores. Those he does three times a day — forget it or my shirt is coming out of my pants. If I mowed the lawn, I forget to take out the garbage and so on. You can't win if you're me. You're always in the wrong.

On top of that, my parents are always looking at me as if I'm a fanatic or something. Or maybe I'm just the bad apple in the batch. They're always talking about how my brother . . . and my sister . . . are and my sisters, well they're just too, too divine.

I know I have a temper and I try to keep it under control, but even good," of course.

20 Ladies Attend Stork Shower

MADOC JUNCTION — A happy time was enjoyed on Friday night, at the home of Mrs. Keith Johnson, when Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Albert Jones were co-hostesses for a stork shower, given for Mrs. Gordon Clarke.

The livingroom was attractively decorated with pink and blue streamers, centred by a pair of baby booties.

Some 20 ladies were present and the evening was spent in games, conducted by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Johnson, with several of the ladies winning small prizes, which caused considerable merriment.

A reading, "God's Masterpiece", was given by Mrs. Glenn Dingle.

The guest of honor was then requested to take the decorated chair and sit at a table; and at this time, little Judy Johnson wheeled in a lovely carriage filled with prettily wrapped parcels.

Mrs. Clarke unwrapped the parcels, showing a beautiful variety of lovely gifts, for which she graciously thanked the donors. She also expressed her appreciation to the hostesses for arranging such a pleasant evening.

Dainty refreshments were then served by the hostesses.

Announcers Enjoy Briefing On Fashions by Joy Davies

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — They may not know the difference between squamarine and tangerine, but 30 male radio and TV announcers have been told the fundamentals of fashions and colors in preparation of the coming Royal Tour.

The men admitted they needed, and in fact enjoyed, a briefing on fashions by Joy Davies, commissioned as fashion advisor for the CBC's coverage of the Tour. Miss Davies is a former model and actress who now runs a charm school in Toronto.

The attractive fashion expert will accompany the announcers on the tour across Canada and back. It will be her job to interpret the elegant fashion terms when spoken by a man.

INTERPRETS STYLES

If circumstances are the same as on previous occasions, reporter will learn what the Queen is wearing just a few hours before each appearance, at a press conference. Miss Davies will put the formal announcements into easily-understood style and then brief the radio and TV commentators on the royal wardrobe.

On a suggestion from Prince Philip, the Queen's wardrobe for the tour has been so organized that each ensemble has a number. However, the Queen—like any other woman—occasionally switches part of her costume.

If there's a last-minute change, the formal bulletin fails to turn up, Miss Davies advised the commentators: "If in doubt, don't say anything."

She advised them to watch for such things as the Queen's favorite color, blue; whether her hat is large or small, and whether her shoes have open toes or pointed toes.

"If the announcer says the Queen is wearing a soft blue dress with a grey fur stole, the listener can imagine the scene," Miss Davies says.

Women's Institute

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

WALLBRIDGE — The Wallbridge Women's Institute visited the Hastings County Home as part of the May meeting. All met in the reception lounge of the Home at 2 p.m. President, Mrs. Ray Shorey, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Yorke conducted a tour of the Home and all visited Mr. and Mrs. Johnson in their "apartment." Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are former residents of the community.

Mrs. Yorke was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for her courtesy.

The group later journeyed to the home of Mrs. Ed Nichols for the business part of the meeting. Mrs. B. Hinchcliffe read the auditors' report which, due to illness, could not be presented at the annual meeting. A thank-you card from Mrs. Don Shorey was read.

It was decided to donate $10 to the Salvation Army again this year and also $10 to the Cancer fund.

A bus trip is being planned for September.

The hostess and committee members refreshments while further discussion on the bus trip and catering at the Plowing Match in 1961 was carried on.

New Lighting Can Enhance Dining Room

Good dining room lighting can not only make food look more appetizing, but it can vastly improve the appearance of the room.

In too many of the country's dining rooms or areas, old-fashioned and dingy lighting fixtures are detracting from the beauty of the dining room set. In addition they give the food a dull and unappetizing look, according to the American Home Lighting Institute.

Today's lighting fixtures for the dining room abound in a wide variety of styles and designs. There is one to complement even dining set be it contemporary or traditional.

A good lighting fixture does the following.

—It accents the dining table while providing adequate general lighting for the rest of the room.

— It prodies the proper amount of soft diffused illumination on the table to show the food in its best light.

— It does not glare at any point and normally can be adjusted up or down.

—It has the right styling to match room decor.

If your present fixture does not meet these standards, then it's time to put a new lighting fixture high on the list of your home improvement plans.

Most modren fixtures can be installed by any experienced "do-it-yourselfer" (provided he removes the correct fuse before starting).

According to the institute, the average dining room needs a fixture with a diameter of between 13 and 17 inches. The fixture should be able to hold five 40 watt bulbs or their equivalent.

SOVIET POPULATION

Population of the Soviet Union was officially estimated at 208,800,000 at the start of 1959.

Spruce-Up Impulse Is Universal

Along with "the flowers that bloom in the spring" comes the almost universal (and well nigh irresitibles) urge for the homeowner to clean-up, spruce-up, make various improvemens in his house and grounds.

The most effective programs of this kind are those that are well planned in advance, with a careful eye to what is needed most urgently, and of course with due reference to what the budget will afford.

Such planning should start with an outstanding and inside and floor-by-floor survey of the home, for the purpose of an appraising all present and foture needs and possibilities.

In making such a survey, the following check-list may prove helpful to the homeowner.

OUTSIDE THE HOUSE

The grounds: Would some judiciously placed shrubs, trees, or flower beds or borders enhance the appearance of your property? How about a flagstone walk? Or a patio, perhaps with a berbecue, for outdoor relaxing and entertaining? How does your lawn sh-pe up? Does it need touching up? Or should it perhaps be completely rebuilt?

The House: Is it long overdue for a repaint job? How about the roof? Is it still weather tight? What about the guttering and downspouts? Are they still functioning properly or are repairs or replacements indicated ?

Does your chimney need repointing? And what about the siding of your house? Is it still sound and attractive? Or would a complete "face lifting" job add value to your property far beyond the cost of the improvement.

INSIDE THE HOUSE

Rercoration: Is it time for a change of scene in any or all of your rooms via paint or wallpaper? It is amazing how a comparatively small amount invested in paint or wall paepr can make a room "wake up and sing."

Lighting: Study the present lighting in every room in your home. Is it adequate? Does it set off your furniture and furnishings to the best advantage? It is estimated that 80% of all American homes are inadequately lighted, which certainly points up the importance of giving this subject careful attention.

The attic: Is it the usual cluttration of odds and ends? Could it be converted, at relatively small cost into an extra bedroom or hobby area? Could storage cabinets be built in under the eaves?

Bathroom: How about modernizing it with new fixtures new wall tile or flooring? Or does your family really need an extra bathroom or lavatory, and is there space available for the purpose?

Kitchen: Does it leave much to be desired on the score of efficiency or appearance,— or both? Check it for needed cabinets, flooring, appliances, redecoration

Basement: Does the foundation need waterproofing? How about built-in storage facilities to hide thouse unsightly pipes? Should waste space in this area be panelled off to create an attractive famil rumpus room?

Most Cellar Water Comes From Roof

More cellar dampness is caused by roof water than by underground water sources. Tests have shown that in most cases the ground water level is well be low a cellar floor.

Cellar walls can normally keep out the amount of rain water that falls on the ground next to foundation. But when the greatly increased drainage of a roof is allowed to seep into the small areas next to the house, cellar walls are subjected to a task for which they were not designed.

FAUCET NOISE

A new washer is frequently the only cure needed for a faucet that howls or chatters every time it is turned on.

A CHARMING all-on-one-floor plan, today's home has clean, uncluttered contemporary lines. Vertical siding, underlined by a dado of brick, is used for the front of the house. Bedroom windows, at left of the entry, are placed high for privacy.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Today's home can be built with or without a basement — take your choice. Both plans are similar, with only a few minor changes.

The kitchen is a foot longer and the lavatory a little smaller when the home is built without a basement. There are also two additions to the plan—a storage closet accessible from the yard, and a small room, off the bedroom hall, for heating equipment.

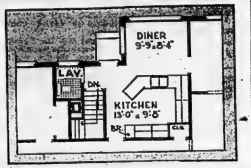
BASEMENT PLAN

With a basement, the lavatory is slightly larger and the space given over to the extra rooms, plus the kitchen, is taken over by the stairway.

The house has an extremely efficient layout with sleeping quarters at left and living-working area at right.

The location of the kitchen makes this floor plan especially pleasing. It's placed so that it's convenient for serving meals in the diner, which adjoins, or for serving snacks in the family room or living room close by.

One kitchen wall is devoted to laundry appliances, while the food preparation centre is set up in a U-shape. Counters, rather than partitions, divide the kitchen from the dining room so that Mom, busy preparing a meal, can keep an eye on the children in the yard. Two window walls in the dining area give her a good view.



The family room opens on the terrace. It can be a separate area or, when there's large-scale entertaining, sliding doors can be pushed back to merge family room and living room.

THREE BEDROOMS

All three bedrooms are nicely sized, and each has an exceptionally spacious wardrobe closet. High strip windows allow more wall space for easy placement of furniture.

The bathroom, which separates the two street-side bedrooms, is accessible to all three rooms from the hall.

Design H-507-KF comprises 1,402 square feet. With a basement, the home has 27,963 cubic feet; without a basement, 26,375 cubic feet.

WHEN BUILT with a basement, the kitchen's slightly smaller and a heater room and storage area are eliminated.

Paint Job May Show Lunch Hour

In painting a clapboard house, it is best to paint in horizontal strips about three feet wide. Don't stop in the middle of a strip for any sizeable amount of time. Your lunch hour may show up in the finished job. The best place to stop is at the end of a strip, or at a window or door.

Provincial Park At Presqu'ile Is Defended

CAMPBELLFORD—The Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture and candidate in the recent election in Northumberland riding, told a crowd of about 350 persons at a garden party here on Tuesday night that Liberal claims of extravagance in establishing a provincial park at Presqu'ile Point near Brighton were completely unfounded.

Colin Crews, Liberal candidate in the riding, said at a meeting in Warkworth on Friday night that the Conservative government under Mr. Frost had spent one and one-half million dollars in establishing the park. He claimed the government had spent $110,000 to build its marina, water closets or privies, nearly $20,000 each. Mr. Crews claimed the Conservatives had spent $100,000 to build five parking lots, $35,000 each for two barbecue pits, $75,000 to build a marble snack bar, $50,000 to build picnic tables and $300,000 to expropriate property.

Mr. Goodfellow said he was appalled at reading these figures and immediately called for figures on government spending on the park. He said instead of one and a half million dollars, the government will have spent, including work contemplated up to the end of 1959, a total of just under $140,000. Revenue derived from the park, based on 1958 figures, will net the government $15,000 to $20,000 in return, he said. This was about the only reference the agriculture minister made to attacks on him by the Liberals.

Ralph J. Locke, president of the Campbellford PC Association, was chairman of the meeting.

JUST INFORMAL TALK

Mr. Goodfellow explained some of the things his government had accomplished in a n informal talk to the He outlined the population growth in the province from four million to six million in the past decade and said 30 percent of all New Canadians settled in Ontario. He spoke of the advances made in the field of electrical power and said Ontario now had exhausting its potential supply of energy from water power and said the government was turning to gas, oil and nuclear sources, education grants, hospitalization, old age assistance and allowances to disabled persons. He said grants to municipalities had increased from $190,000 15 years ago to $2,401,000 today.

Ben Thompson, MP for Northumberland, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Helen McKenzie, former reeve of Beaverton, Ontario, and past president of the Women's PC Association of Ontario.

Mrs. McKenzie spoke of the increased grants to municipalities, and mentioned that the government of which Mr. Goodfellow was a member, founded the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity and that party as a result of this, the tourist industry was the fifth most lucrative industry in the province.

MANAGER HEARD

Wesley Downs, campaign manager for Mr. Goodfellow, and president of the Northumberland PC Association, spoke briefly, urging those present not to be complacent. Scotty Broughton of Brighton also spoke briefly, saying that there was no reason why Mr. Goodfellow's majority could not exceed the 4,700 he enjoyed last election.

Ladies of the Campbellford and Seymour PC Association served coffee and sandwiches to the guests. The garden party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pettey on the River Road.

Sunday School Lesson

Corrosion From Within

By ROY L. SMITH

Press reports of recent months have told a terrible story of the way the communist regime in China is breaking down the ancient virtues of the Chinese people, and completely remodel- their scheme of life. Peasants have been herded into communes, are being housed in great barracks, are forced to eat at giant mess halls, and disallowed the ownership of any private property of any sort. All privacy is being sacrificed.

Something just as serious, in its way, was happening to the Israelite nation at the time of this lesson, and the work of the prophet Elijah was dedicated to the preservation of the old way of life. Good religion, was in conflict with the new economics and sociology.

NEW LAND PHILOSOPHY

While wandering in the wilderness the Hebrews had come to the conviction that all land is the gift of God, and that it is therefore not to be merchandised.

When the people first settled in the Land of Promise, the land was divided up among them, each family being given its own parcel, and this heritage was never to depart from them. A man's "heritage" was the most precious and sacred thing he had. It was just a little like the modern man's citizenship.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 7: "A Prophet Denounces Corruption." 1 Kings 21:1 through 22:40.

Among the pagans there was no such land philosophy, and a pagan might buy or sell his farms without the slightest sense of wrongdoing. The invasion of Baal priests under the leadership of Jezebel, the pagan queen, was aimed at breaking down the ancient ideals of Israel, and was having that effect. Ahab, the king, was not attempting to defraud Naboth, the Jezreel landowner. As a matter of fact, he offered him a good proposition — from the standpoint of a pagan.

To Naboth the proposition was hateful because it meant the surrender of everything sacred. His patriotism, his religion, and his family loyalty were involved. And he stood on his ancient rights, as a good Hebrew.

SOMETHING HAPPENING

Let's stand and salute Naboth. He was turning down a good proposition in the name of an ancient principle, with all about him his neighbors were taking advantage of the new situation and cashing in on it to their own advantage.

The marriage of Jezebel to Ahab had opened up the sort of Tyre, so that Israelite wheat could be shipped across the Mediterranean, and this had the effect of raising the price of wheat and the farmers of Israel were all prospering. It was easy to argue that the coming of the pagan priests was the cause of all this prosperity.

A terrible corrosion was going on within the soul of Israel, with which morals, economics, religion and ancient ethics were involved. Under the circumstances it was easy to paste the label of conservatism on Naboth. There may even have been those who called him a reactionary. But to the doughty old farmer, it was nothing more than standing by his convictions at the cost of his land.

There is, perhaps, a word that should be offered in behalf of Ahab, the king. He was not trying to rob a faithful subject. According to his ethics of Baal his proposition was eminently fair and just. But it was an assault on an ancient convention, and an ancestral sanctity. And in the face of a solid citizen's revolt, Ahab's power could not speak above a whisper.

It has been said many times that "money talks," but there come those rare and glorious moments in life when it cannot make itself heard, because duty and honor talk so much more convincingly.

This is to say that the strength of a nation, or of an individual, consists of the convictions by which it lives. The greatest wealth of any people does not reside in the minerals of their mountains, or the fertility of their soils. Their sure defense is in the stability of their souls.

Anything that undermines the soul of a nation is a more terrible enemy than the bomb that may destroy its cities or devastate its fields. It has been the history of every civilization that has toppled to the earth, that it has been destroyed by enemies within before it has been overcome by enemies from without.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip Relax at Windsor Castle

ROYAL WALK — The Queen holds Prince Charles' hand and Prince Philip Princess Anne's as the Royal Family walk across the east terrace of Windsor Castle. Photographer Gilbert A. READY FOR ROYALTY — Gilbert A. G. Milne Says Photographing Job at Windsor Castle Was Toughest One of His Career

TORONTO (CP) — Gib Milne's special coat would have come in handy at Windsor Castle May 2.

As a photographer he was often bothered by lack of pockets for equipment. He designed a coat with a multitude of pockets inside and out just for his own use.

But he had it made in a light color—and dark dress was suggested for the four Canadian photographers taking informal pictures of the Royal Family in advance of the Royal Tour starting June 18.

So Gilbert A. Milne, 44, of Toronto, wore a dark suit when he took the pictures on assignment for The Canadian Press. The black and white pictures are for use June 5 and his color shots for June 12.

HARD ON NERVES

Gib says he is pleased with the results, but that the job was tougher on his nerves than any previous assignment. And that includes taking pictures as a navy lieutenant of the Normandy and southern France invasions during the Second World War.

The nerve-racking part was not the 45-minute picture-taking session but the worry beforehand.

Even with the best of preparations, dreams sometimes go wrong. Gib started by having his cameras overhauled twice by technicians in Toronto. All told he had four cameras with him.

He packed a new electronic flash as a guarantee his old one wouldn't quit. The new one worked fine—but refused to fire the first time he tried it after leaving the castle.

Gib recalls his introduction to the Queen and Prince Philip.

NERVOUS TO MEET

"A feeling of warmth swept over me, and she looked at me as if she knew me. She put us all at ease.

"Philip was a big help. He has a good knowledge of photography and suggested several good shots long spoils as he walked around the castle grounds.

"Quite often he would ask us if a pose was correct. All in all he helped settle us down a bit with his informality."

Once, as Gib stepped backward while sighting his camera, he collided with Philip. He apologized and the Prince and the rest of the Royal Family laughed.

"That reflected the general mood of things. It just couldn't have been better.

"The Queen and Philip chatted as we worked and as we took our pictures. When it was all over I had the impression they enjoyed it as much as we."

CALLED FOR CHILDREN

When it was time for Prince Charles and Princess Anne to join their parents, Gib says, "Philip called them—it was more of a lusty shout."

"And when they didn't show up right away the Queen hustled off to find out why.

"I don't think I have ever seen better co - operation anywhere."

Of the children, he says: "Those kids are about the best-behaved youngsters I ever came across."

Gib's trouble with his lack of pockets came through his use of paper packages on the edge of the film in which the film is separated by pieces of black paper. The paper is pulled out and discarded as each sheet of film is exposed.

"I couldn't toss the paper on the ground and my few pockets where already jammed. As a result I had to leave the flaps of paper dangling on the edge of the film pack. With four or five sheets of the stuff flapping in the breeze it soon became difficult to find the next sheet of film. My special coat would have had plenty of pockets to handle the extra paper."

DELIVERED 1951 TOUR

It was not the first experience with royalty for Milne. When the then Princess Elizabeth, toured Canada with Philip in 1951, Gib covered the tour for the Toronto Star.

He received his first camera as a small boy from his father, Charles G. Milne, then a portrait photographer in Sarnia. Later in Alta., where Gib was born.

Within he was 18 his father and Sir Ellsworth Flavelle, an enthusiastic amateur photographer, were backing Gib's studies in Toronto where he was joined by his brother John, now also a Toronto commercial photographer.

He was also the first photographer to develop and back out with his photos of the invasion of southern France Aug. 15, 1944.

After the war he returned to Toronto and rebuilt the photographic business he had left. He now is president of Gilbert A. Milne and Company Limited.

Innocent Little Golf Ball Helpless Butt of Arguments

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Pity the poor golf ball.

It not only takes a constant whacking. It is shot out of canons. It is measured like Marilyn Monroe. And now it becomes the helpless butt of controversies on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean.

In London, Henry Cotton, Britain's old master, says the British should discard their small ball and adopt the American-sized ball.

In New York, the U.S. Golf Association issues a three-page directive to member clubs asking that they disregard claims of some manufacturers that their brand ball travel 15 to 20 yards further.

The balls are tested indoors and outdoors by special driving machines, the USGA says, and they all go the same distance, no matter what the make.

COULD BREAK LAW

If they say farther than a specified distance they're against the law—and law, that is.

The USGA said clubs should prohibit balls which do not meet USGA specifications as an unsportsmanlike and a threat to the integrity of the game.

The ball's size has British golf authorities in a stew. Cotton says the British should adopt the American ball — which is 1.68 inches in diameter compared with Britain's 1.62 pellet — because it demands "greater accuracy" in hitting." Both weigh 1.62 ounces.

This stunned Lord Brabazon of Tara, outspoken First World War hero and former Churchill minister who is the senior statesman on golf's rules for the famed Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews, ruling body of British golf.

"I cannot follow how a ball which demands greater accuracy in hitting is going to be an advantage," he bumbled said. "If there is anything in the Cotton theory I will switch to the heavier ball which measure has not lead their services to a sport which is supposed to be so evil and dangerous," said Brabazon.

Cotton stated at the boxing fatality rate in Britain, The Lancet declared: "94 deaths, including 22 amateurs, in four years is a prohibitive price to pay for a sport which makes the brain and eye legitimate — in fact, main—targets."

"Why can't you get up to the cottage and simply play a little poker the way other men do?"

Medical Mag Takes Swing At Boxing

LONDON (Reuters)—A medical magazine took a hefty swing at boxing Thursday, calling it "an unethical, brutal and unscientific abolition." Boxing officers promptly hit back.

The cancer, a national medical weekly, pointed an accusing finger at the "spectacle of the "punch-drunk" fighter in arguing that boxing causes widespread brain injuries.

Noting a few boxers suffered fatal cerebral damage in the ring, The Lancet said "the natural conclusion is that a sport causes material brain injury in many more."

But Teddy Waltham, general secretary of the board that supervises British boxing, said each year improved boxing control groups like its own doctors who has made special studies of the sport's medical aspects.

"Surely, if boxing was such a bad thing, these very eminent medical men would not lend their services to a sport which is supposed to be so evil and dangerous," said Waltham.

Derby Richest, Also Roughest And Toughest

EPSOM, England (AP)—The 180th running of the Epsom Derby not only was the richest ever, Thursday it was called the roughest and toughest.

Parthia, England's fastest racehorse, woke up Wednesday for just two minutes and 36 seconds to romp home and win a record $101,008 for owner Sir Humphrey de Trafford.

But in the unsaddling enclosure after the 1½-mile turf classic, French banker Baron Guy de Rothschild, 11-to-2 favorite, Shantung, came in third, complained:

"My horse would have won by 100 yards, but he was crashed into. It was terrible thing to happen. Shantung was almost knocked over.

"He took a terrific bump after only about three furlongs. He had to drop back to last and he was a good 100 yards behind the leaders when they came into the home-stretch.

"He would have won easily if it hadn't been for that bump."

Jockey Fred Palmer called his mount the "unluckiest Derby favorite ever".

Englehard Jr Palmer: "After about half a mile I was following Princilion, when a horse on the outside of him, Pindaric, Princilion was brought to his knees. Shantung ran into one of Princilion's hind legs and Shantung's forelegs were badly cut."

Rough Riders Will Produce 'Exciting Offence' - - Clair

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair said Thursday that Ottawa Rough Riders will have "the most exciting offence that we have ever had" for the coming Big Four football season.

Back in Ottawa after months of hunting new talent in the United States collegiate, Clair said that, guaranteed, four of his picks, obtained in a trade with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western conference, holds the key to the team's offence.

"If Tripucka can do the job I know he can do, then we can switch Russ Jackson to halfback to run the roll-out and option plays," Clair said.

Jackson is the rookie quarterback from Hamilton who stood the league on its ear his last season and became a star almost overnight.

JACKSON PASSING WELL

Clair is high on Tripucka's passing and ball-handling ability and said Jackson is coming along as a "pretty good passer."

The pair, if it works, would form a potent quarter. Don Allard from Boston College fred for heavy duty as a running halfback, one of his strong points, which accounted him on offence to break in slowly.

One weakness on his proposed lineup, Clair said, is in good Canadian defensive halves.

"We'll have to develop them over the next two or three years," he said. But a couple of rookies from Western Ont. Ed Vernes and Tom Newton—may help there. Another Western recruit is tackle Frank Hernadek.

TRYOUT SCHOOL

He plans a tryout school for young Canadians about June 20. Training camp will start about July 8.

Clair said he plans to use a lot of double-platoon work this year since last year. His beachfirst imports—apart from returning players Dave Thelen and Gerry Nesbitt — include Bobby Cravens from Kentucky, Jerry Clark from Ohio State and Dick Bowen from Pittsburgh.

Hall Bobby Judd and end Buddy Payne from last year's club are not returning, but Clair says there's linemen—except Ken Vargo traded to Saskatchewan—are. A couple more new linemen are yet to be announced.

At end, Clark is returning and new imports include Bob Borah from Houston, Jim Hanlan, former Toronto Argonaut from California, and Bob Pepe from North Carolina State.

Champ Doubts If He Will Reach Peak

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson isn't at his peak. In fact, he doesn't think he'll ever reach his peak.

"I'm always learning," the heavyweight champion said at a press conference Thursday. He had just been presented a golden crown, a gift of his manager, Cus D'Amato, and friends.

"I don't feel good after the fight with Brian London," Patterson said. "This was a year who wasn't rated. A bum, they said. I haven't been anyone calling him a bum. Johnson a bum, Google."

There was an undercurrent of resentment in the champion's remarks—resentment against interviews that all the men he fought were unworthy challengers.

The champion, who will meet Johnson at Yankee Stadium in a title defence June 25, made a confusing statement concerning his bout with London. He knocked out the limiers-jawed Briton May 1 in the 11th round.

"I felt personally I was sharp," he said, "but I had to say I wasn't."

'The Tingler' Will Not Win Plaudits From the Longhairs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The most unlikely prospect to be free of the shock movies is debonair Vincent Price.

Yes, the same Price who once played Prince Albert to Helen Hayes' Victoria Regina; the villain for culture who has displayed his art knowledge on TV quiz shows, who owns one of Hollywood's finest collections of paintings.

His current movie is The Tingler, which is guaranteed to win plaudits from the longhairs critics.

Price couldn't care less.

"Sometimes I think most stars make movies to impress their friends with an artistic triumph," he said. "I'd rather be in pictures that make money."

IMPRESSIVE RECORD

His record has been impressive. He started in the chillers a few years ago with House of Wax, the 3-D epic which he reported made $9,000,000 for Warner Brothers.

Last year he swatted out The Fly—"the only picture besides Peyton Place that made money for 20th Century-Fox in 1958." Then came The House on Haunted Hill, which now is cracking up fantastic grosses. He just finished The Bat, a reworking of an old haze thriller. How The Tingler, whatever that is.

"It's the best gimmick for a horror picture yet," Price explained. "The monster is actually in all of us; it's the inner fear that can actually scare us to death if not given some release."

William Castle, who also directed and produced Haunted Hill, has another theatre gimmick for The Tingler but he's keeping it secret. The other film had Price tossing a victim into a vat of acid. Then the skeleton emerged and floated over the audience by means of a wired prop.

"Delightful!" Price said with relish. "Audiences screamed everywhere."

Young hurled a seven-inning two-hitter for Mead-Sportsmen, striking out ten batters and walking four. He also led his club's attack with a triple and a single.

Ken McLaren started and lost for the Juveniles, going 5 1-3 innings. He gave up six hits, whiffed two and walked three. Lorne Fitzpatrick did not give up a hit in relief while fanning two, walking one.

Al Thompson with a brace of doubles and Young were best at the plate for the winners. Dan Belnap and Al Gray hit singles.

Stu Muirhead smashed a two-run homer for Robcats in the sixth frame. The only hit was a single by Dick Capp.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The majority of team managers at the Eastern Ontario senior hockey league battle of words the other night blamed themselves and their ilk for the most of the sorry plight in which the circuit has found itself.

Charges were hurled that players were pricing managers and arenas out of business, with Kingston and Belleville the chief targets for the verbal missiles.

Kingston's reported operational cost of $70,000 ($83,000 gross; $60,000 net and seasonal deficit of $10,000) brought pointed barbs from several sources. It's non-payment of pool percentages amounting to some $3,400 drew sharp criticism from various quarters.

Whitby's Wren Blair fired the first salvo. "Kingston says it took in some $55,000 at the box office outside of the playoffs. Where has the money gone? I can tell you. It went into salaries, and that means there is something wrong in Kingston. Why don't they pay the pool deficit?"

Kingston's Steve Aney: "We haven't got the money."

Blair claimed the Whitby Dunlops won the world, championship on a weekly payroll of $1,450. If the players did not want to play for that, they stayed home. If one wouldn't accept the terms, another would.

He said the whole situation was getting out of line. "We come to meetings like this and climb down one another's throats while the players are making damned fools out of us. We should operate like chain stores. They know what they pay their help. Why shouldn't we?"

Cornwall's Ray Miron wanted to know why team managers could not tell the truth when they come to meetings. "We sit around a table like this one and say one thing, then go out and do the opposite. Something is wrong. We have to get a common denominator to work on."

Addressing the Kingston delegate, George Dudley, OHA treasurer, said: "We are told you had money to pay for supplies and other things. It is stated you started the season with an $8,000 deficit. Did you pay this? Otherwise where did the money go? Business men should operate hockey clubs like they operate their businesses."

Bus Gagnon, who was present with the Kingston delegation, said the club had no program rights, but had received some help from the Booster Club.

"Kingston," said Mr. Dudley, "sat down and made an agreement (pool) and they should live up to it."

Gagnon: "We are."

Dudley: "Here it is June. When are you going to do it? We're breaking it to you here and not going to be honest and fair with one another you cannot operate a successful hockey league."

Gagnon and Blair tangled verbally at this point.

Gagnon said: "Let's forget it. Our payroll is not out of line."

Blair: "I say it is."

Pollock: "Where did the money go, then?"

Blair: "If the money did not go to the players and sticks, etc., where did it go. I want to know the answer."

Gagnon: "Leave Kingston alone.' It is not your problem, Blair. If Kingston does not have a hockey team, it is none of your business."

And so on into the night.

Blair said the league should be given a report on the Belleville situation, but understood this was impossible until certain investigations had been completed.

"However," he said, "what the Belleville council or commission did or is going to do is no immediate concern of this league. We want to know if the city will be represented by a team this year."

This led, after discussion, to the deadline for a five-team league, or dissolution, set at June 20 and later extended, at Belleville's request, to July 7.

WRESTLING

There is no truth in the rumor Yukon Eric will wear "Chris Drive-In" on the rear exposure of his ring blue jeans against the Great Bolo tonight. The Yuke may be fortified with a couple of Chris' special hot-dogs — and that should help. However, Eric won't be in any amiable mood for he hasn't forgotten the treatment the Bolo gave him their last time out here. Should be quite a clambake.

Incidentally, Pat Flanagan has to go stravelling and won't be here tonight. His place will be taken by handsome Mike Valentino against roughie Karl Kulaski. The popular Wally Sieber will toss his weight against newcomer Howard Martin.

Chisox Oust Tribe; Cepeda Steals Mays' Thunder

Pluck Orioles for 6-5 Win With Homer in 17th Inning; Giant Star Gets Seven RBI's

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Say, look at Orlando Cepeda muscling in on Willie Mays' market!

The job of leading San Francisco in homer and runs batted in has usually been Mays' responsibility. Now the big first baseman has left Mays behind in home runs and RBIs—and it all began after he was benched with a .267 average.

Since getting back into the starting lineup May 18, Cepeda has been hitting in only three of 18 games, smacking six homers, six doubles and two triples and driving in 23 runs.

The 21-year-old Puerto Rican went all out Thursday, driving in seven runs, five with his 11th and 12th homers, and powering the second-place Giants from behind for an 11-5 victory over Milwaukee that cut the Braves' National League lead to 2½ games once again.

HURDETTE SET DOWN

Both homers — the second a whale of a wallop estimated up to 500 feet—came off Lew Burdette, the lanky righthander who hadn't lost to the Giants in five years.

Third - place Pittsburgh moved within 3½ games of the top by rapping St. Louis 9-3. Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia 3-2 in 10 innings.

Cepeda, now batting .330 to Willie's .321, was the whole batting Mays' home run total 12-9 and RBI count 43-41. His two-run homer in the fourth started the Giants' comeback after home runs by Del Crandall and Wes Covington had given the Braves a 5-1 edge.

Gordon Jones (3-2) worked one inning of relief for the victory.

PIRATE SWEEP

A two-run triple by Bill Mazeroski clinched a three-game sweep for the Pirates as they scored four in the third inning against Chris Brogio (4-4), Ron Kline (4-3) was the winner.

The Reds scored three runs in the first against southpaw Danny McDevitt (3-5), then put it away with a 4-0 lead on doubles by Johnny Temple and Vada Pinson in the second. Joe Nuxhall (3-3) finished with an eight-hitter.

A one-out triple by George Altman and Sammy Taylor's sacrifice fly set up the Cubs' score against Gene Conley (2-3), who allowed only five hits. The Cubs were shut out on one hit until Tyrone homered in his sixth. Walt Moryn added an inside-the-park homer in the eighth for a 2-2 tie. Don Elston (4-1) won it with 3 1-3 innings of hitless relief.

Kingston Claims

Pool Is League Affair Only, No Business of Dudley, OHA

KINGSTON (CP) — Officials of Kingston Merchants of the Ontario Hockey Association's Eastern senior division say other teams in the series are "panic-stricken" because Kingston has not met its pool assessment.

The executive issued a statement following charges by George Dudley, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association secretary-manager, that the team had "failed to live up to its obligations" by not paying its share of league costs.

The Kingston statement said revenue has proved the other teams in the Eastern OHA series "are only interested in Kingston's donations to the pool" rather than the league operation.

NO RESSIDITTON

"We feel that the Eastern Ontario Senior A pool doesn't come under the jurisdiction of the CAHA or the OHA," the statement said. "It is a local group matter and as such doesn't concern Dudley either as a CAHA official or a private citizen.

"Before commenting, he should have acquainted himself with all the particulars of the pool, especially as far as Kingston is concerned. Kingston has never agreed to participate in the pool and last fall the minutes included a recorded vote opposing it.

"In the last seven years, Kingston has put in $25,000 to $30,000 more than it has taken out. This is the first year that a fuss has been made . . . by coincidence it is the first year that Kingston couldn't pay its share."

Dudley had said hockey should be "run in a business-like way" and questioned why Kingston used its pool money to "pay other bills."

The directors' statement said: "We paid our bills, as Dudley stated, starting with last season's deficit. What would he have us do? Would it be business-like to forget last year's deficit?"

The statement said "the crux of the pool problem and our problem is that we paid rink rental of $25,000 and Cornwall and Hull $5,000 each. It's as simple as that."

At a recent group meeting, Kingston reported a deficit of $10,000 plus its pool share of $3,400. Cornwall declared a $13,000 loss and Whitby and Hull said their operation had been at a profit.

Littler Leads Par-Busters In Eastern Open

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., led a gang of par-busters making the new Pine Ridge golf course look easy Thursday by taking only 65 strokes in the first round of the Eastern Open.

Littler's record was seven strokes under the par set for the 6,820-yard layout opened only two months ago.

The grass growth was so new and irregular that the 72-hole tournament will be played under winter rules.

Littler, a three - time winner this year, held only a one-stroke edge after the first 18 holes. Ed (Porky) Oliver of Denver and Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., steamed right in behind him with 66 strokes.

Jerry Magee of Toronto put together rounds of 37 and 38 for a 75.

Leafs Drop Seven in Row; Royals Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Want to know why the Buffalo Bisons probably will stay at the top of the International League standings? Frank Herrera.

The 25-year-old first baseman has been on a hitting tear the past eight games that has enabled the Bisons to keep pace with the equally torrid Columbus Jets, with whom they share the league lead.

Buffalo won its second shutout in a row from Havana, 7-0, Thursday night with Herrera driving in six runs with a pair of homers. The Jets defeated the Montreal Royals, 6-3 for their 14th victory in 18 games, and took their fifth straight series.

Rochester handed Miami its 14th loss in 18 games, 4-3 and Richmond handed Toronto its seventh straight loss, 7-6.

BATS 19 FOR 36

Buffalo, has had six wins in the last eight games largely due to Herrera. He has gone 19-for-36 at the plate, including four homers, two triples, a double and 13 RBIs. One of the homers was a grand slam.

The Santiago, Cuba native is sixth in league batting with a .323 average, and second in runs batted in with 45. Montreal's Clyde Parris leads both departments with a .324 batting average and with 46 RBIs.

In 49 games Herrera has 62 hits, 29 for extra bases, including 15 doubles, two triples and 15 homers.

It was his third pair of homers this season for one game. The others came against Columbus and Toronto.

Chris Short won his fourth in five decisions for the Bisons, giving only five hits. Vince Amoros (7-3) lost.

BATS IN THREE

Kenny Hamline banged out a double, triple and home run for three Columbus RBI as Paul Giel (1-0) pitched his first complete game for the Jets. Tom Burgess also homered off loser Tom Lasorda (5-2) while Mike Gollat had a double.

Rochester overcame a 3-0, first inning Miami lead, with three in the fourth and wrapped it up against loser Wes Stock (0-1) with one in the fifth.

George Wilson's single off Stock, a double by Gene Oliver off reliever Art Ray and Luke Easter's sacrifice fly got the clincher for the Red Wings and winner Marshall Bridges (3-3).

Jack Reed's two-run triple in the seventh inning spared a four run outburst for Richmond that clinched Bill Short's sixth victory in seven decisions. The Vees were behind 5-3 at the start of the inning when three straight singles produced one run, Reed's triple scored two more and Dick Sanders' fly scored Reed.

Ed Blake lost his sixth without having yet won for Toronto, with Pat Scantlebury taking over in the seventh. Johnny James matched the last two innings for Richmond.

MAY LEADS WAY

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (Reuter) — Led by a sparkling century by captain Peter May, England recovered from an early collapse to score 258 for six wickets on the opening day of the first cricket test against India here Thursday. England had stumbled to 60 for three until May moved the game with a brilliant-hit 101—his first century against the Indians.

Trenton Clips 5-Game Loss String With 4-3 Victory Over Point Anne

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Guy Austin's seventh-inning homer and sharp clutch hurling by Howard Cole and Billy Mitts Garrotta to their first win in six starts in The Bellamine and District softball league last night a tight 4-3 decision over the Point Anne Cementmen.

Austin's home run snapped a 3-3 deadlock and Cole, who had been strong throughout bore down even more in the eighth and ninth to preserve the win.

The long clout into the left-field trees by Austin was the last hit in his last nine trips to the plate.

Cole scattered eight hits over the route and was at his best with men on base. He struck out four, three in the last two frames, while walking five. His best effort was probably in the eighth when Soule singled to represent the tying run. Cole got Bunkerd on a ground ball, threw three straight balls to Carkner and then fanned him with as many consecutive strikes.

At Carkner, who shutout the same club Wednesday night, went back to the mound last night when Pat Maracle was late arriving in Trenton. Carkner tossed good ball, giving up nine hits, but it was not good enough to stop the determined Trenton squad. Carkner whiffed two and passed another pair.

Trenton jumped into a 3-0 first-inning lead. Roger Drake dropped a bunt single to start it. Alexander was credited with a hit on his spinning ball in front of the plate and Howard Cole drove in his first run with a single to centre. Billy Mitts' base knock plated two more to make it 3-0

The Rooters got one in the second, when Batchelor tripled and Soule doubled. Both were goos to right which fell in front of pitcher Maroney playing field. They cut the lead to 3-2 in the fifth on the same combination of hits. Gary Goyer doubled down the line and Doug Hull slammed a long triple to left.

The visitors tied it briefly in the top of the seventh with Carkner's hit, an error, two walks and Kingston's force out finally getting one across, but Cole pulled out of the inning with two left on base.

LeRoy Wannamaker, Trenton's starting catcher, was ejected from the game by plate umpire Kelleher in the third frame. Wannamaker turned to question a ball called against Dave Jones. Kelleher said Wannamaker swore at him and promptly tossed him out of the park. It was some time before order was restored.

Make Figure Skating Harder

TOURS, France (AP)—Figure skaters competing in international meets will find the skating a little harder from now on.

The International Skating Union—the rules-setting body for skating competition—decided at a meeting Thursday to limit jumps and pirouettes in the required or school figure part of figure skating competition.

Figure skaters are judged on two categories—the required skating manoeuvres and free skating in which the skater is allowed to improvise his own performance.

The transfer means skaters will have to be more polished to gain scores they have in the past.

Burgess Set New Mark for Pinch Homers

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League Thursday confirmed that Pittsburgh catcher Smoky Burgess' pinch hit homer last Sunday set a new major league mark.

It was his 10th and topped the previous mark of nine pinch homers held by four men — Fred Williams and Bobby Hofman, both of National Leaguers; Guz Zernial of the American League and Ron Northey, who played in both leagues.

Burgess's 10th pinch homer came in the second game of a doubleheader against Cincinnati.

May Televise 21 Grid Games

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC hopes to televise 21 of the 28 football games in the Big Four league this fall.

However, CBC vice - president E. L. Bushnell was non-committal Thursday in the Commons Broadcasting Committee, to an MP's suggestion that if the CBC had waited it might have got broadcast rights for the games for less than the reported $312,000.

Durelle Wears Rocky's Trunks In Training

MONCTON, N. B. (CP)—Canadian light - heavyweight champion Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., will be wearing the trunks of retired undefeated heavyweight king Rocky Marciano during training here for his world title bout with Archie Moore.

The trunks, which Marciano wore when he won the world title from Jersey Joe Walcott in 1952, were presented to Durelle Thursday by his United States trainer, Charlie Goldman.

"I hope the trunks will give Yvon incentive," Goldman said. "It will give him something to think of that a champion named Marciano, who came up the hard way like Durelle, is wealthy and well off today. Goldman also trained Marciano.

Durelle was happy about having Goldman s supervise his training.

"I'm going to listen. I know that Goldman can teach me some important things. It's almost like starting all over again," said the 14-year ring veteran as they began a five-week training grind.

something more than offsetting rises in resources being exploited by forest and mining industries.

VISITS SOUTHWEST

Mr. Wintermeyer headed into the southwest corner of the province with stops at Watford and Windsor.

The Liberal leader told 125 persons at the Watford meeting that the Frost government's policy on water pollution is causing much of the larger communities. He said it offered only "token payments" which could use enough to pay for the line in a certain number of years.

A Liberal government would "set up a water-selling organization on the same basis as Ontario Hydro and make sure municipal communities were assured a supply.

A private department of marketing would assist farmers by helping to fully surplus product and extending loans towards the construction of storehouses for perishable foods. Limitations on direct loans to farmers would be raised.

LLEDOES SPECIAL AID

At Windsor he said that region, with its "mix" of big industry and small problem, would get special help. "Imagination and finance will dependable we are told what needs to be done to help the people of this area."

Mr. Wintermeyer criticized the government for failing to solve the border city unemployment situation. He told an audience of 250 at a community centre that Windsor should have been given loans to undertake job - making projects.

National CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell joined the campaign with visits to Welland, where he attended a meeting of party executive, and a rally in St. Catharines. He said CCF candidates should be elected "to fight against unemployment and unemployment to the fore in the legislature."

At Kirkland Lake, the first local Labor-Progressive (Communist) party rally in the June 11 provincial election campaign was cancelled when only 20 persons turned up. Len Michaud of Timmins, the party's candidate in Cochrane North, and Michaud, the party campaign manager and one Toronto speaker were the only ones in the hall.

Arthur Child, executive Conservative seeking re-election in Wentworth, said at Hamilton he has received many offers of support since a local group announced a switch to Liberal candidate Ray Edwards.

He said he was informed of the defection in advance last Saturday by Liberal friends who normally would not support his cause in the June 11 provincial election.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Saturday, June 6

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Much letter writing, clearing of files, making out reports, etc., can be done today efficiently, and you still have free time to be with good friends, kin for relaxation and laughter. P. M. stay at home and read or study.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Much application to real estate or any other holdings you may have will produce wonderful results today. Be practical to the nth degree. Install new appliances, give a coat of paint where needed, plant flowers, etc.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A day especially suited to your special desires and ambitions. Get out early in A. M. and bring your fine talents before the right people who can help you to advance. P. M. let sociability reign. Be dynamic and most friendly.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Work diligently and put your surroundings in the fine order which most pleases you. Later, get in touch with your closest friends for talks which will be mutually helpful. Be thoughtful and generous as purse allows.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure to contact personal friends or be closely allied with fellow workers if you wish to attain your cherished goals that much faster. Help them, too, in whatever way you can. Meet as many new people as possible.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Excellent day to attend to all civic matters or affairs with the public in general. Check to see if your credit is A-1, and take particular pains in your work. Work constructively and methodically.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — If you truly want to be big, it is imperative you step out of that soft jelly or pattern which is so easy. Many excellent opportunities are at hand. Make your plans, then follow through.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Fine day to get into the so-called Silence for a short time and permit fine intuitive hunches to come through. Follow the strongest. Also, get monetary affairs straightened out. P. M. be generous and gay. Have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Good day to know what your relative position is with any associate. Better still, go to some lovely place where there is atmosphere to talk matters over pleasantly. Come to meeting of mind and take quick action.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Work is best on the agenda now, clearing up debris, cleaning, painting, gardening, caring for pets — whatever is most important to do. P. M. make it a point to let fellow workers know you appreciate their efforts, alliance.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Put yourself in the capable hands of expert beauty or health operator and emerge your most charming self. Later, plan luncheon, dinner with charming companion or those you love best. Have a delightful time until late eve.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Stay at home now and put abode in most clean and charming condition that will be a delight to you and yours. Those fine hands can work wonders now. P. M. be sure to go out for relaxation and deserved frolic. Be gay.

If your child is born today it will have a most inventive bent to his or her nature and be ever actively engaged doing one thing or another. So, be sure you give as thorough an education as possible, particularly in manual as well as the fine arts. However, you must teach early to complete what is once commenced or you ruin what is a truly great potential here.

May Day Show Gives Visitors Chance to See China's Heads

By Walter L. Gordon

In April Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the recent Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects, visited China. He has written eleven articles and one will be published daily. Mr. Gordon gives a detailed summary of his observations.—The Editor.

(ARTICLE 3)

We arrived in Peking on April 27 after getting up at 5 a.m. and a long flight from Canton. The plane, a Russian Ilyushin 14, something like a DC 3, was a bit slow but serviceable and quite comfortable. In China they take no chances with their civil airlines and are said not to have had an accident since "Liberation", i.e., since the Communist Government came in power in 1949.

We were met at Peking airport by three officials of the China Council who, for the next three weeks, were to be our constant guides, counsellors and friends: Hsu Sheng-wu, Po Shu-sheng and Li Tseng-te, the latter a simply first rate interpreter with a wide vocabulary in English and well informed about most of the subjects that were of interest to us. Our visit to Peking was timed propitiously. The People's Congress was winding up its two week meeting and the celebrations for May Day, one of the few important holidays, in New China.

VISIT PEOPLE'S CONGRESS

We were invited to the closing session of the People's Congress. Our passes were scrutinized as we entered the building but apart from this there were no formalities and no police or guards in evidence. The whole atmosphere seemed relaxed and free and easy. When we arrived the delegates were wandering about talking to each other. One cheerful looking well proportioned man bowed to us in friendly fashion and we bowed back. It was Chen Yi, the Foreign Minister and a Vice-Premier.

After a short period, bells began ringing and the delegates and the 90 odd members of the President's group to take their seats. The members of the Presidium sat on a raised platform facing the delegates. The 1,200 delegates to the People's Congress and perhaps an equal number of delegates to the People's Consultative Assembly which met concurrently, were seated at small wooden desks on which there were a few papers and pots of tea. Behind the delegates sat another 200 or so officials and other personages including about 25 members of the diplomatic corps and perhaps 20 foreign visitors, including the four of us. We were fortunate to be included. We were a long way from the front of the hall but could pick out quite clearly Mao Tse-tung, the Chairman of the Chinese Communist Party and the undisputed leader of his country; Liu Shao-chi who, the previous day, had been elected Chairman of the People's Congress; Chou En-lai, the Premier, Madame Sun Yat-sen, a Vice-Premier who still looks remarkably young; and the Panchen Lama, among others.

The proceedings consisted of the reading and formal approval of a series of resolutions that had been debated and discussed during the previous two weeks and the election of the sixteen Vice-Premiers. The latter and the resolution insisting that Tibet is an integral part of China and that foreign interference will not be tolerated received the most applause.

SPECTACULAR PARADE

The May Day parade was a spectacular affair and wonderfully well organized. The marchers and performers are carefully chosen in some cases by their fellow workers and obviously they must receive considerable training before the show. It is considered a great honor to participate. The parade marches past the Tien-an Men (the Gate of Heavenly Peace), a long, high and most imposing looking structure which dominates People's Square and is the gateway to the Forbidden City. An open gallery runs the full length of the Tien-an Men about sixty feet above the ground. It was upon this that the nation's leaders assembled with Mao Tse-tung in the centre. We had excellent seats or rather standing room from just below and slightly to one side of the centre of the main gateway. From this vantage point, we had a clear view of the leaders just above and behind us and of the parade as it passed in front.

Mao Tse-tung, whose bust or photograph appears in every public building, in every meeting hall and, it seemed, in the majority of the individual living quarters we visited, is a bulky, strong looking man of 66. His followers believe he will be remembered as perhaps the greatest man in history, certainly the greatest in the history of China which, after all in their minds, is probably synonymous. He stood for 2½ hours reviewing the parade and at the end looked much less tired than we were. Reports that he is in failing health would seem to be exaggerated.

The march past was scheduled to take two hours and a half. It began sharply on the stroke of 10 a.m. and the last marcher passed the reviewing stand at 12.30 p.m. exactly, which is an indication of how well these people organize. The marchers included peasants with exhibits depicting cotton, wheat, pigs, sheep, etc; representatives of the national minorities, all of whom were very colorful: Tibetans, Mongolians, Moslems, people from Sinkiang, etc; factory workers from various plants and industries; athletes; students; dancers; and even some of whom were doing the giant swing on a horizontal bar time after time; football players; floats with ballet dancers; a women's army group; a few aviators; and one more dragon dancers; dragon boats; Chinese lions; the Peking opera; etc. Periodically they let off ballons to which were attached in some cases a big papier mache dragon or an enormous horse depicting "The Great Leap Forward" of 1958. Everyone seemed to be having fun.

FEW SOLDIERS IN SIGHT

There were a few traffic policemen and a few unarmed soldiers lining the route in front of the reviewing stand who stood at strict attention for more than three hours without moving. But only a few soldiers appeared among the marchers and there were no guns, tanks or aircraft. We asked about this and were told these could be seen in the parade to celebrate China's National Day next October 1st which will be the tenth anniversary of "Liberation".

But that the Armed Forces are not featured on May Day which is the traditional workers' holiday and celebrated as such, is not surprising to us, therefore, on returning home to read the following paragraph in an account of the May Day parade which appeared in one of the weekly news magazines that is so widely circulated throughout the Western World:

"But lacking the 'spontaneous' revelries this May Day in Peking, came squadrons of Russian tanks and the 'People's Liberation Army'. Pork-fatted, MIG-17s dipped overhead, while the infantry, 110 abreast, marched in grim dedication."

Undoubtedly the Chinese do have Russian tanks and planes but they did not take part in the parade in Peking on May 1, 1959. We happened to be there.

In the evening we went back to the Tien-an Men to watch the dancing in the square and to attend a party for some 200 foreign guests. We were seated at a table loaded with fruits, candies and the inevitable tea. Shortly afterwards, many of the Government leaders arrived and moved about shaking hands with all the guests, ourselves included, Liu Shao-chi, the new chairman of the People's Congress, is about 5' 10" in height, slender in build with rather long gray hair which is unusual in China. He has a somewhat introspective intellectual look about him and quite a charming manner.

Chou En-lai, the Premier, is slight in build, perhaps an inch shorter than Liu and, at 60, a few years younger. He is said to work long hours and to need very little sleep. He has a somewhat quizzical expression and I should imagine it would be very difficult to read his thoughts. Behind this there seemed to lurk humor, slightly sceptical or cynical perhaps, sardonic was the word Edgar Faure used to describe it in his book, "The Serpent and the Tortoise," but certainly humor. Chen Yi was with Chou and after them came a number of the other senior members of the Government including Chu Teh, a vigorous looking man now in his seventies who was commander-in-chief of the Chinese Red armies and is the newly-elected chairman of the standing committee of the People's Congress, and Peng Chen, the Mayor of Peking, a fine looking, upright youngish man, impressive in appearance who, some people believe, may rise to the very top in time. These men went about greeting people in a thoroughly relaxed and pleasant fashion. There was not a guard or soldier anywhere in which added to the easy atmosphere.

HUGE CROWD

There must have been at least 500,000 people on the main street and in People's Square that evening. And the excitement and the dancing in the streets went on until long after midnight. But there was no drinking and everyone seemed well behaved. Altogether it was a quite a day. I quote from a note I made in my diary at the end of it: "We were greatly impressed by (a) the orderliness and good humor of the crowd, (b) the relaxed and friendly attitude of the leading Government people, (c) the wonderful organization, (d) the excellence of the whole affair — wonderful costumes, colors, floats, etc., (e) the obvious enthusiasm and confidence of the crowd and of the leading personalities, (f) their friendly relaxed relationships with one another. These are happy, confident, sophisticated, pleasant people who know what they have accomplished and where they are going. They are not afraid of the strength of one another — and they certainly seem to be."

Win With Wintermeyer Pin Is Passport Through States

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A campaign button was used as a passport and shoots of political greats were raised Friday night as Ontario's party leaders campaigned for the provincial election less than a week away.

Premier Frost, leader of the Progressive Conservatives, drove from Toronto to London, then on to Hamilton and back to Toronto.

John Wintermeyer drove through Sarnia, Rodney, Chatham and Wallaceburg, campaigning hard for the Liberal cause.

Donald MacDonald, head of the CCF, was in Haileybury, Cobalt and New Liskeard.

Mr. Wintermeyer, driving to Sarnia from Windsor via the short route through the United States, found himself at the border with his identification locked in the trunk of his car.

The border guard compared his picture on the "win with Wintermeyer" button with the face of the man in the car and waved the vehicle through.

Premier Frost, speaking in shirtsleeves to about 500 persons in 85 - degree temperature, reached back into history to flay his opponents in the June 11 election campaign.

Speaking in Hamilton, he said it was the government which spearheaded the St. Lawrence Seaway and reminded Opposition Leader Wintermeyer that Mitchell Hepburn opposed the project when he was Liberal premier in 1928.

"The seaway would have cost $73,500,000 in 1928 compared with its eventual $360,000,000 cost.

Turning to the CCF, the premier said:

"We have another leader who has used all of his energies to say things about me, to say that I lead a one-man government, that it is a dictatorship, that the political morality of John A. Macdonald and William Lyon Mackenzie King was low and that my political morality is no better.

"I am sure history will record that in my day and time I have contributed to the maintenance of high standards of political life and morality in this province.

"I am glad to be compared to Macdonald and King. I will be satisfied if I maintain their standards."

In Rodney, in the heart of Ontario's tobacco country, Mr. Wintermeyer drew more than 600 persons, largest crowd of his campaign to date, in the agricultural hall.

He intimated that if a Liberal government is elected, it will pass legislation to permit flue-cured tobacco growers to control the acreage they plant and thus help stabilize prices. At present, his boards responsible for marketing burley tobacco are allowed to limit the acreage planted.

He spoke of the Liberal plan to set up a separate government department dealing with tobacco to aid in the sale of surplus produce" and of loans up to 80 per cent of the value of their farms which would be available to farmers wanting to buy machinery to construct new buildings.

Mr. Wintermeyer said Progres-

Kingston Doctor Says Heart Tumor Hard to Find, Remove

MONTREAL (CP)—The heart tumor, a medical enigma, is difficult to diagnose and remove. Like cancer, its origin is unknown.

But the condition is rare, heart specialists at the Canadian Heart Association's annual meeting here were told Friday.

Three medical scientists described their experiences with heart tumors, which may develop in any part of the body and completely a whole chamber of the heart.

Dr. R. B. Lyon of Kingston, said tumors, usually of a type called myxomas, form in diagnostic problem." They are often found accidentally as a part of a well-developed, reaching diameters of more than five inches, he said.

"Many of them obstruct the blood flow causing heart and lung block openings in the heart."

Dr. Lynn said he has treated eight cases of tumors found in the atria, upper chambers of the heart. He showed a film of an operation he conducted for removal of a large tumor.

Dr. H. E. Bedford of Toronto said most cases of heart tumors are found during autopsy.

Dr. Lucien Campeau of the Montreal Institute of Cardiology said the main problem in treating heart tumor surgery is the difficulty in removing all the tumor. Its roots may still be imbedded in the heart wall after an operation. He said it will then quickly grow again.

Soviet scientific paper Dr. Yves Desrochers of the Montreal institute described a possible method of diagnosing coronary heart disease as early as 15 years before a person feels its symptoms.

Persons with a heart condition may be unable to walk until they progressed to the stage where they feel the effects, he said.

Dr. Desrochers has spent the last five years examining 4,000 electrocardiograms in search of

Adenauer Retires to His Home on Rhine To Weather Tempest Raised by His Action

BONN (CP)—Konrad Adenauer himself the indispensable man retired to the privacy of his Rhine Valley home today to sleep out the tempest of adverse criticism rising from his turnabout decision to remain on as West German chancellor.

The West German press led the critical onslaught but attacks on the decision came from foreign newspapers as well. And some of them long have been supporters of the 83 - year - old leader.

Die Welt, the influential Hamburg paper, termed the day of Adenauer's decision "a black day."

The Tokyo Shimbun, a pro-Western paper, said Adenauer now has emerged as "a powerful dictator" to be likened to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Communist China's Chou En-lai.

"WANTS TO BE TOUGH"

In Britain, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the underlying reason for Adenauer's determination to hang on to office "is that he wants to oppose Britain's policy to Russia." The paper said Britain is willing to reach a compromise with Moscow but Adenauer "wants to be tough."

Rarely has Adenauer been subjected to such stinging criticism from the Western world's press.

But he showed no indication of budging from his decision to stay as chancellor and keep a firm hand on West German policy instead of moving up to the largely ceremonial job of president—an office he had intended he would seek.

Adenauer told the party faithful in effect that he considers his term of leadership.

Bomarc Missile Successful in Drone Attack

EGLIN AFB, Fla. (AP) — A ground-launched Bomarc missile and an air-launched Genie rocket successfully attacked two jet drones Friday after being fired at the same time by a supersonic chancellor.

The high - speed drones were attacked over the Gulf of Mexico about 110 miles from Eglin.

The IM-99A Bomarc made a direct hit on one of the pilotless planes and knocked it from the sky.

The MB-1 Genie, fired from a manned F-101B Voodoo, scored a glancing blow on the other drone.

The air force pronounced the project "100 percent successful."

The flirings were controlled by the SAGE (semi - automatic ground environment) system.

It was the first time that mixed weapons — both missile and manned — were simultaneously employed by the SAGE system.

Desert Casts Up Mystery as Deep, Baffling as Recorded in Sea Annals

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Sahara desert has cast up a mystery as deep and baffling as any recorded in the annals of the sea.

A B-24 bomber which had a crew of nine has been found in the waterless waste of Libya, 300 miles south of Bengazi. It was last seen 16 years ago when it took off from a Libyan base for a bombing raid on Naples, Italy.

The finding of the plane was announced, preserved almost perfectly in the desert air. Although its fuselage was snapped in two at the tail, the plane appears unmarked and ready to fly, radio still in its working order.

There is not a trace of the men who flew off on that wartime mission in 1943. No clothing, no written records.

Water bottles, presumably lightly capped, were found still filled in the cabin of the plane.

Had the crew crash - landed and started the trek out to civilization, they would have taken all available water with them. If they had been killed in the landing, which caused so little damage to the plane, their remains would be there.

Did the crew all bail out somewhere else, as the defence department thinks is likely? Then how did the plane fly on for hundreds of miles to let down in a soft landing in the desert? And why, apparently, did none of the crew survive.

The defence department, which identified the plane from its serial numbers, released Friday night the names of the crew and next-of-kin.

Relatives of all nine men were reached Friday night, and they said they had been notified by the war department in 1943 that their relatives were missing in action. A year later they were told they had been killed.

The U.S. Air Force sent a plane to photograph it from the air and is sending experts overland to examine it more closely.

STEELMEN SET ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL GOALS

Don't Want Missiles Or Bases in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America, which says it signs a new contract somewhere in Canada every day, has set its economic and political goals for 1959.

On wages, the steelworkers want more money—enough to put them on par with United States steelworkers.

On politics, they favored a new national party.

They also want shorter hours, longer vacations, severance pay, shift premiums, better pensions and medical plans.

They don't want Canada to spend money on missiles and missile bases.

And they don't like "anti-labor" legislation passed recently in British Columbia and Newfoundland.

BIG MEETING

These are some of the policies and viewpoints approved by 207 union leaders from Sydney, N.S., to Burnaby, B.C., during a two-day conference that ended Friday.

The delegates talked on behalf of 83,000 United Steelworker members in the nation. They work in mines, mills, steel fabricating plants, factories and small shops.

Their union is Canada's biggest single labor outfit.

It may become the first union in Canada to set up medical care centres. The delegates approved the idea Friday. They said present medical-care plans don't cover workers fully.

A USWA spokesman said Hamilton, Toronto and Sault Ste. Marie, all big steelmaking centres, may be the first to get the union-sponsored clinics.

SEEK "SOCIAL" MONEY

Noting an upturn in Canada's economy, the policy - makers called on government to keep the social welfare programs healthy, capital for schools, hospitals, housing, highway development and "other socially useful projects."

The delegates said unemployment had reached "depression proportions" in some parts of Canada. They urged the federal government to declare a national emergency and start a big public works program to give jobs to the jobless.

And they asked for changes in the unemployment insurance act to provide longer benefits, eliminate the waiting period and provide for universal coverage regardless of earnings.

In collective - bargaining resolutions, they urged "full support and co-operation" for United Steelworkers organizing workers for wages in negotiations with major U.S. basic steel producers.

Drowned Fishing

EGANVILLE (CP) — Darrell Ryan, 19, of Brightsville, Renfrew County, N.Y., drowned Friday while fishing in Round Lake. Round Lake near this town 65 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Constable Ken Smith was leaning on a seat of the boat to check the fishing lines when the boat broke. He fell in and drowned.

ELECTION SWEEP

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—The Malayan government coalition party, the Alliance, won a sweeping victory in the first general election since Malaya gained independence from Britain August 31, 1957.

The Alliance, led by Tunku (Prince Abdul Rahmat, won 19 of the 34 seats in Negri Sembilan State.

Dalai Lama Says Reds Subjecting Tibetans to 'Unbearable Tortures'

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Dalai Lama said today the Chinese Communists are subjecting Tibetans to "unbearable tortures day and night" in stamp out resistance in the Himalayan kingdom.

The refugee god-king of Tibet, who fled his capital city of Lhasa in mid-March for asylum in Mussoorie, India, said he learned every day of new atrocities against his subjects.

In an unusual reference to India's delicate relations with Communist China, arising from the Tibetan revolt, the Dalai Lama said he hoped "countries who like India will support those to whose side lies the truth and not those who like to be in possession of mere might."

The British-owned newspaper Statesman said the 25-year-old Buddhist ruler said he will announce later this month "details of what I think and plan."

When the Dalai Lama fled, the Communists installed Panchen Lama, his political rival, as ruler. The Reds repeatedly have invited the Dalai Lama to return home.

Work On Design Of High-Altitude Rocket Proceeds

Diefenbaker Announces Joint Effort With U.S.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Canada will launch an earth satellite in 1961 with the co-operation of the United States, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

He said that Canada is designing a high-altitude rocket "which has every indication of being a highly efficient research instrument" and intends to provide instruments for rockets which will be fired by the U.S.

Officiating at the opening of a new federal radar laboratory in this, the prime minister's home constituency, Mr. Diefenbaker added:

"This is another step forward in the course of North America defence which I announced some 10 months ago.

"The creation of a defence against the ballistic missile must continue to have a high priority in defence programs of Canada and the U.S. Research studies have been continued to make the detection of an ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missiles) by radar feasible so that its interception may be achieved by missiles.

CANADIAN RESEARCH

"Canada's work in defence research must have regard to financial considerations and must avoid the duplications of what has been done or achieved by other countries which are joined with us. Canada must carefully select the defence research projects which it can undertake.

"In pursuance of these objectives, Canada intends to provide instruments for rockets which will be fired by the U.S. and is designing a high-altitude rocket which has every indication of being a highly efficient research instrument.

"A Canadian satellite is to be launched in 1961 with the co-operation from the U.S. international geomagnetical and space administration."

His statements were included in the text of his speech issued to the press before delivery.

MORE POWERFUL

Mr. Diefenbaker said he knew little about electronics but, mentioning that the new radar laboratory here is to be one of the two most powerful radar stations in the world, he commented that the U.S. is the Millstone Laboratory near Boston.

"These two institutions will emphasize in practical way the friendly manner in which Canada and the U.S. co-operate, not only in matters of defence but in the wider fields of international human betterment," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

With him at the opening was Ambassador Wm. B. Macomber of the U.S.

Defence minister said Canada's radar work is being undertaken co - operatively with the U.S. and Britain, with the scientific development, including parallel research, being done so as to be on the basis of united planning and pooling of scientific knowledge. Canada specializes in the fields of defence among the free countries, loyalty and unity the only course to assure survival."

NEW FIGHTER WING

NEW MINISTER GETS ASSISTANCE IN ESTIMATES

Second Canadian Highway Possibility

OTTAWA (CP) — Howard Green, the new external affairs minister, should find international problems a piece of cake if he gets the same degree of co-operation that was accorded him in his last major function as minister of public works.

The Commons reduced the normally prolonged study of public works estimates to a single day and even sat 15 minutes overtime Friday to finish them off.

Mr. Green, well aware that few things are dearer to an MP's political heart than new post offices, wharves and kindred public buildings, thanked the Commons for its co-operation.

Not at all, replied J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate), with a hearty endorsation from H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) who said he is the works department program while dissatisfied of the hasty respectfulness now borne by Mr. Green.

MAY NEED NEW FACT

The new external affairs minister predicted that a few federal - provincial financial agreement may be required on roads complementing or amplifying Trans-Canada highway aid.

He said not spell the idea out, but it was learned he apparently meant specifically to the completion of the trans-Canada highway scheduled for next year.

Some demands are on file for what amounts to a second trans-Canada highway. Some provinces could use more than one route plus north-south arteries as aides to tourism and natural development.

Mr. Green said he hopes it will be possible to clarify the situation next year, although no conference was anticipated with the provinces before then.

OTTAWA-HULL BRIDGE

He agreed with Alexis Caron (L—Hull) that a new bridge is needed between Hull, Que., and Ottawa. Agreement would be necessary, added Mr. Green, between the federal government, he said.

But he declined to go along with Mr. Caron's charge that provincial premier Duplessis is at hard to deal with as Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union or Foreign Minister Gromyko.

Prices Remain Steady on Local Market

Rain, rain, go away — particularly on market day. This was probably the plea of many doors displaying their vegetable and floral produce on the local market this morning.

Morning rain considerably dampened what normally might have been brisk selling for district vendors by preventing prospective customers from attending the colorful open market on the square.

Three six-month-old golden colored cocker spaniel puppies stole the show at the market today. The soulful looking canine orphans were paraded with passersby for a new home. Hardly selling price was asked.

Among the vegetable produce prices were as follows: potatoes sold from 50c to 55c a peck or $2 a bag; cabbage sold at 25c to 75c per head; carrots, 10c a bunch or 3 for 25c; and horseradish 20c and 25c a jar. Rhubarb sold for 10c a bunch or 3 for 25c; and apples (Macs, Delicious and Winter Bananas), 75c and 75c a 6-qt. basket, and $3 a bushel. Eggs were 40c and 45c for large; 35c for medium and 50c for extra large; chickens, 50c a pound. Flowers, as usual, sold for 35c a doz. and perennials (plants) sold for from 25c to 50c depending on the type. Dahlia bulbs 20c a piece.

Inside the market various homecooking and needlework booths are on sale. In addition the Holloway St. United Church W.A. had a homecooking booth.

Canadian "Y" Marks 115th Anniversary

A five thousand membership gain has been recorded in Canadian Young Men's Christian Associations. J. Hiles Templin, president of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A.'s of Canada announced today on the 115th anniversary of the founding of the Y.M.C.A.

Y.M.C.A.'s and amalgamated Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A.'s in Canada report an all-time high total of more than 128,000 members.

Other 1958 statistics, Mr. Templin noted, show there were more than one quarter million enrolments in more than 11,000 groups with 7,129,200 to total attendances. In addition there were 1,775,100 attendances at physical classes and team events; 2,671,300 attendances at other group events and 538,800 special event attendances. Investment in Y plant and equipment continued to rise to $25,700,000. Individual Associations now have $1,617,300 in endowment funds, Mr. Templin said.

More than $8,000,000 was required to meet current expenditures, of which about three of every four dollars came from membership dues and fees, program activities, investments and endowments and other sources. Only 25 per cent came from contributions and bequests including Y's Participation in Community Chests and United funds.

Reflecting the swing to family-type programs, Mr. Templin drew attention to the fact that women and girls memberships, up 13 per cent from 1357, totalled more than 32,000; thus, one out of four members is a female.

A similar picture in increase of membership, activities and accivities could be drawn for our own Bellevile Y.M.C.A.

An addition to the 1956 different members were registered on Dec. 31st, 1958, increased to 1019 members in 1954. More than 60,000 people participated in various activities in the Y.M.C.A. and more of a family-type program comprise one third of total local membership.

Art Assoc. Discusses 'Composition'

"Composition as Expression" and "Technique" were the subjects discussed by the Bellevile Art Association at their recent meeting held at the homes of Mr. Thornton Brown and Mrs. Joyce DePaul.

Composition may be pattern or it may be structure, but in either case, it is also always expression." Several pictures were studied with the subject is so special that standard compositional devices cannot be adapted to serve it.

In a group portrait where all items mentioned share equal interest and importance, the artist's problem is to involve them in a composition that will be interesting in itself rather than being merely a line-up of figures. Rembrandt's "The Night Watch," and Renoir's "The Bellelli Family" are two familiar examples of architectural forms studied here and there with small human effigies. Hyde Bruce's painting is an arrangement of human beings. The painters set themselves the problem of perfect balance of static objects within defined space.

"Saint Anthony Tempted by the Devil in the Form of a Woman" by Sassetta tells its little story simply and effectively, while "The Fall of Icarus" by Pieter Bruegel the Elder is an example of how much detail may be put beyond the mere narrative of an incident. The Fall of Icarus is inconspicuous in the picture that the artist seems to be concerned with. Another picture of personal tragedy in the great scheme of things is "Guernica" by Picasso which was also evident in Bruegel's "Flemish Proverbs" and "The Triumph of the Blind." The latter picture, which portrays the Spanish Civil War attrocities, rather than being cruel is a parable of human cruelty, folly and weakness of men who follow blindly because it is the only course left to find a way for themselves.

The portfolio concluded with three pictures which were examined but not discussed: Andrea Mantegna's "The Adoration of the Shepherds", El Greco's "View of Toledo" and Raphael Sanzio's "Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte". The last painting covered dealt with Fresco, the first in a series on techniques. The discussing the various mediums it was pointed out that in the most versatile and the most accommodating to the painter, Fresco is the most precise, and water color is the most vivacious and the most difficult, but true Fresco is the noblest. It is also the most difficult. Present day Architecture has made panelled easel pictures more popular than frescoed walls, but the past has left us its grandest works in the mediums of the Fresco technique.

Artists making their first visit to Italy are often surprised to learn that the most familiar paintings which they have seen in small reproductions, cover enormous wall surfaces.

True Fresco is painted on a fresh plaster coating as it dries, therefore the painter must time his work carefully so the plaster is neither too wet nor too dry.

In true fresco the processes of execution often remain apparent in the completed work, and the brushstrokes have the total scheme of his picture conceived in detail before he works on any part of it. He cannot make even a minor change on the work he has done the day before. Even in from Michelangelo's Sistine Ceiling showed cracks where one day's work ended and another's began. Other details showed methods of tracing the picture onto the ceiling.

Reproductions were also studied of paintings from different countries and with varying types of frescos. These included— Piero della Francisco's Head of Adam from "The Death of Adam" and the "Resurrection", Masaccio's "The Tribute Money", Ghirlo di Bondone's "The Lamentation Over the Body of Christ" and "Joachim's Dream", Wiemer's "Painting the Kilbers" by an unknown Roman painter, heads of the "Virgin and Child" by Master of Pedret and Diego Rivera's "Sugar Cane" and a master-class temera by an unknown Chinese painter.

Next meeting will be discussed at the next meeting, which is to be held at the home of Mrs. L. Andrews, 123 Victoria Avenue, on Sunday.

Plant Entered For Second Time, Nothing Taken

For the second time within the past few weeks intruders have entered entrance to Coca-Cola plant on Sidney Street are believed to have been frightened away before accomplishing their intended purpose.

After midnight last night police patrolmen found the employees' door at the north of the building insecure, but a search of the building failed to locate the intruders.

Police said they believed the intruders had been scared away before they reached the office where the safe is located. The employees' door had been forced by jimmying.

A couple of weeks ago would-be safe crackers forced their way into the building and attacked the office safe, but were foiled by the inner door.

It is the second time which they failed to get open.

Unplaced Applicants for Jobs Down 30PC From Last Year

Summer conditions have resulted in a very definite improvement in the employment picture in the Belleville area with unplaced applicants being down 30 per cent from the same time last year.

This is the bright picture noted today by Mr. Cecil Hiscott, national employment office manager who noted that as of June 5th there were 1,527 persons registered as looking for work in the Belleville area — 806 males and 481 females.

Last person at this time there was a total of 1,949 persons looking for work — 1,312 male and 637 females.

The decrease is 602 or 30 per cent.

Requests for workers from employees since Jan. 1st has more than doubled from the same period a year ago, this resulting in the placement of workers in the same proportion.

May showed a much increased demand for tradesmen and laboring classes.

Also many who were laid off from local textile mills in April were recalled in May thus helping the employment picture.

The first week in June has seen a brisk demand for help following the same trend the previous months. There has been some difficulty experienced in finding suitable applicants locally for some positions requiring skilled trades. However the commission clearance procedure allows seeking help anywhere in Canada or the United Kingdom if necessary.

A breakdown of the various types of jobs in which applicants are seeking positions shows there are 46 male and 200 female bookkeepers, clerks and stenotypists looking for work while in sales occupations 22 males and 58 females are jobless.

Workers are also available in the metal working trades and in all the construction trade occupations.

Taxi, truck and tractor drivers are also available.

Providing the biggest problem for the commission is finding jobs for laborers in the unskilled occupations. Among the unskilled are 213 males and 135 females with 187 of the men listed in the construction fields.

Even the above picture, however, is much improved from last year at this time when there were 565 men and 229 women looking for jobs.

"At this time of year numbers of students are registering for summer and permanent work. Students completing vocational training courses are seeking permanent positions. Calls will be welcome from employers looking for students either for summer or permanent work.

Unemployed workers receiving benefits have dropped in numbers from last year although this is due to some extent to the fact that seasonal benefits were extended this year.

As of June 4th, there were 871 receiving benefits as compared with 1799 on June 5th last year. Of the 1799 claimants at this time last year, 624 were drawing seasonal benefits.

31 Girls and Boys Presented With Swimming Certificates

The course conducted by the Y.M.C.A. in conjunction with the Belleville Board of Education and the newly-formed Quinte District Water Safety Council was responsible for teaching these young people swimming skills. Nineteen persons were able, at the end of this four-hour course to pass the Y.M.C.A. National Standard Test. This test is to jump into deep water swim twenty-five feet, turn around and swim back to the starting point.

Representatives from other groups present were Dr. H. Craig, Water Safety Council, Mr. L. A. Kells, Belleville Public School Board, Mr. C. Cawker, chairman of the Physical Education Committee of the Y.M.C.A. who presented Certificates to the members of the class.

Those who received certificates were Judy Walker, Sheila Waite, Patsy Brown, Donnela Zolanetz, Carol Demorest, Maureen Thompson, Sarah Kamel, Joyce Sweetman, Lynn Stansfield, Barbara Thompson, Lillian Vincent, Margaret Calley, Nancy Fraser, Joan Sherry, John Onderdonk, Manly Bly, Ricky Denard, Wilbur Mathews, Stan Lovett, Douglas Bateman, John Markle, John Boyce, Keith Taylor, John Smith, Don SiscoCornick, Eddie Weeks, Doug Lambert, Jerry Jenkinson, Don Little, Greg Sorkas and Jerry Polmansteer.

Church Club Tours Plant

Through the co-operation of Wilson Concrete Products, and the kindness of Chairman of the Board, Jack Ellis, the June 3rd meeting of Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship was a "double header". Following a tour of Wilson Concrete, with plant manager Ellis as guide, the group returned to his residence for weiner roast.

Speaking in a manner that showed both his knowledge of, and interest in, the work of his organization, he covered the entire plant, from the outside in, speaking in non-technical terms of uses that hold 250 tons each, pre-stressed beams, like those being put into the new James Texts building, which are constructed to take heavy snow loads of how pre-stressing adds flexural strength to the already tremendous compression strength of concrete.

"Pre-stressing is a process of adding pre-stretched steel cable to the beams which, by a proper pouring and curing of the concrete, give the resulting beams a flexibility allowing them to span long distances. By itself, concrete has little flexibility".

The group was shown kilns which 'age' concrete in fourteen hours to a point not usually reached in four weeks of exposure to the elements. Concrete blocks, the backbone of the firm, has reached a point where there are many different types and sizes, and over a quarter of a million blocks are needed for adequate stockpiling. Chi Rho members were able to see a night shift in action, producing some of these blocks.

Specialized uses for the products were explained 'the ideal basement, a la Wilson Concrete; a new colored aggregate concrete compound for use as building facing; the acoustical properties of properly painted cement blocks, such as those used in the upstairs offices, where factory noise was reduced to a murmur.

Following the one hour tour the members adjourned to Mr. Ellis residence for an outdoor social evening that reminded some of similar outings and get-togethers in the 'good old days' when many of them were in A.Y.P.A. It is of interest to note that Jack Ellis was one of the first to suggest turning the loosely associated group of ex-A.Y.P.A.ers into what, through the work of President Herb Cavalier and a small committee, has become the nucleus of the present Chi Rho Fellowship.

Senior Citizens Name J. Brennan New President

On Wednesday the final meeting of the year of the Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville was held. It was also the first of the Club's meetings in the new Recreation Centre, 270 Pinnacle Street. The meeting opened at 8.00 p.m. with a delicious banquet for all, under the convenership of Mrs. Haley, Mrs. Fred Cook and Mrs. White.

The new hall was most attractive with long linen-covered banquet tables. Bouquets of red and white peonies decorated the room. Over 100 Senior Citizens did justice to a delicious supper.

Seated at the head table were Mayor Hyde and Mrs. Hyde; Recreation Chairman, William VanTassel and Mrs. VanTassel; Dr. Metcalfe, Medical Officer of Health; Treasurer, Mr. John Preston and Mrs. Preston; secretary, Mrs. Drummond; Lloyd Doran, Recreation Director, who was the chairman for the evening, and Mrs. Doran.

After supper, Mrs. Shirley at the piano and Mr. Bruce Sills on accordion accompanied Mrs. Drummond as she led the club in a sing-song.

The election of officers followed with Mr. Brennan being named for the year 1950-50: president — Mr. Jim Brennan; vice-president — Mrs. W. Haley; secretary — Mrs. F. Cook; treasurer — Mr. John Preston.

The lucky draw was won by Mr. J. Robertson. The rest of the evening was spent playing euchre. Winners for the ladies were Mrs. Forestell and Mrs. Foley; for the men Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Forestell.

Will Unveil Historical Plaque At White Chapel North of Picton

PICTON—This Sunday afternoon ceremonies will be held in connection with the unveiling of a plaque to commemorate the site of Methodist "White Chapel" situated on Highway 41, two miles north of Picton.

This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province by the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario which functions under the jurisdiction of the Department of Travel and Publicity.

The unveiling ceremony, scheduled to start at three o'clock, is being sponsored by the Picton United Church and the trustees of the White Chapel. The Rev. F. J. Whitelaw, B.D., will act as chairman and the Historic Sites Board will be represented by Prof. J. M. S. Careless of the University of Toronto. Among those who have been invited to take part in the program are Judge Gerald C. Smith of Newcastle, the Worship Mayor F. J. McFarland of Picton, Mr. Norris Whitney, Picton, Mr. A. E. Ward, warden of Prince Edward county.

The plaque will be dedicated by the Rev. Arthur G. Reynolds, the Misses Mae Conger and Miss Alice Conger, descendants of the pioneer who donated the land for the church, will also take part in the ceremony.

Methodism in the Bay of Quinte area dates back to the early days of the Loyalist settlement. In 1790 William Losee, a prominent pioneer of New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, travelled through the area. The oldest remaining Methodist chapel in what is now Ontario was built in 1792 at Hay Bay. This edifice has already been marked by the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board.

However although it is the oldest, it was used for many years for more mundane purposes by a farmer who then owned it. The White Chapel is unique in that it has been maintained as a place of worship for a longer period than any other church of Methodist origin in Ontario.

Stephen Conger was born in New Jersey in 1773. In 1786 his father came to Upper Canada where he selected land in Hallowell Township, and the following year settled there with his family. A devout Methodist, Stephen donated a portion of his land for the building of what has been variously termed the White Chapel, the Old Chapel or the Conger Chapel.

At the age of thirty he was appointed a Justice of the Peace. At that time Methodist preachers were not licensed to perform marriages, but in this official roll he recorded seventy-six marriages between 1803 and 1822.

Construction of the White Chapel commenced in 1809 and it is believed that the structure was completed in 1811. The church trustees at the time of its construction included Jedidiah Dillon to Conger Helebrand Vanluven, Henry Johnson, Abraham VanDaricorn, James Dougall, Jacob Germain, Jacob Benson, James Wilson and Casparus VanDusen. Since Conger operated a mill and tannery house, it is likely that a good deal of the building material was supplied by him.

In 1820 a fine new Methodist church was built in Picton where, four years later, the founding of the Canadian Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held. The importance of the White Chapel declined thereafter although services were held there at irregular intervals. For many years it has been the custom to hold an annual picnic in York White Chapel on the third Sunday in June to celebrate the anniversary of its erection. This year, the 150th anniversary will be commemorated at the time of the plaque's dedication.

Saved from the ravages of time, this old place of worship still stands, although most of its congregation have long since left. In an excellent state of preservation, it remains much as it must have appeared in 1811. In a history of the White Chapel, written by the late Arthur G. Reynolds, its interior is described as follows: "The gallery runs around the back on two sides of the interior. Almost on a level with the gallery is the enclosed pulpit reached by a flight of steps from which hangs a sounding board.

Fire Department Personnel Will Paint Fire Hall

TRENTON — The men of the Trenton Fire Department have undertaken the job of painting the outside of the town's fire hall, doing it themselves to cut down on the costs to the town.

Work got underway yesterday with some of the small doors and windows being trimmed up in the previous color and the fireman's favorite, red and white.

The firemen plan to do the entire woodwork on the outside of the building and will also do the inside of the fire station downstairs. The fire chief, Cecil Ellis, said he hopes the men will get a chance to do the floor next week and then by the following week-end it would all be completed.

The big doors will also be repainted and little things will be repaired as the firemen come to them. Just recently a new top was put on the tower after the former one had blown off in a wind storm and hit the roof of a car parked below. It is expected this new wood will also get a coating of paint.

The Fire Chief estimates it will will take about two gallons of paint to do the entire job on the outside of the building and about the same for the inside. It will be the only cost to the town, the buying of the paint.

LUCK OF THE IRISH

A young lady of our acquaintance is sometimes known to declaim in a tearful voice: "It isn't fair!"

This discovery took no surprise her and her surprise never fails to amaze us.

We suppose a great many of those who are young in years expect the world and its events to be fair and we feel sure that most of those who have seen three or four decades roll by have given up all such expectation without realizing their loss.

There is something to be said, though, for the state of disillusionment. Altogether aside from the negative virture of protection against unpleasant surprises, there is also the positive feature that it sometimes provides pleasant surprises. Such a one came on Wednesday of this week, when details were announced on the background of the Canadian winners of the Irish sweepstakes.

One of three Canadians made $140,000 richer was Mrs. Audrey Jackson of Montreal. She is a widow with two children who works as a stenographer. She had a lot of bad luck last year, so two friends gave her a sweepstake ticket. That this ticket should make her rich restores our faith in the law of averages. There may be many occasions when the world is not fair, but this makes up for several of them.

When, in addition to this bonanza of poetic justice, we learn that the winner of a $20,000 prize, Kenneth Morey, of Hamilton, had been on workmen's compensation since a fall from a micro-wave tower last fall, we feel doubly pleased with the results of the drawing. There must be something to this talk about the luck of the Irish; otherwise how would lightning have struck twice on the same twirl of the ticket-filled drum?

BUILDINGS HERE "GO MODERN"

The other day the news columns of this paper made note of the fact that downtown shoppers "are admiring the exterior of the new Toronto-Dominion Bank on the corners of Front and Bridge Streets."

This building is refreshingly different from most of the business blocks in the city, the latest of several contributions by the banking fraternity to giving Belleville's business section a livelier, more modern look, although if we are not mistaken the credit for pioneering in this regard belongs to the building housing Ald. Jack Ireland's appliance and furniture store.

The business buildings remind us that not so many years ago criticism was voiced of the "box-like" homes which were being built for Canadians in the country's burgeoning cities. All that seems to be changed today, if one can judge by the appearance of the houses being erected in the rapidly expanding eastern part of Belleville.

Here will be found a wide variety of styles, many of them strikingly unusual in the eyes of those who remember when a house had four walls of the same material and of equal height and when symmetry was prized. Not everybody will like the appearance of all the houses, but there ought to be no difficulty in finding a style to suit every taste.

HISTORY REVIVED

Dr. W. H. Fahrni said in Vancouver recently that people who walk in with drooping shoulders or who decline in shrimp-like positions are likely to enjoy a life free from backache.

The Fort Erie Letter-Review says Dr. Fahrni's views "should interest CCF party members and others who advocate economic principles designed to turn the country into a nation of economic slouchers. Such people will find in the doctor's findings justification for the prosperity socialist posture."

Discovery that there is such a thing as the proper socialist posture intrigued us, but this was nothing to the excitement of discovery produced by a mental picture of two of Britain's prominent socialists, one Sir Winston Churchill and the other Lord (formerly Major) Clement Attlee. Attlee has a back as stiff as a major should have while Churchill - - well nobody could learn to droop shoulders like that without a pre-natal predilection for the socialist cause.

HELPING HAND

There are those who claim too much emphasis is placed on social security today. But nothing could be farther from the truth when thinking in terms of the average or below-average citizen. For the others it doesn't matter, for they would get along under any circumstances. (Listowel Banner.)

JUST FOLKS

ALWAYS BUSY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The busybody, busy is
With other folks' affairs.
He misses not a thing that interferes
And multiplies their cares.
He never seems to take a rest;
And I'm a fussy believer
He is the only man alive
Who never gets spring fever.

He seems to have no business of
His own to fret or worry.
But running yours just pleases
him;
He'll do it in a hurry.
Brain fag has never troubled
him.
Vacation's a deceiver;
You'll always find him on the job.
He never gets spring fever.

The busybody never wants
To take a fishing trip;
He never travels far away,
He doesn't even a pin.
In restful haunts away from town
He is no fun believer.
Week in, week out he's hutting
in.
He never gets spring fever.

Deseronto Days 1919-1932

Written expressly for The Ontario Intelligencer by HARRY M. MOORE

ARTICLE 31
ECCENTRIC PRINTER

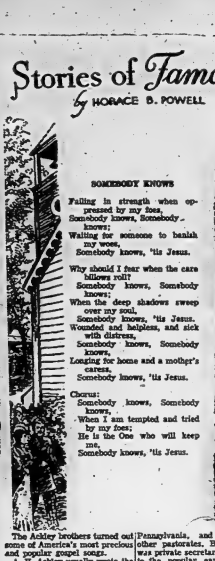
In our younger years in southwestern Ontario we had become an ardent reader of the work of Elbert Hubbard, who, from his office in East Aurora, N.Y., published two magazines — The Fra for the long haired, The Philistine for the common folk. Hubbard's printing office was perhaps the most peculiar of its kind. All the case racks in the composing room were on wheels, in the corner was a piano, and instead of the coffee break of this modern age, mid-morning and mid-afternoon, there was piano playing, singing and dancing. Hubbard, who lost his life in the sinking of the Lusitania during the First World War, wrote among other things "A Message to Garcia," which appeared in The Philistine and which was to bring him world-wide fame. The Russian and American railway companies bought the "Message to Garcia" by the millions of copies for distribution to their employees and years after Hubbard's death the little story, written in less than one hour, was made into a successful movie. Briefly it was a tale of obedience to orders, without question or loss of time.

That afternoon we were operating the linotype when a hand reached over our shoulder and a pleasant voice asked if we were Harry Moore. He was a young, well dressed man. We admitted the corn and he handed us a large envelope. "I have a picture of Elbert Hubbard you were asking for," he said. Then we vaguely recalled that some long time ago before we had left the printing firm for such a picture but until now it had slipped our memory.

There was a public meeting that night to deal with an industry which had decided to move Deseronto from Richmond, Que. And the men who were behind the move, we learned about, was the same man who had given us the Hubbard picture just a few hours before. Said his name was Clarabut, but we couldn't if we ever heard his first name.

Far be it for us to say that Clarabut and his associates were a bunch of sharpers. In our innocence we believed in them but they moved their families to town and were soon to make friends with those who became them to this day. Their product was for the linotype slug. We never clips, wire baskets and all that sort of thing, but it is hardly credible that in that line was too strong for them. Of course most Deseronto residents put out money into the Richmond Wire and Iron Works, as it was called, and Harold Rathbun had provided them with factory space on the south dock. We soon had stock in the company, but we got it the hard way by meeting the company's requirements for printing.

CLEVER TIP-OFF



But for some reason the business did not pay. Our first tip that things were not going well with the company came after the visit of our friend. He had been with a steel company in Windsor, so he knew his steel. He reported that the plant was over-staffed, that there was more plant than required, that it was just a matter of time until it would fold. He added that he had money tied up in it to get it out of there but fast.

A few nights later there was a meeting of the Richmond Wire and Iron and Mr. Clarabut was here to say that it needed more money to carry on business and would have to borrow from the Bank of Montreal. Peterborough Examiner, Toronto Star, maybe Oshawa, a firm of engineers reliability). It is possible that the so-called Peterborough engineers had been down on putting up any more money and so the business was wound up and those who had put money into it had a plant on their hands.

Some time passed and then we heard that Clarabut was in town. For many years and possibly there is yet, a Petrie Company, machinery dealers in Toronto

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

SOMEBODY KNOWS

Failing in strength when oppressed by my foes,
Somebody knows, Somebody knows;
Waiting for someone to banish my woes,
Somebody knows, 'tis Jesus.

Why should I fear when the care billows roll?
Somebody knows, Somebody knows;
When the deep shadows sweep over my soul,
Somebody knows, 'tis Jesus.
Wounded and helpless, and sick with distress,
Somebody knows, Somebody knows,
Longing for home and a mother's caress,
Somebody knows, 'tis Jesus.

Chorus:
Somebody knows, Somebody knows,
When I am tempted and tried by my foes,
He is the One who will keep me,
Somebody knows, 'tis Jesus.

The Ackley brothers turned out some of America's most precious and popular gospel songs.

A. H. Ackley usually wrote the song verses while B. D. Ackley created the tunes. Together they produced such favorites as "When The Night Is O'er", "I'll Tell To All The World That God Is Love", "I Am Happy In The Service Of The King", and "Somebody Knows".

A. H. Ackley served for several years as minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Sharon, Pennsylvania, and later held other pastorates. B. D. Ackley was private secretary and pianist to the popular early twentieth century evangelist, Billy Sunday. He, too, was a Presbyterian.

The song, "Somebody Knows", was the first to be written by the brothers. It is said that while they were walking together one day in Sharon, B. D. Ackley who had been pondering some sobering news which had come to him suddenly exclaimed: "Isn't it encouraging that Somebody knows?"

Both brothers were on the alert, always, for new hymn themes and both knew at that moment that they had found a good one. They entered a music store which they happened to be passing, asked for the use of a piano, and in a matter of minutes had their new song, "Somebody knows", ready for singing.

The ensuing popularity of the song encouraged the two young hymnists to write all the others that followed.

we can discern future developments with a good deal of certainty. But man himself is a spirit. And we do not know at what moment the spirit may leave his body. Nor can we foretell with precision what course his freedom will take.

Yet with all the uncertainties of life we are not left wholly without guidance as to the future. History does not repeat itself, but it does reveal the sequence of cause and effect. Life is a game but it is not a lottery. And there are seers like the Old Testament prophets and the Christ, whose depth of insight becomes akin to foresight.

BALANCED JUDGMENT

We have a saying: "Expect the best, prepare for the worst, and take what comes." There is balanced judgment in these words. They warn us against that Pollyanna optimism which refuses to face stern realities. A bad church treasurer once who saw everything with such rosy optimism that he left our church budgets in the red.

On the other hand, we must remember that it is hard to keep expecting the best when we think too much about preparing for the worst. We live so much three days in the atmosphere of distrust and fear that we spend far more effort in preparing for the bad than for the good.

In our national life when we speak of "preparedness" we refer to the billions raised for defense against those who would do us harm. And we must realize there are gangsters and dictators in the world who are not restrained by reason. We must make some preparation against them.

But when governments spend scores of millions preparing to fight other nations and only trifling sums learning how to cooperate with other nations, they are breeding further dangers. When we impute to other people motives lower than our own, we tend to lower our own motives. When we think primarily of preparing against the worst in others, we tend to bring out their worst.

More people are fooled by their doubts and fears than by their hopes and faith. Let us not be fooled.

A Lift for Living

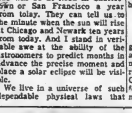
Preparing for the Future

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN.

June is the month of commencements. Another crop of graduates will hear advice about facing the future.

We might ask what good it does to face the future, since we cannot see into it. None of us knows what will happen to him in five years or in the next five minutes. Back in the Old Testament is a writer called Ecclesiastes. His book is so pessimistic that readers sometimes wonder why it was included in the sacred Scriptures. But its inclusion is a proof that religious faith does not spring from mere wishful thinking. Running almost like a refrain through the chapters of Ecclesiastes is this question: "Who can tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?"

Physicists all look forward as we move through space. We walk more naturally going forward than backward. We can see our hands better in front of us than behind us.



But in our movement through time, we can only see what is beside us in the present and behind us in the past. We advance into the future like a man rowing a boat, with his back to the prow. The ancients, in their desire to pierce the curtain of the future, resorted to oracles and fortunetellers.

We of the scientific age have pretty well graduated from fortunetelling, but we are just as eager as the ancients to know what is ahead. In fact, the faster the pace of living, the more desperately we desire to see into the future. We pay a few cents for the daily paper which gives yesterday's news, but some men would gladly pay thousands of dollars for today's paper if it would furnish tomorrow's market prices. What would parents not give to know what will happen to their children in 1980?

Yet we do turn to certain persons in the belief that they can tell us some things about the future. We turn, for instance to the scientists. We trust them when they tell us what time the tide will be at flood in Charleston or San Francisco a year from today. They can tell us to the minute when the sun will rise at Chicago and Newark ten years from today. And I stand in veritable awe at the ability of the astronomers to predict months in advance the precise moment and place a solar eclipse will be visible.

We live in a universe of such dependable physical laws that we can discern future developments with a good deal of certainty. But man himself is a spirit. And we do not know at what moment the spirit may leave his body. Nor can we foretell with precision what course his freedom will take.

Yet with all the uncertainties of life we are not left wholly without guidance as to the future. History does not repeat itself, but it does reveal the sequence of cause and effect. Life is a game but it is not a lottery. And there are seers like the Old Testament prophets and the Christ, whose depth of insight becomes akin to foresight.

LATCHFORD—NEWMAN

Watford Gospel Hall, Watford, Ontario, was the setting for a very pretty wedding on Saturday, May 16, at 2.30 p.m. when Miss James Boswell, of London, Ontario, united in marriage Marjorie Isabella Newman, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ernest Newman, to William Orick Latchford, of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orick Latchford. Tulips and daffodils adorned the auditorium for the ceremony.

Only Woman Counsellor of Indian Origin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attractive and talented Gloria Cranmer, a grand-daughter of Chief Mungo Martin of the Kwakiutl Indian tribe, is the only woman counsellor employed by the John Howard Society in Canada.

Miss Cranmer graduated from the University of British Columbia, majoring in anthropology. Last summer she won a research grant.

Miss Cranmer has no bitterness about the laws governing Indians, but she said she feels that the "second-rate laws," the stipulations of the Indian Act, account for a lot of unnecessary misery.

"It would cost you a $200 fine to give me a drink in your home," she laughed.

HELPING OTHERS

She has found that trying to help people is more important to her than her fine, new, studies of anthropology. Born in Alert Bay on Vancouver Island, she was but eight when she went to grade 5. She went to high school in Victoria, and then to the university.

After graduation she became a matron in the Indian parts of Vancouver three years—"long enough to decide that I wanted to help."

After a summer spent in research among Canadian Indian folk songs, she took her present position, working out of the Howard Society, which aids former prisoners.

Although statistics show that 40 per cent of the women jailed are Indians, Miss Cranmer is distorted view because many of them are repeaters.

She thought this was due to several reasons, mainly lack of education.

NO INCENTIVE

"There is no incentive for Indian youngsters to continue their studies. They have no display, shiftless Indian, and there is no job for them other than waiting on table or seasonal cannery work.

The liquor act is another contributing factor. Since Indians are not allowed liquor in their homes or in the homes of friends, the beer parlors become social centres.

"If the government thinks Indians cannot handle liquor it would have been better to have established beer parlors rather than this halfway measure."

She deplores the fact that the drug addiction problem, reminiscent of "small misdemeanors" in their early days, has brought Vancouver to serve sentences, no matter how short.

"The government pays their fare both ways but it has no influence on them when they return home when freed.

"Many don't return. They are 'lost' in the city, where like most minorities they gravitate to skid row."

Miss Cranmer is secretary of the Canadian Welfare Council, now hoping to build a hostel in Vancouver for those who need shelter after jail terms are completed.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

The May Letter of the Royal Bank of Canada contains some advice for present and future Canadians, indeed for the world. The author writes warning us about the dangers inherent in the wanton destruction of "our physical environment." T and T recalls writing last year about the general interest of the UNESCO Courier which was devoted to this subject. We are so impressed with the facts revealed then that we lent the edition to one of Belleville's better known naturalists, Miss Joy Nichols, proprietor of the Quinte Book Shop. Conservation may well be one of the most important problems facing mankind and if speed is a consideration, the North American continent presents a foremost in the path. The Letter categorically warns us that man cannot exist if our natural resources continue to be wasted without let or hindrance. As dictated by the concern of the United Nations, this issue is not localized but is world-wide. However, confining ourselves to Canada, we learn that the world-wide situation can only be improved if all the parts help up the challenge.

The Letter reveals that in Canada alone many animals, fish and birds have become extinct or in danger of it. The disappearing because of the "exploitation" of our natural resources. One item alone tells of millions of carrier pigeons in Canada, the last of which was recorded in 1914." Did you know (T and T certainly didn't) that up until 1917 the Atlantic Salmon abounded in Lake Ontario and in the rivers Don, Credit and Humber. These are two examples of what is happening, which we only know by reading.

The Letter is timely. When we read, thoughtful and provoking chapters, we decided to return to the January 1953 issue of the author. Agreeing and in conjunction with the views as put forward in the words of the editorial written by our president, we again ask: "Are we then headed for catastrophe" — We have one last chance — the power of education can overcome the power of ignorance. A scientific population, a stop-and-arrest stand against the cancer of erosion, the adaptation of cultivation to climate and soil, the preservation of renewable resources — all these depend upon education. It is our sincere hope that this issue will help UNESCO to defend the great cause of the conservation of nature which it has espoused."

T and T congratulates the Letter and in the words, or paraphrased words, of the Courier we trust that it will help Canada defend the great cause of conservation which it espouses." Some day we hope a project is undertaken by the bank to collect the many, many items of value so well expressed in the Letter. The subjects range from philosophy to conservation, from constructive help to children to advice for adults.

Our weekend thought is taken from the Letter: "J. W. Krutch wrote — "If the earth is still liveable and in many places still beautiful, it is chiefly because man's power to lay it waste has been limited." And Havelock Ellis — "The sun, moon and stars" would have disappeared long ago if they had not long ago we were in reach of predatory human hands."

A strange remark came our way recently. We have decided whether to refer to it or not, but since it is amusing rather than controversial, we will endeavor, we think you may enjoy it. It was told long ago we were asked why T and T always acknowledges sources of information. We did not admit at once that sometimes the thought had occurred to us.

In the first place, T and T finds this part of the column very rewarding and people, our readers, are too busy to read a lot of reviews. We come across something, like conservation, which affects every one of us, we think, and we study authoritatively by acknowledging where we got it. A great deal of that way and after all T and T very content in the knowledge that it is the author of the Letter writes about conservation in a more authoritative than coming from an unacknowledged source. If we remained within the limitations of our knowledge T and T would soon exhaust the subject. We write a laugh the other day. We saw an article in a New York paper. It was taken from a paper at our disposal and you had been told about it sometime ago. You were also told to whom to credit the information.

Mother Canada

By Alma Mason

We Canadians are so greatly blessed. We grumble about our climate, our lack of this—our over-abundance of that, but usually, after journeying far afield, we return again with a fresh appreciation of the vast and beautiful land which God has bequeathed to us.

Perhaps we journey to a tropical paradise such as Florida or Jamaica. There we find eternal summer. However, we tire of perpetual summer and long for our revolving, transient seasons. We find, after several months when we may bask in sunshine but after awhile we yearn for the sparkle of snowbanked roads and fallen snow. The limpid beauty of tropical lagoons, then aurdenly feel a tenderness for mountain streams tumbling with silver trout, for green rivers and blue lakes held in emerald hills.

In the tropics hibiscus, bougainvillea, flame vine, gardenias and poinsettia bewitch us, lull us with vivid flagrancy and sweet, but we dream of Canadian spring. We see the fruit trees in flower, the purple and white lilacs swaying in the warm spring breeze. We long to roam in Canadian woods on an April quest for the first May flowers and dogwood blossoms. In memory we inhale the clean, crisp perfume of valley lilies, golden rose forsythia, tulips and daffodils and narcissus and hyacinths fill across the nostalgic screen of memory. We yearn for a patch of purple velvet asaulas and for its blue as an Irish colleen's eyes.

Seen in perspective from other lands, the line—"This is my own—my native land" touches a swelling vibrant chord within us. In turning footsteps homeward, we feel like children who have strayed away from a mother's protective arms. We have found the world outside interesting — but lacking the shelter and beauty and vast freedom we have come to accept nonchalantly as our birthright and our due.

Let us compare Canada to a wise and understanding mother; one whose bosom is broad, whose arms are outstretched whose ambitions for her children are supremely noble. Mother Canada is constantly trying to lead her children to the highest peaks of cultural advancement. Canada abounds in churches. Freedom of religious thought and speech is our heritage. Canadians are among the best educated people in the world today. Canada is still a young mother and growing in wisdom and stature—but her eyes are on the distant hills extending into the mantles of the best realms of music, literature and all artistic achievement.

As fortunate children of this wondrous Mother—we have never known starvation with in our gates to starvation — to torture. We have never felt the oppressor's heel. We have never been forced to face the inward turmoil of revolution; we have never known exodus under fire into other lands. Over population and its ensuing sister — want — has not caused us great distress.

We Canadians lead the world in clean principles of racial equality. We have been taught to welcome the stranger within our gates as our own forefathers were once welcomed. We respond wholeheartedly when Canada commands "Take to your homes and hearts thousands of our war time refugees." When they lock their doors in fear tell them alien marauders will never molest them; when they gaze fearfully into the sky, tell them they will merely find a tranquil sea of blue dotted with white clouds; when they seek bread—tell them Canada will supply it for honest effort."

This land of ours shows her love for us so abundantly. Nowhere else on earth will there be a young contemporary mother with brave eyes lifted to the future; a mother with many children of her own but with room in her vast home for countless more. Nowhere else on earth will we find such a warmth of freedom as abounds here. Nowhere else will we find a nation so broad, so beautiful, so versatile in climate and scenery. Nowhere else under God's blue heaven will we find such boundless opportunity for our children, our grandchildren and their children.

I love each crowded, busy street,
Each beach, each doorway warm and sweet;
These hills—my hills. Each mountain crest
A spot where God's own hand may rest.

Each river blue, each endless plain,
Each sea of waving, golden grain,
My flesh, my bone, my blood—a part
Of my poor grateful, throbbing heart.

I am betrothed to flowers of spring,
To winter's white and silver fling;
To golden maple leaves of fall;
To summer's lovely, vivid call.

I proudly bear my Mother's name
And hold aloft her beacon flame;
For Canada will ever be
My love-ing land—my clothing.

Women's Activities

BEULAH W.M.S.

IVANHOE — The May meeting of Beulah United W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Ken Twiddy.

Seven members and eight visitors responded to the roll call.

Mrs. Keith Bray led in devotions and Mrs. Twiddy in prayer. The Scripture, Luke 15:23-32 and Matt. 25:31-40 was read by Mrs. Elymer Rollins. Meditation on the Scripture was given by Mrs. Bert Reid, Mrs. Bear and Mrs. George Wood offered prayer for Missions.

Mrs. Keith Bray welcomed Mrs. Detlor and Mrs. Holmes, president of Belleville Presbyterial.

Mrs. Holmes brought an inspiring message and said in part, "We should re-assess our society and see if we are doing. We are interested in our neighbors and be interested in other nations, their future. Think why missions are necessary. Christ came and died on the Cross for all the world — so our mission is to tell all nations."

"Today people are seeking pleasures outside the church, but these doing so are disatisfied. On the surface people are enjoying life, but deep in their hearts there is a sense of insecurity. They are reaching out for God and it is our responsibility to bring it to them.

"Here we live in luxury, others are starving, illiterate, dying without medical care, while we are rich, with comforts. There is also the threat of Communism and atheism. Pray that God may say, "let them alone", Paul wrote to Corinth. For a great door and effectual is opened unto me. There are many adversaries. The church must rise to her greatest heights when the going is hardest.

"We belong to a group that is giving more than physical need. Man's need is spiritual and so our missionaries go with the gospel. This wide door is still open, will we rise to the need? Let us put our Christianity into action for one's brother man".

Mrs. Holmes closed her message with prayer. On behalf of W.M.S. members Mrs. S. Freed expressed thanks to Mrs. Holmes for her splendid message.

A duet, "I Love This Place These", Mrs. A. Wood made the presentation of a gift to Miss Cora Frost, a former member.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

First Woman Producer Has 28 Screen Credits

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Betty Box stumbled into the film industry in 1941 by way of war work.

Five years later she made The Seventh Veil in partnership with its star, James Mason, and went on to become Britain's first woman producer. Her 28 screen credits include such successful productions as Doctor at Sea, Doctor at Large, and The Clouded Yellow.

Miss Box, now 40, says it all began when her husband joined the RAF and started talking about something to do. Her brother, Sydney, was making documentary films for the armed forces and invited her to give him a hand.

"I joined him and did all manner of things connected with film-making," the petite, blonde producer said in an interview at her Pinewood studios where she now makes two films a year for J. Arthur Rank and Associated British.

She admits her luck is being related to Sydney Box, an established film producer, but adds: "You still have to be good or you can do the job."

WOMEN CAPABLE

She believes that, given the opportunity, more women would make successful producers. "One of th- major qualifications, is to be a good organizer and I think the women are capable organizers."

One of the reasons their opportunities are limited as film producers are usually drawn from the ranks of the editorial side of the industry, in which few women hold jobs.

Miss Box has a spot a good story is the first requisite of a producer's job. "Then, I think you have to be able to judge the over-all balance between the finished film and what it cost.

"I can usually guess within £100 what a film is going to cost."

Miss Box, considered one of the most creative producers in British movies, goes on location with her productions and takes a keen interest in all aspects of movie-making even to discussing costumes with stars.

She is so widely travelled that it is easier to list the places she hasn't been, which includes the Far East.

"I should very much like to visit Japan and make a film there. But I haven't found a suitable subject."

Harmony Studio Pupils Present Colorful Recital at Collegiate

On Wednesday evening, the pupils of Mrs. Emily Veley, R.M.T., presented their 18th annual piano recital at the Bellaville Collegiate Auditorium.

The stage was attractively decorated with flowers and appropriate musical symbols.

Miss Eileen Hancock, on behalf of the club, and the class, welcomed the students, parents and friends.

The program was opened by the procession of the younger pupils across the stage, led by Heather and Alistair Scott, who were dressed in Scottish costumes. Mrs. Veley accompanied them at the piano.

As in the past, the pupils from beginners to the advanced grades, presented their work by memory with a fine display of musicianship. The entire program was enthusiastically received. The following pupils participated in the program:

Following the musical numbers, Mrs. Dorothy Scott introduced Rev. David McLean of Trenton who gave the briefs of the adjudicator, congratulating them on their fine performance.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beekman

EXPRESSING SYMPATHY AT FUNERAL HOME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Saturday I went for the first time to a Funeral Home, to pay my respects to the family of a dear friend of mine who had passed on. When a member of the family came over to me and thanked me for coming, or said something, I was so tongue-tied as to what to reply. I was very much wanted to say something right then, but I couldn't think of what to say that was right. To help me in the future, would you please suggest what I might say in this circumstance?

—Susan M.

First I would like to give you two suggestions which, I believe, will be even more helpful than the words you might say.

(1) Remember that you can convey a warm-hearted message of sympathy and understanding to me by the warmth of your handclasp . . . so make your handclasp speak for you first.

(2) Remember too that the tone of your voice, your kindliness of manner and gentle tone of voice, are as important, perhaps even more important, than the words you say. So, with a warm hand-shake and a kindly manner, you may say, "My deepest sympathy is with you, Mrs. David," and your message will get across as you wish it to. Or to a particularly close friend you might say, "My dearest love to you, Katherine, and my deepest sympathy and understanding. And please remember I am at your service to do anything you will let me do."

"TRADITIONAL" FORM OF WEDDING INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married next September, and have been trying to decide what would be a possible to that I will not be too rushed at the last minute. July and August are the busiest months in my professional position.)

Please first question" I would like to ask you. I've heard several times lately about "informal" invitations for a wedding invitation. Just what does this mean? Is there some way I send over other questions as my plans progress? — S. R.

The "traditional" form of wedding invitation is the customary one issued in the name of the bride's parents, and containing the usual details. For example: Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Susan to Mr. Arthur Brooks on Tuesday, the first of September at four o'clock Grace Church Haven, New York

(Yes, please do send me any questions you have in mind about your wedding plans . . . we'll plan them over together.)

HOW BRIDE-TO-BE THANKS SHOWER HOSTESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This question is to settle a disagreement we are having:

Is it considered necessary for a bride-to-be (in this case, me) to write a thank-you note to the hostess who has given her a shower? — E. M.

Yes, ma'am . . . by people of proper sense of appreciation and courtesy it is indeed considered necessary for a bride-to-be (in this case, you!) to write a thank-you note to the hostess who has given her (in this case you!) a shower. And very often this note of appreciation is sent enclosed in a box of flowers.

Boutique. It is mainly for less overhead, that prices run to half those in the more elegant with the overpowering reputations.

In five days in Paris, not one taxi driver tried to pad the meter or shortchange us, not one waiter overcharged or tried to put on his modest tip, and not one digit in our budget stepped over into the "overdrawn" column.

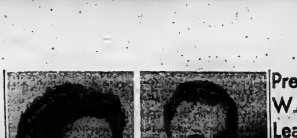
If this be highway robbery, we guess we made the most of it.

Presbyterian W.M.S. Holds Leaders' Meet

RAWDON — Mrs. Harry McAdam, leader of Mission Band, and Hawdon Mission Band, and Mrs. Percy M. Caniff, literature secretary of Belleville Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society, attended a leadership conference at Rolloway Street United Church, Belleville, on May 31th, under the direction of the Presbyterial president, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, of Belleville.

Miss Mary Thomas, B.A., and Miss Elaine Marland, B.A., of the United Church Training School, Toronto, conducted two interesting sessions. This concluded Africana songs, film strips and suggestions for leaders. The girls also gave ideas for presenting a worship service to children, showed the group various handicraft and taught them how to make an African bed and other articles.

Mrs. Harry Clarke, Presbyterial Mission Band leader and leader of Belleville Mission Band, conducted the opening devotional. Both she and Mrs. Harold Reid, of Christ Valley Mission Band, displayed numerous handicraft articles they had made in their own groups.



Mrs. Percy MacMullen, literature secretary, introduced the new literature on Africa which included the study book "African Manhunt," as well as the study books she has had a good selection of maps, books of African games, recipes, songs and costumes. There were also hand books, Mission Band bulletins, prayer calendars and serviettes.

Africa, with its beauty and vastness, its forest, desert and river, jungle villages and missionary hospitals, will be the special study this autumn.

The literature sales at the supper hour were encouraging.

A group of ladies with Mrs. O. Bertrand as hostess, served a 50-cent luncheon.

Others who attended were from Hilton Mission, H. Brae and Mrs. Delbert Fleming of Springbrook Mission Band, and Mrs. Gerald Brooks of River Valley W.M.S.

The Council members do not know the facts until they have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.*

Joan D. — We can't afford to try to get his child.

Douglas D. — Why adopt somebody else's baby?

Joan D. — My husband and I have a terrible problem that is getting worse. We have been married six years and have been informed that there is very little hope that we will ever have children.

You and I, two years before we married he had an illegitimate child. The baby's mother was a European girl and I left her to marry me as we were practically engaged at the time. He wanted to get this child and believes that the child's mother, who has since remarried and has children by her husband, would like to have this boy brought up as an American. I don't think she would ever consent and we can't afford all the expenses involved in trying to get this child.

Douglas D. — Why should we go out and buy somebody else's baby when I could have my own child? It just doesn't make sense. I have good reason to believe that my child's mother would like to be rid of him. Twice after I came back home she got in touch with me asking me to take him because she was unable to marry didn't want the child. I said her it was impossible because at that time I had not yet sold Joan about all of this.

I am sure my son must be a very unhappy boy living with someone who doesn't want him. I was only a kid of 18 when this affair was going on and I was afraid and mixed up I didn't know what I was doing, but now I understand what it means to have a son. I don't care if we have to go up to our ears in debt to get the boy. We can do so much more for him than for a stranger.

The Council: Douglas seems to have a strong streak of cruelty in him — or possibly a simple lack of understanding which leads him to the feelings and needs of others.

He deserted a mother and baby when they needed him most and we would now tear them apart because it suits his desires of the moment. Nor does he give the slightest consideration to the feelings of a wife who might possibly be hurt by the return of her husband's former child.

What to do? It is certainly difficult to decide. The boy should certainly not be allowed to grow up in a broken home and also should speak up strongly on this score. However, it is Douglas' moral responsibility to try to find out what has become of his son. The boy may have found a very satisfactory home by now. If he hasn't Douglas ought to do something about providing a better life for him.

When and if Douglas learns to love unselfishly he will know that he can give richly to "somebody else's baby" and that unless he does love unselfishly there is little or real value he can give his child.

"The stars, a jolly company . . . ! You only in love, in faith unbroken dwell, friends radiant and inseparable!" The Jolly Company by Rupert Brooks.

Have you ever heard of the S.S.S. Or the meaning of the Silver Star Society of Galt, Ontario?

About its meaning, more anon. But we know of the society. For whenever Aunt Bess, a nurse member of our family, returned from New York to spend part of the year in Galt, she (being an S.S. member) attended its meetings and luncheons and invariably wore a small silver star pin. That this group had any interest beside just being interested in the hospital never entered our mind. Until the other day.

That was the day we received a clipping from the Galt Reporter which revealed everything. Truly, the story behind this group is so fascinating, we wonder if you might not like to know about it, too.

"No other local women's organization has a background as $1,004.56 was made. It was a reward in the hospital was furnished and endowed, called the S. S. Ward When then out the South Perioo Memorial Hospital was built, the newly furnished maternal ward there.

"Many money-making projects have been held. Rummage sales were introduced in Galt by the S.S.S. In June, 1891, a bazaar was held in the Warnock garden and enough money was made to buy a new bed for the hospital at $21. It was a new one. In 1894 a "Shadow Social" reception was held in the council chambers. There was a shadow party with her tall black hat and a stuffed white goose under her arm. Inside the goose was a large, grey stone house, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Warnock. It was here in their garden, in a latticed summer house, so fashionable in those days, that the children met. It was also in this house that a little boy named Mr. Mutch mother's cousin, Mrs. James Warnock. The little boy and his sister were given large dishes of ice cream and peppermint sticks of candy.

"During the last 65 years many thousands of dollars, approximately between 40 and 50 thousand, have found their way to those in need, the treasuries of other relief and educational organizations and the two world wars. The present fee has been kept at the original sum of five cents every two months, 30 cents a year.

"So 68 years have rolled away carrying with them many good deeds", which began with Mazo de la Roche and Nellie Crerar, affectionately leaving a bouquet of hyacinth at the hospital, "the home very sick persons." Who told the nurse, who answered the door.

"Then they ran rapidly away, their hearts beating in excitement, their feet fairly flew and the thought of having given pleasure to some unknown person who needed love and remembering."

Travelling Sloanes Say Paris Land of Low Cost Luxury

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

We drove up a street in Montmartre, complete with night clubs in caves and all that jazz, and driver turned to us with a Gallic twinkle in his eye and smiled:

"Well, here we are in Paris, sir!"

It is difficult to be any more in Paris than you are in Montmartre. This is the Paris of the travel posters, the ones with the white dancers in Place Coeur and the sprawling up from the top of the street in the centre, a sign that says "Toulouse-Lautrec" on the right and one that says "vins" on the left.

Its twisted, cobbled streets, all of which seem to go up without ever going down, are crowded with the hodgepodge stone buildings and dingy three-table cafes that establish the sweet, tired and memories of every bohemian, oddball and artist from Francois Villon to Toulouse-Lautrec.

Rafael Daninos.

This is a sneaky way of trying to promote Rafael Daninos, of whom you never heard.

Rafael Daninos is a modern day Montmartre painter. He has a wife and six kids, an apartment in a respectable section of Paris, a garret in Montmartre from which he operates and in which he stores his realistic paintings of the River Seine, provincial Europe and Montmartre.

MODERN DAY PAINTER

All summer Daninos, his spatula, easel and canvases in the back seat, drives around the continent looking for places to paint. The rest of the year he stands in the Place du Tertre and paints endless variations of the Montmartre scene which he sells to tourists. We also bought a painting of a River Seine bridge which is the heart to part with.

Having paid this each is little more than the frames cost us when we got home), we have invested interest in making Danino another Delacroix.

"The canvas and paint cost me $15," wept Daninos in Greek-accented French almost as bad as our American-accented version. "If I could afford to wall I would have to be a gallery and a ex, $50." He pointed to an art magazine, consisting of two pages, to show how he had to "Every year my works will be some more valuable. Someday you will be rich."

Drunk with our power to make a household word through subtle publicity in this city of 2,800,000 and dizzy from the delights of slums, our someday art treasurer and curator of our non-existent museum, we presented Danino with a pocket.

"Every day, paintings at $19 each throw the lie at one of the vilest canards ever spread by the press, alike one about it being outrageously expensive, a moneygrubbing racket. Gouverneur.

By comparison with New York, Chicago and Toronto, Paris would be chicly self our house and move in to walker in luxury.

The most expensive place we ate at was the legendary Tour d'Argent, where the first duck we pressed and where we fe) as if we were eating a friend when the card was presented us advising that we were about to devour number 21,000 something.

Aperitifs, wines, salad and souffle, plus tips to everyone who looked as if he'd had something to do with serving us, came to $6 a head. Which, mind you, was as expensive as things got.

As everyone who has ever so much as thought of going to Paris knows, it's the food that is the food we know it abounds in fiercely competitive little restaurants which are no less distinctive than Maxim's simply because they are smaller and more personal. A Jaguar is less distinctive than a Rolls Royce for the same reason.

The typical one is run by a couple-chef and her husband brothers — chef, two waiters and the bushoy. These perform the functions of Napoleon at Albert and his staff at Maxim's, but in their own stuffy little cubbyhole with their great grandfather nailed together himself, and with perhaps a touch less grace than is mustered amidst the velvet and decor of Maxim's.

The thought that the food might be somewhat less formidable for these reasons would be spoken, bid fair to result in a meeting at dawn in the Bois de

Readers' Saturday Dinner

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . . I was very happy to find your recipe for brown sugar icing maple syrup. I lived in the Eastern townships of Quebec was married and my parents send me a gallon each spring. In spite of my efforts I have not use it all up, there always be some of it in the bottle before we reach the bottom. Could you tell me if I could substitute syrup for brown sugar in gaelic recipes and how much would I use? Is maple syrup as brown sugar? If you have any other suggestions in using it please tell me . . . Mrs. L. McC.

SATURDAY

Braised Shoulder Lamb Chops; Corn Creole; Broccoli; Tea Biscuits Supreme (refrigerator biscuits); Parfait (Individual) Dessert Fruit Salads; Tea Cakes; Beverage filled with Cottage Cheese, Nut-Stuffed Prunes, Sliced Oranges; Cheese Wafers; Coffee.

ANSWER:

One-half cup maple syrup may be substituted for 1 cup sugar, increasing liquid of mixture in recipe by about 2 tablespoons. Here are two recipes from your own beloved province of Quebec.

MAPLE CREAM:

(A gelatine dessert) courtesy Quebec Department of Agriculture, 3 eggs, 1-3 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup maple syrup, 2 tablespoons gelatine, 1 cup hot milk, 1-2 cup cold milk, 1 pint whipped cream.

Heat the syrup until it spins and pour on the eggs that have been well beaten. Beat until the mixture is thick. Soak the gelatine in the cold water, put it over the hot water, stirring until the first preparation. Add the hot milk. When the mixture begins to thicken, add the whipped cream and the nuts. Pour in individual moulds or cold water and allow to set. Unmould and serve with whipped cream.

MAPLE CAKE:

1-3 cup butter or shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, 3-4 cup maple syrup, 1 cup sifted cake or pastry flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup milk, 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten. Cream the shortening thoroughly, add the sugar gradually and continue creaming until light. Blend in maple syrup. Sift the flour, measure and sift again with the baking powder and salt. Add these dry ingredients alternately with milk to the first mixture beating after each addition until smooth. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and bake in greased layer cake tins at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes. Cool on cake rack.

LETTER:

. . . Here is a delicious and different square my Mother used to make . . . Grace, R.

ALMOND SLICES:

(Courtesy Grace R.) One-quarter pound butter and 1-4 pound flour are creamed together then add 1 1-2 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 egg, 1-4 pound almonds ground in mincer. Spread on short bread and bake 'till brown. (Enem sugg: cook 20 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes).

ANSWER:

Thank you very much, Grace. These certainly sound delicious.

The Expanding Cities of China

(ARTICLE 4)

Peking is expanding at a rate that is almost incredible. The population has increased from about one million to about five million in the past ten years. Great new streets, boulevards and parks are being built. It must be a town planner's dream. There are literally hundreds of new buildings that have been erected recently or are in process of construction: Office buildings, factories, workers' living quarters, hospitals, university buildings and institutes. These new buildings, most of which are three to five storeys high, are well designed with clean looking lines, and are constructed of a pleasing mellow red brick. A few of the new stone buildings have green tiled roofs in the old Chinese style.

One of the most spectacular is the new office building for the Department of the Minorities. It is of white tile with a blue tiled roof. The effect is stunning. Another, the Soviet Exhibition Centre, is a beautifully designed semi-circular building with a high, slightly golden spire. It is delicate and most impressive quite unlike the massive structures one associates with the usual Soviet architectural style. All this new construction is going forward at tremendous speed. In fact, the whole emphasis is on speed, on catching up, on leaping forward, on the flat of the bar.

We visited three cities in North East China (Manchuria): Shenyang, a large industrial city with a population of about two and a half millions which, until recently, was known as Mukden; Anshan, the centre of the great steel complex which I shall describe in another article; and Changchun, in the north, a city of one million people that formerly was the capital of Manchukuo under the Japanese and their puppet Emperor, Henry Pu Yi. The older buildings in Shenyang show considerable Russian influence. As in all the other cities we visited, new buildings are going up there in all directions, both factories and workers' dwelling quarters.

Anshan is a city of approximately 800,000 people, almost entirely based on the great steel plant and its related iron and coal mines. Changchung, on the other hand, with a population of about one million, is a good looking city now the capital of Laoning Province, with broad avenues, boulevards and circles. It contains many great buildings with tiled roofs, some used for offices by the provincial government—but most of them now occupied by universities and institutes.

VISIT CENTRAL CHINA

We also made a three-day visit to Wuhan in Central China which now embraces the three former cities of Hankow, Wuchan and Hanyang. Wuhan is a big industrial city of over 2,000,000 people. New factories and new workers' living quarters are going up in all directions. The big feature that all visitors are shown is the Wuhan Yangtze River bridge which was completed in September, 1957. It links North and South China for the first time in a physical sense and is a symbol to the Chinese like the Moscow subway was to the Russians. It shows them what they have learned to do and can accomplish. The bridge is an imposing structure over a mile in length and we were told was very difficult to build.

The people we passed on the streets in Peking looked healthy and reasonably well clothed. A goodly proportion of them were wearing the dark blue jacket and trousers that is a sort of uniform. But many were dressed differently. I noticed girls bicycling to work wearing different colored sweaters. Some of the older people were wearing more traditional dress. And some old men have retained their long thin Chinese beards. Everyone in Peking seemed well shod with leather or rubber shoes.

Speaking very generally, the people in three cities we visited in North East China were dressed about as well and looked about as well off as most of the people we saw in Peking. This generalization does not apply, however, to the people living in a Commune we visited outside Changchun where conditions did not appear to be nearly as good as in the four Communes we inspected. I shall have more to say on this in a later article on the Commune system.

There seemed to be literally thousands of men, women and particularly children on the Wuhan streets dressed not as well as in Peking. However, nearly all of them were wearing shoes or rubber boots or rubbers (it had been raining) but some were barefoot, although not so many as in the southern city of Canton.

Wuhan is a good example of the contrasts that exist in China. Rickshaws have been discontinued but there are pedicabs by the hundred transporting both passengers and freight—bricks, parcels, merchandise of all kinds. A pedicab is a three-wheeled bicycle. The driver sits in front and pedals. Behind is a small open carriage which can seat two passengers or baggage or even, we noticed, 18 small children on their way to school! Much of the local transport is done with two-wheeled flat bottomed carts pulled by men or women. If the load is heavy or uphill, the man between the shafts will be assisted by one or more others (including children) pulling on ropes. It looked like hard, tough work.

GARDENING WORK

Much of the local carrying, both in the city and on the construction sites and in the factories, is done with the aid of shoulder poles which is backbreaking work. I know because during a visit to a Commune I lifted one end of a pole with a peasant on the other and in between a big basketful (at least twice the size of our basket) of what I thought was earth or sand. Our Chinese friends said it weighed only 100 lbs. but I could hardly stagger to my feet with it. It felt more like a load of 200 to 250 lbs. to me. I doubt if I could have carried it more than a few yards. Just as well perhaps because it turned out the basket was filled with fertilizer. I shall refrain from further details.

Contrasted with these kinds of sights are "gasoline buses from Czechoslovakia and electric trolley buses made in China —and many very modern factories—including two that we inspected. One of these, a new steel plant, will be one of the most modern anywhere. The other, a heavy machine tool plant, is up to date in every way and thoroughly well managed. The magnificent new workers' dwellings have been built in Wuhan including a new town for about 150,000 people which is part of the new steel works, equipped with apartments (which have kitchens, toilets, showers and electric lights), schools, colleges, cinemas, etc. And right alongside we noticed old peasant cottages being home from work sitting on his water buffalo.

We spent another three days in Canton in Southern China, which has a population of more than 2,000,000. The climate there was hot and humid and there were tens of thousands of people in the streets. Much less uniformity in their dress than in Peking; the combination of blue tunics and trousers is quite conspicuous there. Nearly all the men were wearing thin, light colored trousers with quite a few in shorts with white or light colored open shirts. The women were dressed in many different colors and styles of clothes, nothing that could be described as chic or gaudy but certainly more varied than in Peking of even than in Wuhan. The majority of the people were wearing shoes or sandals but many were barefoot, something we never saw in Peking. Some of the people looked much more poverty-stricken than in the north.

WORK TO EXHAUSTION

There must be a wide difference in the level of prosperity in different parts of China. Some men and women were doing heavier work in Canton than anything we saw elsewhere (including Wuhan which, in turn, seemed worse than Peking or the north). We noticed women struggling to pull carts that seemed to have incredibly heavy loads; some of the women and some of the older men had exhaustion written on their faces. We were assured that conditions are much better than they were. It was pointed out that there is no unemployment now and people are not dying of starvation. But the communist millenium is not yet — in this rich province of Kwangtung.

We watched the traffic on the Pearl River by the hour — it is fascinating if insufferably noisy — and noticed among other things a woman with a baby strapped to her back propelling her sampan with two heavy sweeps. It may be life threatening but it is not easy.

Noticing my interest, a Swedish engineer walked up to me with a pleased smile on his face, pointed to the river and said, "Ah, do you smell it?" It would be difficult not to smell the Pearl River. The traffic on it is a fascinating sight to watch but the variety of its smells cannot easily be ignored. I had not thought the latter would be something over which anyone would become ecstatic — and some surprise must have shown upon my face. Because my engineer friend said, "No, no, I do not mean the river smell, I mean the smell of sulphite from the pulp and paper mill — all built with Swedish equipment by Swedish engineers." I thought surely one must have to be an engineer to love the smell of sulphite.

OLD WESTERN CUSTOM

On returning to Kowloon (which is on the mainland side of the Crown Colony of Hong Kong), we porters carried our six pieces of baggage from the station to the ferry; were stopped with them; and carried them from the ferry to a taxi. Quite a distance — altogether. I had been told to pay six Hong Kong dollars between the two of them but they insisted it should be six Hong Kong dollars each, so I gave it to them. I still thought the equivalent of two Canadian dollars cheap enough for all the work involved.) However, I was being cheated; quite a change after three and a half weeks in New China where there is no tipping and where cheating is unheard of. The customs of the West are not all superior by any means.

No male after three and a half weeks in China where, as I have said before sex is merely a biological phenomenon, can miss the main difference on his return to Kowloon and Hong Kong. Here there are women who use lipstick. Some of them are quite attractive and they wear their shirts slit up the sides to about half way between the knee and hip. To avoid any misunderstanding I shall add that no longer did I feel compelled to hold my wife's arm — something that is not done in Modern China.

Tips for a Productive Garden

BY FLORA M. SAVILLE

The success of any garden plan is careful working out of many small details. Here are a few tips which will aid in turning a mere garden into a productive one.

Having worked the soil to a fine tilth make the seed drills and water the trench before sowing the seed. The available moisture will sprout the seed two or five days earlier.

Heavier yields of snap, and lima beans can be had by planting them further apart. Allow four inches between wax and green beans and six to eight inches between limas.

Carrots for storage should be planted between June first and mid-July. The roots will not be overgrown and woody at harvest time.

A second application of fertilizer after the first picking is taken from the beans will prolong the season. Make a shallow drill beside the plants and apply the fertilizer, cover lightly water well and watch for a second burst of bloom. Side dress with fertilizer - cabbage, tomatoes, lettuce, brussels sprouts and cauliflower to keep them thriving. Keep a loose mulch of soil around their roots and less water will be needed. The mulch will slow evaporation.

PROTECT CAULIFLOWER

When the white head of cauliflower begins to form they need protection from the sun. Tie the long outer leaves up over the heads loosely. Go over the plant three times a week. They develop at different rates.

Tomatoes root along their stems. If the plants are leggy gently ease them over and cover six to eight inches of stem with soil, or if they have not been set out too long reset them at a lower level. Mulch with grass clippings.

Grow all vegetables fast. If the season is dry supply the necessary moisture. Feed two or three times if the plant is a long lived type such as tomatoes, peppers, egg plant, or Swiss chard. Slow growth produces tough bitter fibres.

Keep on hand Dutch seta to replace those you have used. When an onion goes to seed there is no way of stopping it. Better dig and use it. The bulb will grow no more.

Swiss chard is easier to grow than spinach and you can count on it for that green vegetable all summer long. Use the tender leaves shredded in salads.

Keep strawberry blossoms picked off newly set out plants. Allow no berries to form the first year and you will have a bumper crop next year.

Newly-set rhubarb plants should not be used the first year.

Plant radishes, heat resistant lettuce, Chinese cabbage, broccoli or brussels sprouts in the space left after early crops are finished. Yellow and green beans can be planted until mid-July.

Scarlet runner beans will take up little space on a fence, will supply you with pleasant shade at the back porch and yield the best green beans you ever tasted. Use them when they are six inches long.

Home-Building Boom in Full Swing Here

Permits Issued in 5 Months For Houses Worth 2 Million In East, West Annexed Areas

A residential building boom, started following the war and rapidly increasing in volume during the past decade, has swung into high gear in the city this year with home building for the first five months reaching close to the two million dollar mark.

Of the 218 permits issued this year close to 90 per cent have been for new housing with home building during March alone totalling over $800,000.

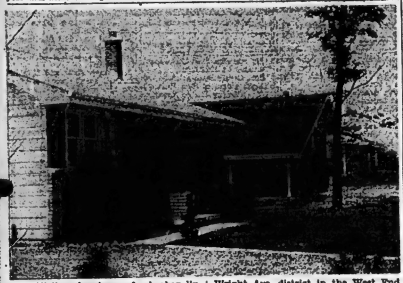
During April building permits values at over half a million dollars were taken out at city hall while May permits for housing total $303,000.

Grant Stickle, city building inspector, says this year's volume is the greatest during his period as inspector.

Making possible the current city building boom was the annexation taking place last January 1st which saw close to 2,500 acres in Sidney and Thurlow townships added to Belleville.

It is in this annexed area where the vast majority of the new residential construction is taking place.

Busiest building district is the former Thurlow township area in the east end of the city. Here dozens of new street names have appeared in the past two or three years and new churches and schools are planned or underway to take care of the population increase.



But the same is true although on a possibly lesser scale in the West End where dozens of better-class homes have been built in the past year or so with new sub-divisions springing up in what only a few years ago was open farm land.

Samples of new street names on the West Hill are Glen Road, Leland Drive and Selena Drive. On the East Hill such street names as Elizabeth Crescent, Munro Drive, Bathgate Road, Southwood Crescent, Sunset Drive and Stanely Park Drive have appeared.

Many of these streets are already built up and on others foundations are going in every day as builders and real estate agents are having their biggest boom days in years.

Both in the East and West annexed area many better-class homes are being built. Variety is the rule rather than the exception and $15,000 to $20,000 split levels seemingly vie with each other in being different. Top value so far reached in a house in the eastern annexed area is a $25,000 dwelling being built by a local contractor on Stanley Park Drive.

Scenes along some of the new area showing the various styles of new housing are shown on this page.

All the advantages of suburban living even to the lowing of cattle and the chirp of crickets is offered in this North Wright Ave. district in the West End. Houses shown are at the "end of the line" with open fields still beyond.

No Purchases Made by Ont. Cheese Producers

KEMPTON, (CP)—Prices held firm Thursday at the weekly meeting of Kingston Cheese Exchange with 13,998 boxes offered for sale.

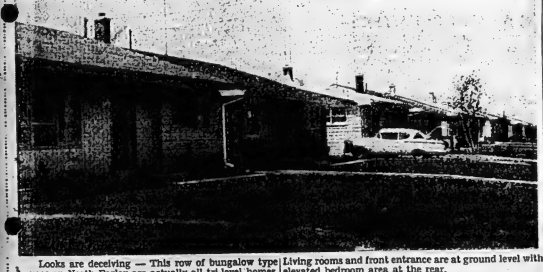
Purchases by independent buyers were 4,567 boxes of first-grade white and 2,491 first-grade colored. The white cheese prices ranged from 33 cents to 33 7-16; colored cheese 33½-34.

Independent buyers also bought 4,900 boxes of special cheese. No purchases were made by the Ontario Cheese Producers Co-operative Ltd.

SCOTS COLLEGE

King's College at Aberdeen, Scotland, was founded by Bishop Elphinstone in 1494.

But being within the city limits doesn't mean home owners automatically get house to house mail delivery. Attesting to this is the line of mailboxes along No. 2 Highway serving residents on Selena Ave. Postal authorities say door to door mail service "will be extended when conditions warrant."

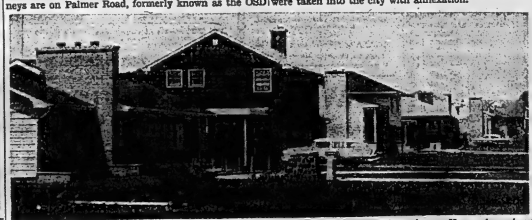


Variety is the spice of life and the saying applies doubly to modern sub-division development. Here on Selena Drive in the West End four distinctly different home types, ranging from ranch style, to tri-level and shed roof construction.

Tops in ranch house living is this tree sheltered attached garage beauty on East Bridge Street at the corner of Stanley Park Drive. There are many such homes in this area.

These two better class ranch style bungalows with a third underway are on Sunset Drive running east from Stanley Park drive on the Parrott sub-division.

Looks are deceiving — This row of bungalow type houses on North Farley are actually all tri-level homes. Living rooms and front entrance are at ground level with elevated bedroom area at the rear.



These smart bungalows with big fireplace chimneys are on Palmer Road, formerly known as the OSD Lane. These houses were built two and three years ago, were taken into the city with annexation.

Ready-made shade is a big feature for these new homes currently going up on Southwood Crescent. Area is north of Bridge St. and east of Farley Ave.

New Moira Secondary School is two blocks further north.

New in the West End but with lawns completed and back yard development well underway is this line of new dwellings on Selena Ave. Homes have been completed nearly two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baldwin Hosts To Friends on Golden Anniversary

(Contributed)

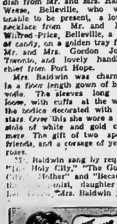
A golden wedding anniversary is a very special event and Northport community very much anticipated that of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baldwin, to which they were informally invited for the afternoon.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin made their permanent home here, twelve years ago, Mrs. Baldwin since her wheel chair, has been interested in every member of the community and Mr. Baldwin has been adept in their attractive home and has made life more pleasant for Mrs. Baldwin by receiving their many friends with such hospitality, that a call or an impromptu invitation to dine with them was a unique pleasure.

Beuh Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin were born in Hull, Yorkshire England and married there on June 1st, 1909, in St. Wilfred's Church, by the Canon Wood. They came to Canada in 1913, when their first child, Lillian, now Mrs. H. Taylor, Belleville, was an infant and located in Bellecroft where their two other children were born, Olive, (Mrs. L. Denyer, Port Hope) and Major George Baldwin, stationed presently in Calgary, with his wife, the former Reta Rabbie, and two sons, Ronnie and Stuart. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin have three granddaughters, two grandsons and one great-granddaughter.

Mr. Baldwin enlisted in Belleville in the First World War, served with different battalions, went overseas and subsequently, after 1916, with the 154th, an infantry battalion, for England, where he was president of the Seaforth recreation club in the Y.M.C.A. Later he was in action with the 21st battalion in France, and was decorated with the Military Medal in 1918. He was badly gassed and blind for six months. In the Second World War, Mr. Baldwin was in the Reserve army.

The guest book in which granddaughter Audrey Taylor, invited the visitors to write their names, indicated that approximately fifty friends from Belleville, Port Hope, Picton, Toronto and Northport community enjoyed this special day with Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin who had planned a very exceptional buffet lunch for the occasion.



The dining-room was lovely with flowers. On the lace-covered table was a large, low arrangement of bronze and gold 'mums, a gift from Northport community, candles, a silver tea and coffee service, presided over during the afternoon, by Mrs. Harold Barker, Mrs. Fred Kolchosaw, Mrs. Eric Foster and Mrs. Roy Mowbray. Vases of yellow roses and pink and white carnations were the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor. A separate table with candles, held the golden wedding cake in the shape of a large open book, iced in gold and decorated with golden roses. The gift of Mr. and Mrs. L. Denyer. This was served at the close of the tea, with a glass of fruit punch, a flavorful mixture created by the host, and poured by Mr. Ed Baubie.

The two daughters, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Denyer, were assisted for the occasion by Mrs. W. Price, Belleville, and Misses Marie Foster and Ruth Wallbridge, Northport.

The living room was attractive with pots of yellow 'mums, also gifts of friends and relatives and a basket of bronze and gold 'mums sent by Major and Mrs. George Baldwin and sons. Other gifts were a chafing dish from Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wrese, Belleville, who were unable to be present, a lovely necklace from Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price, Belleville, a box of candy, on a golden tray from Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jones, Trenton, and lovely handkerchief from Port Hope.

Mrs. Baldwin was charming in a floor length gown of black voile. The sleeves long and loose, with ruffle at the wrist, the bodice decorated with gold stars. Over this she wore a long stole of white and gold taffeta. The gift of two special friends, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. Baldwin sang by request, "The Holy City," "The Golden Wedding," and "Because," [illegible] and daughter Lillian [illegible] Mrs. Baldwin joining him at times. Some hymns were sung by a group of neighbors in the living room, among them, "God Will Take Care of You" accompanied by Mrs. Fred Kolchosaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin greatly enjoyed the numerous cards sent to them. They will treasure these along with the memory of the friends and neighbors who came to enjoy the day with them, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gill, Belleville, friends of over forty years.

The attractive home which the Baldwins own and occupy, merits at least a brief mention on this occasion. The original dates back about 150 years. Though it has been modernized, in both interior and, exterior, there remains plenty of evidence of the good workmanship of former days. It is spacious with high ceilings, well proportioned rooms, well served, and has a beautiful setting among the trees and overlooking the Bay of Quinte, a few yards west of the village of Northport.

JACK C. LUNDBERG

My Fellow Citizens:

Our county and this riding has wonderful possibilities as a tourist centre . . . but, through the shortsightedness of the present government there has been nothing done to facilitate the development of tourist facilities in this area . . . other than the semi-completion of a superhighway designed to take the tourists — and their money — as quickly as possible from Windsor and Niagara Falls through Ontario to the vacationlands of Quebec and northern New York state . . . hardly what one can call progress.

Our county and this riding have wonderful the Bay of Quinte have not been even thought of by Queen's Park and our current government as being one of the finest natural bodies of water on the Great Lakes to develop marina facilities to cater to the thousands of pleasure craft which are looking for pleasant places to dock and obtain supplies.

This is one of the things which I feel this area requires active and immediate attention to . . . the development of one of Ontario's most lucrative industries . . . but one which has been going downhill steadily over the past number of years due to the refusal of Queen's Park to enact such legislation as would make our province more attractive to the more than 10,000 tourists who will enter Ontario this year. The appalling fact which the present government has ignored is that only 7 per cent of these tourists — about 700,000 will be staying in our province for two or more days.

I pledge myself to give you active representation in this matter as well as all matters which concern our riding following your confidence on June 11th.

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Blue-capped troops in the desert sands of the Gaza Strip and the Sinai Peninsula, a token army of some 5,000 officers and men is making history as the world's first international police force.

In its third year of existence, the Canadian - proposed United Nations Emergency Force now has become an example for what could be tried in other trouble spots of the world.

Troops from seven countries—none from the big powers—make up this unique force of Canadians, Danes, Yugoslavs, Indians, Brazilians, Norwegians and Swedes. Under the command of Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, on loan from the Canadian Army, the force is jokingly described as the "private army" of Dag Hammarskjold, UN secretary-general, to whom it is directly responsible.

RELATIVE PEACE

The UNEF troops are there for the purpose of maintaining the peace between the United Arab Republic and Israel. Whether because of their presence along the borders or for other reasons, relative peace has reigned between the two countries since the Suez crisis of 1956.

What could Gen. Burns' "pocket army" do in the event of real trouble between the U.A.R. and Israel? It has no artillery, no effective air power and no armor to match those in the possession of the two hostile countries whose borders it has to police.

But the mere physical presence of the force on the border is probably a deterrent to spontaneous incidents, even though it might be of less value in the case of a planned, aggressive onslaught.

The force was moved into the area in the wake of the Suez crisis. Originally, its personnel also included contingents from Indonesia, Colombia and Finland. These later were withdrawn.

Since its deployment in this one trouble spot, it has had to deal with few incidents of serious nature.

STRING OF OUTPOSTS

The main task of the force—to use that no one crosses the Gaza Strip frontier—is carried out by means of a string of 76 observation posts along the 80-mile length of the line, about 30 miles long. The posts are manned by day by teams of two men each. Their main equipment consists of binoculars and field telephones. Most of the observation posts are no more than trench holes in the sand, surrounded by sandbags and topped by a corrugated iron roof or canvas.

After dark, the UNEF troops in the Gaza Strip are manned by day by teams of two men each. Their main equipment consists of binoculars and field telephones. Most of the observation posts are no more than trench holes in the sand, surrounded by sandbags and topped by a corrugated iron roof or canvas.

Reconnaissance troops of the Royal Canadian Armored Corps patrol the uninhabited desert area along the frontier from Gaza to the Gulf of Aqaba in white-painted scout cars and jeeps. Continuous radio contact is maintained between the patrols and battalion headquarters and also overhead by reconnaissance aircraft belonging to the force.

KEEP GULF OPEN

Air patrols are maintained by a Canadian transport unit of four small Otter aircraft operating from an airfield at El-Arish, in northern Sinai.

From Israel's point of view the force's main role has been to safeguard free navigation through the Gulf of Aqaba to and from Israel's Red Sea outlet at Elath.

A tiny garrison o Swedes and Danes stationed at Sharm Ez Sheikh, on the southernmost tip of Sinai, has guaranteed this freedom of passage through the narrow channel which links the gulf with the Red Sea.

Today, Elath has become a point of call for many ships, a terminal point for the trans-Israel oil pipeline and an important cog in the wheel of Israel's trade with East Africa and Asia.

IMPORTANT DETERRENT

Trained political observers here consider that the presence of the force at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba has been an important deterrent to a possible new Israeli push in one of the most sensitive areas between Israel and the U.A.R.

Thus, complex problems ranging from control over thieves in the night to world issues such as the freedom of shipping have become the business of the Canadian general who serves as UN watchdog in the Middle East.

From his headquarters in the ancient Philistine city of Gaza, Gen. Burns directs the operations of his small army, keeps in touch with the governments in the area and keeps his weather eye cocked for any potential trouble.

A veteran of the Second World War, when he commanded the 5th Canadian Armored Division in Italy, Gen. Burns has learned to become a past master at the delicate art of political intrigues and repeated upheavals. Patience and hard work have become his middle names.

STICKLER FOR DETAIL

Fully conscious of his unique position, he is careful to confine comment on any of his terms of reference and is a stickler for detail. He is cautious about policy matters, too. He is aware that his every utterance may be carefully weighed by diplomats and politicians of at least a dozen sensitive nations.

How big his task will continue neither he nor anyone else would dare say. Ironically, the presence of his force depends on the will of the two governments of the U.A.R. on whose soil it is stationed. So far, no objections to its presence there have been raised publicly by anyone in the region.

In fact, the UN-General Assembly recently accepted Hammarskjold's view that the "interests of the United Nations are best served by the continuance of the force as it has been established," and voted $19,000,000 for its 1959 budget.

What Was Happening D-Day Too Big to Understand Say Troops Who Made Landing

By DAVE McINTOSH

Weather unsettled. Sea rough. Dead ahead: The beaches of Calvados.

Shells from 103 bombardment ships overhead. Ramps down. All ashore that's going ashore. Time: 8 a.m.

Operation Overlord, June 6, 1944—15 years ago today—the crucible of the Second World War.

The 3rd Canadian Infantry Division waded in on a five-mile front. First objectives: Bernieres-sur-Mer, St. Aubin-sur-Mer, Courseulles-sur-Mer. The 7th Brigade to the right, 8th to the left, 9th in reserve.

What was it like D-Day for the men on the fire-swept Calvados shore?

HE WAS SEASICK

Sgt. John Folkard, 45, of Grimsby, B.C.: "I was woozy. The ship rocked all over the place. It was a dull day and the clouds hold the enemy from the ground low over the water. I sure wished that boat would sit still. I was so sick I didn't have time to be afraid.

"I don't think any of us was worried at all before the landing; just intrigued. We didn't care whether we went through it or not. I went ashore in a Sherman tank. We didn't stop until we were a mile inland. I didn't know the German 88s were firing at us until one of the tanks was hit.

"But that's the way it was. What was happening was too big to understand. You just looked after your own little area."

Capt. Pierre Vallee, 42, of Quebec City: "One thing struck me as odd. My father was a doctor and after graduating from Laval studied two years in France and Germany and had taken holidays at Berniers-sur-Mer.

"I arrived there 40 years after him, under much more trying circumstances."

Lt.-Col. E. S. Bryant, 47, of Sarnia and Edmonton: "June 6 was the longest day in my life. There are times I can't even recall, just don't remember.

"I remember seeing casualties on the beach, soldiers and engineers. It was a bit of shock because the first one I saw was just half a body."

Lt.-Col. H. M. (Red) Grant, 53, of Halifax: "There were times when I was scared to death. For a while we thought we'd gotten into another Dieppe. The Germans were wonderful soldiers. You just can't take that away from them."

Sgt. Frank Oldham, 35, of Montreal: "It was awful damn messy."

Today is the 15th anniversary of D-Day, when Allied troops invaded France and started a military sweep across Europe that ended 11 months later in the defeat of Nazi Germany.

The first assault troops began wading ashore to the beaches of Normandy at 6:30 a.m., June 6, 1944. Paratroopers had dropped behind the German lines during the night.

The invasion force drew on a total Allied strength of 2,800,000 men, 4,000 ships and 13,000 planes. Against 65 German divisions on line and in reserve, the Allies had 39 divisions ready. Twenty were to be British, three Canadian, one Polish and one French.

President Eisenhower, the man who commanded the D-Day invasion, was spending the weekend at his country home situated at the edge of another battlefield—where the forces of North and South fought in the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg.

NORMANDY TOURIST

Pilgrims of the Allies who toiled in the battle for the beaches today toured towns and villages along the Normandy coast to mark the anniversary.

Places now dedicated to quiet rural living or catering for vacationists—Ponypeville, Ste. Mere Eglise, Vierville-sur-Mer, Arromanches, Bayeux, Bretteville-sur-Odon, Caen—35 years ago were the scenes of costly clashes with the German defenders.

Three days after the first assault, the Allies held a 30-mile-deep beachhead. Casualties numbered more than 10,000—including more than 2,000 dead.

Gen. Sir Richard Gale, deputy supreme Allied commander in Europe, along with about 100 relatives of British paratroopers killed on the Normandy campaign, took part in a remembrance ceremony at Ranville-sur-Orne village in France to be liberated.

British Papers Voice Concern at Adenauer's Move

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers today expressed concern about the effects West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's decision to stay in office will have on negotiations with Russia and the future of demilitarization in Germany.

The News Chronicle said "Adenauer believes that without Dulles dead and Eisenhower unpredictable he is the only strong man left in the West."

Editorially, the Liberal newspaper said Adenauer's "desire to keep the real power in his own failing hands shows scant respect for democratic ideals."

The Conservative Yorkshire Post asked how it could be said that the presence of an aged man at the vital helm of West Germany could "strengthen the Western position in this moment of international crisis."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph, on the other hand, said it believes his decision to stay on as chancellor will strengthen the Western cause.

The Manchester rGuardian, Liberal, said Adenauer "would have done better for Germany's general welfare if he had let his contentment see that they could do without even him."

The Times said that it was "not flattering either to his colleagues or to his party" for their "plans and expectations to be put yet overnight by a word from the leader."

Mother Saw Child Killed

ERIN (CP) — A mother saw her three - year - old daughter struck and killed by a car in a busy near this village 25 miles northwest of Guelph.

Police said the woman watched as her daughter, Eileen Heigl, darted into the path of a car driven by Joseph Dorse, 43, of Caledon.

Wintermeyer's Leadership Role Caps Rapid Rise in Ranks of Liberal Party

TORONTO (CP)—John Wintermeyer's leadership role in the current Ontario election campaign caps a rapid rise in the ranks of the Ontario Liberal party.

The 42-year-old Kitchener lawyer was a political nobody when he was appointed Ontario Minister of Public Welfare in the Liberal cabinet of Watertoo North in the 1955 election.

In his first legislature session he was picked from among the 11 Liberal members to be the financial critic of the government and immediately displayed a flair for this type of debate.

BECAME LEADER IN 1958

When Farquhar Oliver resigned the Ontario leadership in 1958, Mr. Wintermeyer had become one of the province's top-ranking Liberals. He was chosen leader at a party convention in a brisk ballot contest.

An unassuming man, he quickly won a wide circle of political friends from all parts of Ontario.

John Joseph Wintermeyer was born in Berlin—now Kitchener. He received his early education there and took a bachelor of commerce degree at Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind. He planned to study law at Osgoode and entered the Graduate School of Law at Harvard University to further his ambition.

While at Harvard he decided to abandon his earlier plan and take up law. After receiving his Harvard degree, he spent a year at the law school of Dalhousie University, Halifax, and was admitted to the bar in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

He made another important decision at Harvard — to marry Miss Mary Ellen Snyder, a graduate at Emmanuel College in Boston. They now have six children—James, 14; Ann, 9; Judith, 14; Mary-Ellen, 13; Gretchen, 8; and John, 4.

IN MUNICIPAL FIELD

Mr. Wintermeyer joined a Kitchener law firm after five years' practice with a Toronto firm. He made his first bid for public office in 1955, when he was unsuccessful seat in his home city. He served one term.

When he took over the Liberal leadership he began a personal campaign through 50,000 miles and touched all parts of the province.

Mr. Wintermeyer launched his election drive a full month before the election date was announced. Since then he has been on the campaign trail continually, promoting the platform he says was evolved from his earlier tour of Ontario.

In his campaign he has found a strong political helper in his wife. But it's no surprise—Mrs. Wintermeyer is the daughter-in-law dent of Daniel O'Connell, the "great liberator" of Irish political history.

3 Paratroopers Who Jumped On D-Day Still Together

RIVERS, Man. (CP — Three paratroopers who 15 years ago jumped into the early morning darkness over Normandy, among the first Canadians to land in the d-day invasion, still are in the army and working together at the Canadian Joint Air Training Centre here.

The three, all sergeants and paratroop instructors, are Sgt. Bill White, 36, of Port Alberni, B.C.; W. S. (Bill) Dunnett, 37, of Toronto, and Chuck Gibson, 34, of Lethbridge, Alta.

On D-Day, June 6, 1944, they were members of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion which seven hours before the main Allied invasion force hit the Normandy beaches.

Dunnett and Gibson came down near the little French village of Le Mesnil and immediately engaged the fiercely counter-attacking Germans.

Dunnett, wounded 10 days after the landing, recalls his D-Day thoughts.

"I was scared. The flak was this month.

heavy as we crossed the coast and one of the guns was hit. He fell in the plane's doorway and we had to crawl over him to jump."

After the first fighting near Le Mesnil, he was among the force which won the village of Varaville from the Germans in a stiff struggle.

Though all three later took part in various stages of the European campaign and Gibson and White also were with the Canadian force in the Korean action they did not meet until 1956 when they were posted here.

With the normal three - year tour of duty at Rivers behind them, there is a good chance the trio will be broken up when new posting orders are issued later this month.

Police said the accident occurred five miles east of this village.

Treated for exposure were the non-swimmer, Eric James, 47, of Kitchener, operator of Anchor Villa tourist home; Pte. Sgt. James Bunston, 43; Cpl. John Jeffry, 32, and Cpl. Raymond Buckley, 40, all of RCAF station, Hamilton.

Military Side of West Defence Is Played Down by Canada

GENEVA (AP) — A leading Indian lawyer has charged that the Chinese Communists have killed an estimated 80,000 Tibetans and deported 20,000 more since the first uprisings in Tibet three years ago.

He accused the Reds of terror, genocide and violation of human rights.

Shri Purshottam Trikandas, senior advocate of the Indian Supreme Court and a member of the International Commission of Jurists, made a press statement Friday that Tibetans still are resisting the Red Chinese regime in Eastern Tibet.

REPORT TO UN

Trikandas read a summary of a report on legal aspects of Chinese action in India's northern frontier. The commission of jurists, which has consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council, soon will submit the complete report to the UN and other international organizations.

Trikandas said resistance around the Tibetan capital of Lhasa appears to have been crushed.

"Since the rebel area is mountainous and difficult terrain for [illegible] to operate in, large-scale aerial bombing has been resorted to," Trikandas continued.

"In the accessible parts civilable terror has been let loose on the population . . . there has been a systematic policy of killing, imprisonment and deportation of those opposed to the regime.

"There has been a deliberate violation of fundamental human rights . . . on the part of the Chinese there has been an attempt to break up the national, ethical, racial and religious group of Tibetans by killing members of the group and by causing serious bodily and mental harm. These acts constitute the crime of genocide."

In New Delhi, the Hindustan Standard said Chinese authorities have crushed all Tibetan resistance to Chinese rule.

The newspaper's Darjeeling correspondent wrote: "Public trials through the people's committees are being openly held of former resistors whom the Chinese authorities consider unsafe.

"Inside Sera and Drepung monasteries, Lhasa, the monks are confined to the assembly halls and allowed to come out only one by one to face public trial."

Indian Claims 60,000 Tibetans Killed and 20,000 Deported

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

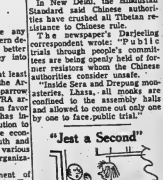
The Canadian government has been playing down the military side of Western defence and playing up the economic aspect.

The reason is that the government appears unwilling to spend large amounts of money on expensive new weapons.

But at the same time Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been throwing out more and more warnings about the Communist trade offensive.

He has made a point in two recent speeches of declaring that military aid is not enough, that the West must give more economic help to underdeveloped countries before they fall prey to communism.

Mr. Diefenbaker, like most Canadians, is not a military man and apparently wants as little as possible to do with heavy defence expenditures. He rejected flatly the recommendation of the chiefs of staff that the government buy the Arrow jet interceptor for the RCAF.



The prime minister evidently believes that Canada, a middle power which can't make any major contribution to Western defence, would be better advised to put its money into economic aid.

This has cancelled at least four military programs—the Arrow, Iroquois jet engine, Sparrow air-to-air missile and ASTRA armament control system—in favor of cheaper systems, he has increased Canada's contribution to the Colombo plan for the economic development of south and southeast Asia and to various United Nations refugee organizations.

And while the shipment of armaments to Canada's European partners in NATO has been reduced, $10,000,000 will be put up to store flour for a NATO food bank.

Since NATO was formed 10 years ago, Canada has given its Allies in Europe $1,600,000,000 worth of arms. The program reached its peak in 1953-54 when Canada shipped $289,707,000 worth of armaments abroad. The estimate for the current fiscal year is $90,000,000.

Big Four Talks 'Move Forward' At Secret Meet

GENEVA (CP)—The Big Four foreign ministers today had a two-hour private meeting and agreed to hold another one Monday afternoon.

A British spokesman said the foreign ministers had "moved forward" in their talks on Berlin, Germany and European security.

The atmosphere, he said, was "good."

Other Western informants said, however, that today's talks were inconclusive. They said the discussion was devoted to Berlin.

The restricted meeting at British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's town residence wound up the fourth week of the conference. Monday's private talks will be held in the Soviet villa.

There will be no formal session Monday. The 15th formal session of the conference was held Friday.

No progress has been made in the formal sessions but there have been indications of a possible agreement in the restricted meetings.

A BIT OF AN ADVANCE

Asked about today's meeting, the British spokesman said: "I would go along with the Soviet spokesman's statement in briefing a few days ago that the ministers are moving forward, backward."

Western officials earlier were reported taking of setting a time limit for ending the conference to force it to a point of decision.

Western diplomats believe Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko probably will make his "rock bottom" offer for a Berlin agreement at a summit meeting in the last 48 hours of the conference.

They think Gromyko is awaiting new instructions from Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

CONSULTATION LIKELY

Speculation continued in the Western Camp that Gromyko might fly to Moscow this weekend to consult with Khrushchev personally.

Western officials said privately the three Allied ministers hold out hope of any immediate progress for resolving this and related Berlin issues.

The feel Gromyko cannot give a final answer to their insistence the Soviets remove threats to West Berlin unless he gets further policy decisions from the Kremlin.

Pearkes Certain Bomarc Missile Best Defense

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes said Friday if the Bomarc missile is not proved effective by the United States trials, will not continue its development on its own.

Mr. Pearkes, here for a meeting of the Naval Officers' Association of Canada, said Canada "would be stupid" to develop the missile if the American government was not confident of its worth.

"But if he told a press conference, "I am convinced the Bomarc is the best defence for the North American continent."

"We should have defence in depth," he said, "including strategic centres from which strategic air command bombers could be launched and a chain of Bomarc stations covering an area of northern United States and Canada. Closer to the SAC station, we would have Nike stations."

He said construction of the Bomarc base at North [illegible] will begin this summer [illegible] all goes well," will be [illegible] by the end of 1961. He said the semi-automatic ground environment unit is not included in the summer start.

On defence costs, he said there will be 'no substantial lowering on defence costs if we live up to our present commitments. If it is possible to limit the number of troops in Europe then a lowering would result."

Tightened Money Sends Prices Of Bonds Down

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A federal government issue of $200,000,000 one-year treasury bills featured the bond market this week. The offering, dated June 10 to mature June 10, 1960, was unique in Canada in that it was the first time the Canadian government has offered one-year bills.

The bills were awarded on an average of 5.49 per cent and traded around the 5.50 per cent level.

Market reaction to the bills was mixed as corporations and banks adjusted their short government holdings. At the end of the week, most issues were down in price, and trading around the all-time high yields.

The usual 91-day treasury bills was awarded on an average of 5.08 per cent, a reversal of the trend of the last two weeks and a new high. Last week the 91 day bills averaged 4.90 per cent.

MONEY TIGHT

Day-to-day money tightened drastically from about 2½ to 5 percent and helped send bond prices down.

Provincial bonds followed the general trend and rose slightly in yield, under pressure from new issues. The Ontario and Ontario Hydro 5 per cent talent issues were trading at 95 3/4 to yield about 5.35 per cent.

The City of Ottawa came to the market with a $17,000,000, 5 ¼ per-cent debenture issue which was sold on a 5.80-per-cent basis. Metropolitan Toronto has filed with Securities Exchange Commission a $40,000,000 issue, of which $32,700,000 will be in long-term 20-year debentures.

Corporation bonds, long the most stable in the market, have started to fall in price under pressure of new issues and rumored new issues. Industrial Acceptance Corporation successfully sold $10,000,000 6 - per - cent bonds due 1979 at $100.

Bowling Notes

The first monster jitney of the season at the bowling greens will be held on Monday evening. It will be known as the "White Elephant" jitney in that the local bowlers will bring the prizes that will be distributed to the winners. It is expected a large number will be on hand from Campbellford, Brighton and Trenton and the money derived from the jitney will be used to make repairs to the kitchen, that have become absolutely necessary as a ruling by the Board of Health.

A completely new kitchen will be installed and it will be modern in every respect. The women's section of the club has donated a considerable sum for this work and it is hoped that the revenue from the jitney will be enough to complete the project. There will be three games played and it is hoped that the jitney will get under way shortly after seven.

Four rinks of doubles will journey to Kingston this afternoon to take part in the McCarney trophy tournament. The entry of 32 rinks has been received and the first three Canadian and three 15-end games will be played. The rinks going from the local club are Jim Wright and Gordon Watkin; Ernie Jones and Bruce Miller; Gordon Vince and Walter Elliott and Johnny Johnston and Claude D. Tice.

The first tournament of the season at the local greens will be held next Saturday when the Hyde trophy is competed for. It is expected it will be a double draw and that the games will start in the morning so they can be finished before midnight. Charles L. Hyde and Mayor Gerald B. Hyde are sponsors of the tourney and donate a number of prizes. A large entry is expected from the district along with the local teams. This tourney is a mixed doubles affair and most of the rinks have been chosen already.

Former Member Of Force Says Boy Strapped

HULL, Que. (CP)—A former member of the nearby Aylmer police force said Friday that Police Chief Roland Mareau admitted to him that he had handcuffed and strapped a young boy May 12.

Former constable Raymond Archambault, who resigned May 16, was testifying before Judge Jacques Boucher at the trial of Chief Mareau who is charged by the boy's father, Leo Leblanc, with assault causing bodily harm.

Gilles LeBlanc, 11, told the court that the chief ordered him to take down his pants and stretch on a cell bench. He said he was struck "two or three times" with a strap.

The incident allegedly occurred while the police chief was questioning the boy about a watch stolen from school.

Dr. Georges LeBel, who examined the boy, said there were three blue marks on each hip and right leg.

The case continues today.

At 68 were three other golfers including Deane R. Beman of Silver Springs, Md., the British amateur champion.

Erie Hanson of Don Mills, second-ranked Canadian amateur, was seventh with a 72. Hanson, 20, lost the playoff of the Canadian Amateur last year to Bruce Castiner of Toronto.

tive Conservatives are "gleefully gloating" over the Liberal financial problems which have caused the party to reduce its campaign advertising.

SAYS PCs SPEND MORE

"I'm not ashamed of our position. I'm proud of it. We're not spending one-tenth of what the Conservatives are spending in this election and Mr. Frost knows it very well."

The Conservatives "seem determined to spend whether they've got the money or not—at least that's what they do in government."

The government should be telling the people of Ontario what it plans to do in relation to matters "over which it has control."

Instead, it was running on a record which was "not what it pretends to be" and was taking credit for the St. Lawrence Seaway and hospital insurance which "the Liberal government in Ottawa had something to do with."

Mr. MacDonald suggested that the "very baby" Liberals support the CCF in its proposal to limit election funds and make public declarations of campaign support.

CAN'T MAKE LEVIES

He said the Liberal party was broke because "it can't make a levy on those who get contracts from the government."

"The point that should not be missed is that Mr. Winternerve has no basic objections to this procedure of raising election slush funds. The Liberals' only objection is that they are not in a position to get their sticky fingers into the contract pot."

He turned on Premier Frost's statement that there are no "old states" in the Progressive Conservative party. "The toll gate was a hidden charge on every contract issued by the government.

"Another point that should not be missed in Mr. Winternerve's [illegible] is the proof-fact that he complains...on one hand that the big contributors have not come through as expected and on the other hand that they are getting no support from a specific group or economic segment, namely the trade unions.

"The Liberal party has been forsaken by the corporations because it is obvious that they are going to lose and they've been forsaken by the economic grassroots."

Speaking at Terrace Bay and Schreiber, provincial Secretary Phillips says the government is seriously considering backing loans to northern tourist camp operators.

He said the tourist trade is one of Ontario's biggest industries. yet service in some motels and tourist camps are "a disgrace to the province."

The operators needed loans to improve their facilities.

Record Entry Schedued for Pan-American

CHICAGO (AP) — Pan-American Games officials said today 2,325 athletes, a record for any Western Hemisphere athletic contest, will compete in the third games here Aug. 27-Sept. 7.

The United States will send the largest delegation, 391 men and women who will seek honors in all 27 sports on the program.

Mexico, with an indicated entry of 200, will send the second largest delegation. Canada is next with 175, Brazil has 170 and Argentina 148.

Of the 26 eligible nations, only Honduras seems likely to pass up the invitation to compete.

The games organizing committee said a mail survey indicated attendance is sure to eclipse the 1,300 figure of the second Pan-American Games in Mexico City in 1955.

Athletes will be accompanied by 477 team officials. Canada's team will be accompanied by 31

Weslock Wins Golf Tourney

BURLINGTON (CP) — Nick Weslock, veteran Canadian amateur playing out of Windsor Essex country, won the 36-hole Burlington Golf and Country Club invitational tournament with a 143 total Friday.

Weslock, one of Canada's eight-man team picked to play in the international pro-am matches in Toronto June 23, did the first 18 in 70 and came through with a solid 73 for one second.

He ended up with a three-stroke lead over Burlington's Larry St. Aubin, who carded 74-71.

Weslock was playing in a three-some with Gord McKenzie of Hamilton, first-round leader with a 69, McKenzie soared to a 79 on the second and wound up with 148.

Weslock's 143 was one over par.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, reigning champ, wound up fifth with 73-74—240.

Indian Jack Jacobs, Hamilton Tiger - Cats football assistant coach, made one of his rare appearances in tournament play and fired a creditable 81-72—254.

Beats World Javelin Mark

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — Al Cantello, a husky marine from Quantico, Va., bettered the world javelin record Friday night in the first event of the Compton relays.

Cantello threw the spear 282 feet 3½ inches on his third toss. This bettered the world mark of 281 feet 2¼ inches set by Norway's Egil Danielsen at the Olympic Games in Australia in 1956.

Meet officials said Cantello's throw would be submitted for a record.

Dave Mills, born in Galt and raised in Sudbury, a freshman at Purdue University, ran sixth in the 440-yard dash. No time was taken.

Darkhorse Mike Larrabee of the Southern California striders scored a major upset in winning the race as the two hottest contestants, Eddie Southern of Texas and favored Glenn Davis of the Ohio Track Club, ran third and fourth, respectively.

Larrabee, formerly of the University of Southern California, was clocked at 46.1. Chuck Carlson of Colorado finished second.

TV Gunslingers Are Making Hay in East at Fairs, Rodeos

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The gold rush is on, with TV's gunslingers breeding the cry, "go east, young hero."

This is the season for the western stars to fill their pouches with the lucre from the hinterlands. They are heading east not by pony but by jet, to display themselves before admiring throngs at fairs, rodeos and whatever.

They ride a little, ride a little, tell jokes, twirl their six-shooters, smile and sign autographs.

Figures released by the New Mexico State Fair Commission give some idea of the money to be had. Gene Barry (Bat Masterson) has been set for two appearances in one day at the September fair for $2,000; Dale Robertson (Wells Fargo) for six appearances in three days at $7,500, The Gunsmoke trio — Dennis Weaver, Amanda Blake, Milburn Stone—will come in for six appearances at $6,500.

Robert Horton (Wagon Train) is making hay this summer with stock dates as the Cincinnati rodeo and Tulsa horse show, at well as playing Pirate in Detroit and Guys and Dolls in Warren, Ohio. Chuck Connors and young Johnny Crawford (the Rifleman) were booked for the St. Louis police circus and Omaha rodeo.

Robert Culp (Trackdown) expects to earn $70,000 this year from personals, probably as much as he gets from the series. Among the Culp Lincoln, Neb., centennial, Salina and Coffeyville, Kan., rodeos, and Kelly (Maverick) just returned from the Washington, D. C., horse show. Hugh O'Brian has gone from a Winnipeg rodeo to playing The Fairmasker in Chicago.

Many of these appearances are booked by Mary Markham, who calls herself a star producer.

"We don't send stars out to say 'hello, folks, I'm glad to be here,'" she remarked. "They do something. If they don't have talent as performers, we give it to them."

Dale Robertson, Perry Botkin, who played guitar for Bing Crosby for many years, taught Dale Robertson to sing, and now Dale is playing Las Vegas. He and Crosby and Our Boss—Al Boucher — CFRC, Sawdust Corner

The TV set has definitely established its place in the family circle, but its location in the living room sometimes presents a problem. Size of the room arrangement of furniture and TV screen size can all have a bearing on this point.

Although the TV set's location in the room is a matter of individual purpose, the furniture the viewer is from the screen the easier it is on the eyes. We would suggest that you sit as far from the screen as is visually comfortable.

We might also suggest that your TV set may be giving you less than top performance without you realizing it. Let CIRCLE SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. check over your set. You'll be amazed at the difference in viewing pleasure. Dial WO 8-6791 (in Trenton EX 2-7080).

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

What shapes up as the best boxing attraction held in this part of Ontario in many years is scheduled for Memorial Arena on Tuesday night.

The cream of amateur milmen from Hamilton, Peterborough and Oshawa will be here to do battle with Belleville's best, and from this vantage point, it looms up as an action-packed evening.

This, as Belleville Boxing club president Jack Fitzgerald points out, "is the card Belleville fandom has been waiting for. We have brought in the best boys we could find in Ontario and nobody can deny, after looking over the card, that it fairly teems with ring class and talent. It is the best array of punch power, I believe, ever brought to this city."

Fitzgerald is staging what he calls "four main bouts" and a look at the personnel indicates he is not too far out. These bouts will be of five-round duration, while four three-rounders complete the attraction card.

One angle of the show is that the top fighters of the Belleville club, will be facing the severest test since the organization came into being.

Jack "Rocky" Lucas and Harry Parsons actually headline the card and both fighters will be up against the toughest competition they have been matched with at any time ago. Both won theirfirst two outings with more or less comfortable ease, but this time, the promoters feel both city sluggers will be extended to the limit to keep their local unbeaten record intact.

The third and fourth "main bouts" sees two clever boxers in action, both of whom have exhibited their wares here. They are Grant O'Reilly, clever Oshawa lightweight, and Paul Daniels, Ontario lightweight champion out of Peterborough, who fought a brilliant battle here in the boxing club opened the season, with O'Reilly winning a hairline verdict.

"Rocky" Lucas has been pitted against Sam Peranich, who fights under the colors of the Hamilton St. Mary's Boxing Club. He is reputed to be one of the hardest punching boys to come out of Western Ontario and has an enviable ring record. He should give Lucas, who is no mean shakes as a puncher himself, all he wants to do, to grab the victory.

Parsons, one of the most promising youngsters to be developed here, had little or no trouble winning his first two appearances in his home-town ring. He won an easy verdict in the first bout and put his opponent away in the eight order in the second one. He might run into a snag Tuesday when he faces Joey LeRoy, also of St. Mary's, Hamilton, who is accustomed to leaving the ring a winner. The decision should be one of the features of the evening and should bring out the best in Parsons.

O'Reilly, who already is a favorite here, has been matched to meet Johnny Ray of the Hamilton club and this looms up as a thrill-packed fight since Ray is rated highly both in his home city of Hamilton and Toronto as well.

The fourth Hamilton main-bouter to appear on the card is Omar Secord who will toss punches with Paul Daniel. This should be an outstanding fight also since the Hamilton Boxing Club management, aware of Daniel's record and ring prowess, readily consented to match their fighter with Daniel unless they thought he has a pretty fair chance of winning.

The Belleville Boxing Club has gone to considerable expense to bring to city and district ring fandom the best amateur rank-busting material available. All the visiting boxers are regarded as topflight performers in their respective districts and throughout Ontario as well. It makes for an outstanding card, and as there could be some surprising upsets, fans should not miss this best ring entertainment offered them in years. The show starts at 9.00 p.m.

Former Player Says

Canuck Grid Salaries Crazy, Americans Grossly Overpaid

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Are Canadian grid salaries crazy? A former player with the U.S. National Football League and the Western Interprovincial Football Union suggests they are.

Ed Sharkey, formerly of San Francisco 49ers in the NFL and the B. C. Lions of the WIFU, said Friday he was "grossly overpaid in Canada." The wage spread between well-paid U.S. players and salaries for Canadians gave Canadians little incentive to turn professional, he added in an interview.

POOR IDEA

He said it is not good for a team to have a wage spread of up to $5,000. Canadians were offered wages of up to $2,000 to $3,000 in the professional club but an outside American player could command up to $18,000 and a disgruntled WFL player could afford bickering at about $10,000.

Sharkey said many salesmen who coaches CFO Raiders of the Junior Big Four Football League here, said Canadians should be offered between $5,000 and $6,000.

He said he was paid more than $10,000 as a lineman on the Lions.

"Hay, it's absolutely crazy. In the NFL, which is far richer than the Canadian leagues, a player's salary is around $7,500. A team will pay one or maybe two of its top stars up to $12,000. A few, very few, go higher."

RETRACTIONS HURT

He agreed that the present restrictions on imports — 12 to a team — is part of the trouble. A team of 28 players cut from both NFL teams could whip anything in Canada and the average salary would be no more than $7,000.

Herb Capozzi, Lions' general-manager, commented later that a team of "discards" could never defeat a team of players selected from the NFL and college and Canadian teams.

He said all NFL players do not come here for higher salaries and that all do not receive them.

Unlimited imports, while it would improve the Lions, would not help greatly to increase the average wages.

DENIES REPORTS

TORONTO (CP)—Wm Buckingham, manager of the touring West Bromwich Albion soccer team of the English League, has denied reports circulating in England that he will move to the famed Juventus club of Italy, said to have offered him West Bromwich meets Dundee of the Scottish League here tonight.

Tribe Skids to Second Place As Chisox Clobber Boston; Big Newk Wins Four in Row

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The joke was good while it lasted, but it's the New York Yankees, no longer the stumbling, cellar-dwelling world champions, who are having the laugh now.

Laugh they're certainly doing, as the rest of the American League is discovering it was a mistake not to throw dirt in on the champs when they had 'em in a hole.

Nobody spurned while the Yankees sputtered (except for Detroit's Tigers, and they were in the same fix as New York). Now, after winning eight of their last 10 games, the champs have shot within 4½ games of the top.

ROMP OVER TWINS

They nailed their third in a row Friday night with a rollicking, 11-2 romp at Cleveland at the Injuns—who laughed the loudest at the Yankees' late plight—dropped their sixth straight.

The Injuns, who ribbed the Yanks about "choking up" for a rained-out game in New York last month, led the league by two games when the skid started. Now they're 1½ games behind Chicago's leading White Sox, who defeated Boston 5-2, and are in virtual a tie for second with the Baltimore Orioles, who won 6-1 at Kansas City.

Detroit took fifth place from Washington by beating the Senators 7-6, on Frank Bolling's seventh as the Yankees muscled into sixth.

The Yankees swung for 17 hits, six for extra bases, against loser Gary Bell and three relievers. Gil McDougald hit his first home run of the season and Elston Howard, Norm Siebern, Al Dittmar gave up seven hits, two of them homers by Billy Martin and Rocky Colavito.

SOX BREAK TIE

A three-run Boston double by Harry Simpson broke a 3-2 tie in the eighth for the White Sox. Gerry Staley was the winner in relief of Early Wynn. Frank Malzone homered for Boston.

Gus Triandos 12th home run sewed it up for the Orioles in the third inning. Jerry Lumpe's three-run homer in the ninth gave an added fillip to Milt Pappas' (5-3), who settled for a five hitter. Baltimore manager Paul Richards and Pitcher Billy Hoeft, ejected in a third-inning fracas with the umps.

A single by Al Kaline won it for the Tigers in the ninth, scoring Eddie Yost, who singled and moved to second on a sacrifice.

Hoeft Bob Allison was 5-for-5 and drove in four runs for the Nats with his 11th and 12th homer. Reliever Dave Sisler (1-3) was the winner.

Carbo Remanded For Extradition; Bail Cancelled

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Notorious Frankie Carbo, described as "a most corrupt, corrosive and degenerating influence on the sport of boxing," was remanded to Camden Country Prison pending outcome of extradition proceedings filed by the City of New York.

Judge Benjamin Dzick, who had freed Carbo in $25,000 bail May 26, cancelled the bond on the ground that the governor of New Jersey had signed an extradition warrant. That, he ruled, there could be no bail.

The 54-year-old Carbo has 10 days to file a writ of habeas corpus petition to dismiss the extradition charges which would free him completely if granted. If the writ is not filed and granted, Judge Dzick said he will turn Carbo over to New York authorities immediately.

A New York County grand jury has indicted him on 10 counts charging conspiracy and that he was an underworld boxing manager and matchmaker. He is also wanted on federal charges of income tax evasion.

Leafs Finally Grab Victory; Royals Lose

Musical chairs is a party game, in the International Baseball League it's becoming a way of life.

At various times recently, Columbus, Buffalo, Rochester and Miami have held the top perch in the pennant race, but jealousied the driver's seat as one of the other pretenders bore the throne put together a winning streak.

Now, it's long-shot Richmond looking down on the top spot.

The Virginians won their fifth in succession Friday night, coming from behind on Frank Leja's three-run whistling home run for a 5-4 victory over Montreal.

With the other contenders knocking each other around, Richmond, in fourth place, has edged within two games of the league lead held today by Columbus and Buffalo.

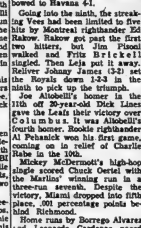
PACESETTERS LOSE

The pacesetters both lost, Toronto spilling for Jim Pisoni's 11th inning and Miami dropping Bubba Phillips to Rochester's Jim Gallagher, a half-game back of the leaders, bowed to Havana 6-1.

Going into the ninth, the streaking Vees had been limited to five hits by Miami righthander Ray Rakow. Rakow got past the first two hitters, but Jim Pisoni walked and Pete Britski then singled. Then Leja put it away. Relief man James (3-2) set the Royals down 1-2-3 in the ninth to pick up the triumph.

Jim Campbell's three-run homer in the 11th off 20-year-old Dick Lines gave the Leafs their victory over Columbus. It was Alobelli's fourth homer. Rookie righthander Al Pehanich was first going for coming on in relief of Charlie Beamon in the 10th.

Mickey McDermott's high-hop single scored Chuck Cortel with the Marlins' winning run in a three-run seventh. Despite the victory, Miami dropped into fifth place, .001 percentage points behind Richmond.



Home runs by Borrego Alvarez and Leonardo Cardenas paced Havana's attack at Rochester. Miguel Cuellar (4-3) limited the Red Wings to four hits. After Alvarez' third - inning homer had tied it, Havana went ahead to stay in the fourth on an unearned run off loser Cal Browning.

Rocks Have a Rough Racket Bouncing off 'Rassle' Heads

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Mayhap he's better looking with the contraption on, but Al Newman, or Al Lovelock, as your choice, insisted on wearing his facial disguise as the Great Bolo against Yukon Eric here last night.

Newman or Lovelock was unmasked in Toronto Thursday night when Whipper Billy Watson gave him his come-uppance, but he re-draped his mug to appear here.

Yukon did not win the bonnor did the Bolo, even with the flagrant assistance of Bunny Dunlop. The third fall ended in a near outside - the - ring riot with the Yuke and Bolo slugging it out, and Bunny wheezing and puffing through telling nearly 300 pounds of lard around, trying to count to ten.

He finally made it without aid of fingers and the scramble went into the records as "No Contest".

It was easily apparent why Bolo, there's nothing great about him, insisted on wearing his hideous disguise. It doesn't exactly scare anybody after the first time out, but it proved an admirable gimmick to cover up the lumps he felt were callouses or misplaced noses.

But in the second fall, the Yukon discovered there the "weapon" was cached. And it took him only two minutes to dislocate it and use it on the Bolo. That did it. Bunny counted the fateful three, then the Yuke, when he got to his feet held his "trophy" aloft to the crowd and hailed it away. Bunny saw the act — and almost reversed his decision. He glared at the Yuke and it all the time.

Bolo battered the Yuke into submission after six minutes of the first fall. Came the swift second scramble and the Yuke took over in the third.

Bolo pummelled the lumberjack for both sides, front and rear with the "weapon" in his hand or his "head". But Bunny failed to be convinced. He let everything go until Yukon took matters in his own hands.

He hurled the Bolo out of the ring and followed him with a flying leap. He tore into the Bolo with both fists while a large crowd of excited fans hemmed in the combatants in a ringside.

Bunny finally located the "weapon" and decided the Bolo should be back in school. So he rang the bell and called off the festivities.

Mike Valentino also had a rough time of it in Thursday's decisions but weathered a rough storm with villainous Karl Von Stutz and Nine-Minute Draw.

The popular Wally Sieber and newcomer Howard Martin staged an outstanding but brief exhibition that probably helped prove the clean-cut tactics of both wrestlers. Sieber won it after 14 minutes of outstanding action.

Hull Bests Dawe in Mound Battle As Bobcats Win 3-2 From Cobourg

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bob Temple's Bobcats climbed into 4th place in the Belleville and District Softball league last night as Bobby Hull bested Jimmy Dawe 3-2 in a pitcher's duel before a large crowd at CNRA Park.

Bobcats now have a four and one record while Cobourg's record is three and one, but last night's game being their first. The same two clubs go back at it in Cobourg tonight at eight o'clock.

The winners opened the scoring in the 3rd with a pair of runs in the initial frame last night but one inning later the Merchants had it all tied up.

Bobby Hull won his own game in the bottom of the fourth, with a little help from Jimmy Dawe left fielder Bryan Hart. Hull slammed a grass cutter double through the left side of the infield and Hart slowed up all the way around as Hart in the ball to send him in left field. That made it 3-2 and Hull tossed one-hit ball the rest of the way to stand up.

Hull and Dawe were about as even as possible throughout the contest. Dawe allowed just three hits but walked four and five, two of which were flukes. The wicked mountaman struck out ten batters and walked only one. Dawe had nine whiffs to his credit. Both pitchers went the route.

In the error department the Cats were charged with four and the Bobcats with one but things evened up here too as each club scored a run as a result of an error. Bobcats got the win with fewer but harder hit more timely hits.

Dawe opened by fanning Paul Russell, playing his first game of the year at third for the Bobcats, Floyd Crawford followed with a broken ball double over Turpin's head at shortstop, a minute later "Wiener" Brown met a Dawe pitch square on the nose for a two-run circuit blast and 2-0 lead. It was Brown's second homer of the campaign, Stan's first single.

Scotty McSporran's sharp single to right field opened the second frame for Cobourg. Hull fanned the next two batters but a[illegible] error on Ken McGahey's ground ball allowed the lead runner to race all the way home. Hart drove in the equalizer with a single to left but he was cut down trying to stretch it into a double.

Then came Hull's two-bagger in the third with the big bobble to complete the scoring.

Cobourg had chances in the seventh when a pair of singles put two on with only one out but Hull fanned Bryan Hart and Ken Macgregor to end the threat.

Actually the loss was a tough one for Dawe as he faced only five men over the limit. After Crawford and Brown connected in the first and Hull in the fourth the only runners he allowed were Dawe on a walk in the 5th and Goegan on an error in the seventh.

McSporran with two singles and Hart, with one were the only solid hits allowed by Hull. Chub McIver punched a single to his wrong field in the third and Jack O'Brien hit a base bounding to O'Brien hit a high bounding single back to the mound in the fourth.

Cobourg — Cobourg: Turpin ss, Harnden rf, McIvor c, Dawe p, McSporran cf, O'Brien 3b, J. Hart lf, McGahan 2b, B. Hart lf, Clarey lf, Campbell batted for Harnden 9th.

Bobcats: Russell 3b, Crawford 2b, Brown ss, Hull p, Faulkner 1b, Goegan rf, Harrison lb, Crossins c, Smrke rf, Lamirande 3b. Umpires — "Shiner" Bates and Tim Williams. Time — 1.09.

Argonauts general manager Lew Hayman said Friday he had been assured by Knox's manager in Los Angeles that the football player was there. It was reported earlier that Knox's family was worried that he was either sick or injured on a trip to Mexico.

Keep 'Factor of Safety' in Mind

Way back in World War I, flow. That way, you give the when we were flying for the water the minimum of surface Navy, the instructors used to teach us about a thing called "factor of safety." Briefly, it means making allowance against accidents before they happen and thus preventing their happening.

Right now, it's a good thing to keep in mind, no matter what you're doing — driving a car, playing golf, anything.

Of course, there are always those who will say preventable accidents that no prudent person possibly could anticipate. Nothing to do about those; they're bound to happen. But most of the accidents in the outdoors are preventable and, by the use of a sufficient factor of safety, prevented.

Every year countless anglers wade trout streams and bass rivers. Every year we have wading accidents, sometimes drownings. The great majority of these are avoidable. If anglers would but use a little more caution, there would be few wading accidents.

First and foremost, it is nothing short of foolhardy for anybody to attempt to wade fast water which is directly above deep water. One slip and you'll find yourself submerged. It is not easy to swim while wearing fishing equipment and heavy clothing, particularly in ice-cold water.

HOLD FAST WATER

Only a few years ago a young man, an active fellow in his middle twenties, attempted to wade across a fast-water riffle above a deep pool in one of our trout streams, this while wearing rubber boots. He wound up as another case for the coroner.

Another common error that so many anglers make is to step from the top of one high rock to the top of another. Do that and you are asking for trouble. The safe way is to wade down on the stream bottom, from one rock to you can get, and then make your way between the higher rocks instead of on top of them.

The easy way to stay right-side-up while wading is to move slowly, feet well apart and knees slightly bent. Plant one foot solidly then move your weight onto that foot and keep it there while you find solid footing with the other foot.

And don't, if you can possibly help it, face the current or have your back toward it. Try, instead, to have the line of your hips parallel to the direction of

College Hockey Coach Quits

DULUTH, Minn (AP)—Connie Pleban, former coach of the United States world and Olympic hockey teams, has quit as coach of Minnesota's Duluth branch hockey team in a controversy over de-emphasizing the sport.

Pleban, whose teams over the last four years have run up a perfect 41-game winning streak against no losses in the Minnesota Inter-collegiate Athletic Conference, said Friday he was resigning because of the inconsistent policy and type of hockey program advocated by the administration and athletic department.

Canadian Gals Lose to British Golfers

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP) —Britain defeated Canada 5-1 Friday and took the lead in the Commonwealth women's golf tournament.

The victory over Canada possibly the key match of the tournament which ends Saturday, gave the shrewd British team a two-point lead over Canada and South Africa in the five-country race.

Canada plays Australia today and British meet Victory Canadians in the final matches.

The Friday loss was the first for Canada and left the team with four points, compared with undefeated Britain's 6. Australia had two and New Zealand not.

Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto chalked up Canada's only win, a 3-and-1 victory over Mrs. Elizabeth Price, new British amateur champion.

Britain had racked up convincing victories in the morning's two foursomes rounds, and clinched the victory by taking three of the four singles matches.

Mrs. Frances Smith defeated Roma Neundorf of Toronto 3 and 2; Jeanette Robertson beat Rae Milligan of Calgary 4 and 3 and Bridget Lawton eased past Judy Darling of Montreal 1 up.

Charge Against George Chuvalo Is Dismissed

TORONTO, (CP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, was discharged Friday morning preliminary hearing of a charge that he raped an 19-year-old mother.

Magistrate Donald Graham freed both the 23-year-old boxer and Ernest Holbrook, 22, accused of the same charge, after the mother admitted in court telling a friend a plan to sue the boxer for $10,000 and settle for $5,000.

The girl, who has a 17-month-old baby, claimed early last month that Chuvalo and Holbrook forced her into a lonely section of suburban Rexdale where she was raped.

Defence counsel Arthur Maloney drew from her the admission of her plan for a civil suit and also called attention to medical evidence that she had no bruises.

Screen Stops Many Homers In Stadium

KANSAS CITY (AP) — There's an angle to the smaller dimensions in the outfield in the American League this year—a 90-degree straight up angle.

It's the 15 - foot screen atop Municipal Stadium's short (320 feet) left field wall. It has provided a lot of American League longball hitters with frustrations. The screen lifts the barrier to 36 feet. Originally it was 25.

Only 14 balls have gone over the wire. Twelve got entangled and fell for singles. Another some more singles.

Chief victim of the screen is Chicago's Sherm Lollar. His drives have been comeshed twice.

Of the 14 blasts over the barrier, Boston is the victim of 5, now of New York Yankees, while he still was on Athletics roster. He has hit three.

Swede, Machen Lawyers Confer With Judge

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for both sides in the Ingemar Johansson - Eddie Machen suit have conferred with federal Judge Irving Kaufman, it was learned Friday.

Judge Kaufman refused to confirm or deny that a meeting was held in his chambers.

It was believed the meeting was held in an attempt to determine whether an agreement or settlement could be made before the Judge hands down a decision. Judge Kaufman reserved decision in the case Thursday.

Machen, a heavyweight contender seeks an injunction to prevent Johansson from fighting world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson until the Swede fights Machen first.

BIG WORK BEE

BRANTFORD (CP) — Fifty farmers in nearby Dereham Township met one day of this week to help a friend. Using 35 tractors, they plowed and planted 35 acres in corn on the farm of Cecil Williamson, who has been ill for several months and unable to do any planting. said it will take at least a couple of days to prepare for the execution.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Mr. Geo. Dyson, pastor of Thomasburg West Huntingdon charge of the United Church, attended the sessions of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the church, which were held in Queen's University, Kingston, last week. Mrs. Dyson visited with Captain and Mrs. Ted Bolte and daughters of Picton, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott accompanied by Mr. Fred Tavener of Napanee, enjoyed a motor trip to Michigan state last weekend, returning on Wednesday.

Mrs. Everett Priddle was hostess on Wednesday afternoon to the members of Roslin United Church of Thomasburg W.A., when about 35 ladies were present.

After the business and devotional part of the meeting slides were shown by Mr. J. N. Harris of Roslin, Ont., taken by her husband and herself on their trip to Mexico last January, and also by Mrs. J. E. Bateman of Tweed, of different scenes and customs in the district around Norway House, northern Manitoba, where the Rev. and Mrs. Donald and Mrs. Richardson, formerly of Thomasburg, are stationed.

Mrs. Richardson is the former Evelyn Bateman, daughter of the late J. E. and Mrs. Bateman of Thomasburg.

Mrs. Bateman is leaving in the near future to visit Mr. and Mrs. Richardson and will, no doubt, have many interesting items of talk about her return.

A dainty lunch was served by the convener and her group and a social hour was enjoyed by the members of the two organizations.

STILL FACES CHAIR

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Condemned killer Charles Starkweather failed Thursday in his latest attempt to escape Nebraska's electric chair. Three federal Circuit Court judges threw out the 20-year-old slayer's bid for a writ of Habeas corpus and refused to stay his execution any longer. Acting state penitentiary warden John Greenholt said it will take at least a couple of days to prepare for the execution.

Chaplain Says Christianity End in Itself

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Dr. E. G. R. Foote, chaplain of the fleet and deputy chaplain general of the armed forces of Canada, says "Christianity stands or its own feet as a great and glorious means and as an end in itself."

Dr. Foote, speaking Thursday to the 85th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said Christianity was not intended as a buffer against communism. Many had jumped on the bandwagon of Christianity with that argument.

In a busy session, the delegates heard greetings and praise from Rt. Rev. R. H. Wilkinson, Anglican bishop of Toronto and were welcomed by Mayor Philip Hpe, J. Keiller Mackay, lieutenant governor of Ontario, brought greetings from the Queen.

Bishop Wilkinson told the assembly:

"We are conscious of the debt we owe, hold to the Presbyterian Church, to its theologians, scholars, preachers and missionaries and to the influence—it exerts both here and throughout the world."

MARK FIRST

Church officials said it was the first time in years that a Presbyterian general assembly had received a representative of the Anglican church.

Rev. John F. Murdock of Waterloo, convener of the chaplaincy committee, suggested that consecrated Presbyterians serving full-time in the armed service should be ordained as elders without waiting for their release to civilian life—a practice followed in the Church of Scotland.

The assembly was asked to revise its administrative set-up and to reorganize its structure in terms of a new day.

Prof. C. Ritchie Bell of Montreal, convener of the special committee appointed last year to investigate the financial structure and administrative organization of the church, made the suggestion Sat'a report.

Action on it was deferred for later consideration.

METHODS OUTWORN

The former moderator said his committee has every confidence in the executive secretaries of the Presbyterian boards and committees, but efficiency was being impaired by outworn methods of administration and duplication of functions.

He said the committee—following an analysis by a firm of business consultants — is convinced that a state of emergency exists and asked the assembly to pass an interim act allowing changes even while major proposals were down to the 48 presbyteries for consideration under the Barrier Act.

The committee found "a lack of suitable organizational procedures for the co-ordination and preparation of a balanced budget and a lack of adequate controls to ensure that budget allocations are being adhered to from month to month."

The assembly deferred action until commissioners are prepared to go into recommendations in detail.

Justice Hughes Named to Head Civil Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Samuel Hughes, 46, of the Ontario Supreme Court will take over the $22,000-a-year chairmanship of the civil service commission July 1, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced.

Mr. Justice Hughes will leave his $18,000-a-year job on the bench, to which he was appointed only a year ago, to head Canada's civil service in time to preside over the first major revision of the 40-year-old civil service act. Mr. Diefenbaker has said it will be revised at the 1960 session of Parliament.

Mr. Justice Hughes's resignation from the Ontario bench to take the 10-year civil service appointment will take effect June 30.

Before going to the bench, he was a lawyer in Welland, where he also was an alderman from 1953 to 1956. In that year he became chairman of the Ontario highway transport board, which he left to join the

DIRECTOR OF COMMISSION

The civil service commission is responsible for general supervision, including hiring, of Canada's 150,000 federal civil servants.

The commission's procedures came under study recently by Mr. Justice Hughes's predecessor, Arnold Heeney, who has since returned to his post as Canadian ambassador to Washington.

Mr. Heeney recommended a streamlining of civil service administration, including a form of collective bargaining for government employees and extension of the appointing authority over workers in some Crown agencies.

Since his study, the Commons public accounts committee has been investigating civil service commission operations. Committee attention has been focussed on apparent weaknesses in commission authority over promotions made within government departments.

The commission chairmanship pays the second highest salary in the permanent civil service. It is topped only by the $25,000 salary of the deputy finance minister.

Plugs, Points Need Attention

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

It might surprise you to discover what you can do for your engine by giving spark plugs and ignition points regular attention. When they're not kept clean, smooth and correctly gapped, gas mileage and general performance are certainly going to taper off.

Many plug failures can be traced to use of the wrong type — for example, too low or too high in heat range. Whether a plug is too hot or too cold for your engine depends greatly on the kind of driving you do. So it is a wise idea to double-check this with your service man.

Plug life is also shortened by poor timing, overrich or lean fuel mixtures, defective ignition coil, points or cables, weak valves and leaky piston rings.

Wear, pitting and misalignment are probably the most noted forces of ignition robots with dirt, oil and incorrect gap settings running close seconds. Points are also ruined, of course, by such things as a defective condenser, excessive voltage, troublesome coil or a balky breaker arm.

C. B. asks: "Can you explain what is causing my windshield wipers to operate so sluggishly as they do? They are electric type."

(A) A faulty control switch, poor grounding connection or defective motor are the strongest possibilities.

• • •

From H. I.: "My rear springs are the leaf type. The left side is O.K., but the right rear bounces way down if the car is travelling a rough road. There are no broken spring leaves."

(A) It's a good bet that the right rear shock absorber is the troublemaker.

• • •

J. M. writes: "My car is a '58 model and has required two new ignition condensers since I bought it. The second one was put in only yesterday. What's causing this?"

(A) Premature condenser failure is usually brought on by either excessive heat, moisture or oil.

• • •

J. F. asks: "Burned exhaust valves are blamed for muffler explosions in my '51 car. Would high speed driving have burned out the valves?"

(A) It's one cause. Others are late timing, unusually lean fuel mixtures, clogged exhaust system, engine hot spots, or poorly seated valves.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

THE DOVE QUESTION

How valuable as food tan bird he whose total length is something like 1½ inches shorter than our domestic pigeon's and whose body is about the size of a robin's? Yet the gentle, confiding mourning dove is listed in the books as a game bird. In the southern states there are no restrictions on hunting it, in the northern states and, in parts of Canada it is off and on the open season list according to the license or the decline of its numbers. Thoughtful people wonder if it is not more valuable to us alive than dead.

The mourning dove's long, pointed tail can best be described as strongly resembling a cuckoo's for the longest feathers in the middle, graduated up the sides, and showing white spots on the edges, particularly in flight. The bird's prevailing color is greyish brown, with pale pinkish fawn below. The wings make a sharp whistling sound. And speaking of sound — the hollow mournful characteristic call supplies the reason for its name.

DISTURBED LIFE

This species, though ordinarily under legal protection in Canada, leads a disturbed life. Fortunately, the dove is a strong race. It comes to us in early spring, about the time of the spring lark. The breeding period begins in May and extends much longer than with most birds, for there are several broods. In the south there are generally four, but it has a shorter breeding season in the northern part of its range because of the necessity for migration. This accounts for its special need of protection here. Birds taken one year affect the breeding population the next.

However, as the mourning dove was increasing in Ontario, there having been no open season since 1917, in 1955 it was added to the game list, and provision made for a bag limit of eight birds. Fortunately, they still cannot be shot in the other provinces.

For the last few months, great arguments have been going on over the mourning dove's position in the northern states. The policy of the National Audubon Society is to recommend to the federal government in Washington what steps would be best taken regarding any species. Hunters have been crying for an open season. The Audubon Society is opposed the opening of a season even when the bird population is on the increase if the majority of citizens of a state are opposed. The mourning dove's favorite foods are weed seeds and waste grain. Do you not think this bird is more useful alive than dead?

U.S. May Move Fighter-Bombers To West Germany

French Stand on A-Bomb Stockpiles Said Reason

PARIS (AP)—About 200 United States fighter-bombers may soon be removed from their bases in France to West Germany, informed sources at Gen. Lauris Norstad's supreme Allied Headquarters in Europe said today.

These planes have atomic missions which their cannot perform effectively because France so far has not come to an agreement with the United States on stockpiling nuclear bombs on French soil.

A defence department spokesman in Washington declined to confirm that a decision had been made to withdraw the fighter-bombers. Norstad is now in Washington. A French newspaper here said such a decision was made.

Norstad's headquarters here refused to comment on the report that a decision already had been made to shift the nine American squadrons involved. But it said measures to make the planes effective "are being considered.

NO AGREEMENT

A statement said:

"Agreement has not been reached with the government of France governing the stockpiling, the operation and arming of NATO aircraft based on French territory. Pending the solution of such comprehensive arrangements, authorities in charge are having given to measures which will insure the effectiveness of Allied air units under the French. SHAPE can make no further comment at this time."

Negotiations have been under way for more than two years to get U.S. nuclear weapons and bomb stockpiles. The French want an agreement that would give they control over the stockpiles and also the technical information on how to fire their own bombs.

During American atomic secrets to France is blocked by U.S. legislation.

Present plans call for the fighter-bombers to take off from French Riviera bases pick up their atomic loads in Germany in case of war. With a growing French missile force, these planes might never have time to get into combat under these conditions.

DE GAULLE ATTITUDE

Behind the present dispute is the determination of President de Gaulle to obtain a greater role for France in NATO.

The French government today issued a cryptic statement saying discussions were going on with the U.S. and British governments concerning several NATO problems, including atomic stockpiles.

"They can reach a conclusion very soon," the statement said. "The French government considers the conversations necessary but there is no question of taking new engagements with NATO."

Harshest Campaign Charges As Politicians Eye Deadline

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some of the harshest charges of the Ontario election campaign were heard in the North during the weekend as stumping politicians eyed the June 11 deadline.

Clare Mapledoram, former Liberals and forestry minister, battered at the Liberals in a 10-minute thrust at a crowd of 400 persons at Fort William.

CCF Leader Donald MacDonald struck out at the Progressive Conservative government for "squandering" more than $100 million of public treasury in a bid for votes."

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer spoke in Sturgeon Falls Saturday and won a convert in an unsuccessful candidate for the Progressive Conservative nominations in Elgin.

Mr. Mapledoram, following Premier Frost as speaker, said: "The Liberal government that had in this province never got past North Bay without being pulled off the train drunk."

He praised the premier for his knowledge of the North—unlike Mr. Wintermeyer "he didn't stop in Sudbury for coffee and tell us what our problems were."

The Liberals spoke of out-man power in the North that what former Premier Mitchell Hepburn's "Provincial Police force would be only had one caucus—to find out whether it was safe to call the legislature."

Mr. Mapledoram, seeking re-election in Kenora, also scrapped "big shots" at the Lake head who were supporting the Liberals.

"They'd better get busy and get their heads together or they'll be washed down the drain in July."

Premier Frost outlined road construction under way or planned in Northern Ontario and said a road to James Bay from Pickle Lake is the "missing link" of the Lakehead "is in the plans."

In an interview, the premier confirmed that the Ontario government is planning a defence establishment at Moosonee but didn't know whether an airport or a missile base was under consideration.

He also read to reporters a statement issued on Sunday by Mapledoram, who resigned from the cabinet last year after it was disclosed he made about $200,000 in Northern Ontario Natural Gas stock. The statement was part of his prepared speech but was not given by him. He said it was an oversight.

Mr. MacDonald quoted a newspaper advertisement by a backer in his charge of public money used for votes.

He said the ad was placed by the Progressive Conservative Association in Rainy River riding and quoted:

"Any other representative than the Progressive Conservative goes Rainy River district miry being a complete halt to the many additional and proposed projects being undertaken for our benefit . . . there can be no doubt that many benefits which have accrued over the last few years of progressive conservative government will surely and immediately be put in jeopardy."

He called it a "blatant and indefensible threat to the electors."

"Obviously, as we head into the home stretch of this campaign, the Tories are shamelessly using the public treasury in a bid for votes as they have never done before," he declared.

The reference to the Conservative entitlement was made Saturday at Kirkland Lake.

Later, Mr. MacDonald moved to Timmins, also in Cochrane South. There he warned gold mine miners that the report of the select committee on labor relations makes their fundamental rights as union members.

The Liberal paper, whose party is reported running short of campaign funds, continued its attack on the $5,000 Liberal-red Cadillac which is looking as tired as its backers.

In Strathroy, he told a crowd of 260 of a campaign pledge to cut the 2nd Dundas St. Monteith of Shedden, the unsuccessful Conservative candidate.

The idea was that the provincial government would build roads to farms for men suddenly taken ill.

The Liberal leader termed it "an example of the sort of insulting gesture the people of this province." It was "a matter of interest and concern . . . that such a proposal was taken ill to operate farms effectively."

Mr. Frost, in Port Arthur, Monteith in the car and a moment later stepped out to announce: "I've got a car and got a convert."

Tonight he will hear his praises sung in Chinese when he attends a giant public rally in Toronto's Chinatown, climaxing his campaign.

The Tory leaders will be a group of children in Oriental costume from the Tory riding. Premier Frost candidate will arrive by helicopter. Another is bringing in Diefenbaker himself in an effigy of Premier Frost suspended by balloons.

The rally will feature a policy speech by Mr. Wintermeyer—the Liberal leader's first speech. The 20 Liberal candidates in the metropolitan area will be introduced.

HEART DISEASE 'BREAKTHROUGH' ONE STEP CLOSER

No 'Magic Formula' In Heart Research

MONTREAL (CP) — A year's exhaustive research into heart disease carried out by Canadian scientists has brought the prospect of a breakthrough one step closer.

The convention of the Canadian Heart Association, which ended Saturday, heard Dr. G. H. Kissinger, dean of medicine at Queen's University, Kingston, say great discoveries in heart work are rare.

"Hoping for miracle—has occurred in the heart field". There is no "magic formula" in heart research.

But Dr. Eitinger spoke with optimism of the future. "There will be no more miracles and there will be a breakthrough."

RECENT FINDINGS

Recent findings of cardiologists described at the conference include:

1. High blood pressure is related to deficiencies of certain minerals in the body, especially of sodium, a constituent of salt.

2. Dramatic results have been obtained in replacing heart cells in experiments using a combination of the heart-lung machine and a device to keep a patient's blood, and the deep-freeze technique by which the patient's temperature is lowered to slow the flow of blood.

3. The possibility of forecasting heart disease as long as 25 years before it strikes by means of heartbeat.

4. Experiments with anticoagulants and common plant enzymes, including chymotrypsin, have been successful against hardening of the arteries.

Controversy continues as to whether fats of different types are responsible for hardening of the arteries.

Some doctors are investigating the theory that certain types of mysterious fatty substance found in the blood may be the real cause arteriosclerosis.

Dr. J. C. Paterson of the United Church Mission Ontario takes as opposite stand, saying his research has revealed different shows "no relation" to arteriosclerosis.

Egg yolk and butter, types of animal fats, were condemned by most speakers who said they are major factors in the rise of this disease, which occurs when fat is deposited in artery walls, thickening them and reducing the blood flow.

Grafton Woman Seriously Hurt

WINNIPEG (CP) — A young Ontario woman gave birth to a baby girl in hospital here early today, a day after suffering severe injuries in a car crash near a neighboring St. James.

Mrs. Madeline Pacey, 23, of Grafton, Ont., was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Lyall, 24, when it collided with the rear of a transit bus.

Police said Mrs. Pacey suffered a fractured skull and lacerations to the chin and forehead. Mr. Pacey was released after treatment for minor injuries.

Nasser's Republic In Midst Of New Tensions In East

Air Battles and Border Troubles Cause Concern

CAIRO (CP) — Fighter plane clashes, border troubles and interference with shipping in the Suez put President Nasser's United Arab Republic in the midst of new tension in the Middle East today.

The incidents involved Israel and Jordan and emphasized that there is no peace in the bounded between Arab and Arab and Arab and Jew.

Israeli and U.A.R. jet fighters clashed in a brief air battle over the Negev desert—third such incident in the area this year.

An Israeli merchant seaman said Israeli fighters drove off four U.A.R. jets which penetrated Israeli air space, after a five-minute dogfight. There were no reports of casualties.

CAIRO'S VERSION

In Cairo, a U.A.R. military spokesman said Israeli fighter planes Sunday morning attacked U.A.R. planes on a training flight inside U.A.R. territory. Israeli planes was hit and the two pilots bailed to Israeli territory.

The U.A.R. spokesman said his country had lodged a protest with Dr. Georgiy Zarapkin, Russian chief of Israel, the U.A.R. mail.

Israel has also been complaining through the Suez Canal to Israeli's cargoes, irrespective of the ships in which they are carried.

Ministers Near Crisis in Thorny Problem of Berlin

GENEVA (Reuters)—The conferences of East and West foreign ministers today neared a crisis point in its efforts to find a solution to the thorny problem of Berlin as the Russian spokesman and Western delegates appeared to be that success is more likely than failure.

What is sought is a plan that could be submitted to a summit conference. Western officials were described as reasonably hopeful that a means of reconciling the opposed positions to the event of permitting such a meeting could be found.

Further discussion of the Berlin problem appeared likely as the four foreign ministers met today at the villa of Russia's Andrei Gromyko for the seventh in their series of private meetings.

Israel Prime Minister David Ben Gurion reported to his cabinet Sunday on Israeli counter-measures to prevent piracy in the Suez Canal," a communique said.

The measures included the detention by the U.A.R. of the Danish freighter Inge Toft since May 21 at Port Said. The Inge Toft, bound for the Far East, was held because it is carrying a cargo of Israeli potash, cement, scrap brass and marble.

As part of her economic boycott of Israel, the U.A.R. maintains her right to refuse passage through the Suez Canal to Israeli's cargoes, irrespective of the ships in which they are carried.

Bungle Attempt To Take Life Of President

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—A bungling attempt on the life of President Luis Somoza was made Saturday by four or five men firing rifles at his palace, informed sources reported.

The informants said National Guardsmen captured the riflemen a few miles away. The shots did not endanger Somoza, the informants said.

For a week the government has been trying to round up two small bands of rebels, numbering about 80 in all, who invaded Nicaragua from Costa Rica by plane. Seven have been captured and three have been reported killed.

Gromyko Talks With Lloyd on Nuclear Tests

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia's Andrei Gromyko called on Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd today and discussed East-West moves toward banning nuclear test explosions.

Gromyko called at his own request a few hours before three-power talks on banning nuclear tests were to resume here today after a month-long recess.

The meeting lasted 45 minutes. Asked by reporters whether there had been any progress, Gromyko smiled and said: "We talked." Lloyd added: "That's right, we talked."

Father of Quads Admits Having Another Wife, Family in N.Y.

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Oscar Dionne, father of the famous quadruplets' Saturday. Sunday he admitted he has a wife and two children in New York.

As the quadruplets slept peacefully in their incubators in East Orange General Hospital, the 39-year-old father added up for Lucille and the quints out eight. Bravata admitted having the double marriage of three in addition to Louise Strohlein Bravata, 31, the quads' mother.

The Bravata-Dionne freight conductor has been living more than two years in a five-room apartment here with Louise. Bravata calls her his wife.

Not so with Louise, a lawyer Herman Caponi of New York, they "never married", said the lawyer.

At a two-family brick home in Hoboken, N.J., Mrs. Grace Bravata, 38, lay in bed under sedation, her eyes red and darkly circled. Cire married her 18 years ago.

"Oh, he's a fine one", she moaned Sunday.

Cire and Grace had two children, a girl now 13 and a boy now 11. Bravata said he walked out in the fall of 1956.

As far as he is concerned, they are separated, Bravata said Sunday. But the lawyer said the legal action that Grace Bravata started here was put on the court calendar and never has been withdrawn or "termination."

Under a legal court order, however, Bravata was ordered to pay $50 a month to support his family in Hollis, Grace, who called her husband Cire, said that she got over the stunning news that he quads, described by parents as a near an escape-of-a-plague thing.

The backlog now stands at about $900 past due, Grace says. Bravata admitted he has ordered to pay $25 monthly rent for his Hoboken apartment.

Caponi's advice to Bravata, the lawyer said, was to "legally try to terminate the first marriage so he's free to marry the second woman legally."

Despite his entanglements, Bravata admitted being very pleased about the quads. He'll be 40 on Father's Day.

"Sure, who wouldn't be," he said Sunday at his apartment as he slipped on a clean shirt to go visiting at the hospital.

Need National Tariff Policy, Cost Reduction Says CMA Head

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—A national tariff policy "which puts Canadian interests first" was urged by Ralph P. McRae, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in an address to the association's annual meeting.

Speaking with the, Mr. McRae asked management, labor and government to join in a united assault on production costs.

Labor, he said, must realize that to go on as it has been doing is to invite still higher prices and still more unemployment. He added:

"Nothing organized labor can do would contribute more to slashing the ranks of the jobless than a substantial cut in the basic hourly rate—but we say two years holding the wage line.

"I am not asking unions to abdicate their functions—I am saying that there can be no price stability and no prospect of a growing economy, no job opportunities unless they join in a national effort to reduce costs. Unless we get some such commitment, the country itself might very well be headed for a serious slump."

Mr. McRae's remarks to Canadian General Electric, Toronto, told management that on its part it must apply itself, with greater determination than ever, to increasing the efficiency of its operations.

Government's part, said Mr. McRae, should be to promote an economic climate that is right for expansion without runaway inflation.

Liberace's Mother Was Most Upset By What Cassandra Called Her Pet

LONDON (Reuters) — Pianist Wladziu Valentino Liberace of Milwaukee went to court today to press a libel suit against a London newspaper that carried an uncomplimentary account of him and his mother. He is a circuit idol and TV tour he made here in 1956.

Women fans lined up in the rain outside the court before Liberace arrived and crowded into the chamber to see Liberace take his seat.

The suit is against The Daily Mirror, a London daily, with a circulation of 5,000,000, and a Mirror columnist, William Connor, who wrote under the name of Cassandra.

Liberace's lawyer, Gilbert Beyfus, complained that Connor's article contained comment among other things, the following description of the pianist: "This deadly, winking, sniggering, sunlight, chromium-plated, scent - impregnated, luminous, fascinating, gliding, flashlighted, mincing, lace-covered heap of mother love.

The Mirror based its defence on the contention that statements of fact appearing in the newspaper were true and expressions of opinion were fair comment.

Beyfus complained that the Mirror column in which Connor wrote:

"Was appalling man — and I use the word appalling in no other sense — to sense or intelligence — has hit his country in a way that is as violent as Christianity. Reviving the cheers on V-E Day.

"Without doubt he is the biggest sentimental slosh since Valentino. Slobbering over his mother. Kissing her full on the mouth during the cash at every second, this superb piece of calculating candy-floss is the answer for every old lady could be a toyboy dad.

Liberace lawyer contended that the article constituted a serious attack on Liberace's morals and the worst reference—"he is the summit of sex—the pinnacle of masculine, feminine and neuter"—was intended to mean that Liberace was a homosexual.

Liberace tried to keep the article from his mother but she saw it and was most upset, the lawyer said.
